Good candy, by which I do not mean expensive candy, but candy without artificial coloring or chemical flavors, is wholesome, nourishing and digestible. It has nothing to do with worms, regrettable as this may seem to Mrs. Gamp. Growing children who engage in active play need a larger ration of sugar in one form or another than do adults of sedentary or dignified habit. Sugar or candy contains no building material, but it furnishes immediately available energy for the hard worked muscles of lively children, including particularly the heart muscle.

Dr. Ruth Wheeler informs us, in the manual of the United States food administration, that sweets are all right: "Because of their flavor it is only too easy to eat too much of them. They are likely to cause digestive disturbances, to take away the appetite for other more valuable foods if eaten at the wrong time, and therefore indirectly to cause anaemia and bad teeth. Obviously they are entirely unbalanced foods, supplying only fuel and no building material in any other food. In moderation, as dessert after a good meal, they are in their proper place."

Candy canot replace bread and butter, milk, fruit and vegetables in the diet of a child in the growing years. It should not be given to children at irreguar times, but following meals. A pound of candy contains on the average 1,700 calories, rather more than a pound of the best beef.

The Credulity of the Obese.

"I am 38 years old, 63½ inches tall, and weigh 197 pounds. I have put on most of my weight in the past few years. Are Epsom salts baths beneficial? MRS. L. S. W."

If you mean beneficial for reducing, of course the Epsom salts bath is just a bad joke on a credulous individual. The credulous sex becomes more so with increasing obesity. The only safe and effective way to reduce is by controlling the intake of food and the output of energy—diet and exercise. Glad to give definite suggestions if you will accompany your request with a stamped addressed envelope for reply by mail.

Does Rupture Heal Spontaneously?

"When our boy was a year old we discovered that he had a rupture in the right groin. The doctor supplied a kind of belt for support. But after four months the rupture remains. Do you think there is any chance that the boy will ever become strong and the rupture heal? M. K. J."

The hernia (breech, rupture) has nothing to do with the boy's strength—it is merely an accident of development. If the belt or support prevents any bulging or protrusion there is still a chance that the rupture may heal, though after the first year such chance is small. In the third year, if the rupture is still present, the child should be operated on for permanent cure.

Excessive Perspiration Under Arms.

Will you please publish again a formula you printed months ago for the relief of excessive perspiration in the armpits? M. M. L."

Half an ounce of aluminum chloride dissolved in two ounces of distilled or rain water. Mop same on the skin of the armpits with sponge or cotton once each alternate day for about three times.

To confound the proofreader, I'll repeat the formula:

Aluminum chloride, half ounce.
Distilled water, two ounces.

EDWARD CONROY IN AUTO WRECK

STREET CAR RAN INTO HIS AUTOMOBILE ON CHARLOTTE STREET YESTERDAY.

Edward Conroy, 547 Water street, was struck by a street car yesterday afternoon while he was turning his automobile around on Charlotte street. The street car, which was proceeding east at the time in charge of Motorman Ormiston and Conductor T. Fry, struck the auto on the left side about the centre throwing Mr. Conroy out on the pavement. Dr. McNulty was called and states that he fears that one of Mr. Conroy's shoulders was badly fractured. He was taken to his home and this morning was able to sit up, though unable to use his left arm. He also complains of a very sore back. The accident occurred just after he had left the Parker's Dye Works at 177 Charlotte street. Seeing a street car at the corner of George and Charlotte from which passengers were alighting, he decided to turn around and go home by Aylmer street. The car struck him as he was in the act of turning. Mr. Conroy heard no gong or any other warning, nor did he see the car that was proceeding east.

The automobile was a total wreck, and was sent to the Duffus Garage.

OFFERS TO RETURN

Vera de Lavelle Writes Solicitor That She May Surrender.

Toronto, June 19.—In a letter to W. B. Horkins ,of the legal firm of T. C. Robinette and Co., Vera de Lavelle states she is willing to return to Toronto and give herself up to the police. She states that her return depends on whether the authorities are inclined to treat her conviction with some leniency.

As an ESTATE BUILDER there is nothing to equal Life Insurance.

TAKE THE FOLLOWING ACTUAL RESULT

A young man sixteen years of age took out a 15 years Endowment (No. 210380) in the Sun Life of Canada, which matured on the first of April. This young man paid annually $66.20 for fifteen years and he now has, through that investment, an immediate estate of $3496.00 in case of death.

DO YOU KNOW THAT THIS AMOUNTS TO ALMOST 15 PER CENT COMPOUND INTEREST ON EVERY DOLLAR PAID?

Cabinet Changes Basis Of Rumors

D. SUTHERLAND IS SPOKEN OF AS MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE.

Ottawa, June 19.—The day has been occupied with a good deal of gossip about cabinet reconstruction and the end of the session. A minister of agriculture will soon have to be chosen, and he ought to come from the west. It was reported that W. M. Hamilton of Weyburn, Sask., who represents the grain growers on the Canadian national railways directorate, would join the government, but it turns out that Mr. Hamilton has accepted the Liberal nomination for a seat in the Saskatchewan Legislature and is soon to enter the Martin Government. R. C. Henders, Unionist M.P. for Macdonald, and president of the Manitoba Grain Growers' Association, is mentioned as a possible successor to the Hon. Mr. Crerar, but it is doubtful if he could carry his seat at the by-election. Dr. S. F. Tolmie, Unionist member for Victoria, B.C., is the most likely man to be appointed, although a strong movement is on foot among the Unionist members from Ontario to boom Donald Sutherland of South Oxford for the vacant portfolio.

Six Vacancies.

Cabinet reconstruction would necessite by-elections, and six vacancies already exist in the house. The government, it is understood, has been unable to come to any agreement with the opposition about these by-elections, and hence the rumor is current that the franchise bill will be trought down after all efore prorogation.

Contract Let For Bathing House

WORK WILL BE STARTED AS EARLY AS POSSIBLE AT LAKE STREET.

C. H. Huffman & Sons have been awarded the contract for building a bathing house for public use at the end of Lake street.

The price is $1135, and the only other tender received was that of Harry Hickey, who asked $1170 for the job.

The contract was let this morning by Council's bathing beach committee, who also adopted the recommendation of the Playgrounds committee that the bathing house be erected on the Lake street side.

LOCAL INVESTORS HAD MONEY IN LOAN COMPANY

Standard Reliance Mortgage Corporation Closes its Doors—Reorganization Given as Reason.

Local investors have funds invested in the Standard Reliance Mortgage Corporation, which has closed its doors in Toronto. The company has been paying dividends up to recently and the investment was considered safe. The story of the affair as sent out from Toronto is in effect as follows:

In pursuance of a plan for the complete reorganization of the Standard Reliance Mortgage Corporation, the directors at a meeting yesterday empowered George H. Kilmer, K.C., to apply at Osgoode Hall for a winding-up order. Justice Masten, in granting the order, appointed G. T. Clarkson provisional liquidator.

As outlined by Mr. Clarkson last night, it is proposed to form a new company, composed of representatives of creditors and stockholders, and it is eqpected, by careful nursing of the assets, not only to reimburse all creditors fully, but also to provide some measure of return to the shareholders. Deposits amount to about $1,000,000, outstanding debentures total $4,000,000, and capital stock subscribed amounts to about $2,640,000.

The company's total assets, as shown in its last annual report totaled about $8,500,000. Apparently, nearly one-half of the assets are represented by investments in and loans to the Dovercourt Land, Building and Savings Company, as Mr. Clarkson said he understood such commitments totaled about $4,000,000.

Real Estate Holdings.

The difficulties in which the company finds itself are due to the fact that, while it has large and valuable assets in its extensive real estate holdings, they are not immediately realizable. F. E. Rathbun, secretary-treasurer, said to The World yesterday that he was confident that the organization scheme, of which Mr. Clarkson is the author, will result ultimely in all persons financially interested in the company being fully indemnified.

The Standard Reliance Compan about two years ago took over all the assets of the Dovercourt Land, Building and Savings Company, which up to that time, no described as a subsidiary, with virtually all the stock owned by the Standard Reliance, kept its own identity. At this time, Col. W. S. Dinnick, president of the Dovercourt Land Company, and a vice-president of the Standard Reliance, retired from both boards. A few weeks ago the Lawrence Park holdings in North Toronto were disposed of at public auction, the sum obtained bein gabout $300,000. The company's present holdings embrace valuable downtown real estate, as well as suburban lands, including the building, No. 10-12 East King street, of which the Standard Reliance and the Sterling Trusts occupy the ground floor, and the building formerly occupied, at 82-84 East King street. Among the suburban holdings, one of the greatest assets is the property formerly known as the Anderson farm, on the west side of Yonge street opposite Lawrence Park.

G. C. Clarkson's Statement.

Mr. Clarkson said last night: "The company wound up on its own petition in anticipation of reorganization, the intention being, if the creditors agreed, to turn the assets over to a new company which is to be managed by a board of directors elected by both creditors and stockholders.

"The officers of the compayn, after a careful examination, are of the opinion that if the reorganization is effected the assets should suffice to pay all creditors in full, and ultimately to give some return to stockholders. Representatives of important bodies of depositors and debenture holders have considered the proposal and approve it.

"Meetings of creditors and shareholders will be held in the near fu- deal with the matter.

"The paid-up capital of the company is $2,640,000.00, while deposits amount to about $1,000,000, and debentures outstanding, to $4,000,000. Of the ompany's assets $4,000,000 are said to be represented by its investments in the loans to the Dovercourt Land Company.

OMEMEE

(Special Correspondent)

Omemee, June 19.—The many friends of Mr. W. G. Stephenson will be pleased to know that he returned from the General Hospital Toronto on Friday where he underwent an operation for appendicitis recently.

Mr. T. Ingram is spending a few days in Toronto.

Messrs Kemp, Beasley, Smith and Graham of Toronto motored to Omemee to try out the fame of the pigeon river as a fishing ground. The first day's catch was eight large maskilonge and the tourists are loud in their praises.

The many friends of Mr. James McCaffery of Toronto will regret to learn that he is very seriously ill.

Mr H. R. Murray of Peterborough was in Omemee for the opening of the fishing season.

The Rev. John Garbutt of Oshawa will preach in the Methodist Church next Sunday both morning and evening. The evening sermon will be to the Masonic brethren of this district.

Many young people from Omemee attended the garden parties held held at Fleetwood and Mount Horeb last week.

Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Sandy entertained the Reeve and village council and the Board of Trade and their wives as well as many friends from a distance on Thursday evening last. The beautiful lawn of "Avenue Farm," was decorated with flags and many lights made gay the scene of an early June garden party. Mr. Cowan, Editor of the Farm and Dairy, of Peterborough was the speaker of the evening. Mr. John Brock of North Ops was the chairman and a splendid program was rendered, after which dainty refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants, and a very enjoyable evening was spent by all.

Mrs. Lewis and her mother, Mrs. Campbell are spending a few days with friends in Buffalo, N.Y.

Mrs. Weir, accompanied by her friend, Mrs. Davidson of Keene, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. J. Weir.

On Tuesday morning the nine o'clock express was derailed just west of Lindsay and many people were injured as a result. Among those injured were several Omemee ladies, all of whom are doing nicely, although still suffering from nervous shock. Those from this locality were Mrs. Jos. Rutherford and daughter Miss Nettie who were en route to Detroit, Mich. Mrs. Rutherford sustained two ugly gashes on her left hand and a broken finger. Miss Rutherford escaped with a few bruises and a severe shaking up.

Mrs. Shea and Mrs. Albert Ford who were on their way to Toronto received injuries to the head and Mrs. Ford, a sprained ankle. All were able to return to their homes on the noon train and are now receiving the congratulations of friends on their miraculous escape.

The Misses Cornwall were visitors to Lindsay on Tuesday

The annual meeting of the Woman's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. George McQuade on Monday afternoon. Miss Foote the speaker for the afternoon gave a splendid address, giving the ladies many pointers on how to vote, following the address lunch was served and a social hour was spent by all.

Many boys have returned home since last writing. Among them are:

Sergt. Walter Mitchell.
Pte. Cecil Mills, M. M.
Pte. Walter Harris, M.M, and Bar.
Pte Charlie Toole, who was wounded four times.
Pte. Hornby.

The boys are all in the best of health and are being welcomed by their many old friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Courtney and Mrs. Toole of Newtownville motored to Omemee on Tuesday and will spend their vacation among friends here.

Mrs. Lorne Howell and children returned to their home in Toronto last week after a pleasant visit with Mrs. Isaac Fee.

VETERANS ASK FOR GRANT FROM COUNTY COUNCIL

Question Now in Hands of Finance Committee—Navy League Also Asks for $3,000

President Morrison with four other members from the G.W.V.A., addressed the County Council asking for a grant to complete the building on Murray street. He invited the Council to visit the building at any time that suited their convenience.

Captain Layfield told of the work done in getting the Veterans' club rooms ready. "It was the intention," he declared, "to give the building for the use of the veterans free of debt, but we are unable to do so without extra help. Our association will be self-supporting after we get started. The soldiers are one of the influences that stand for law and order in this country."

Secretary Whatley explained that the work of the G.W.V.A. is assisting soldiers to obtain their pensions when due. In pensions, war service gratuities, etc., the local institution has secured approximately $17,000 for veterans and their dependents. He spoke about one case where a man with a pension of only $5 a month died, leaving a wife and family. Through the work of the local G. W. V. A. he was secured a decent funeral, and the case of his dependents was brought up before the authorities.

The Warden, in reply, said: "There is not an individual in Peterborough County who does not appreciate the work of your association in looking after the returned boys."

On motion of Reeve Wm. Mattheson and Deputy Reeve Bell the matter was referred to the Finance Committee.

The Navy League.

Judge Huycke then spoke in regard to the claims of the Navy League. 'We must not forget that if it had not been for the navy we could not have transported our troops, nor supplied the British Empire with food. If it had not been for the navy, I have no doubt that the Empire would not exist today.

Captain Robert Campbell asked for a grant of $3,000 to the Navy League. He described his experiences as a guest of the grand fleet, and the trip across the Atlantic last year, when the destroyers guarded the convoy from attacks by submarines. Over 17,000 sailors were lost in the war, leaving about 40,000 dependents "Why shouldn't the Government look after these dependents and the injured sailors?" he enquired. "We need the league with its voluntary help until such time as the Government does take it up," was the way he answered his own question. He also asked for money for educational work, and mentioned the reader that will be placed in the public schools next fall. Naval brigades will be established to train young fellows in seamanship, both for use in the mercantile and naval marines. "Would it not be a fine thing to send our own goods in our own ships, manned by our men?"

Rev. Father Phelan expressed the regrets of Bishop O'Brien for his unavoidable absence, and spoke briefly in favor of the objects of the league. Rev. Robert Pogue believed that too many words were out of order in the hot weather. Mr. G. W. Morrow spoke of the cheers given by a New York audience when it was stated that the British fleet had saved New York from being in ruins. The Warden assured the deputation that the Navy League would not be overlooked, and its claim was passed on to the Finance Committee.

Reeve W. E. Griffith, seconded by Reeve M. Coughlin, moved an amendment to the resolution of the School Committee, raising the allowance of the school inspector for travelling expenses from $400 to $500. This was rejected by six to five so that the increase decided on will stand.

An application was read from H. Nesbitt for an increase of $200 in salary. At present he received $850 for his duties as a jailor and $300 as a caretaker for the County Court. On motion of Reeve Wm. Mattheson, seconded by Reeve M. Brown, it was referred to the Finance Committee.

Norwood will have another bridge built by the County on condition that the village build the sidewalk for foot traffic alongside of it. The width of the bridge will be 31 feet. This was decided on by the committee on roads and bridges. Messrs. Nichols, McIntosh and Squire were the special sub-committee to deal with this bridge on Alma street, Norwood.

JOHN NEVINS IS NEW TRUSTEE

OF NORWOOD HIGH SCHOOL TO SUCCEED JOHN DOUGHERTY, RESIGNED.

At the afternoon session of the County Council Mr. John Dougherty tendered his resignation as a trustee of Norwood High school as he was leaving the district. It was moved by Reeve Wm. Matheson, seconded by Reeve N. Lean, that Mr. Arthur Bredin should be appointed to fill the vacancy. This was carried, but the motion was later withdrawn, on the request of Reeve M. Brown. He then moved, seconded by Reeve B. W. Squire, that Mr. John Nevins should receive the appointment. Five members voted in favor of it, and as the opposition refrained from voting he was declared elected.

Reeve M. Coughlin of Douro then called the attention of the Council to Sawyers' Creek bridge, and on motion of Reeve Squire, seconded by Reeve Brown, the chairman of the Roads and Bridges Committee, Reeve Geo. B. Nichols of Smith, was appointed to examine the bridge and report to Council.

The following bridges were favorably reported on by the Roads and Bridges Committee and will probably be passed by the County Council:

To rebuild the Little Mud Lake bridge with concrete.

Girven's bridge and Birdsall's bridge were mentioned as in immediate need of considerable repairs.

Alma street bridge, Norwood, will be rebuilt this year.

A grant will be made to Freeman's bridge, Belmont.

96 BUSHELS OF WHEAT TO ACRE

TWO NEW VARIETIES HAVE BEEN PRODUCD IN ENGLAND.

London, June 19.—It is announced that the plant breeding section of the University of Cambridge, which is closely associated with the Board of Agriculture, has succeeded in producing two new varieties of wheat styled Fenman and Yeoman.

These were distributed to farmers and it is reported that the result has been to treble the average yield. One crop produced 96 bushels to he acre.

Milling and baking trials have shown that while the Yeoman variety is no tequal to the famous RedFife from the viewpoint of milling qualities, yet it is sufficiently strong to produce a good quality loaf without the addition of imported wheat.

EVANGELIST KENNEDY WILL SPEAK TONIGHT ON GIDEON

Orangemen Especially Likely to Enjoy the Message—Revivals Services Growing in Interest.

"This day is not a day of infidelity, it is a day of substitutes of all kinds," was one of the striking statements made last evening by Evangelist Kennedy in his address in connection with the evangelistic campaign that is being held in the city Mr. Kennedy showed that people are not turning away from God into direct infidelity but that they are being misled by all manner of substitute religions, which ignore the sacrifices of Christ and therefore are the devices of Satan. Men are hungering after God, but Satan, who clothes himself as an angel of light misleads them by giving them unsatisfactory substitutes. Any religion in which the atonement of Christ for the sins of the individual and of the world is a religion which God will not honor.

—The Christian people of Peterborough who were expecting a great blessing to come to the city from the Dr. Honeywell campaign last fall and who were so deeply disappointed that the campaign had to be discontinued so soon after its inception, are being given reason to expect that the present campaign may bring the desired blessing.

Evangelist Kennedy is making a very favorable impression each night and the interest in the meetings is growing steadily. At the close of the night's meetings he remarked that he had seldom been connected with a campaign where the evidences of interest were so keen on the fourth night as they were in Peterboro.

Tonight he will speak on Gideon. It will be a message that Orangemen in particular will enjoy. Tomorrow night his subject will be "How to keep young and good looking." It will be of special interest to young people.

Last night Mr. Kennedy based his remarks on Judges 14: 6. Unlike most speakers on religions themes he did not hold Samson up as a man who made a a big failure of his life. Instead, he showed how God honored all Samson's prayers and how time and again the Bible record bears testimony to the fact that the spirit of the Lord was upon Samson. While Samson did go wrong as did other bible characters he still is ranked in the Book of Hebrews as one of the great Bible characters honored by God.

The singing last evening was a special feature of the service. Mr. Asa Huycke of the Murray Street Baptist Church choir sang with his usual effectiveness. A duet by the Misses Hartshorn was rendered with great sympathy and was especially appropriate to the character of the service. A duet by Miss Clara Kidd and Mr. F. E. Waldon was also much enjoyed. Mr. Waldon is acting as accompanist each week night and is rendering very efficient service. He was at one time organist of the George Street Methodist Church. Mr. Mulligan is giving valuable assistance as the leader of song. Tonight the George Street Church choir will lead the singing. Several of the Methodist ministers are out of the city attending conference meetings and therefore will not be in attendance for some nights. They have been giving their hearty assistance. Last night Rev. Messrs Doner and Pogue assisted the evangelist.

In accordance with the policy announced last Sunday night no collections have been taken up in connection with the services, nor will any be taken up this week. This is an unusual feature of an evangelistic campaign of this kind and is appreciated by those who attend.

The following striking passages are extracted from some of Mr. Kennedy's addresses:

SPARKS FROM KENNEDY'S ANVIL

If there is no devil, someone somewhere is doing the work the Bible says the devil is doing.

The most deceived of all men is the one who thinks he is being influenced by God's spirit, when it is the devil.

The devil tempts good people most. Jesus could not have been tempted from within, so there must be a devil.

The devil cannot forsee, or he would not have killed Christ.

The devil don't get drunk. There are some spirits he wont' take.

With every opportunity comes temptation. The devil is ever on the heels of God.

Christ in His weakness was stronger than the devil at his best.

The meannest sin there is is to tempt another to do wrong.

Christ met His temptations just as we may do, with the Word and by prayer.

When tempted, don't argue with the devil; resist him.

The difference between God and the devil is that if you draw near to God He will draw near to you; if you resist the devil, he will flee from you.

The devil tells men it's right to do wrong when you can do good.

He comes as a roaring lion to destroy. If that does not work, he comes as an angel of light to corrupt.

He is saying to men today in universalism and annihilation, "Thou shalt not surely die." If that does not suit, then in evolution and theosophy he says, "ye are gods."

All our future depends on where we put our worship.

The devil don't like Christians because he knows we are going to where he was put out.

Jesus does not save us from temptation, but in temptation, that we may not yield. His grace is always sufficient.

When Paul described the Christian soldier he mentioned a piece of armor for every part except the back. It was never intended for a Christian to run.

Temptation is as old as the Garden of Eden. No sooner had God said, "not to eat," than the devil said "eat."

There is nowhere you can go to get rid of temptation. You may go to the highest mountain or deepest canyon, to the busy city or live alone on an island, yet temptation will assail you and the only thing to do is to accept it and through Christ overcome it.

WILL BUILD BATHING HOUSE AND DEFY THREATENED INJUNCTION

Site Recommended by Committee at the End of Lake Street—Maria Street Proposition Unsuitable—J. W. Worth Scores Council For Timidity.

The Committee in charge of the bathing place project have abandoned the proposition of the west end of Maria street for a site at which to establish a public bathing place, for the reason that several private cess pools empty their sewage into the river at this point.

It has now been decided to erect the bathing house at the east end of Lake Street in spite of Mrs. A. McDonald's threatened injunction proceedings.

This was the result of a meeting last evening, attended by Mrs., A. Mowat, Mrs. R. H. Parsons, Messrs B. F. Ackerman, G. A. Roberts, J. W. Worth and Geo. Evans of the Playgrounds Committee, together with Mayor Duncan and Ald A A. McIntyre for the Council's Bathing House Committee, the other members of which did not appear in response to their call Tenders for the erection of a bathing house according to the modified plans were not opened, as His Worship and Ald. McIntyre did not constitute a committee quorum with power to deal with them.

Incidentally, while waiting for the absent members of the Council's Committee to show up Mr. Ackerman remarked that the vacillating policy of Council in regard to the Hunter street bridge contract did not encourage much hope for a public bathing place this year.

Never Mind Threats

The members of the Playgrounds Committee were united in rejecting the proposed site at the foot of Maria street, where the river must be seriously contaminated by sewage and they pressed for the Lake street site

Mr. Worth regretted that this year's council had shown too much inclination to be scared at threats of injunction. "Go ahead," he said, "and erect the bathing house at the end of Lake street, and by the time the injunction proceedings are over the swimming season will be ended. The little folks will then have had their bathing privileges for this year in spite of uncalled-for opposition."

Proper Use of Lake

City Solicitor Widdifield advised the committee to have no fear of any injunction. The site is city property and the only suitable spot for children's bathing purposes; the intention is to make proper use of the lake, and Mrs. McDonald would not be prevented from using her house. In any event the removal of the bathing house would not be ordered unless it is proved to be a nuisance.

Mr. Roberts said even young men are now undressing at the rear of Mrs. McDonald's house and a properly supervised bathing spot in that neighborhood would abate all such nuisance.

Wait 7 Years More

Mrs. Mowat—"Seven years ago Mrs. McDonald stopped bathing at Lake Street, and is she now to block the project for another seven years? What is to be gained by waiting any longer? Is there any other suitable site in view?

These questions were answered in the following resolution, passed unanimously:

Moved by Mr. Worth, seconded by Mr. Roberts, that this meeting ahead and build a bathing house at the end of Lake street."

Supervision Wanted

Mrs. Mowat suggested that some measure of supervision at West Nicholls Park (Inverlea) be furnished. Hundreds, she said, resort there and indications point to the danger of lack of order and decorum arising.

His Worship agreed with Mrs. Mowat and remarked that the other night the dressing room was broken into at Inverlea Park; and at Jackson Park also damage was done by boys, on mischief bent.

Mr. Ackerman—"The bathing season only lasts three months of the year and a man to supervise and teach the little folks to swim would only cost $250 or $300 the season."

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

DARKENS BEAUTIFULLY AND RESTORES ITS NATURAL COLOR AND LUSTRE AT ONCE.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients; a large bottle at little cost at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound no one can tell because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

U.S. HOTEL RATES TO BE INCREASED

COMING OF PROHIBITION JULY 1ST TO BE GIVEN AS REASON.

Hotel rates in Chicago — and throughout the coming "dry" nation for that matter—are going to be advanced from 25 cents to $1 or more a day July 1 or thereabouts, according to Joseph Byfield, manager of the Hotel Shreman and Fort Dearborn hotel, and Leonard Hicks, manager of the Hotel Grant and secretary of the Chicago Hotelkeepers' Association. While managers of the various hostelries have different opinions about it, the idea generally expressed is that the rates that such will be the only way of "breaking even."

Expenses Up Instead of Down.

Roscoe Thompkins of the Blackstone hotel and president of the Chicago Hotelkeepers' Association, denied that rates were going up immediately, but said that advances ultimately will follow the drying out of the nation. Ernest J. Stevens of the LaSalle and Harry Moir of the Morrison also said rates would soon go up.

"It's like putting an $3 man on a $3 salary," said Leonard Hicks. "When a hotel has been making nearly all its revenue from the bar, and that revenue is stopped, why he has to do something to keep the upstairs going. That something will necessarily be an advance in room rent, because that is the only thing the hotel man has to sell. We have been optimistic, but while expecting things to go down in price, we suddenly get the notice that carpets, linens and pretty nearly all hotel necessities have gone up 10 per cent. instead of down, and anybody knows what labor is today. Rates are going up, can't get away from it."

Up to Each Individual House.

Another hotel man said that there would be no general or set raise in rates, but that each house would boost its rates according to its own condition and ability to get the increase. "Where the smaller hotels will increase their rates 25 cents to 50 cents a day, the larger, more ornate and more expensively manned hotels, will increase their prices from 75 cents to $1.25 a day," he said.

MANY SONGS DIE AS SOON AS THEY ARE HATCHED

Why Some Song Writers Fail

If every one or nearly every one of the songs submitted to the music publishers in Canada were to be printed and used by the public, we would have built up a big Canadian poetry and melody industry. But many of the fondest hopes of an amatuer composer never reach the music printer's hands. It is generally known that there are numerous productions of merit from the pens of Canadian song-writers but it is at the other side of the fence that this article is to be a peep.

A certain party not long ago submitted a lyric of some seven stanzas, which if set to appropriate music, was bound to create the censation of the year. We have the composer's own word for that. This sure hit was offered to one of the publishers in Toronto for $400 spot cash. Had you had the "privilege" of reading over the lyric you would understand why the publisher could be so bold as to pass up a money-making opportunity like that. The poem sounded like a school boy's first composition, although it did rhyme, that must be acknowledged.

Another person who had been moved to commit a song to paper and who lived out in a small Ontario town, would not even entrust her manuscript to His Majesty's mail. She took it to the publisher in person, arriving at his office breathless from great hurry in walking up from the station. So important was the influence of this song to be upon humanity. And the song? words fail when one wishes to describe it But then we are all conceited about our own opinions and our own accomplishments.

Wherein do these failures fail? Some of them are too matter-of-fact. They do not get a viewpoint of the public from the right angle. They stick to the solemn truth too closely. As someone put it, "in actual life a chap hires a row-boat and works like a Trojan to take his sweetheart up the river on a blasing hot afternoon; but in a song the lovers always glide along in a canoe by the silvery moonlight." Some of these failures do not know that "home" or "cottage" is always better than "house." It is not "walk", but "stroll" or "roam". The hero is not buried in the cemetery. He sleeps in the churchyard.

Others again do not know that the range of the average voice is confined to the octave, and therefore the melody must conform to that. Otherwise the crowds will never sing it. Also the accompaniment must be easy or the young men and women why buy the popular music of the day cannot play it.

Another thing omitted by some unsuccessful song writers, is "punch" in the chorus. It is the chorus largely that popular songs are known by and it is there the successful song-writers plant the "punch."

PLAN NEW CHURCH BUILDING TO ACCOMMODATE ORGAN

A gentleman stood watching the organ builders at work installing a new pipe organ in a certain church, which building had already been up a few years. He learned that when the church itself had been completed the congregation had felt that they could not afford the additional expense of an organ at once, so they deferred the installation of the organ for four or five years. Finally when the contract was let and the workmen commenced to build it in, they found the building had been put up with little or no provision made for the instrument. The gentlemen referred to said that, had the members of the church committee who neglected to allow for the future possible installation of an organ in their original building plans, been present and heard the resultant language of the workmen some of the committee would have been enraged at the names they were called or else they would have slunk away thoroughly ashamed of themselves.

When the church is first built is the time to provide the proper place for the organ.

WESTERN MUSIC IN THE ORIENT

Canton Times Reports on Local Musical Progress

The music of the Occident has completely conquered the Japanese Empire, where it was ridiculed a few years ago. All travellers from the land of the Mikado are agreed on this point. That the music of the West is also winning its way through China is not so well known, but this also is a fact.

From the following clipping taken from a recent issue of the Canton (China) Times, we get an idea of how Western music is growing in popularity in this progressive oriental city.

"Foreign musical instruments are finding greater sales in Canton nowadays. Graduates and former students of mission schools where Western music is taught have brought their love for American and European songs and instruments back to their homes, and it is not strange to hear, when one is walking along one of the streets in the residence district. Saae Kwan, in the evening sounds of foreign melody bursting forth from some of the homes. For many years the Sacred Heart College has kept up a band, and now the Kung Yee Medical College Canton Christian College, and other institutions are going the same. These boys after leaving school will still keep up their musical habit. A visit to one of the local department stores has given the information that an average of one organ a day is sold.

DISCOVERS CURE FOR PNEUMONIA

DOCTOR SAYS IT IS NO MORE FATAL THAN BOIL.

New York, June 19. — Influenza and pneumonia are no more to be feared than a boil on the back of your neck, according to Dr. Charles H. Duncan, one of the founders of the Volunteer Hospital, who, in an address here before the convention of the Allied Medical Association of America, described his method of combatting Spanish influenza by means of "immunizing a patient to his own poison." Upon 246 patients ill with pneumonia and influenza last winter, Dr. Duncan said, he had used the treatment "without a single fatality or any complications."

"Briefly," the physician said, "I take one drachm of mucus from the infected area and pasteurise it in one ounce of filtered water, where it remains several hours. One cubic centimetre of this toxine, injected subcutaneously, would effect a spontaneous cure of Spanish influenza, pneumonia or any similar localized infection. It will stop any cough except tuberculosis inside of twenty-four hours."

Dr. Geo. F. Laidlow, professor of the history of medicine and diagnosis at Flower Hospital, in discussing the Duncan method, said that the discoverer "has solved a problem that has been germinating in medicine for two thousand years. Dr Duncan's work marks the conclusion of Pasteur, Koch and Wright, and is a decided step forward in the regular development of bacterial therapy."

The quickest way for a woman to get rid of her ideal is to marry him.

VALUES OF ART LIFE

It is in deed and in truth a pity that all cannot be brought into the circle of highly organized minds who can and do sincerely enter into the full appreciation of the finer values of art life. Many can be led by easy stages, if care is exercised to present each stage at the right time. A few young students who have been surrounded in the home with the better class of music, painting and literature will often play a moderate amount of Bach's easier pieces such as the arrangements by Leefson, Spalding or Faelton. They will do this provided some interesting stories about Bach have paved the way. "The Child's Own Stories of Great Composers," by tapper, answers this purpose admirably. Almost any child will be interested in these stories but, as just mentioned only those from the better environment, will study the music without protest. Thus, the youth with the pooorer environment must have a longer probation under the tutelage of a teacher who will keep ever before the student the highest ideals in art, interesting experiences, such books as Tappers "First Biographies," "Chats With Musical Students," and plenty of music in the lessons and at the recitals from the best masters.

MUSIC IS ESSENTIALLY MODERN

To grasp fully the spirit of today we must know something about music. Just as sculpture was the peculiar expression of ancient life and painting of the Middle Ages, so music is essentially modern and is our best expression of the life we live today. That is the reason music should have a place in any educational program of the present day. And the higher one goes in the scale of educative effort the more imperative it becomes that the need should be met.

VETERAN FAINTED

When he Ran Down Chinaman With His Auto

Belleville, June 19.—Mark How, a Chinese residing in this city, was struck and run over by an automobile last night while crossing Front street. He suffered wounds to the scalp, nose and lip, and was sent to the hospital in a car. Today it is believed that no serious results will follow. The auto that struck How was driven by a soldier, who fainted just as he had brought the machine to a stop. He recovered in a doctor's office a few minutes later.

FINED THE MINIMUM

Two More Defaulters Gave Themselves Up to Police.

Two more defaulters under the Military Service Act appeared before Police Magistrate Dumble this morning and each received the minimum fine of $250 and costs. Both young gentlemen came prepared with a roll of bills which they left in court. As before, the Court took the view that the minimum penalty was sufficient for those who voluntarily surrendered themselves to the authorities.

THEATRICAL

HALE HAMILTON ATTENDS MOTHER GOOSE BALL

A Mother Goose party, in which Hale Hamilton, the popular Metro star, will be seen dressed as a boy in breeches, is one of the many novel scenes in "After His Own Heart," a mirth-provoking comedy-drama at the Grand for the rest of this week.

This party (which shows society folks at play, is a tremendous spectacle in which two hundred people took part and which gives Mr. Hamilton splendid opportunity to display his original and irresistable humor.

"After His Own Heart," was written by Ben Ames Williams, the noted novelist and short story writer, and published in the All Story Weekly.

HALE HAMILTON IS FAVORITE OF KING

Hale Hamilton, the clever Metro star who will be seen in the comedy-drama, "After His Own Heart, at the Grand theatre, today, Friday and Saturday, has attained an enviable reputation on the stage and screen both here and abroad.

"While he was in London, playing a stage engagement of "Get Rich Quick Wallingford," he gained such fame that King George heard of it and had him summoned with his company to Windsor Castle where he gave a performance to the Royal Family and their guests.

As a mark of his favor the King afterwards sent the actor a magnificent set of pearl studs and links.

BUG LIKES TOBACCO.

"Cigarette Beetle" Has a Taste for the Weed.

A deadly enemy of the smoker is the "cigarette beetle," an insect one-fourth of an inch long that has a passion for tobacco. It bores holes through cigarettes, converts the tobacco into dusty refuse and discolors the wrappers.

It is not less fond of cigars, often destroying the inside works thereof almost entirely without disturbing the outer coat of leaf. When the ultimate consumer has lighted such a "weed" he finds that it does not draw well and burns unevenly. The flavor leaves much to be desired, and dust is drawn into the mouth with every puff.

To make the matter worse, high-grade cigars, in which the more expensive leaf is used as wrapper or filler, are far more liable to attack by the beetle than brands made from heavier, stronger and inferior grades of tobacco.

With cigarettes it is the same way. The beetle is a connoisseur in tobaccos and prefers the sweeter, milder types of leaf, such as are used in the manufacture of the more expensive grades. Fine Turkish cigarettes are specially liable to attack, holes being bored even through the cork tips.

Most of the damage is done by the "worm," or larva, of the beetle, though the latter continues to be a tobacco eater through its adult life. Plug tobacco is by no means despised by the insect, which riddles it with galleries. The same thing happens to pressed and sliced smoking tobacco.

The quantity actually eaten by the "bug" is of far less importance than the injury done by the refuse it leaves behind, including the remains of dead beetles, excrement, etc., which render the manufactured product unsalable.

This highly objectionable insect is supposed to have been originally a native of the warm latitudes of America. It has been distributed by commerce to all parts of the world. In warm tobacco-producing countries, such as Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines, where the beetles breed continuously throughout the year, they are being constantly exported in shipments of cigars and bales of cigar tobacco.

Within recent years there has been a noticeable increase and spread of the beetle in tobacco factories in Canada and the United States. It is attributed by manufacturers to the general use of steam for the heating of their plants, the higher and more uniform temperature thus maintained rendering conditions more favorable for breeding.

In warm weather generations of the beetles succeed each other very rapidly; thus hogsheads of export leaf, containing only a few of the insects when shipped, may become heavily infested en route and almost worthless after a long sea voyage, the high temperature and moisture in the hold of a vessel creating conditions ideal for reproduction.

Tobacco may also become infested en route and almost worthless after in the hands of the retailer. The beetle is now so widely scattered throughout the country that it is often found in the storage rooms, showcases and humidors of cigar stores.

Much success is understood to have been obtained with a machine patented by a Philadelphia inventor, Franklin S. Smith, by which the beetles are destroyed (and their larvae and eggs as well) with the X-ray; boxes of cigars and cigarettes being carried by an endless belt through the apparatus, to be delivered in a sterilized condition at the further end. It is not necessary even to open the containers in order to accomplish the work.

PREVENT POTATO ROT

Spraying With Bordeaux Mixture Proven Very Effective.

Machinery Must Be Kept Well Oiled If It Is to Work Efficiently—An Expert Discusses the Question From Every Angle.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

LATE Blight and Rot of Potatoes can be prevented by spraying with Bordeaux mixture. Commence spraying when the plants are from five to eight inches high and keep the foliage covered with Bordeaux throughout the season. Take special care to see that the spraying is very thoroughly done if the weather is at all damp about the 15th of July, as Blight often begins about this time. Add a poison when necessary for potato beetles—arsenate of lead paste 3½ lbs. to each 40 gals. of the liquid spray, or Paris green 2 lbs. to 40 gals., or a mixture of 3 lbs. arsenate of lead paste and 1 lb. of Paris green to 40 gals. From three to seven applications should be made, depending upon the season—the wetter the weather the larger the number. Do not put off spraying because it looks like rain. If the spray is on the plants half an hour before the rain comes it will be dry and sufficient of it will stick to prevent infection, which takes place during or soon after rain. Such spraying should prevent not only Late Blight and Rot but also Early Blight and potato beetles.

Thorough spraying only is effective. If thorough spraying is to be done sufficient Bordeaux mixture must be used. From 50 to 150 gals per acre should be applied at each spraying, and when the plants are large not less than 100 gallons per acre should be used. Thorough spraying means the covering of every portion of the potato plant with Bordeaux mixture in the form of a fine mist. This can only be done when the solution is applied with good pressure, so as to insure covering every portion of the plant. The best results from spraying are obtained when potato sprayers are used which are fitted with a T-joint attachment so as to insure covering both surfaces of the leaves at each spraying. When the plants are large it has been found that it pays to go over each row twice at each spraying.—Prof. J. E. Howitt, O. A. College, Guelph.

The Importance of Keeping Machinery Properly Oiled.

The importance of keeping machinery properly oiled may be better realized when we try to compute, in dollars and cents, the annual sacrifice in machine efficiency through friction. Carelessness in lubrication may easily reduce the efficiency of a machine fully fifty per cent. At the same time the machine itself is wearing out faster, on account of the needless friction, than owing to the real work done.

The microscope reveals the fact that the surface of the most highly polished shaft ever made is as rough and untrue as a rough casting appears to the unaided eye. In practice it is not possible to make a metal surface that is absolutely smooth, incompressible, or even a true circle, hence inequalities of pressure at the bearings, grinding and tearing of the metal fibres, causing friction, producing factors of inefficiency and wear and tear. Though these faults of construction cannot be avoided, we can, in a great measure, overcome the effect in machinery, by judicious application of a lubricating agent.

The lubricant consists of minute balls or globules. These readily insinuate themselves between the faces in mutual contact forming a cushion, keeping the metals apart. Its use is not only to reduce friction, but also to carry away whatever excess of heat is generated. All liquids have not sufficient sustaining powers to be used as efficient lubricants. Some cannot be retained between the metals; others do not cling together persistently enough. To resist the tendency of the metal to tear the lubricating film apart, these globules must have a good deal of internal strength, and must stick together well. They must also cling well to the metal, or they will be squeezed out of the bearing.

The oils and the fats are the principal lubricants. The mineral oils are thin, and so are lard, olive, and sperm oils. Castor oil, neatsfoot, tallow and rape are thick. Nothing is better for high speed bearings and light spindles or shafts than sperm oil, but it is costly; for heavy bearings castor oil is superior to this, but it is also expensive.

But there is relatively little pure lubricant used in machinery, for it is usually more economical to employ a compound oil, compounded for special uses, than to use pure lubricants which, after all, are often heavily adulterated — gum, soap lime, alumina soda, and free acids have their own distinct purpose to serve in the composition of cheap oils. The chief advantage, however, pertaining to the use of compound oils is, that the objectionable qualities, of one kind of lubricant can be neutralized by mixing it with a lubricant of another kind. For instance, vegetable and fish oils are drying oils, that is, they oxidize rapidly, and cause gumming or clogging of the bearings to which they are applied, and if allowed to drop and accumulate upon dust, cotton waste, and timber are liable to develop an internal heat that will cause spontaneous combustion. Mineral oil does not oxidize, neither does animal. But mineral oils have what is termed a low flashing point; that is, they fire or ignite at a low temperature, some at 212 degrees Fah., or under. Animal oils develop fatty acids, and these corrode and pit the surface of the metal which they are used to lubricate.—Prof. John Evans, O. A. College, Guelph.

A Cheap and Efficient Method of Controlling Grasshoppers.

Grasshoppers may be easily and cheaply controlled by poisoning with the bran mixture, which is made as follows: 20 lbs. bran, 1 lb. Paris green, ½ gal. molasses, 2 gals. water, 2 or 3 lemons.

The bran and Paris green should be mixed thoroughly together when dry. This should be done the night before using. In the morning squeeze the juice of the lemons into the water, run the pulp and rind through a meat chopper and add this and the molasses to the water. Stir well and then pour the liquid on the poisoned bran and mix so thoroughly that every part is moist and will fall like sawdust through the fingers. The mash should be applied early in the morning between five and seven o'clock, by scattering thinly over the infested field, in the fence corners and on roadsides where the insects have been observed. The above amount will suffice for four or five acres. It will be well to make an inspection three or four days later, and if there are many survivors to make a second application.

It is important to attend to this matter as early in the season as the young grasshoppers are noticed, and not to wait till they grow big and have caused a considerable amount of damage.

The same means may be employed for the control of cutworms, making the application wherever the worms are observed just before dark in the evening.—L. Caesar, B.S.A., Provincial Entomologist.

WEATHER AN ELEMENT IN THE CHAMPIONSHIP BOUT

Contest Will Be Held in the Open at Toledo July 4th Rain or Shine, Promoter Says

According to the weather reports at Toledo the last four years have been free from rain on the Fourth of July, so there is hope for a clear day. If it does rain, why the fans had better be prepared to have an extra suit of clothing to exchange for the wet ones after the title battle is over.

In the event of rain at Toledo July 4 will the advantage be with Willard or Dempsey? The ring, if soaked with rain ,would no doubt be slippery, despite the resin that would be sprinkled thereon. A slip by either man might prove very costly, for it would doubtless leave an opening for his opponent to get home a solid blow and a hard one to the vital spot would come pretty near ending the contest. Jess is a big man and does not move about the ring very much, usually keeping his one position, while Dempsey depends on shifting around to disconcert his opponent and get beyond his guard with right or left swing. In case of rain it would come down to similar conditions at a race track—the mudlark would have his chance then against the stake horse. It would be one of the gambles the fighters will have to take and also the men who bet.

Famous Battle Recalled.

The announcement by Tex Rickard that the Willard-Dempsey contest would be held in the open air arena, rain or shine, recalls a twenty round battle between Jimmy Clabby, American middleweight, and Dave Smith, the Australian champion, in the big open air stadium at Sydney, Australia, in January, 1911.

Clabby had made a wonderful record in Australia at that time, having beaten some of the best middleweights and even heavier men, although he scaled barely 150 pounds himself then. The match with Dave Smith was the big event that season, and when the night came for the match the stadium was packed. Just before the men were called to the centre of the ring rain began to fall and by the time the fourth round was reached it was coming down in torrents; in fact, it was more like a cloudburst. Not a person even made an effort to leave the place. They were interested in the match and were determined to see it through, rain or otherwise. Snowy Baker was the referee, and in the sixth round he asked both fighters if they could continue all right.

All Drenched to Skin.

"Bet your life," said Jimmy. "Just give me a chance to get my shoes off and I will go all right."

Clabby did not remove his shoes at that time, but about the twelfth round he took them off and fought the rest of the contest in his bare feet. It was a desperate battle all through and both boys took chances in sliding about when delivering blows. The rain just poured down on them, as well as the spectators, and there was not a person in the entire arena who was not drenched to the skin, for they could not use umbrellas on account of blocking the view of people back of them. No one seemed to care and took it good naturedly. At the end Referee Baker called it a draw and it was a good decision at that, although if there was a shade it belonged to Jimmy.

Prince Joachim Soaked.

One of the amusing incidents connected with the affair was the soaking of Joachim, one of the royal German princes, who was in Sydney at the time with the German naval training ship. The young prince wanted to see a boxing match and was taken with some of the other officers of the ship, accompanied by local officials. They were seated back of the boxers, as they were not anxious to get into the limelight, and were so hemmed in that it was a hard matter to get out when the rain came so the prince remained until the end.

On another occasion at the Sydney stadium Johnny Summers and Hughey Mehehan, then champion lightweight of Australia, fought twenty rounds in a down-pour of rain that almost swept the fighters out of the ring at times.

LINDSAY TO BRING CROWD OF FANS

GOOOD GAME OF BALL IS PROMISED FOR SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

The Lindsay fans, who are expected to come down on Saturday in large numbers to support their team, must, not be allowed to make a bigger showing on the grandstand than our own rooters. For those who like a pitcher's battle, this contest will undoubtedly prove exceptionally interesting. "Canonball" Scott, the opposing twirler ,has a great record, winning the News trophy for the champion amateur pitcher in Ontario last year when he played with the Hillcrests. "Ironman" Kirn, as his manager has christened him, deserves his title pitchin gfour games in six days. His catcher wil lbe Swanston, while Bates is due to receives Scott's bombardment. The game will commence at 3 p.m. Saturday, Alex. Kay being umpire-in-chief. Butler, of Lindsay, will probably act on the bases.

To Remove Spilled Paint.

When paint is spilled it is sometimes difficult to remove. Make a strong solution of potash and wash the wood, leaving the solution to soak in. In a short time the paint will become soft and can be washed off with soap and water. Then use cold water.

Insects That Sing.

Among the natural curiosities of Japan are singing insects. The most prized of these is a black beetle named "suzumushi," which means "insect bell." The sound that it emits resembles that of a little silver bell.

How Could He?

"I'm terribly worried. I wrote Jack in my last letter to forget that I had told him I didn't mean to reconsider my decision not to change my mind, and he seems to have misunderstood me."—Life.

Mysteries of the Pacific That Science Must Solve After Peace Is Declared

"How did the flightless birds of New Zealand originate?

"What is the nearest living relative to the extinct dodo of Samoa?

"What is the import of the same species of fresh water fish in two rivers situated on opposite sides of the Pacific?

"Did a land mass fly out of what is now the Pacific Ocean before this moon?"

These are just a few of the many lines of inquiry which science will turn to in the Pacific Ocean after the peace conference has adjusted the many colonial questions affecting New Guinea, the Carolines, the Marshal Islands and the numerous other holdings in this least known region in the world.

Much valuable material also will be collected to assist in a better understanding of the growth of our own civilization from elemental savagery, for it is reasonable to suppose that the primitive wants of man in different ages and regions have called forth similar expedients to satisfy them.

Other important objects of investigation for the ethnologist will touch the various racial types into which the Pacific islanders are divided. Of these, three are generally recognised, of whom the Papuans and Polynesians appear to show the widest divergences, with the Micronesians occupying the intermediate ground and possessing affinities of race, language and custom within the other two. The presence of two distinct races of man in the Pacific suggests two periods and sources of immigration and adds difficulty to an already perplexing question, for the demarkation between the divisions of the races is by no means well defined, but is complicated by the admixture of many other races of both oriental and occidental origin.

The Papuans may be generally said to inhabit New Guinea, the Solomons, New Caledonia and Fiji. Their most obvious characteristics may be briefly summed up by stating that they are irreligious, democratic, quarrelsome, cannibalistic and hostile to strangers. They possess no hereditary chiefs, paint or scar the body rather than wear clothes; cook in earthen pots, chew betel, and their speech is broken up into a number of apparently irreconcilable dialects. The Papuans are the least attractive of any Pacific islanders, and the island groups which they occupy are among the least known of the Pacific and have been for many generations shunned by mariners and associated with everything that is of evil repute in the record of the ocean.

The Polynesians in many attributes are greatly at variance with the Papuan islanders. They possess, generally speaking, an elaborate religious system, an established order of hereditary chiefs and well-defined social castes. They are friendly to strangers, fond of dress, expert manufacturers of Kapa cloth and intrepid seamen and navigators. They tattoo instead of scar the body, seldom practice cannibalism, cook in earthen ovens instead of in earthen pot, drink awa, and possess a common language understandable throughout New Zealand, Hawaii, Samoa, Tahiti and the Paumotu Islands.

Of all the Pacific races the greatest interest attaches to the Polynesian Islanders, but it is unfortunately these people whose primitive customs and racial types have been most broken up by modern intercourse.

The Malayo-Polynesian language possesses the distinction of being spoken by indigenes over the widest area of any language of the world, for it embraces two great oceans and extends from the island continent of Madagascar to the isolated islet of Rapanui.

New Water Power.

A new use of ocean water power has been perfected by an Englishman. He catches water when the tide rises and makes it operate turbine engines when the tide falls. Thus he obtains a perpetual water power, as the tide always ebbs and flows.

Experimental.

"Dad" inquired a small boy, "what is a test case?" "A test case, my son," replied his parent, "is a case brought into court to decide whether there's enough in it to justify lawyers in working up more cases of a similar kind!"

An 8-year-old boy broke into a store and stole several pairs of shoes at Portsmouth, N.H.

STAR DUST

Void of Space Filled With Particles of Matter.

If the hand of Omnipotence were to reach out and remove the sun from the sky, what would happen to the earth?

It is a question easily answered. The earth would promptly succumb to the powerful attraction of Jupiter, and would become a moon of that huge planet, revolving about it. Jupiter is 310 times as big as the earth, and one of its four principal moons is actually larger than Mercury.

A theory now pretty well accepted by astronomers is that the toy worlds, called "asteroids" of which more than 800 have been discovered, some of them not more than twenty miles in diameter have been picked up by Jupiter out of the void of space and thus dragged into the solar system.

Jupiter in the same way catches a good many comets. The latter, once captured, swing around the sun for a while in elliptical orbits, but sooner or later break up or take flight to other heavenly regions. Nobody knows whence they come or whither they go; they do not seem to be governed by ordinary laws. Hence, and owing to the mystery of their makeup, a weird sort of interest attaches to them.

In November of each year the earth passes through a swarm of meteors, and in August it encounters another swarm—the happening in both cases being made manifest to the every-day observer by many "shooting stars."

It is thought likely that these meteoric swarms are the debris of smashed-up comets. In 1872 we had a very spectacular "star shower," due aparently to the passage of the earth through the remains of Biela's comet, which had "busted." Fragments supposed to be derived from that comet were picked up in Mexico.

Seemingly a comet is composed of meteoric particles. Its brightness is a mere reflection from the sun. Nobody can guess how or why such aggregations of particles should gather themselves together and wander aimlessly through space. But one should realise that the cosmic void is full of this sort of star dust, which (as we know from pieces of it that fall upon our planet) are commonly of iron, often of stony stuff, and in many instances containing nickel.

The "void" of space is not after all so empty. It would seem to be fairly filled with flying particles of matter—a veritable star dust, the origin of which no astronomer has ever attempted to explain.

Tribute to Australia.

Marshal Foch's splendid tribute to the Australian army will be warmly applauded by Canadians. Along with our own troops, the men from Australia had a prominent part in the great "victory campaign" beginning last July and ending on November 11. Marsal Foch says that from "start to finish they distinguished themselves by their qualities of endurance and boldness. By their initiative, their fighting spirit, their magnificent ardor they proved themselves to be shock troops of the first order. In the grave hours of 1918, with their British, American and French comrades, they barred the enemy rush. They stopped it, broke it, and at the appointed hour drove it far back." Perhaps a summary of the Australian troops' accomplishments last year will give Canadians a better idea of why Marshal Foch is so enthusiastic in his praise. As compiled by the Australian Minister of Defence, from March, 1918, to October 5, the Australians—who never numbered more than 100,000—took 28,665 prisoners, 33 guns, thousands of machine-guns, vehicles, and millions of rounds of ammunition. They captured 116 towns and villages apart from fortified farms, mills and woods, and released 251 square miles of French soil.

Costume In Australia.

The primitive Australian gentleman has one notable advantage over his more civilized brethren. Dressmakers' bills do not bother him.

The explanation is simple; his womenfolk wear no clothes at all. Neither does he. So the tailor never calls upon him for the settlement of his little bill.

This simplifies the problems of life greatly. Cut out the clothing; pick up your own subsistence from day to day—fat grubs from decayed tree trunks will supply it at a pinch—and the anxieties of existence are reduced to a minimum.

For fashion's sake, it is the custom among native Australians to cut long and deep gashes in the skin of chest and stomach, rubbing earth into them to prevent quick healing. Thus most decorative scars are preserved.

This applies to both sexes. The men paint their bodies in fearsome patterns for ceremonial occasions.

Any man who has plenty of push can get along without a pull.

CONGRESS KILLS DAYLIGHT SAVING

BOTH HOUSES VOTE TO ABOLISH IT ON OCTOBER 26TH.

Washington, June 19.—Doom of the daylight saving, niaugurated as a war measure, was pronounced today by Congress, both Senate and House adopting by overwhelming votes measures to terminate operation of the law when the period of summer time ends next October 26.

Members of both Senate and House in advocating repeal of the law enacted March 19, 1918, said they were guided large by wishes of farmers and laboring men, who oppose the advanced working hours during the spring and summer season. Oponents of the repeal legislation declared the extra hour of daylight was a boon to city dwellers, and aserted that other eastly could adjust their affairs to conform to the advanced clock schedule.

TAKING CARE OF THIS YEAR'S CROP

COFERENCES AT OTTAWA HELD TO DISPOSE OF THIS PROBLEM.

Ottawa, June 19.—There has been a big conference between members of the government, the grain commissioners, the western farmers and the transportation companies in respect to the handling and disposition of the wheat crop for 1919. The railways and steamship companies are ready to do their part but the grain growers are anxious to know where their wheat is to be marketed and how credits are to be provided, to pay for the same. While no definite conclusion was come to by conference and no official action has yet been taken b ythe government, if may be safely asserted that the 1919 wheat crop will be controlled by the government. Just how the details of this "control" will be worked. But no official authority is prepared to state, but it is a fair surmise that the price of the Canadian wheat crop of 1919 will be fixed at the same price as the American crop. It is said that this will involve no loss to the Dominion government, because a great portion of the crop can be disposed of in the United States. The rumor that the Washington government offered to take the whole Canadian crop at the price fixed for the American crop cannot be confirmed. But some overtures of that kind have undoubtedly come from the American authorities within the past few weeks.

FAIR BOARD ASKS

the first three days of the week of Sept. 15 to 17, to let the cattle owners take their stock on to the Ottawa Fair.

Mr. R. B. Rogers the President of the Peterborough Farmers' Club assured the Council that the farmers approved of the idea of a grant.

Mr. Roland Deane's speech was along the same lines as the above.

Mr. Chas E. Moore appealed to the council to act in the interests of all classes both on the farms and in the city, by giving the grant.

If you can convince the men of East Peterborough that they do not need a grant for some time we will be able to do more for you," declared Warden McIntosh.

Mr. Roland Denne emphasized the fact that the Norwood Fair would not suffer any damages as the result of this grant. "If we get our grounds in shape," he added, "we can get a Fat Stock Show here."

The Plowman's Association, last week according to Mr. Harry Webber decided not to ask the Council for a grant this year. This will leave them in a better position to assist the West Peterborough Fair Board. After the deputation had been heard on motion of Reeves Coughlin and Brown the matter was referred to the Finance Committee. A definite answer will be given the Exhibition Board not later than Saturday.

Piano Recital At The Conservatory

Yesterday evening at the Conservatory Music Hall quite a number enjoyed a very special musical treat which was given by the pupils of Miss Helen MacLaren, assisted by two vocal pupils. The stage was artistically decorated with pink and white roses and daisies and ferns. That each number was thoroughly enjoyed was evident from the hearty applause and the way the pupils rendered the delightful program reflects credit on themselves and their teacher. Following is the program.

Mary Comstock—(Melody.)
Florence Record —"Tulip."
Georgia Hardill—(Valsette.)
Mamie Benor— (Vocal)—"Sing, Sing, Birds on the Wing."
Arleigh McKone—Claribella).

One of the items of business to be disposed of is the election of officers.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

MOUNCE—RECORD

A very quiet wedding was solemnized on Tuesday, June 17th, at 2.30 p.m. at Mark Street Methodist Church when Miss Bertha Jessie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Record, was united in marriage to Mr. Cecil Mounce.

Rev. A. J. Thomas officiated. The bride entered the church on the arm of her father and wore her travelling suit of navy blue with hat to match, carrying a bouquet of sweetheart roses.

Miss E. Kemp, who presided at the organ, during the signing of the register, sang "Because." Immediately after the ceremony the young couple left on the afternoon train for Hamilton and Buffalo and on their return will reside in the city.

LESLIE—BROWN.

At Trinity parsonage on Wednesday, June 18th, at 2:30 o'clock, Cyril J. F Leslie, stationmaster at New Norway, Alberta, was united in marriage with Miss Gladys Pearl Brown, daughter of Mr. Thos. K. Brown of John street, Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. E. Malott. The young couple after their honeymoon will reside in New Norway, Alberta.

Miss Jean Parson has returned to Trenton after an extended visit in Peterborough.

Miss Helen Duck, of Oshawa, is visiting friends here.

Mr. B. Stewart, of Toronto, was in the city yesterday.

Mrs. S. Caldwell, with her little daughter, Kathleen, of Cleveland, O., is the guest of her mother, Mrs. R. Hill, Lake street.

Mrs. Whittaker, 310 London, entertained at the tea hour yesterday in honor of Miss Dorothy Aylmer, who is to be married next week.

Miss Elsie Anderson, who has been spending the winter at Los Angeles, returned to her home, 402 Gilmore street.

Mr. Robert Fairweather, Miss Fairweather and Miss Jessie Fairweather motored from Montreal to Toronto and stopped off at Peterborough for the day, the guests of L. D. W. Magie, Reid street.

Mrs. Harry Cressman has returned to the city after visiting friends at Merrickville.

Allan Wade and Sidney Goodfellow have reached Cleveland, Ohio, on their automobile trip. They left Peterborough intending to go no further than London, but a letter received by Stanley Wade last night stated that they had gone on to Cleveland to visit friends.

Miss Mabel Cast of Toronto will spend a few days in Peterborough, addressing a deanery meeting on behalf of the Forward Movement while there.

Mrs. Harry Rush entertained at afternoon tea in honor of Mrs. Kingston (nee Miss Lillian Dean), who is visiting in the city.

Dr. Wood has returned from New York and will resume practice here.

An outline of the scope of the work to be undertaken by the I.O.D.E., as considered at the recent National Convention held in Montreal, includes an undertaking by the Order, generally, to assume the responsibility for the education, in Canada, of the orphans of Soldiers and sailors, until these children reach, at least, the age of 16 years, and to so prevent them from becoming wage earners before that age, and also to better equip them for their life's work. Another most necessary and humanitarian work to be carried on is that is furnishing physicians and nurses in the frontier districts of the North and North West of Canada, where the lack of medical assistance results in untold sufferings to the settlers.

These undertakings call for generous funds, and the demand on the funds of the Order will be a continued one. Throughout Canada the I.O.D.E. is bending every effort to raise this money, by the employment of every means available.

The Peter Robinson Chapter of Peterborough, are depending to a great extent upon the proceeds of their weekly dances, held at Chemong for these funds and as these dances are being held every Friday evening throughout the summer the Chapter bespeakers in behalf of their work and its demands, the continued patronage of all, and especially those who have so generously contributed in the past to the success of these dances.

Messrs Moher & Fitzgerald will furnish the music at 8.30 Friday, as usual. The Chapter hopes that you will be present.

TO APPEAR AT THE PETERBOROUGH CHAUTAUQUA, WEEK OF JULY 7TH

THE DE MILLE QUARTET.

The music of the fourth day will be furnished by this well-known Toronto Quartet, composed of Artists, all of whom are well known as Solo Singers, and accompanied by a Pianist of note. Their programmes will constitute one of the great features of Chautauqua week.

The repertoire of the quartette includes selections from the great oratorios and operas, the choicest of the English, Scotch, and Irish melodies, standard and popular songs. Not alone as a quartette do they excel, but in concerts, recitals, oratorios, and opera selections, each individual member stands distinct, having been accorded marked recognition because of his virtuosity.

TRADE JOURNAL PRAISES POLICY OF A LOCAL FIRM

Dry Goods Review Says Kind Things About Richard Hall & Son

The Dry Goods Review says: This month Richard Hall and Son, Limited, Peterborough, Ont., are operating on a new time schedule. The store now opens at 8.30 a.m. and closes at 5 p.m. daily, ecept Saturday, when the closing hour is 9.30 p.m.

As an appreciation of the new hours the employees took it upon themselves to take a full page space in each of the local dailies to make the following announcement:

> We, the employees of Richard Hall and Son, Limited, take this means whereby to express to our employers our deep appreciation and gratitude for their kind and benevolent treatment to us individually and collectively in giving us shorter working hours.
>
> We wish to call the attention of the thinking public to this kind favor granted us by our big, generous-hearted employers, and we think the good people of Peterborough County should give due consideration and patronize the store that gives their employees such liberal and humane treatment. Our employers and we are co-workers and in so far as it is possible our work is a real pleasure. We like to work for—we love to work for—Richard Hall and Son, Limited, because we get 365 days of good square honest treatment every year.
>
> For the following shorter business hours, commencing on Monday, June 2nd, we wish to heartily thank our employers. We hope they will accept it with our gratitude and sincere tahnks.
>
> THE EMPLOYEES RICHARD HALL AND SON, LTD.

This original idea cannot fail to impress customers and the public of Peterboro, generally with the satisfaction which the Hall employees find in their work and, therefore, with the gracious service which can be expected in that store. And more, there is an initiative expressed which stamps the employees as a body as being thinking people, who are capable of being of the best service to customers and that will inevitably attract business which cannot but result in better satisfaction all around.

The management is highly appreciative of this public thanks it has received from its employees who are in no way organized. There is a splendid spirit of generosity on both sides together with an appreciation of the fact that advertising has a direct and wholesome message to the public, which is, to say the least, interesting.

K. OF C. ANNUAL EXCURSION

The Knights of Columbus of Peterborough held their annual excursion down the river yesterday to Harwood and in spite of the terrific heat, over two hundred took in the trip and voted it as one of the best outings in a long time. The sail down the winding Otonabee was delightful with everything looking so beautiful and green and with a four-piece orchestra on board to liven things up it seemed no time until Rice Lake was reached and then Harwood. Here Mme. Host Gilman had prepared a sumptuous fish dinner and over one hundred sat down to enjoy it and no one was heard to remark they were disappointed or dissatisfied.

After dinner the crowd set out to enjoy themselves as best they could under a sweltering sun, some to bathe, others to fish, but the real excitement of the day, was the baseball match between the single and the married men. This proved an awful awakening to the single chaps who were beaten by their old but shiftier opponents by the score of 14 to 8. The outstanding features were the base stealing efforts of J. Grisdale for the married men, who took everything that wasn't nailed down and the all round or rather all around playing of Geo Gordon at third base. To see George whip the ball across to Hal Chase Overend on first was a treat, but it generally fell into the pitcher's hands. As the single chaps are looking for revenge the return game will likely be the big headline attraction for the sports on July 1st.

The return trip was made by way of Gore's Landing where a stop of an hour was made, allowing a number of the younger element time to enjoy a much appreciated swim, and after another enjoyable three-hour run, all were landed safely again at the Peterborough dock about eight o'clock.

The committee in charge are to be congratulated on the success of their outing, for every little detail in connection with the trip was admirably looked after and well carried out.

PRIVATE SALE OF FURNITURE

THIRTEEN SONS KILLED IN WAR

THE RECORD WAS MADE BY ONE FAMILY IN FRANCE.

Paris, June 19.—Thirteen sons killed on the field of battle, three discharged with grave injuries, one wounded four different times, the father and one daughter summarily shot by the Germans for going to Lile to celebrate the centennial anniversary of a relative, and another daughter killed by a German shell at Dunkirk, is the record of the family of M. Vanhee, a French farmer of Reminghe, near Ypres.

M. Vanhe, had thirty-six children, twenty-two sons and fourteen daughters, all of whom were living when the war broke out. One of his sons was valet to Pope Pius X.; he returned to France to fight and was wounded in each of four different engagements. One of the sons lost both legs another returned from the front blind and deaf, and another underwent the trepanning operation.

FIDELITY TO ALLIES COST PREMIER ORLANDO HIS POST

Forced to Resign by Adverse Vote When His Declaration to Remain Faithful to Entente Aroused Hostility of Members of the Italian Parliament.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, June 20.—The resignation of Premier Orlando's cabinet, should the King of Italy decide to accept it, would, according to Peace Conferance circles, result in the indefinite postponement of a settlement of the Adriatic question, as it would involve the appointment of a new set of Italian delegates to the Peace Conference. This raises an additional question as to who will sign the German treaty for Italy on Monday.

"Remain faithful to our duties towards the Allies," was the passage in the address of Premier Orlando today which turned the tide against the premier, and resulted in the adverse vote which had its sequel in the resignation of the Orlando cabinet. The premier's words aroused the anger and hostility of the deputies. There was a great tumult and cries of "The Allies have never been faithful to us, why should we be faithful to them?"

The Resignation.

The Italian government resigned last evening following an adverse vote against it in the chamber of deputies.

Premier Orlando, in announcing his resignation and that of the cabinet, said King Victor Emmanuel had reserved decision as to acceptance.

The chamber of deputies had, by a vote of 259 to 78, rejected Premier Orlando's motion in favor of discussing the question of confidence, which related to the foreign policy of the government, in secret session.

Premier Orlando in his address to Parliament on the peace situation said:

"The various economic and financial questions concerning Italy have been solved or are about to be solved."

HUN CABINET IS WRECKED OVER SIGNING OF TREATY; PRESIDENT EBERT IS OUT

Those Who Stood Against Acceptance of Terms Forced to Resign—Successors it is Believed Will Agree to Conditions of Allies Tomorrow—Noske Likely to be New Chancellor.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

A report concerning changes in the German cabinet are premature says an official German wireless message sent from Nauen at 1 o'clock this afternoon. The message adds that the National Assembly failed to get a majority of its members to favor the signing of the peace treaty.

Paris June 20.—The Scheidemann Government in Germany has fallen it was learned today. News of the event reported during the morning was confirmed later by military advices through Coblenz from both Weimar and Berlin. The downfall of the Scheidemann Government was made known to the Peace Conference it is believed to assure the signing of the peace treaty by Germany as Philip Scheidemann, the premier was understood to be the chief opponent to the acceptance of the revised peace terms. It is expected that Minister of War Noske will be the new chancellor. Previous advices had indicated that four members of the Scheidemann Cabinet were insisting upon the signing of treaty and it is presumed here that this caused the fall of the ministry.

NOSKE A MAN WITH IRON HAND

Noske is very popular not only with the right wing of his own party, but with Conservatives, since he was able to protect property during the recent disorders in Berlin. He is unpopular and even hated by the radicals of his party and independent socialists because of the rigor with which he suppressed disturbances. The new cabinet, according to the report this morning will presumably settle the question of signing the treaty. It is expected to accept the allied terms although experts who have considered the treaty have unanimously rejected it is impossible.

Several members of the old cabinet will retain office, among them being Mathias Erzberger and Eduard David. Baron Von Richtholen said this afternoon that the New cabinet will sign the treaty but "on conditions." Although he did not state what conditions were meant it is believed they will be in the form of demands upon the entente, the granting or refusal of which would not hinder the signing of the treaty.

It is understood here that the fall of the Scheidemann Government entails the fall also of President Ebert. The national assembly will probably take measures to select a successor to Herr Ebert.

NO LONGER ANY DOUBT

New York, June 20.—The Associated press this morning issued the following: "The growing belief that Germany would sign the peace treaty was strengthened today by the news of the fall of the Scheidemann ministry in that country. The Premier had been one of the most outspoken of the German officials in his opposition to the treaty. Paris advices indicate the expectation there that the Cabinet formed fromed by his successor will be one that will accept the allied terms, SENATOR FREDERIC NICHOLLS, head of the C. G. E. and whose connection with that concern invests him with local interest, voted against prohibition in the Senate yesterday.

DR. HARVEY SAYS SUPPOSED SMALLPOX IS CUBAN ITCH

Has Met With Cases in His Practice Here and Elsewhere and it is Never Fatal—No Reason Why Public Should Be Panic Stricken, but Care is Needed.

Dr. Harvey says that the new disease which has appeared in the city and which has caused a diversity of opinion with members of the medical profession as to whether it is smallpox or not, is merely Cuban itch. It is contagious, but never fatal, and there is no reason for alarm, although care should be taken to prevent its spread. The doctor has met ith such cases in his practice in Western Ontario before he located here. He had a case of the kind in Ashburnham some time ago.

The Cuban itch is really smallpox of a mild type such as prevails in tropical and semi-tropical climates. It is only in cold countries that the disease assumes a virulent form, and the Cuban itch may develop into the worst form of smallpox if it is not checked in time. The disease was contracted by the American soldiers who saw service in Cuba during the Spanish-American war, and when the men returned home the itch spread all over the country. It was only natural that it should eventually find its way into Canada. It was common in Western Ontario some years ago, and was always regarded as a mild type of smallpox, troublesome but not dangerous.

Dr. Harvey's statement that smallpox is never virulent in warm countries is borne out by facts. In the Southern States the disease is common, especially in the crowded sections of the colored poulation, as epidemics of colds are during the winter season in Canada. A fatal case is rare, however, and then only when there are other complications.

This diagnosis by a physician who has had experience in the treatment of the disease which is puzzling the medical fraternity of Peterborough, should go a long way toward allaying public alarm. The affliction is no more to be dreaded than the chickenpox, which is a perennial menace to childhood.

5,744 CANADIANS REACH HALIFAX

AQUATANIA REACHED PORT TODAY CARRYING RECORD LOAD OF SOLDIERS.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

MAY BE ABLE TO PAY CREDITORS

AFFAIRS OF STANDARD ALLIANCE CO. DISCUSSED BY LIQUIDATOR CLARKSON.

Toronto, June 20.—The belief that all depositors and debenture-holders will be paid in full and that the shareholders will receive at least part payment, was expressed in a statement issued yesterday by G. T. Clarkson, the official liquidator of the affair of the Standard Reliance Loan Co., for which a winding-up order was granted on Wednesday afternoon. A scheme for the liquidation of the assets of the company has been worked out by the Attorney-General for Ontario, Hon. I. B. Lucas, and Mr. George Kilmer, K.C. A reorganised company under a board of directors appointed by the creditors and shareholders will be formed to deal with the assets. Mr. Clarkson expressed the belief that a lapse of ten years may be required to make the most of the assets.

The total liabilities are estimated at $7,600,000. The details are as follows:

Deposits	$1,000,000
Debentures	4,000,000
Shareholders	2,600,000
	$7,600,000

The company's books show "assets" of a total value of $8,200,000, made up as follows: Dovercourt loans, $4,000,000; mortgages, $2,800000; quick assets, $700,000; other assets, $700,000. However, Mr. Clarkson said that ,while this would tend to show a balance of $3,200,000 for the shareholders with the depositors and debenture-holders paid in full, it was practically certain that this amount could not be realized.

Forged Names Of Men in Service

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Ont., June 20.—Captain Asa Minard, formerly head of the Dominion Police in this district, today pleaded guilty to charges of forging veterans' names to Government checks. He was remanded for sentence.

SEN. F. NICHOLLS VOTED WITH WETS

RED CHAMBER REAFFIRMS FORMER ACTION BY MAJORITY OF TWELVE.

Frederic Nicholls, by reason of his presidency of the C. G. E., is looked upon in a measure as a local man, and Peterborough's representative in the Senate voted against prohibition yesterday when that question was up in the Red Chamber.

Majority of 12.

The position of the Senate on the prohibition measure was reaffirmed yesterday. The Government leader, Sir James Lougheed, moved that the amendment of Wednesday cutting off the provision that the measure shall continue for twelve months after the termination of the war should not be concurred in. This was defeated by 38 to 26. The bill, as amended. was read the third time, and will go to the Commons, that they may consider the amendment.

In asking that the Senate should not insist upon its amendment, Sir James said that the effect of the amendment would be to destroy the bill. In view of the large majority given the measure in the Commons. it was quite unlikely that the other House would agree to the amendment of the Senate providing that the Dominion prohibition of the importation, manufacture and transportation of liquor should terminate with the signing of peace. The amendment would interfere with the powers that the bill proposed to give to the Province of Quebec to make and sell light wine and beer and the power of Ontario to allow the manufacture of wine.

OPPOSE MARTIAL LAW IN IRELAND

BRITISH RAILWAYMEN IN CONVENTION CONDEMN SYSTEM OF GOVERNMENT.

Plymouth, Eng., June 20.—A resolution protesting against the system of Government at present in operation in Ireland was adopted by the National Union of Railwaymen in convention here. The Government in Ireland was described as "not in accordance with the principles professed to be held by the members of the Government when appealing to our countrymen to kill Prussians" and demand is made for the immediate withdrawal of martial law.

REFUSES TO LOWER TARIFF ON PLOWS

PARLIAMENT REJECTS AMENDMENT TO BUDGET FAVORING REDUCTION OF DUTY.

Ottawa, June 20.—Committee stage on the budget resolutions was completed and the finance bills based thereon were given first reading. There was one division and it came over the duties on agricultural implements. Mr. Maharg moved that the duty on plows should be reduced by two and a half per cent. to make it correspond with the duty on harrows. But his motion was lost by a vote of 58 to 40. In the course of the discussion. Sir Thomas White promised to meet two points raised. One was that the income tax resolution be amended so as to provide that pensions awarded to soldiers or to widows of soldiers should be free from taxation. Another was that there should be an increase in the age of a child for which an exemption of two hundred dollars is allowed. In the resolution the age stands at 16 The age, it was urged should be 18. Thus a man with a child not over 18 years of age would have $200 added to the exempted portion of his income. The finance minister agreed to this course.

Sortly before adjournment there was an echo on the rejection by the senate of the Mowat amendment to the railway bill respecting municipal control of streets. It came in a motion by the prime minister for the appointment of the following members of the house to meet a committee of the senate: Messrs. Bristol, Bureau, Cahill, Calder. Lemieux. Henders, Sinclair Tweedie, Mowat, J. D. Reid and N. W. Rowell. The motion carried.

Duty on Plows.

When the resolution covering reductions on agricultural implements was under review, J. H Maharg asked the finance minister to explain why

STRIKE LEADERS SET FREE ON BAIL

REV. W. IVEN AND OTHERS RELEASED ON BAIL OF $2,000.

Winnipeg, June 20.—Wm. Ivens, R B Russell, Ald. Heaps and Ald Queen, who early Tuesday morning were arrested with others on a charge of sedition and taken to Stony Mountain Penitentiary to await trial, were released on ball of $2000 each. It is stated they have given an undertaking not to take any further part in the present general strike.

Arrange for Trial.

It has developed that some little confusion exists in regard to arrangements for forming a board of inquiry to try the cases of the eleven prominet labor leaders under arrest on a charge of seditious conspiracy. No commission of inquiry was sent from Ottawa. Mr. A. J. Andrews, K.C., retained by the Government to conduct the prosecutions, anounced that it will be composed of members of the local immigration staff, still to be selected, under the chairmanship of Thomas Gelley, acting commissioner of immigration for Manitoba.

Mr. Andrews stated that he had been misinformed when he said that a special board had left Ottawa for Stony Mountain, but that he had received positive information from Ottawa to that effect.

No date has been officially set for the trial, but it will be held as soon as arrangements can be completed. Both sides are anxious for prompt action.

The formal announcement of Mr Gelley's appointment was made at the conclusion of a lengthy meeting at which Hon G. D. Robertson, minister of labor, and other officials conferred with a delegation of five representing the central strike committee headed by James Winning, president of the Winnipeg Trades and Labor Council. No information as to the subjects under discussion was given out.

POLICE TO START AT $900 A YEAR

COMMISSIONER RAISE INITIAL SALARY OF MEN—PREFERENCE GIVEN SOLDIERS.

At a meeting of the Police Commissioners held yesterday afternoon it was decided to raise the pay of constables who join the force from $800 to $900. This change will go into effect July 1.

As Police Sergt. Jas. F. Reid has resigned his position of bread inspector it was decided to recommend that the City Council should appoint all the members of the police force as bread inspectors.

A letter was read from S. Whatley, secretary of the local branch, G. W. V. A., requesting that when vacancies occur on the police force they be filled by local men and strict preference should be given to returned soldiers.

It was moved by Mayor Duncan, seconded by Magistrate Dumble, that a reply should be sent stating that the board has always adopted the above policy. The Chief Constable will always be glad to receive the names of applicants for vacant positions, which will be kept on file.

The members present were His Honor Judge Huycke, chairman of the Commission, Magistrate Dumble and Mayor Duncan.

BIG STRIKE WILL BE CALLED OFF

ONE WHO KNOWS SAYS TROUBLE WILL END BY TOMORROW.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, June 20.—"The strike will be called off tomorrow, if not today." This was the definite declaration of a man who was closely in touch with the conferences which took place yesterday between, the government and civic officials and the strike committee. No explanation was volunteered as to why he had come to this conclusion.

Council of Three In Session Today

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, June 20.—The Council of Three, composed of Premiers Lloyd George and Clemenceau and President Wilson, met this afternoon, and it is understood, discussed the German situation and the Italian Cabinet crisis. They are also expected to take up the uncompleted sections of the Austrian peace treaty.

Sergeant-at-Arms is Summoned to Suppress John R. Robinson, of the Telegram, Called as Witness.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, June 20.—Proceedings before the Cost of Living Committee this morning were about as lively as ever seen before any committee of Parliament here. John R. Robinson, editor of the Toronto Telegram, was the storm centre. He had been summoned before the committee to explain certain editorial comments he had made in his paper and he soon ran foul of the members of the committee. H. C. Hocken, Toronto, declared that many things printed in The Telegram were lies and Robinson knew it.

"You have less brains then a donkey," said Robinson to E. W. Nesbitt, Oxford, who demanded that Robinson sit down.

"You have no sense of dignity," replied Mr Nesbitt. Finally the chairman interposed without avail and the committee decided to send for the Sergeant-at-Arms. That dignitary arrived and gravely walked up to the committee table, wearing his sword. He stayed only a few minutes. Then a policeman arrived and watched the proceedings with an amused smile.

STRIKERS ON BAIL REACH WINNIPEG

RELEASED MEN, HOWEVER, HAVE REFUSED TO MAKE ANY STATEMENT.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, June 20.—Following the release on bail of $2,000 each, R. B. Russel, Wm. Ivens, Ald. Jno. Queen' Ald. A. A. Heaps, Geo. Armstrong and E. E Bray, arrested in a spectacular raid last Tuesday morning, reached Winnipeg from Stony Mountain penitentiary this morning. So far they have declined to make any statement.

There was little change in the strike situation this morning. It was stated that several more street cars had been put into service. Many employers declared that the back-to-work movement continues steadily.

LABOR REFUSES TO INTERVENE

WILL NOT ASK FOR RELEASE OF SO-CALLED POLITICAL PRISONERS.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Atlantic City, N. J., June 20.—The American Federation of Labor, in convention here, refused to ask for the release of the so-called political and industrial prisoners convicted under the espionage and other war-time acts. Instead, the Federation adopted a modified resolution requesting that these Acts be rescinded with the formal coming of peace

GERMANS ASK FOR FURTHER TIME

RUMOR THAT THEY HAD ACCEPTED TREATY IS NOT CREDITED.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, June 20.—The German national assembly at Weimar has accepted the peace treaty, according to an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Paris. Some doubt is cast on the correctness of this despatch, saying the German assembly will sign the treaty, by a despatch from Paris, which says the Germans have asked for a further extension of time for signing.

Italian Deligates Ordered To Settle

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, June 20.—The Italian delegation to the Peace Conference has been directed from Rome to accept the proposition for the settlement of the Dalmatian controversy made by Premiers Lloyd George and Clemenceau and President Wilson, according to Reuter's.

British Sub Sinks Russian Cruiser

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, June 20. — The Russian cruiser Oleg was sunk on Wednesday by a British submarine, it is announced in a wireless despatch received today.

FARMER AND TAXATION.

THE FARMERS' SUN quotes the following from a recent editorial in The Review:

> It is to be either direct or indirect taxation because the government of the country cannot be carried on without revenue. Which of these systems does the farmer prefer?
>
> The farmer buys a binder or some other of the more costly agricultural implements, say once in ten years. With care they will last even longer than this. Even if the tariff increases the cost a trifle, which is by no means a certainty, a small tax imposed once in ten years is a light burden compared with a direct tax levied with annual regularity.

With reference to the above the Sun says:

> Comment on this masterpiece of economic reasoning is needless. When The Review wakes up it will realise that the Customs tariff acts more than once in ten years, and that the "government of the country cannot be carried on without (more) revenue" than "a small tax imposed once in ten years."

Sarcasm is not argument. The Sun has simply described a circle without advancing its case an inch. We reaffirm our former stand. The Customs tax affects the farmer only at intervals. A tax on his land is a regular annual drain on his resources. The land tax releases the urban dweller from his share of the revenue burden. Farmers, however, are intelligent enough to realize the danger to themselves that is involved in the land tax fallacies of the city theorists.

A QUESTION OF SIZE.

SAYS THE ORILLIA PACKET:

> The editor of the Peterborough Review "hurls rocks"; ordinary mortals "throw stones." What giants these Peterborough editors be. Hurl rocks!

It is not that the men of this district are the giants that the Packet appears to picture. The stones found in this region are small, unlike the mammoth specimens deposited during the glacial period in the field with which the Orillia Packet is familiar. Rocks they are, so immense that even the united faith of the natives is unable to budge one of them so much as an inch, not to mention hurling one of them at an opponent.

BRITAIN'S AIR VICTORY.

(Journal of Commerce.)

THE WORLD of a few days ago rendered due homage to the American Commander Read and his gallant crew of the "N.C.-4," for their great feat in crossing the Atlantic in a seaplane. Commander Read and his men, belonging to the American Navy, were not competitors for the Daily Mail prize of $50,000 for the first non-stop flight across the Atlantic. They made their flight by easy stages, and they had the assistance of a line of American vessels which were sent out to rescue them in event of their failure, a fact which, in their case, diminished to some extent the risks which other aviators had to take. Nevertheless, the flight of the American aviators from the United States to England via Nova Scotia, Newfoundland, the Azores, and Portugal was at the moment a wonderful achievement, for which they and their nation were deservedly honored.

The Australian, Hawker, and his partner, Grieve, following quickly, attempted a greater feat—a non-stop flight from Newfoundland to England without any of the protective measures which the Americans had enjoyed. For a few hours it was believed that the gallant pair had perished, and the world began to give them the honor due to brave men even when they fail in their purpose. Then came the glad news that, though they had not fully succeeded, they had nearly done so, and that they live to tell the story of their effort. No wonder that their safe arrival in Scotland was hailed with world-wide joy.

And now the feat of Read and his party and that of Hawker and Grieve are eclipsed by the marvellous achievement of Capt. Alcock and Lieut. Brown, who, in their Vimy Bomber, have made a non-stop flight from Newfoundland to Ireland, a distance of nearly two thousand miles, in sixteen hours and twelve minutes, at a speed of over 120 miles an hour! Alcock and Brown win the Daily Mail prize and make a record as to speed that will not be easily beaten.

RECONSTRUCTION OF LABOR.

ASIDE FROM ARRESTING a few misguided leaders here and there on the charge of sedition, catching the minnows while the whales are allowed to escape, the Dominion Government has shown no sign of dealing rationally with the Labor problem of the day. Ottawa is rather disposed to shift the responsibility of action from its own shoulders to those of the various provinces. In the meantime the unrest becomes more general.

In this connection it will be interesting to note what the United States Congress is doing in the same matter, the Labor conditions there being identical with those which prevail here. Senator Kenyon of Iowa, as chairman of the Senate committee on education and labor, has introduced in Congress a set of bills which the committee has approved as collectively outlining a reconstruction policy that should satisfy a majority of the wage workers of the country and check the spread of extreme ideas. It calls for improved federal machinery to deal with labor disputes, including inquiry, conciliation and arbitration; for vocational training to be furnished to all persons injured in industry; for the proper housing of workers; for encourgement of land and home ownership; for old age insurance, and for the employment of the involuntarily idle on useful public works.

The program is moderate. It is the intention of Senator Kenyon to press at once two or three of its items, such as vocational training, better housing and improved arbitration methods.

On the same day, by a curious coincidence, a committee of the American Federation of Labor put forth an "irreducible minimum" reform program of its own.

Only the principla features of the Federation program can be mentioned here. They include an eight-hour day with a half holiday Saturday; drastic restriction of child labor; ownership or proper regulation of public utilities by the government; a high tax on land values to discourage speculation in or monopoly of land; stricter control of corporations; higher taxes on large incomes and inheritances; government development of water-power; legislation porhibiting interference with labor unions, and the recall of judicial decisions in certain constitutional cases by a sort of popular referendum.

The report of the Federation committee asserts that the conservative wing of Organized Labor regards the foregoing plans, with some others, as the "lowest minimum" it will accept as a solution of the social problem. Yet the American public has good reason to think that hosts of American workers do not sympathize with the demand for some of the proposed changes—such, for example, as the recall of judicial decisions. However, it is well that Labor should carefully outline a program and present it for full discussion by all concerned.

In Canada the recall of judicial decisions has not yet been suggested, nor is it likely to be. The demand is simply for a system of appeal that will stop short of the Privy Council of England that so often makes ninepins of the legislative acts of Canada.

WHAT WAS THE MATTER WITH HIM?

WHEN THE GRANDFATHER of the future is cornered by the cross-examination of his juvenile descendant as to the part he took in the big war, evasive and ambiguous answers are possible. For example, the veteran may be able to say that there was something the matter with him. This may mean that physical defects kept him out of the service or that he was lacking in the qualifications which enabled him to pile up tremendous profits, like Manufacturer Paton, at the expense of the general public.

Mr. Paton says that there was something the matter with the man who failed to accumulate a war-time fortune. Opportunities were numerous and easy. But all Canadians did not have either the opportunity or the inclination. If the former had offered itself, it is not likely that all would have availed themselves of it.

There was something the matter with thousands of Canadians. These included the wage-earners whose compensation remained at practically pre-war figures while the cost of necessities soared.

There was something the matter with Canadians who denied themselves in the matter of food and clothing that the men overseas might lack for nothing.

There was something the matter with Canadians who pinched themselves in order to purchase Victory bonds that the Government might be furnished with the means to carry on the tremendous task that the war developed.

There was something the matter with the Patons, too, and the others of that ilk who made profits of seventy per cent. and upward. But the diagnosis fails to reveal any similarity in the affliction. This being the case, the remedy for the one does not apply to the other.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

A THERMOMETER flirting with the hundred mark makes the whole world kin in affliction.

• • • • •

THE OTONABEE RIVER is beautiful and famous, too, save and except for its bathing facilities and high level bridges.

• • • • •

THE GOOD THINGS of Peterborough for Peterborough men should remain the slogan, certain aldermen regardless.

• • • • •

THE PEOPLE of Canada will never stand for the secret trial of any man or set of men, no, matter what the charge.

• • • • •

THE BRITISH FLEET is on a war footing again, that, too, with everything in the shape of a competitor out of the way.

• • • • •

THE MAN working for a private corporation must get results or get out, while the public official can hang on to his job anyway until the next election.

• • • • •

FRIGHTFULNESS did ont pass away with the signing of the armistice, as even a casual observer of the modern bathing costume cannot fail to note.

• • • • •

VERILY the purchasing power of the cent as well as of the dollar shrinks. The price of the early watermelon may still be five cents, but the slice is smaller than ever.

• • • • •

THE SENATE has re-affirmed in regular session the anti-prohibition amendment which it passed in committee. Of a surety nothing is to be looked for from that quarter.

• • • • •

NO, THE USE or disuse of the "u" in certain words is not regarded as a question of education so much as of imperial devotion. But it is still possible to be phonetic and at least fairly loyal.

• • • • •

THE NEXT BIG WAR, if there should ever be one, is likely to be fought with noiseless artillery and more or less silent statesmanship, provided the United States Senate does not mix in the scrap.

• • • • •

THE SENATE should be, like the Lords in England, deprived of their power, seeing, that it seems impossible to wean them off the habit of throwing monkey wrenches into the administrative machinery.

• • • • •

COUNTY CLERK ELLIOTT and his faction should remember that until the county roads are improved Peterborough County can never hope to stage a championship bout. Pugilists are a little finnicky in the choice of highways on which to train.

WIT AND WISDOM

Thompson: "I never knew such a wet blanket as that chap Reynolds."

Robinson, "You're right. If that fellow were to jump out of the frying-pan into the fire, he would put the fire out."

Fire Lady: "Since our cook left I've been doing the cooking myself, and I assure you it's far more economical."

Second Lady: "I suppose they don't eat so much."

"He had a play produced by an amateur company the other night, I believe. Who was the hero of it, do you know?"

"I was one. I sat through it!"

"Pa," said Tommy Tucker, "am I descended from the monkeys?"

"Not on my side of the house," replied Mr. Tucker, with much positiveness.

"I shall have to ask you for a ticket for that boy ma'am," insisted a conductor, speaking to a quiet-looking little woman. The woman declined to pay. "You'll pay for that boy, or I'll stop the train and put him off," he persisted. "All right; put him off,' 'she said. "You ought to know the rules. How old is that boy?" "I don't know. I never saw him before."

Described.

"Pa, what is the wisdom of the ages?"

"It's what the average young fellows about 19 years old think he possesses."

Bit By Bit.

"I'm afraid your wife's mind is gone."

"I don't wonder at it, considering that she has been givin me a piece of it for so long."

A Soldier's Voice.

Dr. Rathbone Gough, at a "bone dry" Banquet in Boston, said:

"What a change we shall see next January, when all America goes bone dry! Why, friends, America will seem like heaven then."

"I don't know about that," a soldier heckler shouted.

"You, a soldier, to talk so," exclaimed the noted temperance lecturer. "Least of all men should a soldier express such pernicious doubts. Why don't you know, my young friend, that whiskey has killed more people than bullets have ever done?"

"Maybe so," said the soldier "May so. But, all the same, I'd rather be ful of whiskey than bullets."

BEAUTY SPOTS IN PETERBORO

PARKS IN SPLENDID SHAPE DUE TO CARE BY COUNCIL.

This year the care of Victoria and Central Parks is entrusted to the Council's Park Committee, of which Ald. Edgar is chairman. And these beauty spots never showed up to better advantage than just now. The design of the beds and selection and arrangement of flowering plants and ornamental shrubs in Victoria Park reflects horticultural art, together with commendable supervision.

A couple of new flower beds in Central Park show floriculture skill and enhance the beauty of this acceptable breathing spot in the heart of the city.

The Parks Committee have also furnished one ornamental bed for the small triangular and delightfully shaded park at the corner of Park and Charlotte streets, and another one for the pretty little and well-kept park at the corner of Park and Simcoe streets. Mr. Holly keeps the grass at the former spot cut and Mr. G. N. Gordon sees to it that the latter place does not suffer for want of attention.

The Parks Committee are certainly to be congratulated on stretching out their none too large appropriation to the best advantage.

THE LURE OF NEW YORK CITY

(Random Writer)

"I am going to New York."

What a picture-such an expression conjures up in the minds of untold numbers of persons who have never been in the largest and, in many respects the greatest city in the world! It means magical change of surroundings; to be transported into the joys an dsorrows of the world's most modern wonder. O, the delight of writing to the folks back home, of the wonderful harbor; the ever-fascinating Broadway, with its serpentine twists and turns; of the millions upon millions of electric lights turning night into day, and of the searchlights of the fleet-eyes of the sky—which show as clearly as shooting stars or a display of the "Northern Lights."

And, of course, no letter could be complete or satisfactory without reference being made to the famous tower buildings; the marvelous transportation systems and the myriads of humanity seen upon the streets. It seems safe to say that 90 per cent of the young men and women who come to this greatest of modern cities believe there is a fortune waiting for them here. And who can blame them, for, have they not heard from infancy, in many cases, heard of so-and-so who came to New York, "a poor boy without a dollar in the world," as the phrase so blithely runs, and who eventually became a captain of industry or one of the world's wealthiest men. And many of the young women believe with all their heart that there is a "future" or a career awaiting them if only they can get a "chance" upon the stage.

Little do they realise that, in a sense, New York City is Heaven and Hell combined. The writer holds no brief for Rev. Billy Sunday, but in his opinion it would take an evangelistic band composed of the angels of Heaven to eradicate appreciably crime abounding to New York the year round! Yet, in all probability there is a greater number of churches here than can be found elsewhere in the same area; churches of all denominations and creeds and so-called creeds and of almost every shade of belief.

New York has, also a great numbtr of charitable institutions and in no city or town is a more sincere effort made to shield and protect the character and morals of the youth entering its environs. Every train coming into Pennsylvania and Grand Central depots is met by officials whose business it is to war continual war against the white slave traffic and vice in general. Nevertheless, white slavers accomplish their fiendish purpose. When one considers the smoothness and cleverness with which slavers work luring their victims from smaller towns by means of innumerable clever ruses—this is not to be wondered at. The ferry boats running between New York and New Jersey are also closely watched.

From time immemorial music has played a most attractive role in the world's history. So it is in the present day and no city at home or abroad is more celebrated for the excellence and variety of its music than is the metropolis—not excepting even Boston. So, when milady packs her wardrobe, preparatory to the much-talked-of journey, ample provision is made for gowns suitable to be worn to the opera. In imagination she sees New York's "four hundred" magnificently gowned and bejeweled, as they occupy their boxes in stately grandeur at the Metropolitan. And, just think! she will hear the greatest tenor, certainly of the age, if not of all time and Garden and many of the galaxy of stars which shine so brightly in the operatic firmament. O joy.

When one's taste has been satiated with operatic productions there are the "movie" palaces to take in. Palatial is the only word to adequately describe the three leading film houses of America. The interior furnishings are in exquisite taste and the music of organ and orchestra worthy of comparison with the almost incomparable Boston Symphony. Music and picture production are so closely and marvelously interwoven that one follows the play with the same enthusiastic enjoyment usually accorded the higher class legitimate production. There are no ordinary musicians, however; each is an artist, a soloist, if need be. To see Carl Edouarde conduct the very efficient Strand Orchestra, with all the finesse of a Master of Music, so calm and composed, yet giving an impression of almost unlimited reserve power—ah! It is indeed a treat worth coming hundreds of miles to enjoy, and never-to-be-forgotten. There is as great difference between the playing of the symphonic orchestras of the three theatres referred to, and the orchesras of the ordinary theatre, as there is between a country band and Sousa's incomparable organization. In fact, there can be no comparison.

Then, there are wonderful residential streets to be visited—where the uncrowned kings of America have their homes along Riverside Drive and in many cases along the Hudson. Aladdin-like are the tales the "spieler" tells his bus-audiences, of the sudden rise to fame and fortunes of those whose names are household words here and abroad. Of course, the Goulds, Vanderbilts and Fricks—not to mention Rockefeller—are deftly woven into the fairylike story.

Chinatown and the Bowery next come in for attention. Of course the Chinese Theatre is shown and the residents of that oriental section have not the slighest trouble in in portraying their daily life and customs so vividly that one imagines one has, for the time being, been transplanted to he land of almond-eyes and ancient customs. Yet the children of these very Chinese have in many cases received at least a High School education and their fathers are among New York's most respected citisens.

There is only one Bowery and it defies adequate description. Here is the scene of the Jerry McAuley Mission and other Missions of almost equal fame, and here have fallen and here have been redeemed some of the brightest minds of the century. Once reverses are encountered, it is not hard to drift into the Bowery. In a sense the Bowery is like some of the Western frontier states in the pioneer days and even at the present time—where few questions are asked and nothing but present conduct counts. In the Bowery may be found Doctors of Divinity and one-time shepherds of the fold, whose feet, in an unguarded moment, strayed from the strait and narrow way; the professional men, and one time famous lawyer who followed "the easier way." A story is told of a rather prominent D.D. who addressed a small mission audience one night in a rather condescending fashion—supposedly to show his superior education—he gave a Latin quotation. Hardly had the words left his lips before an old man with unkempt hair and beard, and a face from which all marks of education and culture had not yet been effaced, arose and requested permission to say a few words. Permission being granted he disclosed who and what he was and had been and in a most modest manner corrected and rendered the Latin quotation as it was in the original. Of course this case is exceptional, for the average denizen of the Bowery is as devious in his ways as an old maid and as cunning as a fox. He likes the "rubber neck-wagons," as he terms the sight-seeing Chinatown buses, for the jolly, care-free sightseers toss him coins and they ask so many "foolish" questions, if one were to accept the word of some of these Bowery toughs one would be compelled to believe Jack the Ripper was a mere novice at murder compared with them. They love to hand such a "line of talk" to anyone who will listen—just to see the look of horror and amazement come over the faces of their hearers. Nevertheless, the Bowery proper is not the worst place in New York, by a good deal. The Y. M. C. A. has a splendid plant in the Bowery and much good is being done by many social organizations.

Themost dangerous part of any city is not where the yegg and highwaymen carry their guns in plain view and with an air of braggadocio. It is where the "polished gentleman" with his immaculate attire and faultless manners works among the so-called high class sporting houses or plies his calling at the fashionable entertainments given by the millionaire class. No Lord Chesterfield ever boasted greater sauvity of manner than the up-to-date society crook. He is posted on every point of the game.

Fake "company promoters" of international fame, have found New York most alluring for their line of nefarious endeavor. It is not unusual for one of this "gentry" to engage desk room in some large imposing appearing office building and then have stationery printed showing a cut of the building with the name of the fake "company" extending clear across the front, thus creating the false impression that his "company" occupies the entire building. Eventually secret service men put a stop to his masquerading under false colors and he "does time" in some place of confinement, leaving perhaps thousands to mourn financial loss. The activities of the "Curb Stock Exchange" has also lured many a young man to part with hard-earned earnings. Five minutes spent on the "Curb" is an education in itself. Here the "sign" language flourishes in all its glory, much to the mystification of the ignorant looker-on.

To those "spiritually minded"—to use the phraseology of one of the Apostles—there are many handsome churches which should be attended, for Episcopalians there the St. John's the Divine, St. Bartholomew's, Old Trinity and new St. Thomas.' The first mentioned is the most costly church on the Continent, having cost more than ten million dollars to date.

LESSONS IN RIGHT LIVING

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

Seasickness and car sickness (steam car, trolley car or automobile) [illegible] to be due to a disturbance of the lymph circulation in the semi-circular canals of the internal ear. Among the symptoms produced by hyperaemia or congestion of this part of the delicate mechanism of the internal ear are vertigo (dizziness), nausea, tinnitus (head noises), and sometimes vomiting.

If cold water gains entrance to the ear canal of one with a perforation of the ear drum, as in swimming, or in careless syringing of the ear, a sudden vertigo or dizziness severe enough to render the victim temporarily helpless may supervene. This fact undoubtedly accounts for many cases of drowning popularly attributed to "cramps," especially in persons known to be good swimmers. It is wise, therefore, for one with a perforation of the drum to insert in the ears a piece of lamb's wool or cotton before entering the water.

Reverse peristalsis, that is, a tendency toward reversal of the downward direction of stomach and intestinal wave movements, accounts for the distressing symptoms of seasickness or car sickness. Reverse peristalsis, in fact, is the direct cause of all vomiting, also of many instances of "water brash," belching of gas, bad taste, coated tongue, heartburn and the like. Besides the effect of congestion of the internal ear, there is every reason to assume that pronounced defects of vision uncorrected or not fully corrected by glasses may contribute to seasickness and car sickness in many cases. Here is one of numerous examples of the value of "drops" as an aid in the measurement of vision, for without the aid of drops it is difficult or impossible to make a mathematically accurate measurement of vision in most persons under middle age.

All sorts of remedies have been used for the prevention of seasickness. Perhaps the most satisfactory is a small dose of sodium bromide, say four grains, after each meal for two days before beginning the journey and for the first day of the journey. This may be taken in an effervescent draft, by adding to the bromide a few grains of sodium bicarbonate, and mixing with some lemon juice or lemonade. For two days or more before the journey it is well to see that thorough peristaltic action is maintained, taking, if necessary, one or more daily doses of some laxative, preferable a saline cathartic (salts of any kind). The saline most agreeable for the purpose is a bottle of solution of magnesium citrate freshly prepared by the pharmacist, half the contents on rising, the other half about an hour later. Dr. Nathan Rosewater of Cleveland extols the use of one-sixtieth of a grain of strychnine sulphate and one-two hundredth of a grain of atropine sulphate an hour before meals for a day or two before the journey, to increase the peristaltic force of stomach and intestine. He suggests that famous A. B. S. (aloin, belladonna and strychnine) tablet combines the laxative and peristaltic stimulation required to prevent seasickness. The effervescent magnesium citrate seems preferable to aloes as a laxative.

"Some time ago two friends and myself were foolish enough to have a filling put in our faces. It looked nice for a while, but presently it grew much larger, and now my face is in bad condition so that everybody notices the swelling. One doctor says an attempt to remove the paraffin might only make my face look worse. To think of going through life this way makes me almost want to die."

One of the 10,000,000 foolish virgins. Willing to try anything once, on the mere suggestion of any charlatan with sufficient front. Paraffin injected under the skin makes a very discouraging mess to remove later on, though sometimes most of it can be dissected out without leaving much scar formation.

Sluggish Liver.

"I have a very sluggish liver. What do you advise for such a case?
"M. S."

Two miles of oxygen three times a day on the hoof and half a dozen rolls before breakfast. A sluggish liver is another way of saying a lazy life.

Reply to Anxious Mother.

I do not agree with the version of the problem which you quote. However, I am sorry I cannot discuss it frankly in this place. And since you cannot or will not divulge your name and address there is nothing I can do. I must say, however, that after all, you are a rather silly mother.

SILVER STRIPES AMONG THE GOLD.

(James J. Montague.)

And while we are speaking of heroes—
And we're doing it every day,
As our fighting men march home again
And the bands and bugles play,
Let us speak of the fameless heroes—
The heroes that missed their chance
To risk their all, to fight or fall
On the shell-swept fields of France.

Eager and keen and ready,
When the call for men rang clear,
Knowing the price and the sacrifice,
They quietly answered, "Here!"
Eager and keen and ready,
For death or for deathless fame,
Their heavy fate was to wait and wait,
For the order that never came.

But grim and game to the finish,
Loyal and staunch and true,
Their hopes denied, they turned aside
To the tasks that they found to do.
They trained new fighting units,
They sent out rations and guns,
And 'twas by their aid that our armies made
An end of the kaiser's Huns.

So, while we are speaking of heroes,
And we're doing it every day,
As our fighting men march home again
And the bands and the bugles play,
While loud we sound the praises
Of the men who licked the foe,
Let's give a cheer, right now and here, and it is not nearly completed nor will it be for several years to come. Services, however, have been conducted during the past few years in such parts as have been thus far erected. The organ cost $25,000,00 and is played by Miles Farrow. A handsome residence has been erected for the members of the boys' choir and a resident physician is always available.
For the fellows who couldn't go!

Roman Catholics take great pride in St. Patrick's Cathedral, which cost $5,000,00. St. Patrick's is probably the handsomest and most ornate church in greater New York.

All the leading Evangelical denominations have beautiful places of worship but the architecture of St. John's the Divine, and St. Patrick's Cathedral, and the music of St. Bartholomew's Episcopal, seem to predominate.

In conclusion: does not the real lure of New York lie in its immense size, the vastness of its wealth; the almost limitless opportunities for advancement of those who use their brains and work steadily and intelligently; in the cosmopolitan nature of its residents? Add to these the fact that it is the world's greatest industrial and commercial centre, is possibly the greatest banking centre; that its facilities for the study of music, the fine arts, science and commercial activities in general is unsurpassed, and one has the secret of America's greatness!

Little or nothing has been here written of the tremendous influence of the press of this greatest of all cities, but it is an acknowledged fact that the press of "little old New York" has more influence than is apparent at first glance. The newspapers and magazines published here largely influence the opinion of at least all English-speaking races.

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a glass of Salts if your Back Hurts or Bladder Troubles you

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well known authority. Meat forms a uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become over-worked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralise the acids in the urine, so it no longer causes irritation thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia, water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

From Apricot Pits.

California produces yearly about 7,000 tons of apricot pits, and home chemists now obtain $200 of materials from each ton. The price of the pits, formerly sold in central Europe at $45 a ton, was reduced two-thirds by the war. The products include a fruit oil substitute for olive oil, the essential oil of apricot (known also as bitter oil of almonds), a cooking meal and a cleansing meal, and American (formerly Prussian) blue.

Tail of the Fox.

One of the most notable features of the fox is his large and massive tail, writes John Burroughs. Seen running on the snow at a distance, his tail is quite as conspicuous as his body; and, so far as appearing a burden, seems to contribute to his lightness and buoyancy. It softens the outline of his movements, and repeats or continues to the eye the ease and poise of his carriage.

This Dog Small Boy's Friend.

A pupil in one of the Rumford (Me.) grade schools failed to come to school and when the truant officer called to learn the reason, he was told that the dog had run off with the small boy's knickerbocker's, which had been put in their usual place the night before, and which could not be located until time to attend the afternoon session.

Violet Highly Prized.

The violet was the national flower of the Athenians, and the men of Athens were frequently addressed by their orators as "Athenians crowned in violets." The Romans believed the flower had medicinal qualities, and Pliny advised a garland of violets about the forehead would cure headache or dizziness.

Some Story.

Said the mournful man, "Someday, somebody, somewhere, somehow will get an inspiration and in the fervor of the hour will write a chunk of fiction that doesn't contain the word sordid, doesn't refer to the flotsam and jetsam of life and excludes all persons with hectic flushes? [illegible]

ALL WEAR VELVET

Material Also Popular for the Small Girl.

Enters Largely Into Construction of Best Frocks as Well as Garments for School Wear.

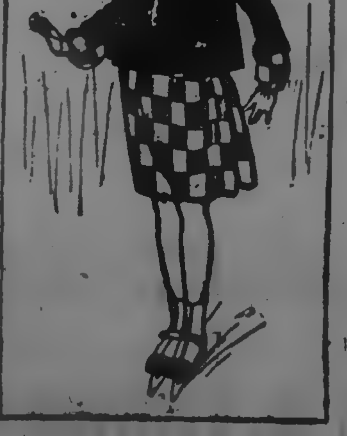
Everyone wears velvet this winter. This means that the small girl is either entirely or partially velvet-robed during the majority of her wide-awake hours. Velvet is not used to develop evening frocks for the very young, but it enters very largely into the construction of many best or "Sunday" frocks, as well as into the garment designed for school wear. The dress made entirely of velvet is usually very picturesque and distinguished, with white collar and cuffs, and often a wide sash of satin in self or contrasting color. For school or service wear a velvet skirt may be accompanied by a blouse of crepe de chine or satin, or a sleeveless velveteen blouse may be worn over a plain or plaid frock of serviceable wool material.

The sketch shows a smart little frock for a girl of six or eight years, combining a one-piece dress of plaid serge in red and black with a square cut, hip-length coat of black velvet or velveteen, finished at the neck with a ruffle of white organdie or georgette. The sleeves of the jacket are cut short enough to show a few inches of the plaid sleeve.

The cap to be worn with this outfit may match either dress proper or jacket, or a combination of the two materials may be employed.

A great deal of attention is being paid to clothes for children this winter, and it is interesting to observe the exactness with which the wardrobe of the well-dressed grown-up is copied in miniature for the child.

Sleeveless and low-necked underslips of pale colored silks and satin for girls as young as four years are shown, to be worn under little party frocks of net and other sheer fabrics. Hand-embroidered silk pajamas and silk nightgowns are also developed for these very little people. This scheme of dressing has its advantages, too. It is a real education in the art of being well dressed, started at the right time.



Velvet and Plaid Serge Dress.

"Horse Latitudes."

The horse latitudes are a belt in the Atlantic ocean where calm often prevails, so called in colonial times when vessels carrying horses from New England to the West Indies were sometimes obliged, when detained there, to throw overboard part of the cargo for want of water [illegible]

The Path to Health

For many thousands of women the Path to Health has certainly been through Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. When this great remedy was first introduced, and for many years after, skeptics frowned upon its curative claims, but as year after year has rolled by and the little group of women who had been cured by it has since grown into a vast army of hundreds of thousands—doubt and skepticism have been swept away as by a mighty tidal wave, until today this purely vegetable medicine is recognized as the greatest remedy for woman's special ills in the world. This is because it is a wonderful tonic and reconstructor which acts directly and favorably upon the feminine organization and is a specific for that purpose.

ARTHUR WALWIN EVANS.

The opening lecture of the week on "What Western Democracy Has Done For Me" will give the right swing to the programme. Evans is a nephew of David Lloyd George, a Welshman by birth and an American by choice. His comparison of the democracies of the Old World and the New, will be one of the features of the week at this time when Democracy is at the fore. He is wondrously humorous in his way of putting things, as well as convincing in his argumentation.

One More Guess.

A superintendent of schools was trying to teach a class of boys the composition of sentences, and said: "If I ask you, 'What have I in my hand?' you must not answer 'Chalk,' but compose a complete sentence, such as, 'You have a piece of chalk in your hand.' 'Now, what have I on my feet?' The boys got it mixed and called out, "Boots." "Wrong; you haven't listened." "Socks," ventured another blunderer. "Worse and worse; try again." A pupil raised his hand, convinced that the right article had not yet been named; "Corns, sir," he exclaimed, triumphantly.

The Deutschland.

The submarine Deutschland sailed from Kiel, Germany, June 10, 1916, and arrived at Baltimore July 10. It was the first trans-Atlantic voyage by a submarine. She left Baltimore on her return trip August 1 and was reported as arriving at Bremen August 17.

PARENTS URGED NOT TO TELL UNTRUTHS TO THEIR CHILDREN

Evangelist Kennedy's Discourse in Big Tent—"How to Keep Young and Good Looking," His Theme Tonight.

Some of the foolish practices of parents in the bringing up of their children were dealt with by Evangelist Kennedy in the course of his address in the big tent on Hunter street last evening. The care of a father whose child was frightened to eat rabbit an dwho told the child that it was chicken that she was eating until after she had eaten it and then told her that it had been rabbit after all and also the case of a mother who told her little boy that he could not go in a certain field to play because there was a bear there were cited as examples of the telling of untruths by parents that are sure to react disastrously on the life of the child and the child's impression of its parents. These things may seem small to some parents but they are big things to the child and lasting impressions are made in childhood, which later cannot easily be overcome. Christian parents should see that their example to their children is always one which would be pleasing in Christ's sight.

In the days of the children of Israel when they began to sin the altars of God began to disappear and the altars to Baal to appear in their place. In these days when Christian parents neglect family prayer and the reading of the Scriptures daily, the altars to modern Baal in the form of love of pleasure and worldly influences are set up in the home in their place.

The main theme of Mr. Kennedy's address last evening centred around Gideon and the victory he won as set out in the 6th and 7th chapters of Judges. Evangelist Kennedy showed how the Lord wants only those to serve Him who are wholly yielded to His service. The 31,700 followers of Gideon were weeded out because of their cowardice and lack of wholehearted devotion to his cause, but with the 300 faithful who were left he won the victory. Thousands of Christians today cannot stand God's tests any better than did the followers of Gideon. When simple tests in Christian service are applied to them from time to time they only too often fail to meet the test.

Tonight Mr. Kennedy's theme will be "How to Keep Young and Good Looking." Tomorrow night he will speak on David and Goliath. In all his addresses he has been dealing with Bible characters in a most interesting way. His addresses have a character all their own that are being much appreciated by those who attend. The attendance this week has been encouraging for the first week's meetings and gives indication of growing rapidly, especially as soon as the hot spell is over.

The singing last night was lead by members of the George Street choir. Mrs. Renwick rendered a solo, which was much appreciated, as also did Mr. Mulligan. Tonight the members of the St. James' Church choir will lead the singing. Among the special musical features will be a quartette. The co-operation of the church choirs is proving quite a feature of the meetings. Rev. J. A. Galt of the Gilmour Memorial church assisted in the services. Last evening in his announcements Mr. Kennedy thanked the daily papers for their interest in the meetings and the generous space they were giving to reporting the proceedings.

The following are nuggets taken from some of Evangelist Kennedy's addresses:

SPARKS FROM KENNEDY'S ANVIL

It is not the sinners outside the church that knock revivals most, but the uncoverted church member.

Some people are pillars in the church and some are caterpillars, that leave only the slime of their criticism behind them.

Some would rather sinners were lost than not be served in their church.

School teachers could not keep their job if they knew as little about their work as some Sunday School teachers know about the lesson.

Some folks are all manners—always afraid of upsetting something.

Take the starch out of some people nd you would have nothing left.

An idle brain is the devil's work shop.

No matter whether you are known in this world or not, you will be in the next if you get into God's plan.

No man is on safe ground until his will is conformed to the will of God.

With God all things are possible, no matter how improbable.

If you hate little things you will never do great things.

If we wait till we are fully qualified to serve Christ, we will never serve Him.

All Christ's interests on earth are entrusted to His people.

Be careful if your love for God's service is less than it once was.

ROAD PROGRAM FOR PETERBORO

COUNTY SOLICITOR PECK PRESENTS PLAN TO THE COUNTY COUNCILLORS.

At the afternoon session of the County Council yesterday, Mr. A. A. Peck presented a good roads by-law of which the terms in brief are as follows:

(1) Certain roads in the townships that desire to adopt the County Good Roads scheme shall be improved and mained by the County, or that portion of it which desires to come into the scheme.

(2) These roads shall be kept up according to the rules of the Highway Improvement Act.

(3) The work of construction and maintenance shall begin as soon as practicable after the by-law is passed.

(4) The County Council may make grants to villages or twons for improving highways which are extensions of or from direct conections between different parts of the County Roads.

(5) The money required shall be raised in the following way: Sixty per cent shall be raised by the municipalities benefitted and forty per cent shall be granted by the Government.

(6) All government grants must be expended solely on the County Roads.

The standing Good Roads Committee consists of the Reeves and Deputy Reeves of Otonabee, Monaghan, and Smith, and the Reeves of Asphodel, Dummer and Douro, which are the townships most likely to come in under the scheme.

Vancouver Board of Trade adjourned on June 12th for the summer.

There were 43 acclamations in 81 constituencies in the Quebec nominations.

MR. BURNHAM ON THE BUDGET

The following is a verbation report of Mr. J. H. Burnham's speech on the Budget delivered in the House of Commons recently:

Mr. Speaker, I should like to say, in starting my twenty minute speech, if I may call it such, that one cannot very well be too complimentary to the Budget or of the Minister of Finance (Sir Thomas White). Either as Minister of Finance or as framer of the Budget, or as Acting Prime Minister during the absence of the Prime Minister, he has shown not only that he was capable of carrying on the country's affairs with consummate ease during that period, but that he is alert, sagacious, responsive, kindly, sympathetic and prescient. All those things we need in Canada today and they represent, as he represents, Canada at her very best.

I am going to touch upon a few things out of the ordinary routine. I think we might well pay that great Dominion, Australia, the compliment of asking her to send us our next Governor General, and I think we could not pay her a greater compliment than by responding to her invitation to send her our present Prime Minister as her next Governor General. By this interchange of our public men, the outlying districts of the Dominions of the Empire would show their appreciation of each other and they would have accomplished a vast deal for the unity of the British Empire.

The next question on the program is this question: Where are we? Well, just for the moment, we are nowhere. We have the extraordinary fact that the President of the Council (Mr. Rowell) says that so far as he is concerned, he is not going to discuss protection and free trade, and that, of course is the whole burden of the Budget, the commercial expression of Canada's idea of business at the present time. It is absolutely the most important thing before Canada today. It concerns her vitally, and must be either agreed with or differed from. This business of quietly waving it to one side, I really do not think a patriotic Canadian, such as I aspire to be, can possibly condone in even so great and admirable a man as the President of the Council; nor can we grant to the Minister of Public Works (Mr. Carvell) that ill-defined and nebulous position of sitting on the fence which he has taken to himself when he says that he has nothing to say about the Budget, but that he will reserve to himself the right to criticise. In common English parlance, that is hostility to the Budget. We have then the Minister of Immigration and Colonization (Mr. Calder) coming out flat-footed against the Budget. He says: No, to it, and that he has found the Liberals of Ontario are really conspiring with the Conservatives to be protectionists. That is true; so they are. They have experienced protection in Ontario, and after many years of it they have been enabled to lend the West money with which to buy seed wheat. But my point is this: That this is a post-war Budget which does away with many of the war taxes, because the war is over and our men are coming back as rapidly as possible. Our excellent Minister of Militia (Mr. Newburn) is bringing them back with al speed, because the necessity of continuing them overseas is not apparent; he wants to get them back into peace conditions upon the land or elsewhere as soon as possible. The Budget is in no sense a war Budget; it is a post-war Budget; it is a peace Budget, and therefore, for these ministers to refuse to endorse the principle of the Budget while they are voting for it, or for them to sit on the fence is, I say with all reverence and respect, an absurdity. The country is entitled to something better. The country does not want either her Government or her representatives to camouflage their principles by saying: These are our principles, but not now. They are like the Irishman who asked the lieutenant to write home to his wife, and who said: "Dear Bridget I am sending you ten francs, but not this week." We do not want that expression of Canada's principles or business or politics or governmenta methods. We want men who know what they think and who are prepared to act up to their opinions with all speed, because this country is in no condition to temporise in this matter. I think myself, that these excellent gentlemen who at the call of duty in time of war, on the one issue, namely, that of defending the Empire, came to the rescue of the situation, should have been liberated before this from their obligations. They are placed, by the continuance of the Government in office in the extraordinary position of having to assert their principles and yet to deny them. They are between the two principles of loyalty and disloyalty to the Government. They are, I think, put in a most uncomfortable state of mind. If they were free, they might go home, if they dared, or they might express themselves more freely, or they might have a policy of their own in the House and thus free themselves from whatever odium is attached to them otherwise. But, being still bound by an obligation to the Government, they are in a position which is at once sad and laughable. I would send al these men to the Senate or other high positions, of which there are plenty. God knows, we have commissions enough. The Government seems unable to find out anything or to know anything except when it is borne in upon it by agitation, and then a commission in five minutes finds out what the high cost of living is due to, something that has agitated the whole country for weeks, if not years. It will be understood that so far as the continuance of the Union Government goes, it is absolutely impossible, and it has established that fact itself. What about the Union party? Before going on to speak about a Unionist party let me say that if the present members of the Cabinet who go out are succeeded by other Liberals, those other Liberals must do the same to remain Liberals, namely, they must have Liberal principles and then not act upon them. That is an impossibility; you cannot continue a Union Government which is not at one. In England, the Unionists were Unionists, because in both their foreign and domestic policies they were at one. Had they been at one in either and not in the other, Union Government would have been impossible. Here, we were at one in our foreign policy and are at sixes and sevens in our domestic policy. I am a moderate protectionist. I believe in the national policy, which has been found not wanting, but which has proved its value. I believe at the present time that the country needs our most earnest consideration. I believe I know what the country expects of us; in fact, I know she is impatient at this moment to know why it is we do not adopt forthwith the policy which she herself has endorsed upon many occasions. To debate the question of free trade and protection now, to temporise; some to stand on the fence; some to say no, and some yes, and others, we do not know where they stand—that is no way to establish confidence in the ntry, or in the Government, or in this House. A Unionist party is an impossibility, because the Unionist ty was founded upon something that in the case of the Union Government was an issue on which all were out the Unionist party finds itself now, since the war is over, in the position of differing in its opinions. Well, God knows, the Liberals and the Conservatives of this country have furnished the solidity and respectability of Canada long enough to have opinions which are respected. But if people desire to be indefinite or to sit upon the fence, to be what is called independent, why they are welcome to be so. Every man is entitled in a free country to his opinions or to have none, and under these considerations the cross benches are the place for those people who cannot agree with the Opposition or with the Conservatives. But a Unionist party is impossible, and for my part I can see no earthly way of going on with the policy of protection to which we are pledged and which we must have, and yet have a Unionist party composed of many men who are free traders.

The thing is impossible. Let me say that the holding of 140,000,000 acres of tillable land in the three provinces of the West for speculative purposes is an absurdity. Surely it is not necessary to emphasize that fact. People must be crazy who will tie up these vast tracts of land and enhance the value of it by every efforts known o them, by hard work upon railways, by ependiture of money on immigration, all for the benefit of whom? For those who sit idly by and profit by the result. This state of affairs will continue only so long as the people refuse to exercise their common sense. It will case the minute they do exercise it. Of course, we realize that the people who are tilling the surrounding land know that if these lands held for speculative purposes were thrown open, their own lands would go down in value. So the man who does not work and the man who does are both in the same boat. Anxiety makes strange bedfellows. The principle is wrong, it is rotten. The principle of gravitation. Free trade in the minds of some people or in their methods is an insistence that people shall be free, no matter what the consequences may be. If we were bound by the like analogy in respect to the force of gravity I would not raise my hand or foot, nor would there be one possible exertion of energy in the whole world in violation of that law.

The whole question of free trade versus protection is summed up in a very few words. One is a restriction of the freedom of the people, and the other is not. England is the most highly protected country in the whole world. It is not long since she made a law that people holding patents in Britain must manufacture in Britain or lose their patent rights there. That was a prohibitory tariff if you like. It is not a thousand years since she had navigation laws, nor a thousand years since she had a scheme by which you could import wheat at a very low freight rate into Great Britain, and flour at a very much higher rate. Why? Because they wanted to grind their own wheat and give employment to their own people. They have subsidized every line of steamers sailing from Great Britain. They take pretty good care of their money too, because exchange is the key that unlocks the secrets of the commercial world. I do not suppose there is any more intelligent or courteous advocate of free trade in this House or the country than the hon. member for Red Deer (Mr. Clark). He knows that free trade must have for its motto "laisses faire" or "laisses aller," that is, let things take care of themselves, let people do what they can or will, let them be unrestricted. Now that lack of restriction must refer to

TWO TOWNSHIPS ADOPT PROVINCIAL ROAD PLAN

North Monaghan and Otonabee Take Lead in Joining Other Municipalities of Ontario—By-Law Adopted.

The assessment committee concluded its work this afternoon at the County Council, and on motion of Reeve Wm. Matheson, seconded by Reeve C. J. Darling, it was decided to make no change in the assessment.

The good roads committee under Chairman W. A. Anderson of Otonabee then made their report. It has been definitely decided that only two townships, Otonabee and Monaghan, should be included in the good roads system.

The following is a copy of the by-law:

Whereas under the Act for the Improvement of Public Highways, R. S. O. 1914, Chapter 40, the County Council of any county may by bylaw adopt a plan for the improvement of highways throughout the county by assuming highways in any municipality in the county in order to form or extend a system of county highways, therein designating the highways to be assumed and improved or extended to form or be added to the said system.

And whereas the said Highway Improvement Act has been amended so permit the council of any county, with the approval of the Minister of Public Works and Highways, to exercise the powers and perform the duties provided by the said Act with respect to any part of such county consisting of two or more adjoining townships;

And whereas, the County Council of the County of Peterborough deems it necessary and expedient to adopt a plan for the improvement of certain highways in the townships of . . . . in order that the county may avail itself of the benefits of the said Act;

Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the County of Peterborough as follows:

1. The several roads and highways in the said townships described and set forth in Schedule "A" hereto annexed and forming part of this by-law are hereby designated and assumed as county roads to be improved and maintained under the provisions of the said Highway Improvement Act and amendments thereto.

2. The said highways shall be constructed, improved and maintained in accordance with all provisions and regulations prescribed by the said Highway Improvement Act.

3. The work of construction and maintenance shall be commenced as soon as practicable after the coming into force of this bylaw.

4. The County Council may from time to time by by-law make such grants as may be necessary and equitable for the improvement of highways or portions of highways in villages or towns not separated from the county, and which are extensions of or from direct connections between different portions of county roads.

5. Funds for the improvement of the roads and highways herein designated shal be raised by annual levy upon the rateable property within the said townships, or by the issue of debentures from time to time, or by other means authorized by the Ontario Municipal Act, the Highway Improvement Act or other statute of the Province of Ontario in that regard and the rate for the payment of such debentures for the aforesaid purposes or any rate levied under the authority of or by reason of the said Highway Improvement Act, shall be levied and collected upon the rateable property aforesaid, and no part of the cost of improvement and maintenance of the said roads and highways shall be borne by the municipalities not so included.

6. All grants from the Province under the said Highway Improvement Act shall be expended solely upon the system of roads regularly assumed and improved as county roads under the said Act.

7. The County Council shall in each year submit to the Minister of Public Works and Highways for his approval a general estimate or estimates of the expenditure on the said roads and highways for the ensuing season and no expenditure in excess of the estimate or estimates so submitted and approved shall be considered a charge upon the Province under the said Act.

8. This By-law shall not come into force until approved by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council in accordance with section 12 of the said Highway Improvement Act.

THEATRICAL

Good Play Now Running at Grand

"AFTER HIS OWN HEART," BILL FOR TONIGHT AND TOMORROW.

"After His Own Heart," the gripping Metro play which was the attraction at the Grand Theatre yesterday with Hale Hamilton in the starring role, proved to be a production of unusual originality which won instant approval.

The story, written by Ben Ames Williams and published in the All Story Weekly, has a powerful plot which tells of a young millionaire who, through the loss of his health, faces the prospect of making a living for himself. While pondering his difficult problem he receives a strange letter offering him a large sum of money in exchange for one month of his time. He does not feel inclined to do this as no mention is made of what he is expected to do in return but, being of an adventurous spirit, finally decides to accept. He is taken to a large and mysterious hourse where he meets a doctor. It is then that he learns of the grim and amazing scheme for which the doctor wishes to use him.

This picture will be presented at the Grand tonight and tomorrow with Saturday matinee.

VIRILE DRAMA OF HAUNTS IN PARIS

GERALDINE FARRAR IN "THE STRONGER VOW" AT GRAND NEXT WEEK.

Most powerful of all Geraldine Farrar's screen achievements is her newest Goldwyn production, "The Stronger Vow," a thrilling, modern drama, laid in the picturesque Pyrenees and in the haunts of the Apaches in Paris.

Never before have the remarkable talents of the international celebrity been given such wide scope, nor have her cinema admirers ever been enthralled and thrilled as Goldwyn confidently predicts they will be by her latest screen offering a vehicle replete with situations that demand test after test of Geraldine Farrar's histrionic powers. As in her previous Goldwyn successes, the diva has a supporting cast nothing short of brilliant. Milton Sills, Tom Santschi and Hassard Short—names standing for extreme screen accomplishment —eclipsing all previous portrayals in support of the star of stars.

Miss Farrar's demands that her roles be exacting and pitched in a high dramatic key are thoroughly satisfied in "The Stronger Vow," with its interest-compelling story of romance, intrigue and adventure. Goldwyn announces it for presentation at the Grand Theatre for three days, beginning Monday next.

labour as well as to production. It must have perfect freedom to import facture and every other consideration that enters into commercial life. You must have perfect freedom to import. I see the hon. member for Red Deer moving his distinguished head in the affirmative. I want to ask him if he considers that the West has the right now or at any other time to import all the Chinese labour it wishes free of restriction?

Mr. M. Clark: My hon. friend has asked me a question that has nothing whatever to do with the Budget. I shall reserve my thoughts on immigration until we are discussing immigration. I am listening with interest to my hon. friend, but I do not propose to be catechised or put into a box by the hon. gentleman.

Mr. Burnham: I quite agree that my hon. friend would be put into a box. As my twenty minutes are up, I shall keep the agreement with the whip and I fancy the House will be quite satisfied.

DE LAVALS WON FROM THE VETERANS: SCORE 13 TO 11

Separator Men Had Lead of Eight at End of Fourth Innings but Veterans Tied Score in Eighth.

De Lavals defeated the Great War Veterans last night by 13 to 11. The game lacked a great deal in interest owing to the big lead piled up by the winners, who at the end of the fourth innings were ahead by ten to two. From that point on the Veterans steadily climbed up until they had made it a tie at the end of the eighth, eleven all. De Lavals scored two in the ninth and the Veterans were unable to get a man on first.

First Innings

De Laval—S. Wade missed Dugan's fly. Bergoine was thrown out at first, Calahan singled, scoring Dugan. Rose walked, Cavanah bunted safely scoring Calahan, Barrie and Legon struck out. Two runs, two hits, one error.

G. W. V. A. S. Wade flied out to Dugan. Anderson sent another to Cavanah, Foley singled, but Hearne struck out. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Second Innings

A. Wade took the place of Johnston and played first base, Fitzgerald fanned, Prest singled but was caught stealing second and Dugan struck out. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Hargrave and Le Barr were thrown out at first Taylor walked A. Wade singled, Dennard struck to the pitcher and Taylor was caught on the road home.

HOW RACE GOES FOR THE PENNANT IN BIG LEAGUES

Giants and Cubs Are Favorites in National and Yankees and White Sox in the American Circuit.

New York, June 20.—More and more, as the races tighten up it becomes apparent that New York and Chicago, barrying accidents this year, will provide the fields for the greatest event in baseball—the World's series.

The White Sox and Yankees in the American League apparently have an "edge" in the pretty race now being staged in the Johnson organization.

The Giants and Cubs are the class of the National Field and the race should be between these two—and a bitter, heart-breaking ding-dong finish it should prove.

There's a chance that both Chicago teams may win, as once happened back in 1906; and there's a chance that both New York teams may win and then fight out the world's title question on the Polo Grounds; then there's the chance that the Cubs and Yankees may battle, and the possibility, too, of a repetition of the 1917 struggle in case the Giants and White Sox come through.

In the National organization the series now on in Chicago between the Cubs and the Giants is an important one. The former are now staging their big rush. They went badly in the West in April and badly when they were East in May. Anybody could hit their star pitchers, and they in return couldn't touch the "dubs" of other teams. But now they have passed the turn in the road. Grover Alexander has come to life, Big Jim Vaughn is getting a break in the bad luck that pursued him so long, Phil Douglas has really been hurling phenomenal ball and Hendrix, Carter and Martin have given invaluable assistance. When George Tyler gets back into his best shape the defense of the Mitchell machine will be as nearly perfect as it is possible to get.

McGraw should get good pitching too. Schupp's showing in Cincinnati was most encouraging, and a few youngsters and he will be in 1917 fettle. Benton and Causey are still to be depended on. Toney is "there" and Perritt is about ready. Barnes eased up a little, but is now coming back strong.

The Giants are striking Chicago and St. Louis when both teams are at the top of their game, and will have hard sailing this week. Still an even break will bring them back in possession of a tidy lead and in a position to build it up in their next stay at the home field.

Cleveland and Cincinnati are the teams in the American and National Leagues respectively that may upset the New York-Chicago "dope." The Indians, however, are having a lot of trouble with their pitchers, and the Reds are having in and out hurling and a weakened outfield.

It looks as though the vaunted World's Champions, the Boston Red Sox, can be counted out of the present pennant race unless a sudden improvement comes in their pitching and they get better playing at second base. Bush's absence, Sam Jones's failure to live up to expectations and the failure of Shean, Barry and McNally to keep the base hits from dribbling through the right wing of the infield are the reasons for the poor position of Barow's team.

DEMPSEY WEIGHS OVER 200 POUNDS

SURPRISED HIS FRIENDS WHEN HE STEPPED ONTO TESTED SCALES.

Toledo, June 20.—Jack Dempsey, matched to meet Jess Willard for the heavyweight championship here July 4, gave his admirers their biggest surprise today when he weighed himself on a set of tested scales and tipped the beam at exactly 201 pounds. Dempsey was clad only in a swimming suit and boxing shoes, which weighed about a pound.

The weighing was done publicly after a dinner at the challenger's camp attended by Tex Rickard, promoter of the contest; Mayor Schrieber, C. F. Wall, director of Public Safety; numerous sporting celebrities and newspapermen. Even Jack Kearns, manager of the challenger, looked astonished when the beam passed over the 200 mark.

He announced yesterday Dempsey would scale about 195 pounds. The challenger's poundage was considerable of a jolt to admirers of Willard who had claimed that Dempsey's hard work under a scorching sun would likely burn him out and send him into the ring against the champion in the light heavyweight class or around 180 pounds.

Dempsey appeared to be in perfect condition when he jumped on the scales. There was not an ounce of superfluous flesh on his body which has been burned to a copper color as a result of weeks of exposure to the sun.

Willard boxed eleven three minute rounds, one short of the distance he will have to travel if he and Dempsey go the limit in the fourth of July engagement. Joe Chip, a middleweight of Newcastle, Pa., and a brother of George Chip, once middleweight champion, joined Willard's staff of sparring partners and furnished the champion with the most interesting workout of the afternoon. Chip weighs more than 180 pounds, but he looks like a lightweight against the champion. He is fast and speeded up Willard's work, to the delight of the big crowd. Willard boxed three rounds with Jack Hempel, two with Chip, three with Jack Heinen, and three with Walter Monahan. He used 14 ounce gloves instead of ten ounce ones to save his sparring partners, who are nursing puffed lips and bruises as a result of the mauling they received yesterday.

You Can Start With 25 Cents and be An Investor

And you can invest it in securities as safe and profitable as any held by capitalists.

Twenty-five cents saved each week can be made to earn 4½% interest by a very simple plan.

Thrift Stamps cost twenty-five cents each. Sixteen of these when exchanged for a War Savings Stamp become a 4½% interest-bearing security for which the Government will pay you $5.00 in 1924.

In other words, if you lend the Government the $4.00 odd you have saved by this easy means, the Government will pay it back to you WITH AN ADDITIONAL DOLLAR five years from now.

And you become an investor in the safest of all securities—a Government Bond.

LUMBER YARD SCENE OF FIRE

McDONALD ESTATE LOSES LUMBER LAST NIGHT VALUED AT $1,000.

Fire, which broke out in the lumber yards of the estate of A. McDonald last night caused $1,000 damages, according to John Duignan. Two piles of pine, consisting of over 5,000 feet of inch lumber were partly burnt and rendered useless as well as some other piles of hemlock. There was a light wind blowing from the northwest at the time, which leads to the belief that the fire was caused by sparks from the city's incinerator. The fire was first noticed by George Lundy who was passing along George street about 4.25 last night. He notified the office of the firm, and a telephone cal was sent in. The firemen immediately responded, and by their quick work avoided a large conflagration as there is a block between Rink and Townsend streets covered with piles of lumber and sawdust which made excellent material for the fire to work on. Owing to the fact that the mechanism was temporarily out of order, no general fire alarm was sounded. The loss is covered by insurance.

RETURNED MEN'S CHANCE FOR JOBS

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM SO CALLED HAS NOT HELPED VETERANS.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., asked the following question in the House:

Is it a fact that positions announced as open for application in the Government service are held open so long that returned soldier applicants get no satisfaction and have to give it up?

The answer of Hon. Martin Burrell was:

All vacancies report to the Civil Service Commission by the departments and all requisitions filed in connection therewith are dealt with as promptly as possible.

Ordinary requisitions which can be filled from the eligible lists of clerks, typists, stenographers, etc., are seldom more than two or three days as when the lists of those who have qualified by passing prescribed examinations are exhausted there are usually applications on file from which temporary assignments can be made.

When a minor position has to be filled by local advertising said advertising is authorized by return mail and ten days to two weeks is usually sufficient time in which to deal with the matter and make the appointment.

When more important positions have to be advertised in the Gazette and through the press a longer period, generally about thirty days, is allowed and time added to enable British Columbia points to reply. It sometimes occurs that so many applications are received that longer time is required to make full investigation into the merits of all applicants but the cases where final decision is delayed longer than a few days after competitions close are few and far between.

Mr. Burnham says with regard to the above that it will scarcely be satisfactory to the returned soldier but it shows how serious a matter it is for people in a constituency that what is called patronage to give it a bad name should have been centred in the Government, thus leaving the people of a constituency who were formerly kept immediate touch with the Government wholly without that connection. A process of Governmental administration which eliminates the people of a constituency in the consideration of their affairs is bound to prove unsatisfactory and it is becoming more so every day. A constituency may be trusted to see that its representative conducts himself fairly and properly in his actions as a go-between between the people of a constituency and the administration but when he is removed as a go-between in all these matters, long delay is the least of the troubles that arise.

REFUSES TO LOWER

the duty is higher on plows than on some other agricultural implements. Plows, he said, were the one essential article on a farm.

Sir Thomas replied that if the government had reduced the duties on agricultural implements to a greater extent, industries employing thousands of men would have been forced to close down. The partial revision of the tariff, he described as "a sincere effort on the part of the government to meet the situation."

Manufacturers' Views.

Mr. W. F. Cockshutt stated that C[illegible] manufacturers had nothing to fear from manufacturers of plows in the British Isles or Europe. The reason was that a special quality of steel, obtainable only in the United States, was used in Canadian plows The process for manufacturing this steel was controlled by the United States company. It was necessary to have a plow point of particularly hard steel for use in the west.

EDITOR'S MAIL

FEMININE ATTIRE.

Editor Review: Last week there appeared in the columns of your paper some significant remarks about the "feminine parade on George St." I had thought that owing to more consequential issues, the subject of feminine apparel had ceased to engage the attention and form a target for the witticisms of the average man, and that woman was free to exercise her own sweet will in this regard.

You will remember, in looking back some four or five years, how the question of what was right and what was wrong in woman's dress occupied so much space in the newspapers and seemed of such momentous importance that even the clergy would discuss it from the pulpit. The war suddenly "happened" like a bolt out of a clear sky, and then, of course, the issue was dropped. Then there was something more serious to furnish conversation and fill up the newspaper space. Then the poor abused feminine was free to suit her own inclinations as to what she would wear and what she wouldn't, without the harassing fear of being made the butt for the criticisms of every sap-headed ogler on the street.

And why shouldn't she, as a thinking being, please herself in this regard? What business of any man is it how a woman deigns to attire herself? You very seldom read or hear of women censoring or ridiculing men in this respect, yet as a matter of fact there is ample opportunity for woman critics to get busy, and just here I might call the reader's attention to the "masculine parade on George street." But it isn't fair to criticize, so here's hoping that now the war is over there will be no revival of the "women's dress problem."

CONCRETE APPROACHES AND STEEL RIVER SPAN FOR HUNTER ST. HIGH-LEVEL BRIDGE

This is the Latest Development to Keep Within City's Appropriation—Leonard Construction Co. Could Save $50,000 or $60,000 on Full Concrete Bridge, But New Plans Would Mean Eight Weeks' Delay—Day Labor Proposition Snowed Under.

Another two hours and three-quarter session of the Board of Works last night on the bridge question, and nothing done but an adjournment to the call of Chairman Ald. Phelan.

The suggestion now is to build the eastern and western approaches of concrete from Mr. Frank Barber's plans, and the bridge proper over the river on one 225 foot steel arch on concrete abutments with concrete rails and floor.

Mr. Barber is to attend the Board's next meeting, at as early a date as possible to advise on the foregoing proposition, which found birth in the minds of the majority after consultation on plans outlined last evening by Mr. H. H. Hadsall of the Leonard Construction Company. This gentleman's plan is outlined under another head in this issue.

Russell-Townsend Again.

A letter from these gentlemen notified the Board that they would build the bridge, and accept the rider in the resolution recommending Council's acceptance of their cost-plus estimate. The rider in question was an agreement that the contractors shall guarantee the aldermen against personal liability by reason of the work costing more than the city's appropriation for the bridge.

The city solicitor had advised that such a rider, being the equivalent of a bribe, would nullify any contract in which it was embodied.

A letter from the Russell-Townsend Company's solicitors, Tilly, Johnston and Co., Toronto, contended that even were the guarantee rider illegal, which they did not admit, the clause of the resolution awarding the contract to their clients would hold good. As to personal liability of the aldermen, these solicitors quoted from section 249 of the Municipal Act that all such actions are brought against the corporation alone, and not against any member of the Council acting on the authority vested in him by the law.

City Solicitor Widdifield still contended that his advice in this connection is quite correct. In this case the aldermen are handling for the city a trustee fund for bridge purposes. "All actions," he said, "are not brought against the corporation alone. There would be two defendants—the city to receive the money, and the mayor and aldermen to pay it out."

To Ald. Morrison the City Solicitor replied the many precedents for personal liability in similar cases exist.

Home Industry.

Talking to the Leonard Construction Co.'s proposition for a bridge with concrete approaches and steel and reinforced concrete double span across the river, by which from $50,000 to $60 000 could be saved, Ald. Morrison said: "I don't think we should go across the border to let this bridge. I'm here to support home labor. Then Mr. Hadsall (of the Leonard Construction Co.) won't even guarantee a price on his own plans."

Ald. Edgar: "Some time ago, at a meeting of Canadian contractors in Ottawa, with the Minister of Public Works, on the question of American firms with temporary offices in Canada securing Canadian Government work, the Hon. Mr. Carvell said no more Government contracts would be given outside of Canada to any contracting firm. I don't know just how far that would affect the Government grant toward this new bridge, but it might." Ald. Edgar had no hesitancy in saying that with plans from Mr. Barber, on the lines suggested by Mr. Hadsall, the Russell-Townsend Co. and Mr. Barber could save the city as much money as the Leonard Construction Co.

His Worship here pointed out that the Leonard Construction Co. are incorporated in Canada and contended that their proposition is worthy of earnest consideration.

Ald. Edgar: "They have no headquarters in Canada."

Mayor Duncan: "They establish offices in Canada wherever they construct."

Day Labor?

Ald. Gainey understood that the city could build the bridge by day labor, paying the Russell-Townsend Co. so much per month for plant and superintendence. He also suggested concrete approaches and a steel arch with re-inforced concrete floor and rail, all of which would save considerable money.

Ald. Crowe said a steel arch would cost considerable in up-keep—it would have to be painted year by year. He suggested going ahead with the approaches at once, by day labor under the supervision of the city engineer. The arch or arches over the river could be erected later.

The Mayor: "The better policy would be to build the piers and concrete abutment this summer, then the steel work could be erected in the winter."

Ald. Hamilton: "What are you going to do with Engineer Barber?"

Ald. Crowe: "Fire him; his plans seem to be too expensive for the city's purpose anyway."

The Mayor: "I'll second that."

Hard and Fast Agreement.

In talking to a proposition that the approaches to the bridge be built under the supervision of the city engineer—by day labor or contract—City Engineer Parsons did not see how that could be done, and use Mr. Barber's plans. Mr. Barber has, he thought, the city unbreakably committed to his services if his plans are used.

A dip into the agreement between the city and Engineer Frank Barber, by the City Solicitor, revealed the fact that for a period of two years from date of agreement, unless Mr. Barber passes beyond, this vote of tears and vexations bridges, the city is bound to employ Mr. Barber as supervising engineer, if his plans are adopted.

More Delay.

Ald. Gainey and Crowe moved that the approaches to the bridge be built by day labor, that competitive tenders be asked for a steel arch bridge over the river, with concrete floor and railing, and that Mr. Barber supervise the work.

Ald. Hamilton said he would rather see the approaches built under contract, by which he thought the city would save money.

City Engineer Parsons agreed with this, for the reason that contractors always pick the best men available, whereas sentiment and other obvious considerations where municipal employees are in question does not make for the best results. "The experience of other co-operations show," he affirmed, "that contractors always do the work cheapest."

Ald. Morrison and Taylor moved in amendment, that the Board adjourn to the call of the chairman, and that Mr. Frank Barber attend the next meeting, which is to be called as soon as possible.

This amendment carried, and Ald. Gainey and Crowe's motion for an early day-labor start went down into oblivion.

Althoug hthe amendment that carried does not specify a steel span, the Board are impressed with the idea of resorting to such a structure, and the object of getting Mr. Barber down to Peterborough at an early date is to consult with him on the proposition.

All but Ald. Garside were present.

HUN SOCIALISTS TO HAVE CONTROL

MUELLER, THE LEADER, ASKED BY PRESIDENT TO FORM CABINET.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, June 21.—President Ebert has requested Herman Mueller, Majority Socialist leader, to form a new German Cabinet, according to advices received by the peace delegates.

Mathias Erzberger will probably head the German peace delegation, the advices indicate. The opposition attitude of the Democrats and German Nationalists on the question of the treaty will probably include Count Von Brockdorff-Rantzau and Count Von Bernstorff from the Government

The German Provincial press is strongly urging the speedy signing of th treaty. Berlin advices, summarizing the situation in Germany up to midnight, show the sentiment throughout virtually all of Germany to be in favor of accepting the peace terms The advices cover Leipzig, Dresden Chemitz and other representative regions. Geographically analyzed the advices indicate that the southern German states are all favorable to the acceptance of the treaty while the Prussian regions are maintaining some opposition.

Erzberger Wants Information.

Berlin, June 21.—Mathias Erzberger, mentioned as the probable head of the new German peace delegation, is reported to have sent a note to Premier Clemenceau as president of the Peace Conference, asking whether the Allies will agree to the immediate admission of Germany to the League of Nations. Her Erzberger also desires to know if the powers will consent to the limitation of Germany's indemnity to 100 billion gold marks and renounce their effort to have former Emperor William surrendered?

COUNTY COUNCIL REFUSES GRANT TO VETS AND TARS

Members Believed That All Dependents of These Should be Cared for by Goverment —Fair Board Gets $1000 Special

The requests of the Navy League and the Great War Veterans' Association for grants to help them in their work were this morning turned down by the County Council. It was decided that the dependents of our soldiers and sailors and the returned veterans should be looked after by the Government.

Gaoler Henderson Nesbitt received an increase in salary of $150. The four agricultural fairs in the county, namely, Peterborough, Otonabee, Lakefield and Norwood, will each receive a grant of $75.

The special grant to the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition was carried on the casting vote of Warden John McIntosh. By it Peterborough's Exhibition Board receive an extra $1000. Those who voted in favor of the grant were Messrs. J. A. Middleton, Jos. Bell, W. A Anderson, F. A. Eason, R. Shaw, John Clark B. W. Squire and G. B. Nicholls, making a total of eight. The eight who voted to strike out this special grant were Messrs. W. E. Griffith D. Holland, F. J. Moore, C. J. Darling, M. Brown, N. Lean, M. Coughlin and Wm Matheson. The motion was moved by Reeve John Clark and seconded by Reeve R. Shaw. The amendment was moved by Reeve W. E. Griffith and seconded by Reeve M. Brown.

On motion of Reeve Darling, seconded by Reeve Lean; it was decided to raise $14,000 to meet expenses of Council in the current year.

It was moved by Reeve Nicholls, seconded by Reeve Moore, that the reeves and deputy reeves of Otonabee and Monaghan should form the committee to look after the good roads scheme. This was carried on the understanding that only the townships included in the system be asked to pay the bill.

ESTIMATES ON CENTRE BRIDGE SPAN ARE QUITE A GAMBLE CONTENDS MR. H. HADSALL

Engineer of Canadian Leonard Construction Company Urges the Use of One or Two Steel Truss Arches to Save a Small Fortune in Construction—This Company Have' Never Been Known to Exceed Their Estimate—Always Made Good.

The Leonard Construction Co. submitted a proposition last evening to the Board of Works by which $50,000 or $60,000 could be saved on a concrete bridge by resorting to two river spans of cantilever concrete type with reinforced concrete floor and rails.

This Company were represented by their engineer Mr. H. H. Hadsall of Chicago, in company of Messrs. Robert Stuart, President Quaker Oats Co., W. C. Cormick, local superintendent and A. G. Rathwell Construction superintendent Quaker Oats Co.

Not Interested

In denial of a rumor, generally acepted as a fact it is worthy of note that Mr. Robert Stuart said distinctly and unequivocally: "Had the Leonard Construction Co. not made good they would not have had all our work the past 13 or 14 years. It is a question of dollars and cents with the Quaker Oats Co., we have no interest in the Leonard Construction—not a single dollar—and they have no interest in the Quaker Oats Co., The two firms are entirely separate and distinct concerns.

In this connection Mr. Hadsall asserted the the Leonard Construction Co., is composed merely of two members, himself and Mr. Leonard.

First Class Plans

Mr. Hadsall admitted Mr. Barber's plans to be first class for a safe and permanent structure, but he is not surprised at the figures conveyed in the tenders for its practical use. Personally he would not attempt to estimate on those plans with any assurance of keeping with the city's expenditure limit. He would not be a party to any proposition savoring of a gamble as to actual cost, but would offer a suggestion for a permanent and safe concrete structure at less money than possible by adopting Mr. Barber's plans.

Mr. Hadsall here went on to say that there are three principles governing the erection of concrete bridges, in which width, style and design enter into the question. First the most costly comes the solid masonry style, like London (Eng.) bridge; Mr. Barber's design; and thirdly and the least costly the cantilever concrete plan with re-inforced concrete top. The latter style offers as strong a bridge as that adopted by the city, but the cantilever eliminates all danger from settlement as in an ordinary arch, saves in weigh and headroom, does away with costly filling and does not need boring down to bedrock for piers.

Mr. Hadsall added that while he would not give a guarantee price for a cantilever contract bridge designed by him, he would submit a cost-plus estimate upon which he would stake his firms' reputation both in Canada and the States. The long 225 foot concrete span he characterized as a big gamble to which all contractors must be keenly alive, and he suggested two arches of 100 feet each, which would not mar the structure's beauty and would cheapen the cost. He also suggested carrying the bridge a further south on the west side which would straighten the plan somewhat and effect a further saving.

Another point Mr. Hadsall drove home was that the whole of his firm's big business is done on the fee plan, and they would in this case give an honest estimate for a safe and reliable structure on which, for their reputation's sake they could not afford to fall down. He also asserted that an additional saving would accrue from building concrete approaches and using steel trusses for the two spans across the river. The condition of the steel market today is such that steel can be bought at a comparatively moderate price in order to keep a plant moving. "We maintain an engineering organization," he added, capable of both the designing and constructing ends of the game, which gives better value than where subdivision is resorted to."

Mr. Hadsall agreed to furnish a plan, which could be used by either himself or Mr. Barber for $500. "We feel that we can save the city $50,000 to $60,000 between our plan and the one under consideration, and we are SURE of being able to beat that $260,000 appropriation, including our fee, if we build and design the bridge."

Incidentally, Mr. Hadsall asserted that his firm is incorporated in Canada. He had seen two 225 foot arches—one in Philadelphia and another in Cleveland; but their piers were blasted into solid rock.

None Better!

Mr. Robert Stuart, while not professing to know anything about bridges, contended that two arches are preferable. With two arches any depth of foundation capable of carrying the Quaker Oats building would crary the load called for in the proposed bridge. Mr. Stuart eulogized the Leonard Construction Co. as second to none on the continent. "They have," he said "erected all our buildings for the past 13 or 14 years. The first one they carried through on contract but since that time we have always paid them on a percentage basis, and the fact that they are at all times retained by us is evidence that both their work and charges are satisfactory, even in competition with lump sum bids. Since first engaged by us the Quaker Oats Company has paid the Leonard Construction Co. four or five million dollars for construction work in which they as a rule came below their estimates and that of other competitors. Their retention by us is not a matter of sentiment, but of dollars and cents.

Mr. Stuart contended that there is no need for the expenditure of $300,000 for the bridge in question. "Our buildings are clean, neat and presentable and look as good in ten years time as now. Similar work is good enough. I would rather see a plain neat structure that will have lasting qualities than one of ornamental design the face of which would gradually crumble away. The Leonard Construction Co., have never exceeded their estimates, and have built many bridges."

Danger Ahead!

Mr Rathell declared that were the present bridge design followed out and a pier foundation have to be sunk to a depth of 35 feet on the west side below the ground level of the Quaker Oats building that structure would crack from the ground to the roof

St. Stuart—"I would rather see the city have a substantial bridge on more modest plans, save $50,00 or $60,000 and apply such saving to needed street improvements."

Would Entail Delay

It transpires that new plans from Mr. Hadsall would have to be submitted to the Board of Railway Commissioners, who would not pass on them for six or eight weeks. Mr. Hadsall said he could start work in a few days after the approval of the plans.

Ald. Gainey— "That means that work would not get started this year."

To His Worship Mr. Hadsall, said his company would work from revised plans by Mr. Barber, if that would effect any saving.

No action was taken on the Leonard Construction Co's proposition; but Mr. Frank Barber will be at the Board's next meeting when unquestionably the project will gain come up for discussion.

COMMITTEE CATCHES A TARTAR.

THE SPECIAL Parliamentary Committeet that is devoting its energies to an attempt to ferret out the reason for the present high cost of living summoned before them John R. Robinson of the Toronto Telegram, and thereby created a diversion. It must be said that the members of the committee received the editor in a hostile spirit. They proposed to grill him and show him up as a fabricator and a sensationalist. All they did succeed in demonstrating, however, was the fact that on the witness stand as in the sanctum Mr. Robinson is quite able to hold his own. In a word, the committee that evidently hoped for something else really caught a Tartar.

The whole trouble started just after E. C. Fox, manager for the William Davies Company, gave his evidence recently. He added little to the stock of committee or public information. He is an expert in his line, a line with which no member of the committee is familiar. He told, it may be, what he was asked, but one of the questions put to him were searchingly harassing.

Mr. Robinson wrote an editorial for The Telegram dealing with this incident, and in sarcastic terms referred to the modicum of enlightenment that was derived from the examination of Mr. Fox, who, he intimated, had told nothing of value, that, in short, he had put one over on the members of the committee, that he knew more than he told. This was resented, and the editor was summoned into the august presence.

Considering that Mr. Fox told nothing of a nature tending to clear up the problem on hand, the inference is that Mr. Robinson was correct in his deductions. If Mr. Fox does not know about the spread between the cost and selling prices, and of the operating and other expenses in between, then he most certainly would not appear qualified for the position which he holds. But the chances are that he does, and, if pressed, would have yielded up the only information that could throw light on the question.

The Toronto editor did not prove an easy witness. Once the members of the committee started to question him the trouble began. The editor at times became painfully personal in his remarks, a characteristic which he has a tendency to exercise in his daily work.

But the point is that Mr. Robinson vindicated not only himself but his profession. He stood like a Trojan for what he had written, refusing to extenuate anything. One member of the committee intimated rather broadly that he was a liar. The Parliament police had to be called in to save members of the committee from personal violence at the hands of the irate editor. There seems to be a popular delusion that it is legitimate to say everything and anything to an editor without fear of retaliation. Occasionally, however, this delusion is punctured, and it was never more thoroughly shattered than it was yesterday by the man from the Telegram sanctum.

SCHOLARS RIDING THE STORM.

AS EAMON DE VALERA comes more and more to the front in Ireland, as leader of the Sinn Fein movement, which now sends its waves even to Paris to surge about the feet of the Peace Conference, we see another illustration of the strange facility with which a certain type of scholar in this modern world seems to be able to come to place and power in the midst of revolution and unacademic disorder, says the Chicago News.

In Mexico City we see Carranza, turning the pages of his books, reading documents, making observations in international law and in political science, maintaining his reputation as a student, never touching a rifle, and yet issuing orders to large numbers of rifle carrying persons and holding more of Mexico than all of his military antagonists put together.

In Russia, which succeeded Mexico as a centre of revolution, the man who came to the top was not a young artillery officer or a soap box street corner orator, but a recluse, a writer of serious books, a spinner of intricate webs of economic theory in dark corners of exile—Nikolai Lenine, who never goes away from his desk if he can help it, and who governs with a pen and a blotter. By such means, himself without the slightest skill in warfare, he dominates his red army and holds the whole vast centre of Russia, while his opponents, mostly generals and admirals, like Denikin and Kolchak, remain on Russia's rim.

Lloyd George was a "little Welsh solicitor," dealing in words on legal documents. Clemenceau was a teacher in a girls' school, and then a novelist and a journalist, dealing in words of instruction and words of art and words of daily spectatorship. Venizelos, before he became a revolutionist in Crete, was a man of the books of the law. Oliver Cromwell and George Washington, to be leaders of revolutions, had to be soldiers. Venizelos, like Carranza and Lenine, commands revolutionists from a stack of papers.

Woodrow Wilson, also once a teacher in a girls'school and charged by many of his enemies with being a mere "schoolmaster," has now kept the United States in school for six years, and Professor Masuryk, the most scholarly of them all, a man who deliberately retired at one time from practical politics in order to devote twelve years to working out the theory of a free Bohemia in researches and lectures and books at the University of Prague, is now building apparently the soldiest of the new nations of Europe, in immediate opposition to the Hungarian armies of Bela Kun, the abstract thinker and complete theorist of Budapest.

The Sinn Feiners have observed these things. They have observed Italy, too, where Prime Minister Orlando used to be a professor of law in a law school, and they have observed Finland, where the embattled leader of the red guards in the late civil war—Mr. Jylling—was previously a professor of statistics. The Sinn Feiners bow to the fashion. Facing a storm, facing a fight, they do not bring Cincinnatus from his plow. They bring Prof. de Valera from his university chair of mathematics.

It is a world of machine guns, with the triggers in the hands of gentlemen of books and diagrams.

JUSTICE WITH LEVITY.

THE EDITOR of the page in the Orillia Packet that has made that town and paper famous, has a friend in Seattle, Washington, who sends him a copy of a newspaper containing a report of one day's doings in a court in that city. The Packet says of this record:

The following extract will interest readers of this page if it does not amaze them. Incidentally it may be remarked that in this case the evidence of the refining and elevating influence of women in public life is highly gratifying: That the jury trying James Bruce, alleged criminal anarchist, is not going to spend the between-court-hours either in deep meditation or in aimless conversation about things other than the case on trial, a topic forbidden by the court until the evidence is in and the arguments completed, was strikingly evidenced this morning when Juror E. L. Gaines asked and obtained from Superior Judge Walter M. French permission to ask a music house to donate a phonograph and a set of twelve records. That the jurors might possibly while away the interim between duties by dancing was indicated, said court attendants, by particular requests for waltzes and two-steps, although no member of the jury made such a statement. There are four women on the jury, and the level floored courtroom will be cleared of outsiders at all times when Judge French is not on the bench. The note signed first by E. L. Gaines and endorsed by all the jurors was passed to Judge French when he came in the county-city building this morning. It was addressed "To any music dealer," but afterward made to apply to Sherman, Clay & Co., which corporation readily agreed to accede to the request. The communication to the outside world of music purveyors read: "Please send to the jury in Department No. 7, Superior Court, a first-class talking machine and a number of records (high grade), and a waltz and two-steps. Very respectfully, E. L. Gaines," and the other jurors. Attached to this was a "preferable" list of records, as follows: "Smiles," song; "Mickey," song; sextette from "Lucia"; "Rigoletto"; McCormack, solo; Caruso, solo; Bert Williams, songs; any first-class violinist; Hawaiian songs; Harry Lauder, songs; waltz and two-steps by good band; good male quartette. Under the influence of that the jurors said they wished to consider the fate of James Bruce, the first of twenty-eight alleged criminal anarchists to be brought to trial on charges arising from the general strike in Seattle last February.

COLD STORAGE.

(Kingston Standard.)

It is a very vexed question but there are many Canadians paying high prices who do not understand why "forty million dollars worth of frozen beef is in cold storage in Canada."

TO-DAY'S STORY

We went to an Arab theatre the other night, writes an officer from Mesopotamia. During the day the building is used as a coffee house and at night it is really a music hall although called a theatre. It was lit by paraffin lamps, and the seats were big, easy chairs, each accommodating three men.

The audience was entirely of the male sex, as Eastern ladies (Arabs) have no outings at entertainments. Chairs in front were for the British officers, some of whom on entering had quite a number of salaams from the friendly Arabs, with whom they do business.

The orchestra consisted of three men seated on the left of the stage, and the performers were six girls.

Five of them, from about 18 to 6 years of age, were ranged on chairs in a row, and the sixth girl, in front of them and facing the audience, gave three turns — one dance with music, and two songs with dancing and music. So the entertainment went on, each girl in turn. The music and dances contributed by the performers were all the same, so it seemed to us. We sat through two hours of it, expecting some alteration.

It was all very respectable. There was no high kicking. The girls were dressed with the utmost decorum high-necked dresses, hobble skirts necklaces galore, and heavy gold anklets.

They never took their feet above two inches from the ground, and as they danced they added to the din by playing gold castanets.

Admirers were present in numbers. In Mesopotamia, when you wish to admire an actress, you tell friends and go round with the hat, take what you can get, and throw it forthwith at the girl.

ROSY CHEEKS AND GOOD HEALTH

When a girl—or a woman—finds her color fading, when her cheeks and lips grow pale, and she gets out of breath easily and her heart palpitates after the slightest exertion, or under the least excitement, it means that she is suffering from anaemia—thin, watery blood. Headache and backache frequently accompany this condition, and nervousness is often present.

The remedy for this condition is to build up the blood, and for this purpose there is no medicine that can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They build up and renew the blood, bring brightness to the eyes, color to the checks, and a general feeling of renewed health and energy. The only other treatment needed is plenty of sunlight, moderate exercise and good, plain food. The girl or woman who gives this treatment a fair trial will soon find therself enjoying perfect health. Mrs. Hiram Shook, R.R. No. 1, Lyndhurst, says:—"I cannot speak too highly for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, for I believed they saved my daughter's life. She was in a terrible run down condition, pale, wan, and despondent, and people who saw her considered her in a decline. The doctor who treated her did not help her any, and then I decided to give her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This decision proved a wise one, for before six boxes were used she was much better. I got six more boxes, and before they were gone she was in the best of health. When she began the use of the pills she weighed only 90 pounds, and under their use her weight increased to 127 pounds. I strongly urge all mothers of weak girls to give them Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any dealer in medicine, or by mail post paid at 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Ontario Safety League Wages Protective Campaign

The Ontario Safety League has issued two new bulletins respecting its campaign against accidents. One displays a picture of the open beach, doubly attractive in this humid weather, and in bold type the commendable notice: "If you cannot swim, ask someone to teach you to do so this summer." The other has reference to the visitors who are in evidence upon the streets of the city in ever-increasing numbers.

"Today," the bulletin reads, "we have with us visitors from out of town. They want to get about quickly from place to place. You and the policeman on the street represent the city to our visitors. A little kindly attention to requests for information takes no time at all and gives the visitors the idea that this is a courteous city. Will you help?"

FARMERS AND NEW TARIFF

The farmers throughout the Dominion have most substantial reasons for being pleased with the proposals of new taxation and of lessening old taxation, submitted by Sir Thomas White, Minister of Finance, in his annual budget speech, delivered in the House of Commons a few days ago. Some taxation in which the farmers largely shared, is lessened; some taxation which the vast majority of the farmers escape, has been increased. The farmers, therefore, gain both ways. Some of their taxes are reduced; and the new taxes will reach comparatively few of them.

Everyone, who had given the matters any thought at all, was prepared to hear the exact extent of the tremendous financial burden imposed upon the Dominion by the war. The Huns could not be fought without men sacrificing their lives, and the country sacrificing some of its wealth. It often costs to do right. The right is not always the easy, the smooth way; but in the end it is the only safe way, and from first to last it is the only way that an honest, self-respecting people can tread.

As Sir Tohmas White said, Canada was in the war from its first day; was in its from start to finish, and so bore herself throughout that her efforts helped to determine the nature of the finish.

Canada entered the war without counting what it would cost to fight, but knowing full well what it would mean to lose—What it would mean to the world, to the British Empire, to the Dominion, and to every Province, what it would means to have the Hun master of the world, and the Hun's scientific savagery the world's dominating policy.

That would have been the cost of defeat. We all counted that; but we did not count the cost of averting defeat—and it is to our credit that we did not.

The issues at stake were so tremendously important that money could not be weighed against them. Our young men by the thousands gave their lives; could the country as a whole hold back its wealth?

The paramount feature of the situation, the case put in a nutshell, is this—The King's Government must be carried on, to borrow the expression of the Duke of Wellington. To meet the charges of the ordinary services of the Federal Government and to have something to spend on capital account, that is, on permanent works, about $320,000,000 will be required next year. This includes $102,000,000 of interest on the national debt.

But it is a war year. Soldiers have to be brought home and demobilized, and gratuities to the discharged soldiers paid. And the cost of all this war work will amount to $300,000,000, which, added to the regular expenditure, makes a grand total of $620,000,000.

The estimated revenue is $250,000,000, amounting to less than half of the sum to be paid out. There will have to be another war loan in the autumn, of which the budget speech gave notice.

But it must be borne in mind that the actual war expenditure will end with next year, and after that the country will only have to raise money for the ordinary expenses of government, for the pensions to soldiers and dependents, and for the interest on the public debt. It is expected that for some time about $50,000,000 a year will be required to pay pensions, and that $115,000,000 a year will be required to pay the interest on the national debt. The pensions will run their course, and interest charge will in time grow less because a sinking fund is to be formed out of which parts of the debt will be extinguished as they fall due.

The interest charge will be heavy, but it has thi sameliorating feature—most of it was created by war loans. When all the accounts have been paid, the debt will amount to $1,950,000,000, almost six times as great as was the amount of the debt when the war came. Of this immense debt $1,510,000,000 is owing to the people of Canada. This is tremendously important, because it means that three-fourths of the annual interest will be paid to the people of Canada. The money will be raised by taxation, but it will not be sent out of the country. It will be paid to the holders of the government bonds and will continue to form part of the available wealth of the Dominion.

This year a federal revenue amounting to $280,000,000, is expected, of which a little more than one-half will be derived from customs duties. And yet it is proposed to sacrifice some of this customs revenue, and to do it in such a way as to benefit the farmers.

In order to increase revenue in war time the preferential rates on British imports were raised by 5 per cent. and the rates of the intermediate and general tariffs by 7½ per cent. The increase of this preferential tariff is to be abolished, and the increase in the intermediate and general tariffs is to be abolished with respect to a long list of goods in general use, including agricultural implements, oils, clothing, and boots and shoes.

Then there will be a further reduction of the keneral tariff on certain agricultural implements, in some cases from 27½ per cent. to 15 per cent.

The freight rates on these implements will also be reduced, the reduction, being secured from the railway companies by removing the special war tax on bituminous, or soft coal.

This lowering of the tariff, in the benefits of which the farmers will have the largest share, will reduce the customs revenue by $17,000,000.

Of course, revenue must be increased, not only to make up what is lost in custom aduties, but to meet the enormously increased interest charge and the pensions:

Here is new taxation, not in kind, but in extent. From this increased taxation the great majority of the farmers escape, because it is derived from incomes, and the high rates of taxation apply only to the incomes of the wealthy.

If the income of an unmarried person or of a widow or widower without dependent children, does not exceed $1,000 a year, that person pays no income tax, and in order to be liable to this tax all other persons must be in receipt of an income in excess of $2,000.

The rate of taxation begins with 4 per cent., and increases with the increase of income. Those able to contribute to national revenue are made to contribute in proportion to their means. For example, on the income of $3,000 a year there will be paid a tax of $40; on $6,000 will be paid $170; or $10,000 will be paid $590; on $50,000 there will be paid $9,190, and on $100,000 there will be paid $31,190.

The wealthy will pay out of their abundant means; the citizen of small means will pay nothing.

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

The branch or special field of modern surgery known as plastic surgery has advanced considerably as a result of the experience of army surgeons in the course of the war. Plastic surgery, somehow, has been too much abused by charlatans and incompetents, as have orthopedic surgery and dermatology.

Now that the war is over and the young lady authors have told all they could imagine about the miracle wrought by surgeons abroad, we can lay aside our cozy corner magazine long enough to learn that plastic surgery still falls far short of the work of the Creator, but, nevertheless, offers a little more than ever before. A nose constructed out of a finger joint, for example, isn't anything like the perfect feature the young ladies imagined. It is a great improvement on no nose at all, but still it lacks a certain atmosphere of pulchritude, though that is nothing at all to a young lady skilled with the rouge and powder impediments.

There is no mystery or gift or secret about modern plastic surgery. It is work which requires, first of all, a thorough medical and surgical training; second, the time and patience for detail; and, finally, experience.

Let no one confuse legitimate plastic surgery with the nefarious business of injecting paraffin to fill out hollows or wrinkles. This latter trick to which so many ill advised women have submitted, brings remorse in due time, though unfortunately, the victim enjoys the remorse while the "operator" travels for his health. The paraffin lumps up and spreads about, and makes an awful mess, and its removal is a task that baffles the greatest skill, though it may be removed in some cases without leaving a too hideous scar.

Likewise let no one confuse reputable surgery with the blandishments of the fellow who assures miracles to patrons he has never seen.

Deformities affecting the shape of the nose, the position of the ears and other facial features, may be made much less conspicuous, and in some instances completely corrected by plastic surgery.

Plastic means to give form or to fashion. Credulous folk should not be mystified by the word.

Any one desiring correction of a deformity would do well to ask his own family doctor to suggest a reliable plastic surgeon or a surgeon who does such work. If this sensible course were generally followed, we would see less unhappiness among those who have sought such relief.

Cysts.

"Can a cyst be cured without an operation? What causes a cyst? A girl friend reduced fifty pounds by following your Karell regimen several weeks. I failed to reduce after following it two weeks. Why is that?

"M. B. F."

A cyst is a sac with fluid of semi-fluid contents, such as a wen on a scalp. 'Operation' is the only cure, though a cyst is usually not particularly dangerous to health. 2, Perhaps you indulged in too much good wholesome food between drinks. I am unable to explain the difference without knowing all the facts.

Senna Leaves and Figs.

"Please tell me whether a 'chaw' of senna leaves and figs chopped up together is more harmful to take every night as a laxative than pills or mineral waters.

No, rather less harmful.

The Unteachable Nurse.

"Please tell me whether it is safe for a baby's nurse to put the nipple in her own mouth first to test the milk before giving the baby its bottle. A doctor once warned me never to feed the baby from a spoon I had put in my own mouth. But the nurse, who has had much experience, says it is necessary always to test the milk that way. G. R. F."

The nurse and her vast experience will be the death of the baby some fine day. Better let her go immediately and employ a nurse who has a rudimentary understanding of the importance of cleanliness. All sorts of infections, entailing serious illness, may be passed to the baby by such a vicious practice.

Punctuation Marks.

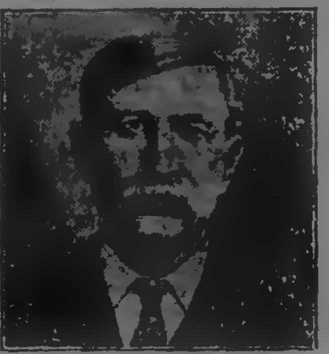
Punctuation marks were first employed by Aristophanes, the famous Greek dramatist, who lived centuries before Christ. The system devised by him did not become generally known, and soon fell into complete oblivion. It was nearly 1,000 years before any one made a similar attempt. In the time of Charles the Great two distinguished scholars, Alcuin and Warnefrid, again introduced punctuation marks, but their signs also fell into disuse. The present system of punctuation, as used in all modern languages with insignificant variations, was introduced in the first half of the sixteenth century by the Venetian printer, Aldus Manutius. He is the real father of the punctuation marks — the period, comma, colon, semi-colon, exclamation and interrogation marks, apostrophe and inverted commas. Printers gradually adopted the system, which finally became established throughout the continent of Europe.

A Wonderful Clock.

San Diego, Cal., has a wonderful clock with twenty dials, which tell simultaneously the time in all parts of the world, also the days of the week and the date of the month. It stands twenty-one feet high, and four of its dials are each four feet in diameter. The master clock is enclosed in plate glass, so that every action can be seen, and the whole is illuminated at night. It is jeweled, with tourmaline, topas, agate and jade, and took fifteen months to build. The motive power is a 200-pound weight, which winds itself automatically.

FRIENDS THOUGHT HE WOULD DIE

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Conquered Dyspepsia and Restored His Health.



MR. ROBERT NEWTON.

Little Bras d'Or, C. B.

"I was a terrible sufferer from Dyspepsia and Constipation for years. I had pain after eating, belching gas, constant headaches, and did not sleep well at night. I lost so much weight — going from 185 pounds to 146 pounds — that I became alarmed and saw several doctors who, however, did me no good. Finally, a friend told me to try 'Fruit-a-tives'.

In a week, there was improvement. The constipation was corrected; and soon I was free of pain, headaches and that miserable feeling that accompanies Dyspepsia. I continued to take this splendid fruit medicine and now I am well, strong and vigorous". ROBERT NEWTON.

Alcohol and Booze.

The two terms booze and alcohol have been used so indiscriminately that the average person regards them as more or less synonymous, and consequently one of the most valuable and useful of all chemical compounds is associated in our minds with the dive, roadhouse, and corner saloon, writes Wm. H. Waggaman, in the Review of Reviews. The terms are not synonymous by any means. Booze, meaning more particularly the distilled liquors, whisky, gin, rum, and brandy, has been, is, and probably always will be a source of considerable misery due to its misuse.

The manufacture of alcohol for industrial purposes is growing by leaps and bounds. Alcohol, moreover, is a substance of such extreme importance in science, art and industry that its production should not only be unhampered by foolish or ignorant prejudice, but every encouragement should be given the manufacturers so that they can place their product on the market at the lowest possible cost.

Mercury.

The world's annual production of mercury is about 4,000 metric tons, of which Spain contributes about 1,400 tons, Italy nearly 1,000 tons, Austria-Hungary 800 tons and the United States about 750 tons. Great Britain's pre-war consumption was over 600 tons.

LACKING ADEQUATE INCOMES FARMERS PAY NO INCOME TAX

J. E. Sexsmith M. P. Explains Agricultural Conditions to Parliament and Tells Why so Many Young Men Leave Farms.

J. E. Sexsmith M.P., for East Peterborough, told Parliament why so few farmers pay income tax and explained also why so many young men leave the country districts to seek their fortunes in the cities. Sir Herbert Ames had referred to the few farmers who paid income tax last year and Mr. Sexsmith said.

The hon. member for St. Antoine (Sir Herbert Ames) seems to lay the charge at the farmers' door that they have incomes that would come within the limit of the law and that they are shirking the tax.

Sir Herbert Ames: Please, may I interrupt the hon. member to this extent: If in anything that I said I should be interpreted as saying there was any intention to avoid legitimate taxation on the part of the farmer I want it to be understood that that is taken back. I simply say that the figures show that they are not paying the tax; they are probably not being asked to pay it.

Mr. Sexsmith: they are asked to pay it if they have the income. In my opinion, outside probably of a few big grain growers and an occasional farmer between the Atlantic and the Pacific, very few farmers come within the limit of the income tax law. The governmental statistics of 1917 show that the total capital invested in farm properties, land, building, machinery and stock is in round figures $5,200,000,000. The same year on a high scale of prices for wheat, flour, butter, cheese and all other farm products, the earnings, as estimated by the statistical branch of the Department of Agriculture, amounted to $1,600,000,000 in round figures. Therefore, the gross earnings of the farmers in the Dominion of Canada in 1917, with all the high prices, amounted to only 31.1 per cent of the capital invested. Will any one tell me that the farmers on an average were, in 1917, making 6 per cent on the capital invested? Because, if he does, he does not know what he is speaking about. There is not in the Dominion of Canada today a better class of men than our farmers, and there is no class more willing to pay their taxes. While the farmers do not come under this income tax they are paying taxes all the time in other ways just as the rest of the community, and they are willing to do so. It is unfair to insinuate that the farmers of this country are not willing to pay their taxes. The very argument that the hon. member for St. Antoine has set forth here is the best argument under Heaven why our farmers are leaving the country and why the young men will not stay on the farms. Why do they not stay there. I have discussed the matter with people throughout the country and I find the young farmers go to school and they absolutely refuse to go back to the farm because they have to work from twelve to fifteen hours a day. And what for? Not for an income of $2,000 a year, but, as the farmers have done for the last half century, to feed the people of the urban centres for less than it actually costs to produce the food at an average wage of $2 a day. There were no complaints from the city people when they got butter at fourteen, fifteen or sixteen cents a pound, but there is a serious complaint when the farmer can get enough to break even let alone make a dollar. I wanted to say a few things last night, but at the late hour I would not impose myself upon the House. If you take the best one hundred acres in the experimental farm at Ottawa, or the experimental farm at Guelph, and run that on a mixed farming basis, producing butter and cheese and other farm produce at the average wages men are asking from the manufacturers — still more, at the minimum wage that Ford is giving his men — you cannot produce butter at $1 a pound and make a profit. I hope the people of this country will not think that the farming community are trying to shirk their duty. When I went through my riding in 1917, when the cry went out for more production, I saw old men with hair like snow of winter out between the plough handles, and when their work was finished, their limbs were trembling. Were they there to make a dollar? No, they were there to try to help out in the war.

When Money Is a Curse.

It is only when money is cheapened to worthlessness for some, and made impossibly dear to others, that it becomes a curse. In short, it is a curse only in such foolish social conditions that life itself is a curse.—George Bernard Shaw.

Vox Populi, Vox Dei.

This is a very ancient saying and means "The voice of the people is the voice of God." It can be traced back through Latin to Greek. It is found first in a work on morals, by the Greek poet, Hesiod, who lived about the eighth century before Christ.

Pugnacious Fish.

In Siam there are small fresh-water fish so pugnacious that when two of them are placed near each other they at once begin to fight. When the fish is quiet its colors are dull, but when excited it is of a metallic brilliance.

Without Hindrance.

The real democratic American idea is, not that every man shall be on a level with every other, but that everyone shall have liberty, without hindrance, to be what God made him.—Beecher.

Where the Folly Lies.

It is hardly ever foolish to do a thing because we want to do it. The folly lies in doing a thing because other people think we ought to want to do it, and we do not.

The Word "Magnet."

The word "magnet" is derived from the name of the city of Magnesia, in Asia Minor, where the properties of the loadstone are said to have been discovered.

Cousin Bill Says:

"When a man thinks he has left his watch at home and takes it out of his pocket to see if he has time to go back for it, I should call that man absent-minded."

Even Used to Run Away.

That even the early horseless carriage retained at least one characteristic of its honorable predecessor, the horse, is evinced by the following item written in 1900: "The claim advanced by the early pioneers that an automobile could not run away like a horse is being disproved by actual experiences. Accounts of automobile runaways are not infrequent in the daily press."—Chevrolet Review.

Wyoming Led All States.

Women acted as jurors in America almost half a century ago. The first grand jury which included members of the "weaker" sex was impaneled at Laramie, Wyo., 48 years ago. The territory of Wyoming was organized in 1868 out of part of Dakota, Utah, and Idaho, and one of the first official acts of the new territorial government was to grant women the right to vote and hold office.

Wood in Demand.

The unique timber of Turkey and a few other localities—the fine, hard-grained, compact boxwood so much prized for engravings, rules, etc., is now so scarce that the forest products laboratory in Wisconsin is seeking American substitutes. Only the Florida boxwood and the wahoo of Arkansas and other parts of the South approach nearly. Other hardwoods suitable for some of the coarser uses include mastic, torchwood, witch hazel, great rhododendron, mountain laurel, thornapple and yellow buckeye.

Carrying Cocoa to the Coast.

An interesting spectacle in the African Gold Coast country is the transport of cocoa, the bulk of the inland produce being carried by porters to the railway. Sometimes the roadways as far as the eye can see are one long line of cocoa bags on the heads of hundreds of carriers.

Maxwell

—a car having every luxury except one

THAT luxury is brutish bigness, which means weight, which means a large gasoline tank and filled often, and large tires, and several sets a year.

Maxwell is neither a big car nor a small car. The biggest car made is less than 4 feet longer, and costs around $15,000 to buy and $7,000 a year to run.

Most cars are just a foot or a few inches longer.

And others are some smaller—shorter, lighter, less roomy, and hence lack the luxury of a Maxwell.

Nor do they cost, on the average, less to run.

Gas mileage is very nearly the same. Tire mileage is very nearly the same.

But where Maxwell earned its crowning reputation has been its ability to run and run and never quit.

That means repair bills are amazingly low.

You therefore never get mad at a Maxwell—it's the best friend your pocketbook has. And when you stop to think of all those little points of luxury in a Maxwell you're almost sure to whip out your check book and write a check for one.

The 300,000-all-alike idea behind the Maxwell thus, you see, is sound.

LOCAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN CONDEMN ACTION OF SENATE

Resolution Says Course With Regard to Prohibition Was Frustration of Expressed Will of the People.

The monthly executive meeting of the Local Council of Women was held Friday afternoon, June 20, with Mrs. Kendry in the chair.

A communication was received from Mrs. Carrie Derrick on the censoring of moving pictures. This was discussed, and the project of having special plays for children on stated days of the week was talked of and left to the committee on objectionable literature to be dealt with.

Dr. Birnie spoke of the bad effect of moving pictures on the eyes of children under ten. It was thought if suitable plays were put on for children on certain days that mothers might see that their children went on those days only.

Oleomargarine.

Mrs. Adam Short sent the following pamphlet on oleomargarine:

1. Why do we want it?

Food necessary for human welfare, i.e., to give strength, promote warmth and produce growth, consists fundamentaly of five different classes, one of which is fat or oils. People get these fat molecules in their food through the fat of meat, from dripping and the various "shortenings" used in cooking, and through cream, cheese and oils, mostly through butter and margarine. From 1913 until we had margarine in the country, tens of thousands of children in Canada were not getting sufficient fat in their diet through any of these channels.

2. What is oleomargarine?

It is a food substitute for butter. It is made from animal or vegetable oils churned in butter. To be exact, it is made from oleo oil, from enutralm vegetable oils, salt and milk, and in some of the highest grades some of the best butter. (a) Oleo oil is pressed from beef fats from inspected animals and manufactured under government inspection. (b) Neutral is made from the "leaf" of pig cooked at temperatures which do not bring out the lard flavor, etc. (c) Vegetable oils used are peanut and cottonseed, refined.

3. It is a substitute for butter in taste and food value. According to scientific experts, the results of four hundred tests proved that the energy derived from butter was 3.40 calories: from margarine made from vegetable oils, 4,080, and from margarine made from beef fats 3,500 calories. So that margarine from either source was of equal or higher value than butter in producing human energy.

4. Why do the dairy interests oppose?

Really from lack of information. Taking Holland and Denmark as the leading milk and butter producing countries, what do we find? That for many years they have found it most profitable to use margarine and producing in their own country, and sell more butter. As far back as 1911 Denmark was importing 1,318,945 kiles of margarine and producing 34,757,917, keeping the factories producing it. Holland, with ten factories producing, imported enough to allow 20 lbs. per capita as against 8½ per person in the now agricultural country of England.

All of the countries of the Allies had been using margarine years before the war began, except Canada. Again, as margarine is a higher product from animals than fat in other forms, the average gain, reckoned on the average number of pounds of fat in the large stock yards, is 2.38 per animal. That is, when margarine is made in Canada, the average beef beef animal will bring $2.38 more per head than when it is not. So that live stock men stand to gain, not to lose, if margarine is manufactured in the country, and agricultural countries, with the highest reputation for butter and butter exports, prove by years of practical experience that margarine in the country gives them more income from the export of their butter.

Protest Senate's Action.

The following resolution was passed by the meeting:

"The Peterborough Local Council of Women, representing over fifteen hundred women, strongly condemns the action of the Senate of Canada in refusing to approve of an extension of the prohibition order-in-council for twelve months after the war. Such action is high handed and frustrates the will of the people expressed through their chosen representatives, as the Senate is not in any sense responsible to the electorate."

The meeting was addressed by Rev. T. M. Wesley, official organizer of Ontario, referendum committee, and attention called to the meeting to be held in the Y.M.C.A. on Wednesday afternoon next. A letter was received from Mrs. W. H. Becker, secretary of the women's department, on the same subject, urging the women to help in the work. There will be no separate organization of women.

The Baby Clinic.

Dr. Birnie reported a further donation of $100 from the Ashburnham Patriotic Society towards the baby clinic, also the offer of another nurse to follow any cases which would need treatment at home. An interesting discussion on the subject of municipal taxation took place and many points new to those present were brought out.

This will be the last meeting until the autumn.

RETURNED MAN HAS VANISHED

CLAUDE BAILEY BEING SEARCHED FOR BY HIS FRIENDS.

Montreal, June 21.—The Police and Military Authorities in Eastern Canada are making a careful search to determine what has become of a returned and invalided soldier named Claude Bailey.

After suffering from nervous prostration and plurisy in France Private Bailey arrived in Canada and left his home in Dalhousie, N.B., to visit relatives at Racine, Wis. While in the United States this soldier wrote his parents advising them that he was returning home fearing an approach of another breakdown in health. He left Racine on May 15th, buying a ticket to Quebec via Chicago, Port Huron and Montreal. The railway authorities report that the ticket was used from Chicago as far as Port Huron, but after that point no trace has been found of the traveller. His aged parents have been visiting the various cities along the route for some weeks past making inquiries regarding their son, but no news has been obtained of the boy. As he was of quiet and steady disposition it is believed that he has either met with foul play, or having been seized with illness has lost his identity, and is under treatment in some hospital.

Private Bailey was 22 years old, about five feet eleven inches in height and of dark complexion. At the time he left Racine he carried his military papers and was wearing his service badge.

Any information regarding Private Bailey should be sent to the headquarters of the Great War Veterans Association at Ottawa.

EDITOR'S MAIL

ACTIVITIES OF POLICE.

Editor Review: I was glad to see your letter from "Anxious Worker" in The Review of Thursday evening, in reference to the police force taking jobs away from workmen and the Great War Veterans of Peterborough. They are making enough money out of the city for the work they do, without going into business for themselves on the side.

I wish to tell you that they not only wash cars, drive tourists, but are canvassing for insurance, to the disadvantage of the regular agents. You know right well when a policeman gets after a prospect for insurance there is no getting away from him. The very latest this morning was to see one of the officers of the police force driving a cab at a funeral, in silk hat and livery.

It is up to the mayor of the city to see that his men stick to their work and not be robbing the poor workingmen of the jobs which are altogether too scarce for this time of year.

CALLED RESIDENT ENGLISH COCKNEY

POLICE COURT CASE ROSE OUT OF FIGHT THAT FOLLOWED.

On a recent Sunday in the afternoon, a party of Lindsay youths, eight or nine in number, took a walk into the country via the G.T.R. tracks in order to get away from the heat of the town and to pick wild strawberries. The party was made up of two groups, one group walking ahead of the other a considerable distance. Out near the limits of the town by the tracks, a resident stood in the doorway of his barn with a pitch fork in his hands. Instead of the conventional "How do you do, it's hot, isn't it?" the youths, at least one or two of them, bid the gentleman the time of day by calling him an "English Cockney," and passed on. Up the tracks a piece further the boys lay down under a large elm tree. Suddenly the irate Englishman appeared by the railroad fence and began "shooting" the boys with a camera.

"Do you want our picture," exclaimed a youth among the party.

"You'll see when you appear in Police Court tomorrow morning," returned the camera man.

"If you pull me you won't have anything left," and so the argument went on. On and on it went, until both sides became quite excitable and it is alleged threats to fight were made.

"Possibly a six-chamber shooter would change your fighting attitude," said the citizen as he put his hand in which he carried the camera, behind his back.

"Let's see that six-chamber," said one youth, and he reached toward the hip pocket. Then the climax came, for the youth received a slap in the face. On the spur of the moment, and under the provocation of a slap in the face, the 17-year-old boy struck his opponent in the mouth. He broke the $15 set of artificial teeth in two pieces and he loosened three natural teeth. Then he ran and a foot race episode followed.

Several witnesses were heard when the case came up in Police Court and Magistrate Bradford came in the conclusion that the case of the youth who first threatened to "beat up" the Englishman be dismissed. The youth who did the damage to the teeth when he struck the blow, was fined $5 and costs, amounting to $6.70, making a total fine of $11.7[illegible]. The citizen was fined $5 and his own costs and the costs of the dismissed case, amounting to $16.90. He will also have to pay for the repairing of the set of artificial teeth, $[illegible]0.

The cases were heard before Magistrate Bradford. Mr. O'Connor acted for the two boys and Mr. Anderson for the English-Canadian. The charge was assault and battery.

WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER

Wash the poisons and toxins from system before putting more food into stomach.

Says inside-bathing makes anyone look and feel clean, sweet and refreshed.

Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing illness while the bowel pores do.

For every ounce of food and drink taken into the stomach, nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste material is not eliminated day by day it quickly ferments and generates poisons, gases and toxins which are absorbed or sucked into ducts which would suck only nourishment to sustain the body.

A splendid health measure is to drink, before breakfast each day, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless way to wash these poisons, gasses and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the blood stream, through the lymph the stomach.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs but very little at the drug store but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on inside bathing. Men and women who are accustomed to wake up with a dull, aching head or have furred tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, sallow complexion, others who have billious attacks acid stomach or constipation are assured of pronounced improvement in both health and appearance shortly.

Fire losses in the United States for 1918 totalled $200,000,000, the highest since 1906, when the San Francisco earthquake occurred.

FARMER HANGS HIMSELF

Eanos Rogers' Body Was Found in Stable

Toronto, June 21.—Eanos Rogers, a farmer living on concession 4, East Gwillimbury, hanged himself in his stable yesterday. The man was to all appearances in good health and spirits at breakfast time and left the house immediately afterwards for the barns. He was found dead about eight o'clock yesterday morning. No reason for self-destruction can be given, although it is stated that recently his actions had been rather unusual. A widow and a ten year old son survive. Dr. Stewart Scott will hold an investigation.

The A. F. of L. voted to start an active campaign to organize steel workers.

MINERAL OIL

For Chronic Constipation

By buying this product from us you can get the highest in quality that can be procured at an ESPECIALLY LOW PRICE. There are many thin oils on the market that are not suitable for internal use; other oils have irritating qualities which render them also unsuitable. The one we are selling is guaranteed thick and entirely pure.

It is recognized that a good grade of Mineral Oil is one of the best remedies for CHRONIC CONSTIPATION that is being used. It acts mechaniaclly and does not irritate the intestinal tract, nor does the dose have to be continually increased, as is the case with ordinary purgatives.

It is much better and cheaper than Castor Oil as a laxative for children, since Castor Oil has two effects, the first of which is purgative, and the second or after effect, which is Constipating.

EVANGELIST KENNEDY TELLS PEOPLE HOW TO KEEP YOUNG

It is Only the Converted Whose Faces Shine With the Real Light of Youth.

"The spirit of Christ in the hearts of people keeps even old people young. Old people who have not the spirit of Christ are always unsatisfied and unhappy and show it." In his address on "How to Keep Young" last night, Evangelist Kennedy pointed out that the best and only method of keeping young in spirit is to have the spirit of Christ. Those who have given themselves to Christ in faith have received the gift of eternal life. Thus they cannot grow old. They look upon themselves as children of their Father and keep young in spirit, even although they may be old in years. Old people who are away from Christ and who lack the element of eternal life are burdened with responsibilities and cares, and grew old in spirit before their time.

The evangelist said that he has had the experience at the beginning of evangelistic campaigns of looking into the faces of people night after night and seen that they were anxious and troubled and felt unequal to their burdens. Later as the campaign progressed and these people became converted he saw their very faces change as they received the new light from God showing that happiness had broken out where before was depression and care.

Mr. Kennedy's theme for tonight is David and Goliath.

SPARKS FROM KENNEDY'S ANVIL

Christ's reward to us is increased ability to serve Him.

The Christian is the unconverted man's Bible he is reading you.

There are five gospels—Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, and you—read and known of all men.

Professing godliness and practising worldliness makes infidels.

Some sing hymns on Sunday and cheat sinners on Monday.

A wife grieves over her husband if untrue, and does not God over His church if unfaithful?

"You cannot live a Christian life and be in business." The man who says that is a crook and ought to be in jail.

Joseph and Daniel were both business men and two of the best Christians that ever lived, though they lived in wicked cities.

We need men like Joseph and Daniel as much as we do men like Peter and Paul.

Christ did not ask Zacchaeus to be a preacher. The world needs Christian business men.

A commercial traveller's goods ought to be as good as his samples, and a Christian should be all he professes to be.

The thing that is hurting the church today most is not infidelity but the worldliness of some of its members.

It's all right to have a boat in water, but it's a poor affair when the water is in the boat.

It's all right to have a church in the world, but it's all wrong to have the world in the church.

You are not here to make a living, you are here to make a life.

No man has to live, but we all have to die.

Anything that is binding on man is possible to man.

God never requires of any man what he cannot do. "He knoweth our frame; He remembereth that we are dust."

It is a sad sight to see an abandoned lighthouse, and a sadder sight still to see a once useful Christian now useless in God's work.

If the devil had all that was coming to him there would be a lot of folks missing.

If you have money, it was the Lord's before it was yours—you are simply God's trustee on the earth.

Talks that criticize a revival mast are usually those who only come once a week or not at all.

People who attend every night, usually see how one night fits into another.

Can you really love Christ if you are not anxious to save those for whom He died?

God is not anxious to count men. He rather weighs them and not their purse either.

If you are not concerned down here about God's work, why should He be concerned about getting a place ready for you in heaven.

A man is a curse to himself and a plague to God's creation, unless he answers the demand for which he was made.

TEN MORE ARRESTS MADE OF ALIENS

WINNIPEG AGITATORS ARE GATHERED IN BY POLICE—STRIKE WEAKENING.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, June 21.—Ten more aliens with foreign names have been arrested here on sedition charges by the R.N.W.M.P. They have been taken to an Ontario penitentiary pending trial.

It was announced by a prominent railway man last night that the Canadian Pacific Railway officials have been verbally notified that the striking carmen will return to work on Monday, whether or not the sympathetic strike is called off by that time. The reason given is that they consider the chief point at issue, the principle of collective bargaining, has been conceded to the metal trades workers.

It was also announced that the Canadian Pacific Railway freight handlers are anxious to return. They have asked the company for a statement of terms on which they will be taken back. In reply it is pointed out that the returned soldiers who were engaged for duty when the freight handlers quit their jobs will be kept on permanently if they care to stay with the company.

KEEP CHILDREN HEALTHY

To keep children healthy the bowels must be kept regular and the stomach sweet. Nine-tenths of the ailments which afflict little ones are caused by derangements of the bowels and stomach. No other medicine can equal Baby's Own Tablets in guarding either the baby or growing child from the ills that follow a disordered condition of the bowels or stomach. They are a mild but thorough laxative and never fail to give results. Concerning them Mrs. W. B. Colledge, Sarnia, Ont., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for over three years and have found them the best medicine I have ever used for my children. I never have any trouble giving them to my little ones and they have saved me many a doctor's bill. My ardvice to all mothers of little ones is to keep a box of the Tablets in the house." The Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Never place your clock at the head of the stairs, it might run down.

LOVE LAUGHS AT BIG WAGERS

HAMILTON MAN TO MARRY EVEN IF HE LOSES $550.

Hamilton, June 20.—About a year ago David P. Rockmaker made a wager with Archie Frank of this city that he would never be married. To make it binding an agreement was drawn up and duly signed under which he undertook to forfeit $500 if he married before fifteen years had elapsed. He later felt so sure of himself that he made another wager with A. J. Frank by which he was to pay $50 if he married before 1925.

All of which leads to the disclosure that there is something else at which lov laughs besides locksmiths. Mr. Rockmaker has paid a delicate compliment to Miss Henriette Stein of Toronto, whom he is to marry on July 13 in that city. He recognizes that he is out $550 on his wagers, but is quite content to lose the money.

APPLIANCE EXPERT COMING

New Invention Retains Rupture Without Pain or Loss of Time.

Old-fashioned galling, slipping trusses and foreign mail order methods are done away with by the surgical inventions of a Canadian specialist who has devoted years to this one study. The perfected new Egan "CURATRUS" (as prepared to order) gives instant retention, rest and security where others have failed. It prevents all irritation, retains every part in its natural position as soon as it is used, and ready made trusses are thrown away. Egan's "Curatrus" is intended to assist nature in her work of closing the opening in the shortest time known and at small cost. Testimonials from men, women and parents. Nothing complicated. No inconvenience, but just a natural retentive method. It costs you nothing to investigate. Delays may be dangerous. Now is the time to make yourself comfortable for your daily work.

THEATRICAL

DOUBLE BILL AT GRAND NEXT WEEK

"THE STRONGER VOW," HERE ON MONDAY, TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY.

The romantic and dramatic atmosphere of the Pyrenees and an Apache den in Paris supply the environment of Geraldine Farrar's fourth Goldwyn production, "The Stronger Vow," which comes to the Grand Theatre, beginning Monday. Having thrilled her Goldwyn audiences as a society girl and sleuth in "The Turn of the Wheel," as a ranch girl in "The Hell Cat," and as a queen of the Alaskan dance halls in "Shadows," Miss Farrar welcomed the opportunity to transplant her world of admirers to picturesque Spain and thence to the underworld of the French capital in scenes, frequently thrilling and always interesting, of the most powerful screen drama that has yet been provided for her.

Intensely dramatic is the role of Dolores de Cordova, one of Geraldine Farrar's own choosing. A member of a family that has carried on a feud with the strong Estudillo tribe from the day of the Cross and the Crescent, constant conflict has ever been a part of Dolores' life—a life teeming with situations to which only a Geraldine Farrar could do full justice.

One of the merry revelers at the annual Easter carnival at Lerida, Spain—an event splendidly simulated by Hugo Ballin, Goldwyn's art director—Dolores meets a handsome stranger and chats with him to the annoyance of one Pedro Toral, a distant cousin, who has long sought her hand in marriage. Jealous because of her flirtation with the other, Toral orders her brother, Jose, to take her away. The brother resents Toral's interference and the two come to blows. While the revelry is at its height, Toral follows Jose to a deserted alley, pounces upon him and stabs him to death.

Suspecting that the cavalier, who won Dolores' favor, is Juan Estudillo, arch enemy of the de Cordovas, Toral conceives a scheme whereby Estudillo—the stranger is really he—is charged with the murder of her brother. Urged on by Toral, Dolores takes the blood vow to avenge the crime. Fearing that Dolores will see through the plot, Toral has no informed her that the handsome stranger is Juan Estudillo. Later she leaves for Paris to seek out the slayer. There, amid the law-defying Apaches, comes a smashing climax in which Toral himself is revealed as the murderer.

In addition to this big feature another special feature has been added, Carlyle Blackwell, in "Courage For Two." There is two big comedies and a double Screen Magazine.

Two navy sealanes made a successful flight from New Orleans to Chicago.

Before taking certain steps consult a dancing master.

EPSOM IS NOW OUT OF BOUNDS

CIVILIANS CANNOT VISIT CAMPS WHERE CANADIANS ARE STATIONED.

London, June 20.—The order made closing all Epsom public-houses was revoked, the Magistrates being assured that the military now have the situation thoroughly in hand. Epsom is now out of bounds for Canadians and civilians are also forbidden near the camp, a double guard being posted in the outskirts.

To Be Inquiry

Colonel Guest, the Camp Commandant, said: "there will be a court of inquiry immediately. The police asked to be allowed to question any witnesses as a result of being implicated in the affair, and we consented. I do not attempt to defend the attack. The men's grievance was that the police unfairly arrested one of them. I tried to head off the man as they left the camp. Several of our men who obviously had nothing to do with the disturbances at the station, returned with injuries received from civilians in the town."

"Outrages Intolerable."

The newspaper comments express regret at the splendid Canadian record being tarnished by untoward incidents like that of Epsom. Some declare the outbreaks are due to the spirit of revolt everywhere observable, and make excuses on the ground of the vicious effects of enforced idleness, but the Daily Chronicle says bluntly that the outrages are intolerable and the Canadian military authorities should shirk no effort to end them forthwith.

SEQUEL TO PACT IN PRISON CAMP

SOLDIER WHO ESCAPED FROM HUNS FIND HOME FOR COMRADES.

Vanderhoof, B.C., June 21.—An interesting story has been unfolded as a result of land selections just made in the Mechako Valley. While prisoners in the hands of the Germans at Geison ten Canadian boys conceived the idea that they would locate on land together in Central British Columbia when their release was acomplished. It was further agreed that should one or more of them escape, he, or they, should act in the capacity of advance agents and get desirable locations for the party.

A soldier named Corker escaped from the prison camp in the summer of 1918 and made his way to England, thence to Canada, proceeding to his home in British Columbia. After examining the various lands open for settlement he made a selection for his brothers-in-arms in the vicinity of Vanderhoof and is now being joined by the other soldier-farmers. One of the parties to the compact was Mr. Scott, a nephew of Professor J. M. Macoun of the biological Division, Geological Survey of the Canadian Government, Ottawa. Professor Macoun is keenly interested in this section of British Columbia which presents a wide field for the collection and study of native flora.

WEATHER FAVORS NORMAL SCHOOL

HAD FIRST DRY DAY IN ELEVEN YEARS FOR OUTING.

The staff of the Normal School have proved the axiom "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again." For eleven years in succession they have planned excursions and for ten years the weather man has stepped in and interfered with their pleasure. Yesterday it looked as if the usual performance was about to be repeated but the rain cleared off just in time and about 160 students and ex-students took advantage of the invitation of the members of the staff to spend an enjoyable day on the lakes. Lunch was taken along and served on board the ship. After a short stop at Burleigh the party proceeded to the head of the lake and returned in the evening, the students going to their homes today.

The members of the staff who were aboard were Messrs. D. Walker, E. E. Ingall, A. J. Madill, A. McDonald, J. A. McKone, S. A. B. Hagerman, Dr. H. G. Parks, the Misses E. McVannel, J. C. McRae and M. R. Rannie.

Rev. W. H. and Mrs. White; Rev. F. E. and Mrs. Malott, Mrs. (Rev.) A. J. Thomas; Rev. Father Phelan and several of the wives of the members of the Normal School Staff, were also special guests of the occasion.

STILL SUFFERS FROM INJURIES

Mr. William Rickey, 478 George Street, who was injured by falling from a moving street car on the morning of June 4, is still suffering from the effects of his accident and has been unable to work ever since. At the time he sustained his injuries it was erroneously stated that Mr. Rickey attempted to leave the car backwards. There are plenty of witnesses to prove that Mr. Rickey did not try anything of the kind and that the car failed to stop although the conductor was asked to give two passengers a chance to alight.

HOW TEX RICKARD FIRST GOT INTO THE FIGHT GAME

Battling Nelson Was the Man Who Introduced Him to the Business Out in Goldfield.

(By Battling Nelson)

Toledo, O., June 21 The Willard Dempsey championship battle is the talk of the sporting world. Especially is it the town talk here in Toledo where it is to be held at Bayview park, donated by Mayor Cornell Schreiber for the occasion.

Along with the fight Toledoans are talking about Tex Rickard. Honesty will always triumph and Rickard is honest, open and above board Everybody likes to deal with him. Tex can be trusted. When he tells you he will do anything you can depend on it. All the officials in the state have confidence in whatever Rickard says. They take it for granted he will be absolutely on the level.

Brought Tex to the Game

It was through me Tex Rickard broke into the boxing game at Goldfield in 1906, when he promoted the Nelson-Gans championship battle, which drew $69,715. We received a flat purse of $34,000 of which I got $23,000, while Gans, received $11,000. So you see his first venture was profitable, although he only held the match as a little amusement for miners to celebrate their Labor day. The entire celebration cost Rickard and his partners about $50,000. They raised $100,000 for the celebration in less than one hour and finished the match the same time.

The difference in Rickard's first the last promotion is great, as the following figures show. Of course labor as well as material has advanced almost beyond reason. In Goldfield we thought things were high. The Goldfield arena cost about $10,000, which looked enormous. The Willard-Dempsey arena will cost approximately $100,000, or ten times as much. Carpenters were paid 35 cents an hour in Goldfield, while in Toledo they get 70—just double. Laborers at Goldfield received 25 cents, while here they get 50 cents.

In Goldfield, because Rickard was so well liked, they allowed him to build his arena any place he wanted. The best location just off the main street was in the graveyard and part of our arena was overlapping that. The space we took covered about one and a half acres, while here it covers six and three quarter acres. The Goldfield seating capacity was 8,000, while here it will be over 50,000. Prices for seats in Goldfield ranged from $5 for a bleacher seat to $25 ringside. Here they range from $10 bleachers to $60 ringside The Goldfield purse was $34,000, while Toledo's is $127,000—some difference

Also Discovered McLaughlin

Ten years before the Goldfield battle, I received $1 for my first bout. In ten years to the day I boosted it from $1 to $34,000, which was going some for a kid, eh?

For the Willard-Dempsey battle they will use eighty tons of nails. The July 4 arena will have used near 2,000,000 feet of lumber when completed Rickard says I discovered him the same time I discovered Goldfield

Here is another funny coincidence —James F McLaughlin, the man that is building the Willard-Dempsey arena, says I also started him building arenas. His first venture was when the Nelson-Wolgast arena at Point Richmond was lagging and about half through three days before we were to box. McLaughlin got on the job and completed it in the remaining three days McLaughlin did nine days' work in three, working three shifts of eight hours every twenty four. That is the kind of men affiliated with Rickard in his mammoth undertaking here for Independence Day.

Champion Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey are just as much alike as day and night. Jess boxes because it is the easiest way he can make money honestly and quickly, not because he glories in the game. Jack Dempsey boxes because he would sooner fight than eat. He just glories in it, the hotter the going the better he likes it.

In several ways they are alike. They are both pleasant, congenial and gentlemanly in every way possible; good-hearted, kind to their friends and particularly to their relatives which speaks well for both. neither is a rowdy nor a bully which makes them both a credit to the game Both are expert automobile mechanics and drivers. Neither smokes, chews or drinks; these are other good traits. The only likeness are good qualities as men.

Willard Hates Fighting

Here is where they differ. Willard admits to 35 years, while Dempsey is 24 the 24th of this month. Willard detests boxing while Dempsey glories in it. Willard dislikes training, while Dempsey is in the height of his glory when at its full blast. Willard boxes cautiously and is on the defensive while Dempsey is of the natural boring in type of a slugger, never stopping for anything. Willard dislikes to be in the limelight, while Dempsey enjoys it, possibly because he is young and the novelty has not worn off. It is nice to be lionised and, even now, after fifteen years. It makes me feel good when I am the center of attraction, which happens occasionally in a crowd of boxing fans, old and young of both sexes.

It makes me feel insignificant, however, when, as happened last week, a boxing glove salesman who was manager of a sporting goods house here said he had never heard of battling Nelson.

Most people like the limelight. It's natural.

Willard is married and has five children and is very much devoted to them but would feel hurt if any of his boys wanted to become champion. Dempsey says he is too busy getting in condition to win the championship to think of getting married, although he wishes he were married and the father of several children, especially boys. He hopes, if ever he is that lucky they like the game. Then he will make champions of them, he says. Now you girls get busy. Here is your chance.

NEW GOLF RULE AT THE TOURNEY

ALL PUTTS MUST BE HOLED IN CHAMPIONSHIP PLAY.

St. Louis, Mo., June 21.—Using a new rule issued by President Chas. F. Thompson that all putts must be holed and none conceded, no matter how short, four St. Louis golfers, including two public links players, contested for the western amateur golf championship with two Chicagoans, two Detroit men and one each from New Orleans, St Paul, Minneapolis, Wichita, Omaha, Sioux City, Kansas City and Denver, in the second round of match play at the Sunset Hill club.

Wolff Causes Question to Arise.

A dispute arose when Clarence Wolff of St. Louis, although lying nearer to the cup than his opponent, conceded the putts on the sixteenth green in a match with W. K. Wood of Chicago. While no protest was made when Wolff knocked the balls away without holing his own, to avoid any dispute in the future it was decided to make the players hole all putts as in medal play.

Wolff Meets Whitney.

Wolff, medalist of the tournament, with 147 strokes, who eliminated Wood 2 and 1, was pitted against Nelson Whitney of New Orleans, trans-Mississippi champion, who defeated Elliot Evans of Chicago 6 and 5, while J. S. Thompson of St. Paul, who defeated Paul Hunter of Chicago, met Christian Kenny, of St. Louis. Harry Legg of Minneapolis who won a nineteen hole match from Ruben Bush of New Orleans, met T. B. Griffith of Wichita, who also had to play nineteen holes to overcome Addison Stillwell of Chicago The other match in the upper bracket was between Frank Lynch of St. Louis and C. G. Waldo of Detroit.

Ald. Phelan's Idea is Now Endorse

HE ORIGINALLY URGED A DUAL SET OF PLANS FOR NEW BRIDGE.

After several months wrestling with the new Hunter street bridge problem, in an apparently hopeless effort to secure its construction at a price within council's limit, it is interesting to note that the Board of Works has at last fallen back on its chairman's original sugestion.

When the Board first took up the invitation of tenders this year, Ald. Phelan urged that plans for both a concrete structure and one with concrete approaches to a steel span across the river be secured; he consistently urged this policy but could not win his colleague's acquiescence. Ald. Phelan actually secured from the Dominion Bridge Co. their consent to furnish plans for a steel bridge and still no suggestion for a dual set of plans went abegging. Now, however, after having spent months in inviting tenders for concrete work one, first on a lump sum and then on a cost plus basis; and after having accepted and rejected again three tenders, the committe at last by their action last night endorse Ald. Phelan's original idea that there is something in steel structures after all.

Of course, there is only a saving of some $50,000 or $60,000 or even more, in adopting the steel idea, and that is of no special account as business and labor conditions are today?

Ald. Phelan has had a strenuous time as chairman of these bridge deliberations, but his reward for suffering unbearable discouragement was measured out to him in full weight last night by the Board's tardy recognition of his original plan that the two bridge propositions—steel and concrete are worthy of very earnest consideration.

And there are other citizens besides Ald. Phelan who have had an eye on the "saving possibilities" of a steel concrete top bridge span over the river.

TO APPEAR AT THE PETERBOROUGH CHAUTAUQUA, WEEK OF JULY 7TH

SEVEN KEYS TO BALDPATE.

George Cohen's Greatest Comedy.

SEVEN KEYS TO BALDPATE.

An announcement that will create tremendous interest for Chautauqua Week will be the fact that we have secured the above play for the 5th day's programme. Everybody knows that it is recorded as Mr. Cohen's greatest success. It was presented at the Royal Alexandra Theatre in Toronto, and was brought back in response to a unanimous demand. The Evening Telegram quoted it "the most popular comedy ever produced in Toronto." The Evening Star called it "The most continuous Laughing Carnival of the Season." It presents two-and-one-half hours of Mystery, Thrills and Laughter." It is a Master Mystery and stands at the very head of the Farce Comedies.

Mr. Percival Vivian, who was at the head of the Ben Greet Players last year, has been secured as Manager of this play and will present the leading role. He has played in leading plays and theatres in New York and Chicago. The past season he spent playing with Macklyn, Arbuckle, and DeWolfe Hopper in Captain Bairnsfather's delightful comedy "The Better 'Ole." The fact that he is in this play assures its complete success.

MORE MUNICIPALITIES IN PROVINCIAL ROAD PLAN

Asphodel, Havelock and Norwood Joined Prossession and Belmont in Pausing on the Brink

At the last moment Reeve Brown of Asphodel and Reeve Matheson of Havelock and the reeve of Norwood decided to link themselves up with the reeves of the townships of Otonabee and Monaghan in the county good roads scheme. Reeve Griffith of Belmont is on the point of casting in his lot with the others, but at the time of going to press he had not made a definite decision.

"If you can guarantee us that the government will pay forty per cent. of the cost of the road machinery we use on county roads we will come in," said Mr. Griffith. Mr. W. A. Anderson explained that his matter would have to be adjusted at Toronto and that the Provincial Government would not likely care to keep up a set of road machinery in each township for the use of its county roads, to which the representative from Belmont replied that the proposition resembled too much a man buying a pig in a bag and that he would not commit himself.

The roads selected in Monaghan are:

(1) The gravel road beginning at the west end of Charlotte street and connecting with the road coming up from Port Hope near Fraserville. The distance is about 10 miles.

(2) The River road running in a southwesterly direction from Park street, city to the boundary of the township, approximately nine miles.

(3) The road running west from Sherbrooke street to the boundary of Cavan, about 3½ miles.

In Otonabee the roads are as follows:

(1) The road from Peterborough to Wallace's Point, about eight miles.

(2) From Peterborough to Keene, about 12 miles.

(3) A portion of the Norwood road, about six miles.

(4) The road going east from the village of Keene to the boundary of Asphodel, about six miles.

(5) Part of the 6th Line and the road leading from it to Keene station, and two shorter roads to link up the system.

Norwood and Havelock will, as a result of coming in, make the good roads system complete.

It is easier to pay women compliments than it is to argue with them—also more satisfactory for all concerned.

FUNERAL OF LATE JAMES R. BELL

MANY FLORAL TRIBUTES SENT IN BY FRIENDS OF THE DECEASED.

The funeral of the late James R. Bell was attended by a large number of friends and relatives. The services were held at the home of the mother of the deceased, 451 Water street, by Rev. Canon Davidson, at 9:30 this morning. There were many floral tokens of appreciation from the friends of the late Mr. Bell. Mrs. Elcombe and family sent a basket of carnations and roses, Mr. and Mrs. C. Graham and Mrs. John Bell and daughter each gave a cross. Wreaths were contributed by Mrs. Wm. Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. McGregor and their son Ralph, Mrs. Retta Reid and Mrs. Martha Reid. There was a bouquet of peonies from Mr. Harry Long and a floral heart from Mrs. J. R. Bell, the widow.

At the conclusion of the funeral services, all that remained of the late James R. Bell was carried to its last resting place at Little Lake Cemetery. The pallbearers were Messrs. R. J. Devey, John Pattie, Frank Linton, Chris Graham, Samuel Stewart and W. E. Conway.

RUPTURE RELIEF

RESULTS NOT INFLUENCED BY AGE OR LENGTH OF TIME STANDING, REPORTS EXPERT.

Rupture is not a tear or a breach in the abdominal wall, as commonly supposed, but it is a stretching or dilation of a natural opening. J. Y. Egan of Toronto, the noted rupture appliance specialist will visit Peterboro, Hotel Empress, Wednesday and Thursday (all day and night), 2 days only, June 25-26.

The "Curatrus" as now used and prepared to order, will not only retain rupture perfectly, affording immediate and complete comfort, but is intended to assist nature in her work of closing the opening in the shortest time known. These new surgical appliances have received highest approval wherever shown, and are an improvement of the design in accordance with the suggestion of Sir Arbuthnot-Lane, F.R.C.S., of England, producing results without harmful ready-made hard pad and old-fashioned steel spring trusses. Mr. Egan has testimonials from our own section for inspection. If interested call; he will show you same without charge.

SUMMER CAMP OF THE Y. W. C. A.

Burleigh Falls, Jue 21.—The summer camp of the Young Women's Christian Association is an assured fact now. Anyone coming up to the Burleigh dock will see a little further on the white cottage on a pretty island, gaily decorated with flags and lanterns, while a huge sign printed so as to be read far away, announces that here is the Y.W.C.A. Camp.

Anyone coming yet nearer and hearing the laughter of the girls or seeing them disporting themselves in the water or drifting about in boats, or gathered about the table, requires no further assurance that the Y. W. C. A. Camp is open.

It is yet early in the season for holidays, and there are but four girls at present in the camp besides Miss Parker, the chaperone. They are Miss Olive Marshall, Miss Kathleen Waterman, Miss Margery Evans and Miss Helen Bulmer. It is expected that by the end of June many girls will have registered at the Y.W.C.A. to spend their holidays at this ideal camp.

NO MONEY LEFT FOR STORM DRAINAGE

BOARD OF WORKS' APPROPRIATION IS NONE TOO FLUSH.

City Engineer Parsons will have plans and specifications for concrete paving from George along King street to Water and up water to Charlotte street today (Saturday); and on motion of Ald. McIntyre and Taylor tenders for this work will be invited, said tenders to be received up to 5 o'clock p.m. of July 3rd next.

Ald. Gainey wanted Driscoll Terrace drained, graded and oiled before the snow flies; this work has been ordered some time.

Ald. Morrison: "With all respect for East City, we would like some road grading in the West End."

To Ald. Morrison Chairman Ald. Phelan replied that there is no money with which to undertake any surface draining on Weller, Sherbrooke or Bolivar streets this year.

THE WEATHER

That June this year has been excessively hot, is generally recognized. It is only, however, in comparison with the same months in other years that its extraordinary character is shown. During June of this year we have already had nine days of 90 degrees or over. On the 3rd, it was up to 97 degrees. In 25 years, here in Peterborough, the temperature has only gone up to 90 or over, in June on seven occasions. The following are the dates: — June 14, 27 and 28, in 1901; June 8 and 10, 1906; June 30, 1913; and June 8th, 1914. In the other years 90 degrees was not reached.—W. P.

TENDERS For Pavements

SEALED TENDERS, plainly marked as to contents addressed to H. Phelan, Esq., Chairman of the Board of Works, City Building, Simcoe street, Peterborough, for the construction of approximately 2500 square yards of concrete pavement on Water and King streets, will be received up to 5 p.m.,

THURSDAY, JULY 3RD, 1919

Plans and specifications and other information may be obtained at the office of the City Engineer. All tenders must be accompanied with a marked cheque for 5 per cent. of the amount of tender. The lowest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted.

R. H. PARSONS,
City Engineer.

HERE'S a welcome to the returned soldier and his bride. May their wedded life be a long and happy one.

If she is a "British Bride" she will be very fond of tea—and good tea, at that.

She will first be attracted to Red Rose Tea by the name which will remind her of the "Red Rose" of "Old England".

And when she tries it she will again be reminded of the "Homeland", for she will find Red Rose Tea the same kind of Tea that she has used at home—a rich, full-flavored blend, consisting chiefly of ASSAM teas grown in British-owned plantations in northern India.

Red Rose Tea is sold always in sealed packages.

HUNS ACCEPT WITHOUT RESERVE

ALIEN IS MURDERED AT HAVELOCK FOR MONEY

GERMANS AGREE TO SIGN PEACE TREATY BUT ONLY WITH TWO RESERVATIONS

Declare That in This Matter They Yield to Force Sign Simply to Save the New Republic From the Horrors of Another War—Were Refused Further Extension—Maintain Still That it is Peace of Violence.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Weimar, June 23.-It is officially announced that Germany will sign the treaty of peace.

Germany today requested an additional forty eight hours within which to sign the peace treaty. The Council of Three flatly refused the request. The request for additional time pleaded that the change in the Government and generally disturbed conditions made it difficult to keep the arangements. The communication from the Germans was received at three o'clock this morning. At nine o'clock President Wilson and Premier Clemenceau met with Premier Lloyd George at the latter's house for consideration of the note.

The German note, in which Germany agrees to sign the treaty, with two reservations, was received by the President and the Peace Conference. The reply of the Allies through the Council of Four, was transmitted to the German plenipotentiaries at Versailles. The German note is dated Versailles, June 22, and addressed to Clemenceau says:—

The far reaching counter proposals of the German delegation have only in certain points received any acceptance. The concessions made only reduced the severity of the conditions in a small degree. The allied and associated governments have in an ultimatum which expires on June 23, confronted the government of the German republic with a decision either to sign the treaty ofpeace presented by them or refuse to sign. In the latter case, a completely defensive people have been threatened with forcible imposition of the conditions of peace already presented and with an increase of heavy burdens. The German people do not wish for the resumption of the bloody war, it honestly wishes for a lasting peace in view of the attitude of the allied and associated governments, the German people have no other force in its hands save to appeal to the eternally inalienable right to an Independent life, which belongs to the German people as to all peoples.

The Government of the German republic is nevertheless ready to sign the conditions of the allies, with the above mentioned reservation yet it is not done of its free will. Representatives of the German republic solemnly declares that its attitude is to be understood in the sense that it yields to force, being resolved to spare the German people the sufferings unspeakable of a new war, the shattering of its national unity by further occupation of German territories, the terrible famine for women and children and the merciless prolonged retention of the prisoners of war.

Serious Food Riot In German City

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Mannheim, Germany, June 23. —Serious food riots have occurred at this place. Troops were called out to quel lthe disturbances. Twenty persons have been seriously injured and two hundred arrested.

HUNS SIGN UNCONDITIONALLY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, June 23.—The German Government has formally communicated to the Allies' council its willingness to sign the peace treaty unconditionally, it is announced by the French Government this afternoon.

The German answer regarding the peace treaty was received by the Peace Conference this afternoon. Its contents had not been revealed up to 3:45 o'clock.

The day and hour for the formal signing of the treaty is uncertain. The signing possibly may take place Tuesday, but more likely on Wednesday.

GERMANS' LAST APPEAL.

The full text of the German note shows that while but two reservations were made, the Germans asked for the insertion in the treaty of a clause providing that within two years that document should be submitted to the council of the League of Nations for the reconsideration of that portion of the treaty which, as the Germans phrase it, "impairs the rights to the self-determination of the German people." Similar reconsideration of that portion whereby the "free economic development of Germany on a footing of equal rights is denied," was also provided for in this suggested clause.

The Italian delegates at present in Paris have been authorized to sign the treaty on behalf of Italy. This announcement removed one question which it was feared might delay the signing. The German note of acceptance, it is said, is couched in such language that it maintains the German position that the peace conditions are "a peace of violence."

SHORT SHRIFT IS MADE OF ALIENS

WINNIPEG AGITATORS ARE BEING INTERNED IN CAMPS IN ONTARIO.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, June 23.—Registered aliens in Winnipeg who break their parole and take part in forbidden meetings and commit any acts of a disorderly nature are being arrested and placed in an internment camp in Ontario. In two days last week thirteen were gathered in.

Judgment Given For Samuel King

In the case of Samuel King vs. Hugh P. Lindsay judgment was given for the plaintiff this morning by His Honor Judge Huycke for $61.61. The claim for rental for the use of the automobile was dismissed as well as the claim for a share in the increased revenue from the sale of automobile licenses. The plaintiff was allowed half the proceeds from the sale of the horse, and the costs of the action will be paid out of the partnership assets of which the amount paid into court forms part. Mr. S. T. Medd appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. J. F. Strickland for the defendant.

CARS COLLIDED 6 P.M. YESTERDAY

CAMPBELLFORD MOTORIST ON FIRST OUT-OF-TOWN TRIP MEETS WITH MISHAP.

Two motor cars—a Chevrolet and an Overland—came together in collision at 6 o'clock last evening on the corner of Park and Charlotte streets. Both machines were able to make their garages under their own gasoline after a little street overhauling.

The Overland car belongs to Campbellford, yesterday its owner made an out-of-village trip for the first time and returned home minus one running board and fender, three spokes out of a wheel and his chassis somewhat battered on the off side, as a result of this outing.

The Chevrolet, owned in the city, escaped any material damage noticeable.

The Peterborough car's driver had with him in his machine his wife and child; the man from Campbellford was in the company of four women and a child.

When these cars collided, the Campbellford man was going west on Charlotte street and the Peterborough autoist driving south on Park, north of Charlotte. It is contended that the out-of-town driver was at fault on not giving the other his right-of-way for the crossing as due him. Fortunately, the Chevrolet struck the Overland on an angle just front of the door, thereby avoiding a smash-up with serious results to the latter car's human freight. It is almost a miracle that no one was hurt.

This corner of Park and Charlotte streets, where three streets cross, two of them main arteries of the city—and at times no less than five street cars connect, is a veritable danger spot, at which motorists cannot exercise too much care.

GERMANS SAILORS SINK INTERNED BATTLE SHIPS

SETTLE QUESTION AS TO DISPOSITION OF TWELVE NAVAL PRIZES.

FLEET WAS ANCHORED OFF KIEL

ADMIRAL REUTER GAVE THE ORDER FOR DESTROYING THE VESSELS.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Weimer, June 23.—German warships, which were not surrendered to the Allies and which have been anchored off Kiel, Wilhelm-Shaven and other points, have been sunk by the German sailors manning them, according to a report received here from a reliable authority. According to the reports there were 12 German war vessels, besides destroyers which were in German waters, not having been turned over to the Entent under the armistice provisions.

London, June 23.—Although the reports have stated that 6 Germans were killed and ten wounded when the boats of the German fleet in Scapa Flow were fired upon subsequent to the settling of the German fleet The Daily Mail says that others may have been drowned and that some may possibly have reached the Orkney Islands and have not as yet been reported.

The main force of the British fleet was absent exercising at sea when the German ships were sunk, only some drifters, small ships and patrolling air craft being on guard over the interned enemy squadron. Admiral Von Reuter, commander of the surrendered German fleet, says he issued an order to sink the ships. The Daily Mail adds and did so because at the beginning of the war the German Emperor directed that no German warship should fall into the enemy's hands. He says that he believed from newspaper reports, that the armistice had been ended.

Admiral Von Reuter visited Germany some weeks ago. From the behaviour of the ships, according to The Mail, it was evident the sea valves had been opened and in a surprisingly short time the vessels, big and small, began to settle down. The Derfflinger, Hindenburg, Von Dertann, Moltke and Sikelitz settled down beside each other the last named turning turtle as she filled with water. Her keel is still showing where she capsized. The waters of the Scapa Flow were dotted with small boats full of men who had with dramatic suddeness settled the question of the disposition of the interned ships.

As Berlin Views It.

Berlin, June 23.—Commenting upon the sinking of the fleet, The Berlin Gazette says that it was perhaps a deed of folly, as Germany might have been able to force an indemnity for the surrender of the warships. "Never the less," it continues, "it was a handsome deed."

The Neue Gazette says: "The officers and men who performed this deed may be forgiven. They acted in the spirit in which they were trained."

PHILIP YANOFF, AUSTRIAN, MURDERED AT HAVELOCK; FIVE SUSPECTS ARRESTED

Aliens Said to Have Hatched Plot in Toronto and Then Gone to Havelock Saturday Night to Rob Employed at Quarry There—Five Suspects Under Arrest, and Remanded For One Week.

Five foreigners, Russians and Galacians were arrested at Indian River Sunday morning about ten o'clock for one of the most cold blooded murders that has ever been perpetrated in this district. Their names are Alexander Martynuik, Michael Bahri, Samuel Ziluski, Tom Komichuik and Philip Rotynsky.

The five, who all hail from Toronto, came up on the midnight train Saturday with the sole purpose of robbing the camp, about three miles this side of Havelock. A large number of foreigners are employed there in a stone quarry, and as they knew that the men received their pay on Saturdays they conceived the bold idea of robbing the camp in the early hours of Sunday morning

Each man had a definite duty to perform, Samuel Jiluske, Tom Komichuik and Philip Totynsky, who were all heavily armed with revolvers and bludgeons were to hold the crowd in check Alex Martynuik, the light-fingered member was to gently turn down the bed-clothes and unfasten the belts from around the bodies of the sleeping inmates of the camp, for if they could get the money, which every foreigner carries in a belt next his skin, without causing any disturbance, it would be so much the better. Michael Bahri was the modern Judas of the party; he had worked in the camp a couple of months before and had made a study of the habits of his associates It was he who suggested the raid on the little gold mine up in the stone quarry. He was the man who would point out to Martynuik the workmen who did not spend their money as fast as they earned it or deposit it in a bank for safe-keeping. He betrayed his former companions by a gesture

The Capture

However, the way of the robber is extremely hard One of the victims showed fight and was shot in the neck. The five thieves then left the camp, having secured about $700 in cash, and commenced to walk towards Indian River. It was about 1.45 a.m when they left the camp and it was nearly 10 a m Sunday before they reached the station at Indian River. Station Agent S. Bradley saw two suspicious looking characters coming along the track and managed to decoy them into a small room at the station which he promptly locked up. He immediately telephoned for assitsance and Constables Whibbs, Puffer and Williams responded. Soon the other trio appeared, and gave themselves up to the authorities without resistance, not knowing they were guilty of murder

Taken to Peterborough

While they were detained in the station they hid their revolvers, black masks, searchlights and the paraphernalia behind the pictures and framed time tables on the walls and Michael Bahri, the contriver of the whole plot, had the extra foresight to hide away his ill-gotten gain in some cracks in the floor. The three constables and the station agent secured a couple of automobiles in which they brought the five men to the City Jail about 1 p m. yesterday. They were immediately questioned by the local police, and as a result Chief of Police, Detective Maher and Police Sergeant Blade motored back to Indian River Sunday afternoon, taking Michael Bahri with them. In the station the police found the revolvers etc just as the prisoners had confessed

Prisoners Remanded

The five men all appeared before County Police Magistrate O. A. Langley this morning and were formally charged with the murder of Philip Yanoff. Crown Attorney Hatton asked for a remand, which was granted until ten o'clock next Monday. No evidence was taken. Mr. G. N Gordon appeared for the prisoners. The first three have no friends, with whom they wished to communicate, but the latter two gave in some names to their solicitor. After having their finger prints taken they were lodged in jail to await their hearing.

THE DESPERATE POLITICAL SITUATION.

THERE NEVER WAS a time in the history of the country when the political situation was so hopelessly muddled as it is today. There never was a time when each of the old parties lacked a policy that would answer the demands of one or other sections of the electorate. There never was a time when there were so many desertions from the regular ranks, never a time when so many factions were being organized for action, offensive and defensive.

It must be that both of the old parties realize that they are hopelessly at odds with the spirit of the times. Can any other conclusion be reached in the light of recent events? Is there a man who believes that if the Opposition thought for a moment that they had the shadow of a chance in an appeal to the country that they would not have defeated the Government in the recent budget vote and so brought on an election? It is just as unthinkable that the Government has not a similar misgiving as to its own popularity in the country. Otherwise the coalition which has served its purpose would have been dissolved. Union Liberals were simply playing for time for preparation when they voted with the Government.

The Canadian people have advanced ahead of the old parties. They are the real leaders today in thought and action. Partisanship as it existed in the past is dying out. People are thinking for themselves. The old methods of winning elections have been superseded.

No party can longer hope to perpetuate itself, even if it be in power, by intrigue. Government by bludgeon will no longer be tolerated in a free country. No government can hope to maintain itself in place by the expedient of sifting out from the population the foreign and hostile element that they hold responsible for the general industrial unrest, a foreign element that in the first place was lured to Canada by the fair promises of a haven. The unrest is not confined to this element. The foreigners are not the leaders of free-born Canadian citizens any more than they are their preceptors.

No party can any longer hope to exist on its record to fatten on the reputation of its founders whose works have been in a measure marred by the less competent hands that sought to improve them. A nation cannot exist, much less expand, on memories alone.

No Government can hope to fool all the people all the time by flag waving and professions of patriotism. Loyalty is first an instinct that developes into a fixed habit. It is not a virtue peculiar to any class or nurtured only in one political camp. Loyalty the aim of which is political gain degenerates into jingoism and thence develops into a national disease. Even the barbarian, who lacks the teachings of bumptious partisan leaders, is devoted to his native wilds, and is ready to fight and die in the defence of his home.

No Government can today hold place and power by acting section against section, race against race, or creed against creed. The agitator has had his day. If Canada is to remain a confederation, a united power, sectional and every other form of strife must be dropped.

There are public-spirited Canadians today who do not fail to read the signs and who are quietly at work preparing a remedy for conditions. The party that ceases to content itself with marking time and sets out to make progress is the party that is bound to succeed. Misguided statesmen of history sought to stamp out the seeds of revolution by force and simply precipitated the storm and unified the very elements they tried to destroy.

There are constant desertions from the ranks of both parties today. The farmers are setting up political house for themselves. Workingmen are organising everywhere to send representatives to parliament and legislature. There must be some reason for these movements. Leaders of the old parties will be well advised to get at the cause and to provide a panacea. Even if farmers and workingmen choose representatives from among their number, they will in the final muster be found on the side of the party with which they are most in accord.

MR. PRESTON'S ADDRESS.

MR. W. T. R. PRESTON, organizer for the Liberal party, was the chief speaker at the meeting of the Liberals here Saturday afternoon. Governments have been arraigned before by party speakers, and all due allowance is made for their charges, but no man either in public or private brought such serious accusations against an administration as Mr. Preston did in his address here Saturday. He speaks not from hearsay. He is not relaying rumors, but bases his charges on what he actually saw and heard as an official of the Opposition sent to Europe to look after the interests of his party when the soldiers' vote was taken during the election of 1917. His address here contained practically the same charges that were brought in the House early last year and which were based on information furnished by Mr. Preston, charges which the Government at that time was pleased to ignore. For the past two years Mr. Preston has been making similar speeches in all parts of Canada and demanding a Royal Commission to investigate.

It is, indeed, a serious situation. If Mr. Preston's charges are true, the guilty, even those in highest place, should not be tolerated for a moment. They are alike a disgrace to public life and to humanity. Jails and penitentiaries are yawning for such miscreants, and the blood of the martyred heroes, the young men of Canada whom the men in authority wantonly sent to their graves, cries out for vengeance.

If Mr. Preston's charges are false, if they are even capable of modification, then the place for him is in jail instead of on a public platform. He admits this much himself, and, declaring his ability to produce evidence in support of everything he says, defies the accused to do their worst. Openly and apparently unafraid, he throws down the gauntlet.

If officers of the Canadian army lent themselves to more than shady political chicanery in order to induce the soldiers to vote for the party in power, if by way of punishment to do so they sent these young men to the trenches, which so often meant going to their grave, if they favored those who did their will by keeping them in safety in England, if in all this they were not only encouraged but actually inspired by the Government at home, then the people of Canada are entitled to the facts.

The people of Canada have a right to know, too, if Canadian officers were decorated with medals and crosses supposed to be the insignia of honorable military service, for proficiency in political intrigue alone.

If upwards of thirty thousand Canadian troops were kept manoeuvring on the hills of Surrey to furnish a moving picture concern with a representation of the battle of Vimy Ridge while their less favored comrades were falling by the hundred in France, let the truth be made known.

Mr. Preston was not alone in his charges. Capt. C. R. Widdifield, who presided at the meeting Saturday, and who will not be accused by those who know him of sensationalism, paved the way and prepared the audience in a measure for what was to follow when he outlined the same charges in introducing the speaker. Capt. Widdifield is a veteran who has seen honorable service. He was in Europe, too, during the election of 1917, and for that reason is entitled to having every consideration shown for what he says.

National honor is of more moment than political gain. No party should be allowed to wade through blood and slaughter to power or to raise itself by making stepping-stones of the thousands of graves of Canadians in Flanders.

PROFESSIONAL JEALOUSY.

THERE IS IN NO profession on earth so marked and lamentable a lack of comradery as among active newspaper workers. There are members of that vocation who never fail to express jubilation over the misfortunes, personal or financial, that may overtake those in the same calling. For example, let an editor be summoned before a tribunal and called to account for some of his utterances, and as a rule his competitors make the most of anything that can be brought to bear against him. Let a newspaper in the discharge of its duty be sued for libel, and it co-laborers, no matter what the extenuating circumstances, join in the hue and cry that the libel was born of malice.

There are exceptions, however. John R. Robinson, editor of the Toronto Telegram, summoned before a parliamentary committee at Ottawa, put up so valiant a defence that even the smaller spirits among Canadian journalists must rejoice secretly to see the profession so ably vindicated. All except the Globe, the high priest of professional jealousy always, the most intolerant of them all, the journal whose leading characteristic has been and still remains a tendency to question the right of existence of any business rival. The Globe on Saturday hurls one of its poisoned darts at the editor of the Telegram, thus demonstrating its inability to forgive or forget a real or fancied grievance against a professional brother.

The Telegram editor has shown himself further a man of parts by refraining from an editorial attack on the members of the committee who assailed him with disaster to themselves. But, then, what he said personally to the members should be regarded as sufficient by any man, even an editor not noted for sweetness of disposition. The Toronto Times commends the showing made and the stand taken by Mr Robinson, and it is a safe conjecture that ninety per cent. of the people who read the account of the proceedings will do likewise.

Journalism is a profession that requires expert service born of years of experience. Notwithstanding this fact it seems to be regarded as the easy target for the criticism of every class and profession in the country. G. B Nicholson, chairman of the high cost of living committee, that has valid reason to remember its encounter with a representative editor, assumed the role of critic of the Canadian press. He conceded that in the main the reports of the proceedings of the committee were fair, but objected to the headline writers in their part of the work, featuring what he was pleased to term the sensational.

By what right can Mr. Nicholson, who is a lumberman by occupation, pose as an authority on the newspaper business? If that committee does anything, the fact is duly noted and featured. If it fails to elicit information from an expert witness, that is the misforunte of the committee and the public alike. And the other members of that committee are no more qualified as press censors than is the chairman himself.

MR. DANIELS THEN AND NOW

General Manager Francis G. Daniels of the Dominion Textile Company, Limited, whose recent evidence before the Cost of Living Committee at Ottawa shows that his concern last year made 310 per cent. on the $500,000 paid for its common stock in 1905, is the same Mr. Daniels who was called as a witness by the newsprint manufacturers at a recent hearing before Paper Controller Pringle. Mr. Daniels' evidence at the Cost of Living Enquiry is an interesting sequel to that which he gave in the newsprint case, for while his testimony at the paper probe merely set forth the method of reckoning costs into selling prices which he thought justified, his latest examination reveals how this method has worked out in practice and the sort of profits which Mr. Daniels apparently had in mind when advocating it.

Counsel for the paper mills called Mr. Daniels as a witness in the newsprint enquiry in support of their contention that the selling prices of newsprint paper should be based, not on th actual cost of the wood used, but upon the replacement value or the cost of cutting and driving wood at the time the paper is sold. The wood used in making paper is brought down the rivers from the limits to the mill, and the "drive," as it is called, takes from one to three years according to the distance to be covered. The cost of the wood at the mill includes driving costs and allowances for the sinkage of logs in the drive, the amounts of which vary in the case of different mills depending upon whether the drive takes one, two or three years. The manufacturers asked to have allowed them those driving costs and sinkage losses and a profit on working capital sufficient to carry on logging operations under such conditions, and, in addition, to be allowed to write up the wood cost so as to reflect the higher cost of cutting wood in 1918 although the wood actually used (of necessity owing to the long drives) was cut one, two or three years previously. Thus the paper manufacturers would take from the publishers an interim profit or unearned increment in connection with the raw material used, as well as a profit on the total manufacturing costs. As the manufacturers had previously contended that the selling price should be such as to allow a profit to the Booth mill as the highest cost mill, and as much of the wood used by the Booth mill takes three years to come down the rivers, it is quite apparent that the paper manufacturers had everything to gain if they could get that mill's cost "boosted" by charging in its wood on this replacement theory.

So the paper manufacturers called a number of witnesses, including Mr. Daniels, to approve the replacement value theory as applied to wood used in newsprint. Mr. Daniels told the Paper Controller that in figuring the cost of raw material into selling prices of textiles it is customary to take "the current market or replacement value on the day you make the price." He thought that this was the right thing to do, and opined that his business compares, or at any rate used to compare, "in a broad way as to conditions or production and margins of profit" with the paper industry.

And the Consequence Was—

Oddly enough, the counsel who examined Mr. Daniels in the cost of living enquiry was Mr. R. A. Pringle, K.C., who, as Paper Controller and Commissioner, heard his evidence in the newsprint enquiry. In the cost of living enquiry Mr. Pringle elicited from Mr. Daniels the fact that at March 31, 1918, his company had 13,900,000 pounds of raw cotton taken from inventory at 22 cents. The price had mounted 14 cents a pound and the company, according to the witness, "had naturally taken the profit on that margin on the way up." Thus, by applying to the textile business even a milder form of the replacement theory than that which the paper mills say should be used in deciding how much publishers should pay for newsprint, Mr. Daniels' company was able to make $2,000,000 in that one instance before it started to manufacture. The report quotes the following question and answer:

Mr. Pringle: "Is it altogether fair to the consumers of this country, when it costs you 23 cents a pound, that you should sell your products on a basis of cotton at 36 cents?"

Mr. Daniels: "That is no way to put it."

It is doubtless a way in which Mr. Daniels disliked to have it put, but it is an extremely interesting way.

and Mr. Pringle's question could be paraphrased to supply to the newsprint industry as follows:

Mr. Pringle: "Is it altogether fair to the paper consumers of this country, when the wood used cost the manufacturer $11.75 per cord that he should sell his paper on a basis of wood at $17.75 per cord?"

This was exactly the issue in the paper enquiry, and Mr. Daniels was strong for replacement, rather than inventory value in fixing a selling price. But his latest evidence shows that the profits with which he is most familiar, and which he would naturally have present to his mind, are as high as 310 per cent. on the figure at which common stock was acquired, and that the practice which he justified took out of the pocket of the consumer an extra $2,000,000 for no other reason than that raw cotton advanced in price after Domniion Textiles bought.

WIT AND WISDOM

Fleeting Ills.

Leary—Still waiting for your ship to come in, eh?

Weary—Oh, they're come. Whole fleet of 'em. All hardships.

Good Intentions Frustrated.

"I'm goin' to stop bein' kind and helpful to people," said little Johnny.

"How is that?" asked his mother.

"Well, it's this way. At school today I saw Tommy Jones putting a pin in the master's chair, so just as the master was about to sit down I pulled away the chair. The master sat down on the floor, and when he got up he licked me for pulling away the chair, and then Tommy Jones licked me for interfering. Yes; I'm going to stop helpin' people!"

Almost As Good.

To instil into the mind of his son sound wisdom and business precepts was Mosenheimer senior's earnest endeavor.

He taught his offspring much, including the business advantages of bankruptcy, failures and fires—"Two bankruptcies equal one failure, two failures one fire," etc.

Then Mosenheimer junior looked up brightly—"Fadder," he asked, "is marriage a failure?"

"Vell, my boy," was his parent's reply, "if you marry a really very vealthy voman, marriage is almost as good as a failure!"

Left It To Them.

For some reason the old-fashioned darky always affords amusement in a court of justice. His sense of justice is illustrated by the following story of Uncle Mose.

Uncle Mose, needing money, sold his pig to a wealthy northern lawyer, who has just bought the neighboring plantation. After a time, needing more money, he stole the pig and resold it, this time to a Judge Pickens, who lived "down the road a piece." Soon afterwards the two gentlemen met, and upon comparing notes, suspected what had happened. They confronted Uncle Mose. The old man cheerfully admitted his guilt.

"Well," demanded Judge Pickens, "what are you going to do about it?"

"Blessed ef I knew, Jedge," replied Uncle Mose with a broad grin. "I'se no lawyer; I reckon I'll have to let yo' two gen'men settle it between yo'selves."

The Right of Way.

Because he had the right of way
He sleeps within his grave today,
He had the right to rush ahead,
Which cheers his friend now he is dead.

His widow works and hums a song,
Because he wasn't in the wrong;
His children find their future bright
Because their dad was in the right,
He isn't here their bills to pay,
To share with them their hours of play.

All day the mother's strength is spent
To pay the grocer and the rent,
The debts grow larger day by day,
But father had the right of way!
Oh, right of way, what cruel shame
Must others suffer in your name!

PLEA FOR THE PLAYGROUNDS

Editor Review: Allow me through your columns to make an appeal to my fellow citizens that they will enable the Playground Association to continue its good work by giving generously to its funds. Your paper has kindly undertaken to accept donations and I shall be only too glad to acknowledge donations sent directly to me.

During the terrible war which is now past, we were all trained in the art of giving. Now that we have acquired the art do not let us lose it.

There is no more deserving object for your generosity than the Playgrounds Association. It is wholly dependent upon the citizens whether it shall continue its work or not.

Six supervisors will start their work on the 1st of July and we must have funds with which to pay their salaries which will run into a sum of nine hundred dollars for the two months. We must also have a little wherewith to buy loose equipment such as baseballs, bats, gloves, basketballs, etc. We decided therefore to ask for the sum of $1,000 which ought to be quickly raised by the city of Peterborough.

There are over one thousand kiddies in Peterborough who will not be able to get out into the country for a holiday this summer and if the Playgrounds Association is not an active concern, they will be playing on the dusty streets or in the back lots without somebody to keep them out of danger. Some may even have the misfortune to get drowned in the river. Two little kiddies have had close shaves already this summer.

Our supervisors will look after them every day from nine in the morning until 5 in the evening and save mothers a great deal of worry. They will be on the school playgrounds and off the streets. They will be provided with swings, sandboxes and other fast equipment, which is supplied by the school board, and loose equipment as mentioned above. They are taught organized games and the spirit of fair play, to be courteous to one another and their elders and are also taken to the bathing beach every day to be taught the rudiments of the art of swimming. In short they are given a healthily good time and the supervisors help their parents to teach them what is necessary to be sport-loving, fair-minded Britons.

I have no doubt that this resume of the activities of the association will influence a great many who were formerly ignorant as to its objects.

We have already received donations as the appended list will show but the thousand dollars should be in sight before the 1st of July to encourage the association to go ahead with its work.

The newspaper officers are in the heart of the city and are undoubtedly passed by most citizens several times a day and it ought to be an easy matter to drop in and give a little to the fund.

Now let everyone get busy and assure the kiddies of the association's help this year also.

Yours truly,
J. W. WORTH,

P. S.—It would be very gratifying if a worker in each factory would start a list amongst the employees as have already been done in one factory.

THE CITY PARKS

Editor Review: I read with considerable interest your very excellent article on the fine parks of our city and the manner in which they are being kept this season. There is nothing that adds more to the beauty of a city than well-kept parks, or so more attractive to visitors.

It is unfortunate that our street car system is not handled to better advantage for the benefit of our citizens and visitors. For example, one living north of Hunter street and wishing to visit our most beautiful Jackson Park have to use those cars and then are dumped out at Bonacord street and have to tramp through an inch or more of dust, a distance of at least a quarter of a mile before reaching this cool and restful resort.

There are two cars running on Monaghan road—long Charlotte to Hunter street. Why not put on of these cars on the Jackson Park line and take these two cars to Central Park. By so doing the citizens would be taken right to our three attractive breathing spots. The distance from Park and Charlotte streets to the terminal on Monaghan road is much less than one half the distance to Jackson Park. Why not use one car only on Monaghan road and run to Park and Charlotte streets. As the traffic on this line is not very heavy—one car would handle the people. It is not a very business looking proposition to see three cars at the junction of Park and Charlotte streets making transfers. There one goes a few short blocks and finds four cars on the corner of George and Charlotte streets, blocking the traffic on one of our busiest corners.

By making the above changes in the route of these cars, it would not only add to the revenue of the company, but it would give many of our older citizens an opportunity to visit these cool and healthful spots, citizens who are now prevented from doing so by the infirmities of old age and the difficulty of making so many changes.

BROKEN BOTTLE DID IT.

Barefoot Lad Disabled by Stepping on Fragment.

Someone who carelessly threw an empty bottle on the road at the corner of Lock and Romaine streets was responsible for spoiling Saturday evening and Sunday for a young barefoot lad who ran over it. His mother, who was with him at the time, bound up the cut foot as well as she could with her handkerchief and they returned home on the street car. Whether the contents of the bottle were harmful or not it is impossible to say, but the use of the empty exterior is a menace to public safety that everyone should do their best to suppress.

LESSONS IN RIGHT LIVING

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

A conservative estimate of the number of persons in America who have syphilis would give an army of syphilitics rather greater in numbers than the United States army at the present time. It is also fair to estimate that one-fourth of the rank and file in this vast number of syphilitics persons of both sexes are innocent victims of the disease.

Syphilis is caused by a germ called the spirochaeta pallida. This germ is present in the primary sore of syphilis, the chancre, and also in the so called mucous patches or canker-like sores which comes in the mouth and throat with the secondary stage of the disease. So far as known syphilis is not communicable throughout its entire course, but only in the primary and secondary stage, which continues for a year or two. In the ulcers or obstinate sores appearing in the later years of syphilis there is little or no possibility of contagion—a fortunate thing for the public. I recall a cigarmaker who had a syphilitic ulcer on the palm, yet continued to roll cigars of a fancy brand and market them for years wtih no evidence of any infection of smokers who patronized the brand.

Prevention of syphilis in the guilty does not concern us here. We are speaking of prevention of syphilis in innocent persons.

Metchnikoff and Roux suggested in 1906 that if one who has been exposed to syphilis will rub well into the area of contact an ointment containing 33 per cent. of calomel the infection is much less liable to occur. These authorities advised that the skin so treated should first be thoroughly washed with soap and water.

Kissing has been the means of conveyance of thousands of cases of innocent syphilis. Unfortunately for the innocent party, one with active syphilis may appear cleanly and healthy and may be of irreproachable character and high moral standing. There is nothing at all snobbish about this disease, and nothing immortal about it. Doctors and nurses attending persons with syphilis may acquire the infection through any trifling abrasion about the fingers. Barbers are subject to the same risk. Dentists must be particularly careful.

Handling a pencil or other objects just taken from the mouth of a person with syphilis is certainly a risky thing, besides being a disguating thing. Handling a program smeared with saliva from a man's thumb or a transfer indirectly expectorated upon by a conductor or drinking from a soda glass washed in the customary insanitary way of the soda fountain in a rush of business certainly subjects one to a chance of infection with syphilis, especially if there be a trifling scratch or sore or abrasion about the fingers, lips or tongue.

The Nose and the Ear.

"1. Does mucus in the nose have any effect on the ear?

"2. Do tonsils ever grow back in after being removed?

"3. Has constipation any direct effect on tuberculous? M. B."

1. Mucus is the normal secretion of any mucous membrane such as that which lines the nasal and ear cavities. Infections or inflammations of the nasal passages or throat often involve the Estachian tube and the cavity of the ear. In fact, the business part of the ear should be considered a mere branch or offshoot of the nose cavity. Nearly all serious ear troubles are secondary to infection or inflammation in the nose cavity.

2. If any portion of tonsil tissue is left in the throat, it may undergo enlargement later, in a young person, if the original faulty hygiene is not corrected.

3. No.

Chronic Appendicitis.

"Is there any way to overcrome chronic appendicitis without having an operation? P. J. D."

I know of no cure except removal of the appendix. Many cases of chronic appendicitis ultimately proceed to recovery without operation. It is important for one so affected to make sure that every possible focus of infection, such as silent dental root infections, infected tonsils and the like, shall be removed. A large share of all cases of appendicitis, both acute and chronic, have their origin in such septic foci as infected tonsils and teeth that have been unskillfully filled or treated by incompetent dentists.

Dandruff.

"Please suggest some simple remedy for dandruff. R. C."

Dissolve in an ounce of any toilet water ten grains of salicyclic acid and ten grains of resorcin. If the scalp is dry, and five or ten drops of castor oil. Rub some of this into the scalp once or twice a day. Grain alcohol may be used in place of the toilet water, if preferred.

LOCAL LIBERALS SELECT THEIR DELEGATES TO THE CONVENTION

Will Be Represented at Ottawa and Toronto—W. T. R. Preston at the Meeting Saturday Makes Scathing Arraignment of War Record of the Administration.

Capt. C. R. Widdifield, ex-Mayor J. J. Duffus, Joseph Wearing, Ald. Morrison and W. G. Telford, Smith, have been appointed a committee by the local Liberals to select delegates to the provincial convention of the party which will be held in Toronto on Thursday. This action was taken at a meeting of the party Saturday afternoon in Victoria Hall. G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., will be a delegate by virtue of his position. Each riding is entitled to four delegates besides the representative, and it is required that the representation shall consist of two men and the same number of women. It is understood that two of the committee mentioned will be delegates and two alternates, the committee to select the ladies to accompany them.

The Dominion convention of the party will be held at Ottawa in August. Mr. R. R. Hall, as the candidate at the last election, will be a delegate. The others selected Saturday were G. N. Gordon, Dr. Malcolm McCulloch, and G. Moloney of Ennismore. George Ball made a plea for a Labor man on the representation—William Stevens, secretary of the Trades Council, being present and taking an active part in the proceedings—but the selection of Mr. Gordon was regarded as a concession to the workingmen, who as a class will approve his appointment.

Mr. Preston's Address.

The attendance was not large, but those present listened to a blood-curdling and hair-raising address by W. T. R. Preston of Port Hope, organizer of the party, who confined his remarks almost exclusively to the war record of the present Government, especially with reference to the election methods employed among the men overseas in December, 1917. Secretary Widdifield, who presided in the absence of President J. J. Hartley, and who was overseas at the time in question, paved the way for what Mr. Preston had to say by outlining the charges and declaring that men in England were given their chance to vote for the Union Government or tp be sent to the trenches.

Mr. Preston's address Saturday contained the same charges that were made in the House soon after the election by M Copp, on information supplied by Mr. Preston, who represented the Liberal party in the election overseas. It was practically the same address that he has delivered time and again throughout the country. He demands a Royal Commission and declares that he is in a position to prove his charges or accept the consequences. One of his assertions was that there is many a grave in Flanders today filled by a young man who refused to be coerced into voting against his convictions. Mr. Preston also made considerable of the fact that it has been disclosed recently by the High Cost of Living Committee that Sir Robert Borden owns upwards of one thousand shares of stock in a packing house at Winnipeg, a concern that has two and a half million pounds of foodstuffs in storage and that last year the net profits amounted to fifty per cent., out of which a dividend of eight per cent. was paid.

Platform for the Party.

The members of the party recognize the fact that they have no platform to meet present day conditions. But they are preparing to provide for this lack. Mr Gillespie stated that a policy committee, chosen from the Opposition members of the Legislature, have been at work for some time framing a platform which will be submitted to the party at the convention on Thursday.

R. R. Hall made a brief address dealing with the Dominion situation and outlining the platform which is likely to be adopted. There is to be tariff revision. There is to be note taken of industrial unrest, and the workingmen are to be given an equal chance with other classes in the community. Farmers, too, are to be made the special subjects of legislation which will meet their present demands.

After a vote of thanks to Mr. Preston for his address the meeting adjourned.

CENTRAL LEAGUE STANDING.

McLean, Neb.—"I want to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all women who suffer from any functional disturbance, as it has done me more good than all the doctor's medicine. Since taking it I have a fine healthy baby girl and have gained in health and strength. My husband and I both praise your medicine to all suffering women."—Mrs. JOHN KOPPELMANN, R. No. 1, McLean, Nebraska.

This famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, has been restoring women of America to health for more than forty years and it will well pay any woman who suffers from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, backache, headaches, nervousness or "the blues" to give this successful remedy a trial.

For special suggestions in regard to your ailment write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of its long experience is at your service.

LEGAL FIRM IN TORONTO ASKS FOR EXPLANATION

Say That Letter by Jas. G. Guise Bagley Recently Printed in Review Reflects on Russell-Townsend Firm.

The Review has received the following communication from Tilley, Johnston, Thomson and Parmenter, a legal firm in Toronto, a communication which carries its own explanation:

"We have been consulted by the Russell Townsend Company with regard to an article which appeared in the Peterborough Daily Evening Review under date June 17th, 1919, entitled 'Engineer Barber's Contract' and purporting to be signed by one Jas. G. Guise-Bagley.

"Mr. Guise-Bagley's letter is replete with innuendos and suggestions reflecting on the honesty and integrity of our clients and indicates that they have entered into corrupt arrangements with the engineer.

"There is not the slightest ground for any suspicion and our clients feel the insinuation very keenly and we have advised them that they are entitled to call upon you to publish in your paper a clear and explicit statement expressing your conviction that you have no doubt as to the integrity of our clients and as to the propriety of their relations with the engineer.

"We cannot allow the matter to rest as it is and must ask you to let us hear from you immediately."

Nothing that has ever appeared in the news or editorial columns of The Review can be construed as the slightest reflection from either Engineer Barber or the Russell-Townsend Company. From the very first this paper has always recognized the fitness of Mr. Barber for the duties for which he was selected and has maintained that his record in the business world showed that he was worthy of every confidence. Nothing that Mr. Barber has ever said or done during his connection with the city's business has in the slightest degree shaken this faith in him.

The same is true with regard to The Review's attitude toward the Russell-Townsend people. We have always maintained that so long as the Council favored the cost-plus plan the tender of the Toronto firm was the only one worthy of consideration, and that that company's record was above question.

As a lawyer Mr. Bagley objects to the contract that the city has with Mr. Barber as giving him too much latitude. Mr. Barber is not responsible for the terms of that contract. If there are any loopholes in it—which is a question for lawyers to decide—the reference is not warranted that a man of the reputation of Mr. Barber or a firm of the standing of the Russell-Townsend people, would avil themselves of them.

If any one has cast a reflection either upon Mr. Barber or the firm in question, The Review disclaims all participation in such suspicions, and we do not believe that Mr. Bagley intented anything of the kind when he criticized the terms of the contract.

—ED. REVIEW.

WHERE LIVING COMES HIGHER

In Siberia Suits Cost $240 and a Quart of Milk $5

Washington, June 23.—The high cost of living here is a misnomer compared to that in Siberia. The Red Cross gave out the following statement relative to prices obtaining there:

"A man's suit of clothes of cheapest quality $240.00, trousers $60.00 a pair of shoes $55.00, one yard of cotton cloth $12.00, spool of cotton thread $8.00 to $12.00, a cake of soap $6.00 and coffee $15.00 a pound.

"In the Pirot District, which both the American Red Cross and the Army Food Mission have penetrated a loaf of bread costs $1.00 one pound of sugar $5.00 a quart of kerosene $6.00 a pair of ladies' shoes $6.00 and underwear $20.00 a suit.

The U. S. Red Cross announces that the information service for the benefit of relatives of soldiers abroad will be discontinued July 1.

RUNAWAY'S SUDDEN STOP.

Team of Horses Collided with Drinking Trough.

A runaway team belonging to Mr. Carl Waller came to a sudden stop when they attempted to straddle the circular trough at the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer streets today at noon. Both horses were thrown to the ground and the rig was overturned. The horses had their feet badly cut and the rods underneath the wagon were smashed. The trough itself, though made of iron, was badly mauled, the water supply pipe being broken.

The accident occurred while Mr. Waller was engaged in delivering milk to a house on Sherbrooke street. He is not able to say what frightened the horses and set them off on their wild gallop.

Pitched battles at Waterbury, Conn., between police and brass factories strikers resulted in a number on both sides being injured, and 34 strikers were arrested.

Mrs Mary Adams and Mrs. Martha Camperton, Wilmington, Del., believed to be the oldest twins in the U. S., celebrated their 83rd birthday.

Long-Wearing Stockings for Active Boys

The rough and tumble games in the school-yard are mighty hard on stockings. Boys will play hard, so we make a stocking specially for them—the Buster Brown Stocking.

This stocking has a two-ply leg and three-ply heel and toe. It is knitted from extra-long yarn—spun by ourselves to make sure it is right.

Special training is necessary to knit Buster Brown quality into hosiery. We have spent years training our employees to knit Buster Brown Stockings.

Because we do all these things, you'll find them longer-wearing. You'll be pleased to see how seldom they appear in the mending basket. You'll find the cost of clothing your boy lower.

BUSTER BROWN'S SISTER'S STOCKING

Buster Brown's Sister's Stocking for the girls is a splendid looking stocking at a moderate price. A two-thread English mercerized lisle stocking, that is shaped to fit and wears very well indeed.

Colors Black, Leather Shade Tan, Pink, Blue and White.

And they're mighty fine looking too. Good looks are knit into Buster Brown Stockings. You'll find your boy will be proud of them.

Sold everywhere. Ask your dealer for "Buster Brown" durable hosiery.

ANNUAL TRIBUTE TO THE MEMORY OF THE DEPARTED

Oddfellows Decorate Graves of Comrades in Little Lake Cemetery With the Usual Ceremony.

Decoration Day was fittingly celebrated yesterday afternoon at Little Lake Cemetery by Otonabee Lodge, No. 13, and Peterborough Lodge, No. 111, of the Independent Order of Oddfellows. The members of these two lodges met at their headquarters on George street and, headed by the Great War Veterans' band, marched to the cemetery. In all, about two hundred members took part, being led by Col. J. W. Miller, for twenty-nine years the marshal of Otonabee Lodge. Each member carried a bouquet of flowers, and the whole procession formed a striking spectacle as it filed through the cemetery gates while the band appropriately played "Abide With Me."

After the Oddfellows' special choir had sung "Nearer, My God, to Thee," a brief prayer was offered by Acting Chaplain N. L. Campbell. The singing of "Rock of Ages" was followed by the work of decorating the graves. For this purpose the members were divided into six sections, the leaders of which were Bros. Carman Gould, Richard Ford and Frank Wise, of Otonabee Lodge, and Bros Harry Campbell, Robert Martin and William Barry of Peterborough Lodge.

Bro. Henry Turner of Otonabee Lodge, in the capacity of Acting Noble Grand, read the Oddfellows' memorial service. In it he pointed out that death does not sever the relationship between the members, and the flowers are a token that all will again be united in the future world where death is unknown. At the conclusion of the reading, another hymn was sung, and the procession with the band at its head marched back to the lodge rooms.

A number of convicts with good records will be temporarily paroled in Kansas to help harvest the crops. They will be paid regular wages.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Dreher were awakened when their young daughter fell out of bed. They found the basement in flames, and escaped in night clothing.

CAR DESERVES SERVICE MEDAL

SO SAYS SOLDIER WHO WITNESSED DETROIT MOTOR OVERCOME BIG OBSTACLES IN FRANCE.

BEAUTY MARRED MANY TIMES BY SHRAPNEL HOLES, BUT STILL ON JOB WITH ARMY ON THE RHINE.

Compelling evidence of the warm admiration held for Dodge Brothers motor car by members of the American Expeditionary Forces, is contained in an endless success of letters received by the Detroit manufacturers from uniformed men of every rank. More than 14,000 Dodge Brothers motor cars served with the American army and the following letter is typical of the comments of those who saw the car in action:

"While reading some New York papers recently I noticed that while other cars were praised highly (in their advertisements for the good work done in overseas service, nothing was said of the Dodge car.

"I have been over here on active service for a year and have been driving a Dodge Brothers Sedan for the last eight months. This little car has made 27,000 miles and has never been laid up for motor, transmission or any other car trouble. Its work during this time cannot be praised too highly. In all the big battles of the Third Division, namely, Chateau-Thierry, St. Mihied and Argonne, the little Dodge has never once failed to respond. In the last American campaign I have driven it up hills and through roads where other cars of high price were forced to detour. I have been through roads with mud right to the hub caps and places where only tanks and artillery tractors could make their way.

"I am sure if decorations were given to motor vehicles on their good work performed in war service the Dodges that are on duty with the A. E. F. would receive the lion's share. Although her beauties were marred many times by shrapnel holes, she is still on the job with the Army on the Rhine. Have used only two sets of tires in all the 27,000 miles and the roads of northern France are very different from Riverside Drive. As for oil, I have used from the thinnest grade to the heaviest transmission oil and have never been troubled with loose bearings. I am sure that is a wonderful record for a car that is so low in price.

"Hoping this letter gives the Dodge Manufcturers a little satisfaction for the valuable work of their car in the A. E. F., I am, respectfully.

PVT. FRED W. DONLON,
Hdqrs. 4th U. S. Inf.,
3rd Division."

The letter was written March 8, 1919, in Germany.

BIG HUNTER STREET TENT WAS CROWDED LAST NIGHT

Interest in the Revival Services is Growing Steadily—Evangelist Kennedy Preached on Story of Jacob.

The great interest being taken in the union evangelistic campaign, being conducted nightly in the big tent on Hunter street, was shown last evening when the attendance was so large that for a while it looked as though there would not be seats enough for all. Upwards of 700 people were in attendance.

Evangelist Kennedy's addresses are becoming increasingly interesting. Last evening he held the attention of the large audience throughout with a gripping description of the characteristics of Isaac and Jacob as portrayed in the book of Genesis. From the life of Jacob he brought home the truth of the statement made in Galetians that "whatever a man soweth that will be also reap." He said that while God may appear to overlook sins he does not do so and in the end the sinner has to pay for the results of his sin. He showed that Jacob deceived Essau by defrauding him out of his birthright with the result that years later he had to humble himself before Essau and address him as his lord. He was forced also to do all that he could to make restitution. Jacob deceived Laban and latter was deceived by Laban. In the same way the speaker dealt with other Bible characters showing that David committed certain grievous sins only to have these same sins repeated in his own household among his own children. Quoting examples such as these he stated that if a man sells whiskey he may expect that someone will sell it to his own boys, that the persons who sows slanders will have slander spoken about them, and that if a man beats his wife he may expect to have his son-in-law beat his daughter. Sinners' sins are sure to find them out.

Mr. Kennedy also gave some good advice to young women as to the type of man they should marry. He told them never to marry a man who was not good to his mother and sisters or a man who was not willing to put money on the collection plate. There is sure to be something wrong with such a man. Early in his ministry as an evangelist he said he used to have young married women come to him and ask him to pray for their husbands. At first he used to have considerable sympathy for them but later found that they had run away from home and insisted on marrying men to whom their parents were opposed. These women often suffer from the results of their own self-will. He warned girls not to marry any one close to kin to themselves, and said that every couple after marriage should settle on one church and stick to it. Where the husband insists on going to one church and the wife to another the children are apt to grow up and not go to any. Girls should demand just as high a standard of morals as the men demand of them. If they would they could work a great improvement among the men.

Tonight Mr. Kennedy's theme will be "An Overcrowded Hotel" and tomorrow night he will speak on "A Second Chance."

The singing is becoming quite a feature of the meetings and is greatly enjoyed by the audience as well as by the considerable number of passers-by on Hunter street who often stand and listen to it. The features of the singing last evening were a male quartette from the St. James' Methodist Church choir and a duet by the Hartshorn sisters. Both of these numbers were given by special request. There singers had taken part in previous meetings and their singing had been so much appreciated that they were urged to sing again. Dr. Smith, of Woodstock, who presided at the organ in St. Paul's Church yesterday, acted as pianist at both Saturday's and last night's meetings. Last evening Mrs. Smith sang a solo, which was greatly appreciated. This evening the Mark Street Methodist Church choir will direct the singing. Tomorrow evening the Trinity Church choir will lead and Wednesday, St. Paul's.

On Thursday of this week an all-day prayer meeting will be held in the basement of George Street Church. The meeting will start at 10 a.m. and last until 5. People are invited to attend during the noon hour. Evangelist Kennedy said last evening that often at the close of his compaigns people bear testimony that the greatest blessing they received was at the all-day prayer meeting. No collections were taken at the week night meetings last week but a collection was taken last night. A special collection is to be taken a little later to meet the expenses of the campaign. The Methodist ministers of the city are still out of the city at conferences and therefore are unable to take part in the services. Last evening Rev. Messrs. Webb, Doner and Pogue assisted in the services. Now that the weather is cooler an increase in the attendance is expected.

The following are extracts from from of Mr. Kennedy's addresses.

SPARKS FROM KENNEDY'S ANVIL

Some folks are good, all right; but they are good for nothing. Some are all right in their way, but they don't weigh much.

Some are so proper they never do anything.

Most people want others to be just like them. If we were all like them we would be of as little account as they are.

When God made you He never made anybody like you before, and He is not going to again. Probably it is just as well.

David killed a giant with a sling and a stone and was a warrior all his life, but never tried it again—it was out of date.

Some churches want to have their services the same fifty-two Sundays of the year. After a couple of Sundays the devil gets on to it, and you can't beat him.

Until you get your church as free and easy as your home you will have no converts. Where God's spirit is there is liberty.

Some folks never laugh in church unless you promise not to tell. We won't tell, will we?

If people would pray instead of criticise, it would help God's work more.

I wish I knew Joshua's secret in keeping people's mouths shut for six days.

It's a very bad thing to have your mouth open even in the night. If you were to wake up and find it open you should get right up and shut it.

The busy man is the only man who has time to help you.

No man should say a word anywhere that he would not say in the presence of woman.

Never do that of which you would be ashamed if made public.

Never do anything you would despise in another.

If your wife and mother knew you better they might love you less.

Good men are not as good as we think, and bad men are not as bad as we imagine.

It would be a good thing if some folks would backslide from what they have now.

There is no hurt that hurts like the hurt that comes from seeing another do the work that we thought we alone could do.

Getting through life without any sense of humor is like riding in a buggy without springs. Some would have better health if they would laugh more

HOW TOWNSHIPS ARE ASSESSED

The standing committee on roads and bridges of the County Council brought in the following report, which was passed on Saturday:

That the report of the chairman be received.

That the sum of $50 be granted to Smith Township to be expended on the road in front of the House of Refuge.

That $150 be granted to Harvey Township to improve North Buckhorn road on condition that Harvey expend $150 and the Provincial Government $300.

That Messrs. Darling and Nichols have the Douglas bridge in Dummer repaired.

That 50 per cent. of the cost of construction of Clement's bridge in Warsaw be borne by the county.

That the Electric Light Company of Havelock be requested to refrain from keeping in stop logs other than necessary for power purposes at the Burnt Mill bridge, Belmont.

That Messrs. Nicholls, Darling and Brown be authorized to have Girven's bridge rebuilt.

That Messrs. Nicholls, Eason, Brown and Squire have Birdsall's bridge, Asphodel, rebuilt.

That the county bear half the cost of rebuilding Freeman's bridge, Belmont.

That Messrs. McIntosh, Nicholls, Brown and Squire have the Alma St. Bridge, Norwood, rebuilt.

That the county bear half the cost of repairs to the Cedar Creek bridge in Burleigh.

That the chairman, Mr. Nicholls, have Salmon Creek bridge inspected and report at the Fall session unless immediate repairs are necessary, also inspect Molyneaux bridge at the same time.

That at the time Hynes and Apsley bridges are being inspected the committee inspect Depot bridge and report at the Fall session.

That Havelock be granted $150 to be spent on street improvement.

G. B. Nicholls, chairman.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, June 23.—News of Germany's unconditional acceptance of the Peace terms came to Wall street by way of London around 1.30 p.m., ten or twelve minutes later than the Associated Press flashed it from Paris. The Stock Markets hardened immediately though with little show of activity. Some important stocks arose above the high prices of opening after their several reactions.

TO APPEAR AT THE PETERBOROUGH CHAUTAUQUA, WEEK OF JULY 7TH

SIGNALLER TOM SKEYHILL.

Theodore Roosevelt said that he would rather appear on the public platform with Tom Skeyhill than with any other living man.

Skeyhill is an Australian who came out of the Gallipoli Campaign seriously injured and totally blind. His sight was miraculously restored. He has been the sensation of the platform in London, New York, and other great cities. He will speak on the last day telling how they fought the Turk in the Gallipoli Campaign.

THEATRICAL

Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greely in "Courage For Two"

Two Famous and Popular Stars Are Presented in Interesting and Striking Motion Picture.

Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greeley, the exceedingly popular motion picture stars, who have appeared with great success in such big hits as "The Beloved Blackmailer," "By Hook or Crook," "Love in a Hurry," and other pictures, are co-starred in another interesting, striking and entertaining feature. The name of this new World production is "Courage for Two," and it will be presented by the Grand Theatre today, Tuesday and Wednesday.

In "Courage for Two" Mr. Blackwell assumes a double role, the first he has played for a long, long time and his two characterizations in this picture are among the best bits of acting he has ever done. His two roles are those of Cal Douglas, an East Side gang leader, and his cousin, Anthony Hopkins, a millionaire and a coward.

Miss Greeley appears in the role of Marion Westervelt who, like Cal Douglas lives on the East Side of New York, but who longs for the better things of life. Better things come to her in a surprising way and she learns to love greatly.

Hamilton Smith, who has written the continuity for a number of World successes, wrote the story and scenario of "Courage for Two," and in penning the story for this picture he produced one of the most unusual and striking photoplays of the season. He certainly got away from the beaten track of pictures in writing this production and in addition he evolved a screen drama that is also interesting and entertaining to the extreme.

"Courage for Two" is a picture which will be thoroughly enjoyed by every film fan who sees it.

MILTON SILLS, TOM SANTSCHI AND HASSARD SHORT IN "THE STRONGER VOW."

A cast of especial excellence surrounds Geraldine Farrar in "The Stronger Vow," her newest Goldwyn Picture, which comes to the Grand today as an added feature.

As in her previous Goldwyn production, Milton Sills, distinguished in many Broadway productions before he elected to appear in the silent drama, is the diva's leading man with a role more forceful than any in which he has yet appeared.

Tom Santschi, the veteran screen player, whose brilliant performances contributed not a little to the success of Miss Farrar's recent screen triumps, is once more seen in a part commensurate for his ability. Remembered for his brilliant work in "The Hell Cat" and "Shadows," Santchi eclipses his characterizations in both productions by his skilful portrayal of the villian in "The Stronger Vow." Santchi was a pronounced favorite with picture lovers long before many of the present-day screen celebrities began work in the cinema.

John Davidson, who can always be counted on for a sterling performance in character parts, is making his first appearance as a Goldwyn player in a role admirably fitted to his talents. Davidson has been seen in scores of worth-while screen productions, including "An Alien," "Power of Decision," "The Wall Between," "A Million a Minute," "The Green Cloak," "The Danger Signal," and "The Pawn of Fate."

An important role in "The Stronger Vow," is in the capable hands of Hassard Short, who distinguished himself by his clever performance with Geraldine Farrar in "The Turn of the Wheel," her first Goldwyn Picture. Probably best remembered for his character of the young brother in "Peg o' My Heart," Short achieved a big reputation as a screen player before making his first appearance in "The Turn of the Wheel" won marked commendation from the famous star.

Kate Lester, high in the estimation of motion Picture devotees for her grand dame characterizations, also is well cast in the new Farrar production. Miss Lester gave a splendid account of herself in "The Social Secretary," and "Today," and recently played a prominent part in "A man and his Money," Tom Moore's fourth Goldwyn starring vehicle.

MAY FIX WHEAT PRICE

Conference at Ottawa Considering Proposition

Ottawa, June 23. The Canadian Government probably will establish a minimum price for wheat this year. The conference with respect to handling, financing, and marketing the crop has not reached a conclusion, but the suggestion is made that a minimum price be prescribed for payment when the wheat is delivered to the elevator and that when the final transaction is made the farmer should get whatever extra amount is coming to them.

Another proposition is that a board be created to go into the whole subject and particularly to make arrangements to secure markets for the season's crops before they are all corralled by the United States grain trade. It is reported in banking circles that the British Government will finance its purchases on the same basis as last year.

WOULD BAR JAPANESE

Asks Congress to Shut Out "Huns of the East."

Washington, June 23. Senator Phelan of California, made a strong appeal before the Immigration Committee today for legislation that would permanently bar Japan from flocking into the United States. Mr. Phelan warned America to be ready for war on the Pacific and appealed to Congress to save the Western states from "economic death" at the hands of the "Huns of the East".

Conditions in the agricultural area of the Pacific States daily are becoming more unbearable, Mr. Phelan told the Senators. He reported "thousands of cases" of men who had gone with families to California and purchased land, only to find in a year or two that they were surrounded by "neighbors who recognized no standard of civilation or living." All the Japanese seek is money and there has been no limit to which they would go to increase their possessions, the California Senator asserted.

CANNON-BALL SCOTT COULD NOT SAVE DAY FOR LINDSAY

Visitors Were Defeated Here Saturday by Score of 5 to 2—Scott, With Injured Wrist, Struck Out Ten Home Players.

A terror to us, a tantalizer to the Lindsayites and a thriller to everybody from the mascots right up to the chief umpire—that was the situation in the ninth innings on Saturday when Lindsay had the bases full and no men out. The score was five to two in favor of Peterborough, but a couple of hits at that time would probably have tied the talley. It was a difficult situation, but a fine catch by clancy in left field, combined with a serious coaching error on the part of Lindsay, allowed a double play and the situation was relieved. At that, Garnett made a fine dash to get back to third after crossing the home plate, but the ball beat him by what would be called in racing parlance a good length.

Swanston's batting was another feature, and his work Saturday entirely justified his manager in advancing him to the fifth position. The first time he came up to bat he fouled so many good ones that Scott eventually let him walk, and thereafter he had very little difficulty in registering a hit every time he stepped up to the plate. In the fifth innings Cavanah drove a hot liner which Scott stopped, the ball striking him on his right wrist. For a few minutes it seemed probable that Lindsay would have to put in another pitcher, but he stayed, with the game, allowing only five hits whereas in the first four innings the Petes had obtained six.

First Inning.

Lindsay—Stark flied out to Clancy; an error by Kirn put Bates on first, and another by Hagerman let him go to second and Hill to first; Coombs fanned, and Workman flied out to Cavanagh. No runs, no hits, two errors.

Peterborough—Cherrett walked; Long and Cavanah fanned and Clancy flied out to McMahon. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Second Inning.

Carew singled; Garnett grounded out to Long; McMahon flied out to Jackson; Scott made first on Cherrett's error and Stark struck out. No runs, one hit, one error.

Swanston walked; Jackson fanned; Hagerman singled; Heenan doubled, scoring Swanston; Kirn fanned; Cherrett's single brought in another and Long fanned. Two runs, three hits, no errors.

Third Inning.

Bates was thrown out at first; Hill singled; Coombs filed out to Heenan, and Workman struck out. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Cavanah fanned; Clancy and Swanston's doubles combined with Jackson's single and Coomb's error netted two runs; Hagerman flied out to Hill and Heenan fanned. Two runs; three hits, one error.

Fourth Inning.

Carew, Garnett and McMahon went out in succession on a strike-out, a fly to Jackson, and a throw-out at first. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Kirn and Cherrett were thrown out at first and Workman made a neat catch of Long's liner. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fifth Inning.

Scott fanned; Stark singled, and Bates hit into a double play, Kirn to Hagerman to Long. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Cavanah and Clancy were thrown out at first; Swanston singled, but Jackson went out, Stark to Coombs. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Sixth Inning.

Hill flied out to Jackson; Coombs grounded to Long; Workman singled and Carew fanned. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Hagerman flied out to McMahon; Heenan singled; Kirn struck out, and Cherrett flied to Garnett. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Seventh Inning.

Garnett reached first on Cherrett's error, but was caught stealing second; McMahon was thrown out at first; Scott reached first on Jackson's error; Stark doubled, scoring Scott and Bates flied out to Clancy. One run, one hit, two errors.

Long singled; Cavanah and Clancy fanned; Swanston singled, scoring Long, but was forced out at second. One run, two hits, no errors.

Eighth Inning.

Hill failed to make first; Coombs singled and Workman drove him in, but was caught trying to steal second; Logan flied out to Cavanagh. One runs, two hits, no errors.

Hagerman flied out to Workman, Heenan singled; Kirn hit to Scott who got Heenan off first. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Ninth Inning.

Garnett singled, and errorsly Hagerman and Cavanah filled the bases; Stark flied out to Clancy who caught Garnett off third and Bates was thrown out at first. No runs, one hit, two errors.

GOBERT WILL COMPETE FOR THE WORLD TENNIS TITLE

Wonderful Showing Made By French Expert Places Him in Front Rank of Candidates

The wonderful showing made by Andre Henri Gobert, the French lawn tennis champion, in the recent interallied matches at Paris not alone places the Frenchman as one of the strongest candidates for the international championship, but as a likely winner also in the Davis cup matches. In the final of the singles Gobert was pitted against Capt O'Hara Wood, the crack Australian, but the Frenchman made short work of the Antipodean in straight sets.

Great things are expected of Wood, who had been heralded as another Brookes, and with the pair on the team it had been figured that the Davis cup was certain to be retained by the Australians. At least, that was the main trend of the dope but the form shown by Gobert has changed the view of the experts and France has loomed up as the most formidable rival of the men from "down under." Should Gobert and his cohorts succeed in turning the trick the whole lawn tennis world will be pleased no doubt, and it would be the first Davis cup victory for France.

A lawn tennis player who has been abroad with the American expeditionary forces and who saw Gobert play in Paris this spring, says according to the New York Herald, that the Frenchmen is the best player of the present day. He is a sort of a Brooks-McLoughlin combination with a lot of points of his own scattered here and there throughout the game Having seen both players with opportunity enough to copy their strongest points, he shows the varied uncanny snake service of Brookes with the most finished backhand down the line and across the court, while he is just as powerful as the Californian in smashing and the style at low volleying and the California "chap" cannot well be improved upon.

Another very important point seen in the form of the Frenchman is the marvelous knack of changing pace, something that never fails to upset the morale of an opponent. He is a tall slim man with a great reach two things which make it easy for him to cover his court with the greatest ease. Gobert will enter the singles at Wimbledon and will lead the French team in the Davies cup contest.

Gobert paid a visit to the United States some years ago, and has frequently admitted since that he learned a lot about the tennis game during his sojourn here. He also picked up something from the Englishmen and it is said that in his game is a sort of mixture of the best features of English and American players.

Gobert is now 25, an age when he should be at the top of his game. He has, with the exception of the years of the war been playing for the past eleven years in open competition. During the stretch he has had some notable victories the two best being a triumph in singles for the covered courts championship of England against Antony F. Wilding and with Max Decugis in the outdoor championship doubles at Wimbledon in 1911. In the latter match the Frenchmen met Wilding and Ritchie holders of the title, and the battle across the net was one of the fiercest and fastest ever seen in England.

Gobert first learned the game at Cobourg and Houlgate both seaside resorts, on private gravel courts, a fact which accounts for his great speed. His first open prize was the handicap singles offered by the Racing Club of France, of which he is a member, in 1908. He won the singles in the Paris tourney of 1909, but had never met a real crack player till he faced Gordon Lowe at the Queen club, London, in 1910, but although he beat the Englishman, the Frenchman was bowled over ere he reached the final. He remained in England for three months, playing on the grass courts and improved his play so much that he won the all-England Plate at Wimbledon from some stout opposition.

ROGERS—BUTTERFIELD

St. John's Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Saturday afternoon at half past three o'clock when Miss Vida Louise Butterfield of Norwood became the bride of Mr. Alfred Rogers of Calgary, Alberta. Only the immediate friends of the contracting parties were present while the nuptial knot was tied by the Rev. Canon Davidson, an old friend of the bride's family. The bride wore her travelling suit of navy blue and hat to match.

After the ceremony the wedding party drove to the home of Mr. R. B. Rogers, Beechwood Farm, Auburn where refreshments were served and a very enjoyable time was spent. Mr. and Mrs. Rogers will remain as guests at Beechwood Farm until next Wednesday when they will leave for their future home in Calgary Alberta.

The groom is the youngest brother of Mr. R. B. Rogers, having left here with the Riel Rebellion Expeditionary Force, in 1885.

McDOUGALL—AYLMER

A quiet wedding was celebrated at the bride's home, 548 Weller street, at 10.30, this morning, when Miss Mary Dorothy Aylmer was united in marriage to Mr. Eric McDougall, of Toronto.

The house was prettily decorated with palms and daisies. The bride was dressed in her travelling suit of navy blue with hat to match and carried a beautiful bouquet of pink roses, while Miss Esmee Aylmer, who acted as bridesmaid, wore a pale pink Georgette gown and carried pink roses. Mr. Herbert Young, son of Dr. Young was best man.

The young couple left amid the hearty good wishes of all, on the 12 o'clock train for Ottawa and points down East. Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. McDougall, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas McDougall, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Ritchie, Mrs. Case, Mrs. Cross, of Barrie, and Mrs. Corbett Cornwall.

Mr Percy Crane, of Toronto, spent the week-end in the city. Mr Crane is a member of the staff of Maclean's magazine.

Mr. H. Jones, of Kitchener, Ont., spent the week end in Peterborough.

Miss Mae Douglas is visiting friends in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. J Moore have returned to Toledo after visiting friends in the city.

Miss Bertha Ridgeway, of Rochester, was a Peterborough visitor last week.

Dr. Carmichael, Brock Street, leaves today for a two weeks vacation to St. John's N. B. He will attend the Medical Association Meeting in Quebec on the return trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schofield and Mr. and Mrs. Shell motored from Oshawa Sunday and were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Thompson.

Corp. Chas. D. Mathias, who enlisted in the Fort Garry Horse in 1914, has been visiting relatives in the city. He has not yet got his discharge owing to the necessity of going back to Kingston for further medical treatment, but he expects to return to Peterborough in a few days and renew acquaintance with old friends before taking his departure for his ranch at Lloydminster in Saskatchewan.

The Ladies' Aid of Murray Street Baptist Church will have a picnic in Jackson Park tomorrow (Tuesday).

A shower was given at the home of Miss Eva Nisbett Friday evening by many of Miss Irene Hayes' girl friends, and a most delightful time was spent in honor of Miss Hayes' wedding, which takes place on June 25th.

Miss Eva Manley entertained a number of her girl friends at her birthday party on Saturday afternoon.

Mrs George Grange and daughter Norien are returning to the city on the 8:10 p.m. C. P. R. train from Toronto. Mrs. Grange went to Buffalo, Toronto and Hespeler and her many friends will be glad to know she is returning in much better health than when she left here five weeks ago.

JOHNSON DECLARES HE WASTED $1,200

SOUGHT VAINLY FOR RELIEF FROM HIS TROUBLES—GAINS 27 POUNDS TAKING TANLAC.

"The best proof I can give that Tanlac was the right thing for me is the way it has relieved my suffering and built me up," said James M. Johnson, a well known employee of the Ind Hotel, who lives at 305 Persimon street, Peoria, Ill., recently.

"I had fallen off as a result of my troubles," he continued, "until I was almost a skeleton. At the time I started on Tanlac I only weighed one hundred and fifteen pounds but I now balance the scales at one hundred and forty-two, making an actual gain of twenty-seven pounds, and have been relieved entirely of stomach and liver trouble and kidney disorders that had followed me for sixteen years. I have often see the time when my back hurt me so bad I could hardly stand it. It was all I could do to lean over and lace my shoes, and nobody will ever know how I suffered with my stomach because I just cant' fully describe it. I couldn't eat a thing without bloating up and the gas would cause such terrible cramping pains through my stomach that I just thought I could not stand it any longer. At this time I was firing on the C. and O. railroad and I got so weak and played out that I could hardly lift a shovel of coal. During those sixteen years I spent over twelve hundred dollars for medicines and I might as well have thrown it in the creek, for I never even so much as got one day's relief.

"I had just about come to the conclusion that there was no medicine that could help me, but I have certainly found out different since I got hold of Tanlac. One day I met up with an old friend, one I hadn't seen in ten years. Well, of course, we had a long talk, but we hadn't talked long before I got to telling him how I had suffered so long just couldn't keep my mind off of my condition. Then he told me how Tanlac had made a well man of his brother, who had suffered from troubles like mine for years. So that very afternoon I got me a bottle of Tanlac and I couldn't help but notice a big difference in my conditions before I had finished taking that bottle. When I saw it was helping me I stuck right to it, and have improved until anyone who knows me could tell you I look like a different man. I couldn't ask for a better appetite, never had a bigger one—and my stomach never bothers me any more no matter what I eat. I am not one bit afraid now to eat all kinds of meat and vegetables or anything else I want. My kidneys never bother me any more, either, and the pains have disappeared from my back entirely. I am feeling as strong and well as I ever did in my life, so you see I have something to boost Tanlac for."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Celert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

OBITUARY

MELVILLE JAMES HEARD

The death occurred on Sunday, June 22nd. at 5.40 Downie street, of Melville James Heard, aged seven month son, of Mr. and Mrs. John Melville Heard.

The funeral will leave the family residence, 540 Downie street, on Tuesday, June 24th, at 2.30 p.m., and thence proceed to Little Lake cemetery for interment. The service at the house at 2.15 will be conducted by Rev. Canon Davidson.

Annual Meeting At Chemong Park

The annual meeting of the West Peterborough Board of Agriculture, formerly the Farmers' Institute will be held at the pavilion, Chemong Park, Friday afternoon of next week June 27.—A good program will be provided, and all members and their friends are asked to attend as there is at the present time urgent necessity for cooperation among the farmers of Canada. One of the items of business to be disposed of is the election of officers.

HORSE RAN AT LARGE

The police have made up their mind that the practice of allowing animals to run at large must stop. This morning the owner paid $2 and costs, $5.10 in all, for allowing his horse to run at large on Driscoll Terrace. This is the second case to be tried, and in future the pasturage fees for front lawns and flower beds will probably be much higher. A young man who pleaded guilty to the charge of being drunk was assessed $10 and costs.

DIED

HEARD—At St. Joseph's Hospital, on Sunday, June 22, 1919, Melville James Heard infant son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Heard, 540 Downie street. Funeral on Tuesday, June 24, at 2.30 p.m., to Little Lake cemetery.

PHILIP YANOFF

Who will be lucky enough to find a purse of $80 lying somewhere on the Road between here and Indian River? While constables E. Williams and J. Puffer were bringing in three of the men arrested at Indian River yesterday Samuel Ziluske slyly threw overboard his wallet. They noticed it light at the foot of a small tree while the automobile was passing through a bush. Sharp eyes and the ability to conduct a thorough search should result in the finding of the money. The sum of $410 was taken on the prisoners, about $100 was recovered at the Indian River station and the $80 lying on the road make up nearly $600. The men that work in the quarry claim to have lost $700.

Inquest at Havelock

At the inquest which was held at 5 p.m. yesterday at Havelock the jury brought in the verdict that Philip Yanoff, the victim of the murder case at the stone quarries an Sunday morning was fatally shot through the neck by an unknown party. The dead man was standing about four feet from the man who fired the shot. No other shots were fired, either by the robbers or the lawful occupants of the boarding house, and the description given of the assailant by the workmen was very vague. Dr. Holcroft of Havelock conducted the inquest. A postmortem was held today.

Constable Moore on Scene.

High County Constable A. Moore has left for the scene of the murder to investigate.

GREAT LAWN SOCIAL.

Will be given on Wednesday, June 25th, at 8 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Payne, Bralley. A good program of music and song is well arranged and promises to be one of the best evenings of the season. The officers of the union Sunday school expect a very large crowd. The motor 'bus will leave the S. A. Temple at 7 p.m. The Temple Band will supply the music for the evening. The public are invited.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger.

RUPTURE RELIEF

RESULTS NOT INFLUENCED BY AGE OR LENGTH OF TIME STANDING, REPORTS EXPERT.

Rupture is not a tear or a breach in the abdominal wall, as commonly supposed, but it is a stretching or dilation of a natural opening, J. Y. Egan of Toronto, the noted rupture appliance specialist will visit Peterboro, Hotel Empress, Wednesday and Thursday (all day and night), 2 days only, June 25-26.

The "Curatrus" as now used and prepared to order, will not only retain rupture perfectly, affording immediate and complete comfort, but is intended to assist nature in her work of closing the opening in the shortest time known. These new surgical appliances have received highest approval wherever shown, and are an improvement of the design in accordance with the suggestion of Sir Arbuthnot-Lane; F.R.C.S., of England, producing results without harmful ready-made hard pad and old-fashioned steel spring trusses. VATICAN RULE IN LEAGUE

Senator Declares Catholic Nations Outnumber Protestants

Washington, June 23.—The religious issue was injected into the debate on the League of Nations in the Senate by Senator Sherman of Illinois. It led to a bitter discussion in which the Illinois Senator was sharply answered by Senator Ashurst of Arizona.

Senator Sherman spoke on the "ecclesiastical power in the League of Nations." He asserted that by reason of the fact that the Catholic nations outnumber those of the Protestant faith, the influence of the Vatican will dominate and coltrol the League He said that of the original 32 members of the League 28 are Christian Nations: 17 are Catholic and 11 are Protestant.

Senator Ashurst, rising to reply to Senator Sherman, declared that he was ashamet of the Illinois Senator and regretted that at the end of his term he would go out of the Senate with the memory of such a speech hanging over him. He added:

"I am tired of these appeals to religious prejudice. They do not become statesmen of the time in which we are living."

EVERYTHING SEEMS READY FOR SIGNING PEACE TREATY

Auspicious Event Will Take Place on Thursday Unconfirmed Rumors That New German Cabinet Has Been Forced to Resign.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, June 24.—Associated Press this morning issued the following:

The signing of the peace treaty with Germany probably will take place on Thursday, it is indicated in Paris advices today. There is some doubt about the date as yet, however, because of the lack of word from Germany regarding her new representation at Versailles. Dr. Haniel Von Heimhauaren, who was named as Plenipotentiary to sign the treaty, has telegraphed his resignation to Weimar.

Final arrangements for the ceremony of signing the treaty are being made at Versailles by Premier Clemenceau, president of Peace Conference, who has announced his intention to resign the premiership as soon as the treaty is ratified. treaty is ratified.

Rumors current here to the effect that the Bauer Cabinet which took office in Weimar on Sunday, has been forced to resign under pressure from the reactionary elements. These rumors, however, have not been confirmed and dispatches filed at Weimar as late as 3.15 o'clock Monday afternoon do not reflect any critical situation as to the Cabinet.

Tommaso Tittoni, the new Foreign Minister of Italy, will be the leading Italian delegate at the Peace Conference, according to advices from Rome.

ENGINEER BARBER DECLARES HE HAS MADE PROPER BORINGS

For Hunter Street Bridge—No Engineer, He Says, Believes Ridiculous Reports Circulated to Disturb City Council's Confidence in Him—Good Foundations of Bed-Rock For Bridge

Engineer Frank Barber, last night, in reporting on the suggestions for a bridge, made last week by Mr. H Hadsall of the Leonard Construction Co., declared that the latter gentleman admits he had no figures in support of his statement that a two arch cantilener concrete bridge over the river, and shifting the structure 30 to 50 feet further south, would cheapen materially the whole work. Neither was Mr. Hadsall sure that steel would come cheaper than concrete, although he expected it would. Mr. Hadsall also admitted that the price of steel, in 1915 was $2.25, and is now $2.45 at Pittsburg, 20c dearer. He also finally agreed, said Mr. Barber, that his suggest realynment by shifting the bridge further south of the Quaker Oats building would save but little in length, and I contend, affirmed Mr. Barber, that such realignment would skew the arch somewhat and you would lose more money, thereby than you'd save in the few inches of shortening. In fact, if anything, the bridge should be swung the other way if realixned at all. By Mr. Hadsall's realignment, you would have a longer platform to build into the Quaker Oats building, which means a proportionate increase over the original platform's estimate of $6,500. The city would gain nothing by this reagnment, and, outside the design, it would prove more expensive. Consequently, it seems that Mr. Hadsall, in his proposition had not in mind the cheapening of the bridge. It might be in the interest of the Quaker Oats Co. to have a longer platform, and it might not.

Simply Absurd.

Mr. Barber ridiculed the statement that boring 35 feet below the level of the Quaker Oats building would crack said structure from bottom to top, and pointed to the erection of thousands of buildings cheek-by-jowl, as it were without any such catastrophe occurring. "The bridge's west pier," continued Mr. Barber, "as designed, will be some distance from the Quaker Oats building, which rests on a good foundation and would be in no danger of cracking."

Made Proper Borings.

In denial of the assertion that he had made no adequate borings for his proposed piers, Mr. Barber pointed out that the city had paid from $200 to $300 for borings. "We went down to rock 12 feet on one side and a little less than 20 feet on the other. The man who made those borings is Maxon, who has made thousands of other borings—for the Toronto Harbor Board and in other places. Mr. Barber here explained the deposits found in the bed of the river and adjacent thereto, and asserted that underneath the natural deposits lies blue clay beneath which is found bed-rock. "And this man," he declared bored clean through the blue clay and struck bed-rock, through which he went to make sure of his ground. For the shore span it would not be necessary to go to bed-rock, slate, hard-pan or clay would provide sufficient foundation The depth of foundation estimated in the specifications for the shore arches is far in excess of what is necessary, and a saving would consequently be effected. I suggest, if you have any doubt about these borings, let me make others for you. But Mr. Hadsall speaks of digging a hole, like a well, say. Personally, I have never seen such methods resorted to. Borings for the Bloor street viaduct were made, and such tests are always taken as sufficient. No engineer credits the ridiculous stories circulated about me, only calculated to disturb your confidence."

The city engineer admitted having seen borings made by Mr. Maxon, but he thought it might have been better had more borings been taken to check up.

Barber Endorsed.

Mr. Barber here quoted Engineer Middlehurst of the Ontario Municipal and Railway Board in verification of his judgment as to the necessary depth to excavate for piers of such a bridge as planned to cross the Otonabee river, where bed-rock is struck at 20 feet on one side and 12 feet on the other side.

No Saving.

Mr. Barber could see no saving in a two span bridge; there would be an additional pier in the river's centre to take into consideration. A 225 foot steel arch he characterized as a very ordinary construction. He had not been asked to figure on a steel span but would willingly do so. Without being in touch with any quantities, he did not think steel with concrete top would save anything. For Bloor street viaduct, designs for both concrete and steel were invited, and concrete came cheapest. This was also the experience in Oakville. "You cannot beat concrete with steel on the whole."

The Railway Sidings.

Mr. Barber declared the five siding tracks into the Quaker Oats premises to run askew and to be badly paced, necessitating trouble in designing the arches, but he had changed the tracks as little as possible to meet exigencies. At the western arch the company wanted three tracks instead of two. This the Dominion Railway Board would not force on the city, still he had complied with their request. In fact, he had met the wishes of the Quaker Oats Co. in every possible way.

THE MAYOR THREATENS TO "PUT OUT" ENGINEER BARBER

Mayor and Consulting Engineer Lose Their Heads Over Hunter Street Bridge Problem—And No Wonder!—Question Seems to Have Got on Nerves of Whole Board of Works—More Delay—Leonard Construction Co. to Bid Now.

Here's a pretty how-de-do:

His Worship and Consulting Engineer Barber came near entering into a physical encounter last night over the Hunter street bridge question.

Just exactly what 'twas all about is only clear to those who have followed this vexed question through from its incipiency. His Worship was never a strong supporter of Mr. Barber as engineer, and last night was anxious that the Leonard Construction Company have an opportunity to tender for the bridge on their own plans or those prepared by Mr. Barber, modified or not. Mr. Barber quite naturally would prefer his original plans to be consummated, as he conscientiously believes in them from A to Z. And he is willing to enter into a written guarantee that the bridge can be built from his plans within the money at the city's disposal.

The fact is, Hunter street high-level bridge project has got on everyone's nerves—Mayor, aldermen, engineers and press—and today, with so many divergent views held by the city's legislators, the end is not yet in sight.

Last night the Board of Works got hopelessly balled up, and moved resolution after resolution in a spirit of nervous recklessness, which entangled all concerned in a net of uncertainty as to just where they stood in relation to what had and what had not been done. Propositions were fired with the rapidity, so to speak, of a French 75. They included motions that Russell-Townsend Co., and the Canadian Engineer and Contracting Co. have the contract on the terms specified many times for a concrete bridge; that one of these companies go ahead with building the concrete approaches to the bridge, the question of the centre span to be decided later; that work on these approaches be started right away by day labor, Mr. Townsend of the Russell-Townsend Co, to superintend the work and furnish the plant, leaving the big river span for consideration as to whether it shall be constructed wholly of concrete, or of a steel arch, capped with concrete; but every move went down to defeat, even a resolution for adjournment.

No Appreciable Saving.

Consulting Engineer Barber reported against either two or one steel arch or arches to span the river as appreciably economical, owing mainly to the cost of the two materials, and Ald. Morrison was strong for the bridge being erected wholly of concrete as originally designed by Mr Barber.

Talking on the subject of a steel span, Mr. Barber said he would design one for 2 per cent. of its cost.

To Ald. Phelan's assertion that the Dominion Bridge Co. had offered to design a steel bridge free of charge, Mr. Barber contended that they would charge for said plan in the construction work—all companies do so. "When you get a designer in the employ of the contractor," added the engineer, "he designs from their point of view and it is always possible to thus beat the specifications. The plans of a designer employed by the corporation will conserve that corporation's interests."

Ald. Morrison broke a lengthy discussion on the relative merits of steel and concrete by enquiring if Council is going to build a steel or concrete bridge. "There's the Council of 1918 (pointing to their group photo on the wall) who decided on a concrete bridge and surely they had gone deeply into the question. You let a man come in here at the eleventh hour with another proposition and upset everything accomplished by the committee after three successive tenders have been accepted. At the last minute Mr. Hadsall of the Leonard Construction Co drops in and throws all our plans overboard."

Ald. Phelan: "We invited Mr. Barber here tonight to report on the L. C. Co.'s proposition. It's a question of facts and figures."

Ald. Morrison: "My mind is made up to build the whole concrete as originally designed. Let us get to work on the job."

Chorus (especially labor): "Yes, let us get started—on the approaches—and at once.

Mr. Barber: "You can do that, and then enquire into the merits of a steel span, which can't be erected this year anyway."

Mr. Barber here quoted many concrete spans in the old world, and in the new, larger than that proposed at Hunter street, not on bed rock, and some with but four foundations. "The span for Hunter street bridge," he added, "is an easy proposition by reason of bed rock for the pier foundations being readily accessable."

In his business, he said, wages had gone up one hundred per cent and production down twenty five per cent.

Highway Bill Law This Session

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, June 24—Speaking to the delegation of the Good Roads Associations here today Sir Robert Borden said he hoped the Highways Bill affecting the interprovincial roads would become law this session.

MILLERS' PROFIT OF 72 PER CENT

VICE-PRESIDENT OF OGILVIE COMPANY IS BEFORE SPECIAL COMMITTEE.

Ottawa, June 24—At the afternoon sitting of the cost of living commission it was stated that the net profit of the Ogilvie Milling Company on the common stock last year was 72 per cent. The total net profits amounted to $1,955,414. After paying 7 per cent on the preferred stock there was left $1,815,414 The Company paid 12 per cent on the comon stock gave a bonus of fifteen per cent and carried forward $1,140,414.

W. A. Black, vice-president of the Ogilvie company appeared before the commission and was examined as to the profits his company has been making. He said the company was incorporated in 1892 with an authorized capital of $4,500,000, of which $2,000,0000 was preferred stock and $2,500,000 common stock He could not say how hugh had been paid for in cash but the new company had taken over the old Ogilvie Company.

Mr. Black said that the rest account amounted to $2,500,000, and contingency account $1,59, 407, and investments $6,575,149.

Look Like Profiteering

When Mr. Black mentioned that the common stockholders last year had received 27 per cent, Mr. Pringle remarked: "You could have paid them 72 per cent but that would not have looked very well would it? I suppose you would not because that was profiteering?"

Mr. Black demurred and Mr. Pringle declared that these profits had been taken out of the public.

"The public have enabled you to accumulate this surplus," said counsel.

"What public?" asked Mr. Black

Mr. Pringle grew angry He retorted that the human race were the people out of whom these profits had been made, the men who have got to eat bread. For the year 1917, the profits of the company was stated to be $1,345,847, and the net profit on the common stock after paying dividends was 48¾ per cent. Mr Black said he did not have the statements regarding the three previous years with him.

Cause of Unrest

Mr Pringle said to the witness that these large profits were causing unrest in the country, those profits on textiles and food and they found that those men who were at the head of commissions were the men who had been making the very large profits.

Mr. Black: "These are very abnormal times."

Mr. Pringle: "These are very abnormal profits."

Mr Black stated that for a great part of this year, the Company had sold flour in Canada at lower than cost. He also said, that the margin of profit which had been talked about was never put in force by the food board. The company had turned out 3,385,000 bbls of flour last year. Over a million dollars had been made in 1915 by selling wheat on hand.

"We have paid to the government, all they asked" said the witness.

Mr. Stevens declared emphatically that these profits should not occur and the public should get some benefit from them.

This statement would help the committee in advising the government as to what action sholud be taken.

Could Afford Flour Drop

"You could have afforded to drop the price of flour 25 cents a bbl and still have a handsome profit I think you ought to reduce the price 25 cents or 50 cents right away and it would be a very fine act on the part of the Ogilvie company. It would be a fine advertisement," said the member for Vancouver

More than 89,000 U. S. soldiers express a desire to obtain farms under the Government plan.

Great demand abroad for hides and shoes is expected to result in a price advance of 20 per cent. by next fall.

HIGH CONSTABLE MOORE IS IN CHARGE OF MURDER CASE

Story of the Affair as Told By Two of the Prisoners Who Have Turned King's Evidence—Dying Man Refused Drink of Water.

On the night of the 21st five men held for the Havelock murder met at 11 o'clock at the Union station and took the train for Havelock for the purpose of robbing the Macedonians who work for the Ontario Rock Co., at their quarry about 3 miles east of Havelock. The story of two of the men is that they got off the train at Havelock station and proceeded down the track where one of the men spread out a piece of paper took out some bread and a bottle of whiskey, which they all drank. They then walked down from the station to the quarry and when they got to the camp they adjusted their masks on their faces and proceeded upstairs to rob the sleeping men.

The story of the Macedonians is that they were wakened by oaths and an order to put up their hands in English. One of the men threw a flash light on Philip Yanoff, who was sleeping in a bed at the head of the stairs and awoke him and as he partly rose out of bed he was shot through the left shoulder. The bullet travelled through his body on the right side breaking three ribs. After robbing the men Ratyonchi and his gang told the Macedonians to stay in the camp for five minutes or they would be shot. After the interval of about five minutes the Macedonians aroused the foreman, Frank Weese, who at once hitched up a horse and sent a man to Havelock to advise the Superintendent of the quarry Mr. Steve Bradley, who lives there of what had transpired.

The superintendent at once drove to the camp with Mr. Elias Williams constable, and they locked up the tracks of five men and followed them to Havelock. They could see where The men took the railroad track at that point. Mr. Bradley then went to Norwood and after investigating, discovered that the men had made a detour around the station at Norwood. He at once awakened the Norwood agent of the C.P. R., who in turn got a train despatcher on the phone and aroused Mr. Riseborough, the C. P. R. agent at Indian River. Mr Bradley advised the agent to hold the men if possible.

Shortly after, Mr. Riseborough was called he saw two of the men coming along the track and asked them to go into the station and same manner he got the other three sign the papers which gave them permission to walk the track. In the men.

He advised Mr. Bradley, who had in the meantime got in touch with the Chief of Police at Peterborough

County Constables arrived shortly and took the men into custody. While the constables were searching them, looking for their revolvers, the little son of the station agent, a boy nine or ten years old found two of the guns rolled up in a handkerchief. He gave them to the officers after which the constables found another revolver behind a picture on the wall. They then took the prisoners to Peterborough and locked them up.

Some time after the men had been removed the station agent's little son found $80.00 hidden under a bench and secreted in another place was $20.00. His father phoned to Peterborough telling of what the boy had found.

The Chief and two constables went down from Peterborough and took possession of the $100.00, but since have handed the money over to High County Constable A. R. Moore, who took the dimensions of the bills and then handed it over to the Crown Attorney High County Constable A. R. Moore had the body removed to Nicholl's Hospital this morning where Dr. Young of Havelock and Dr. Moir of Peterborough are making an x-ray examination this morning in an effort to trace the bullet The body will be forwarded to Toronto for burial.

Fiendish Brutality

The murder was a most brutal one. While the unfortunate victime of the shooting was in his last agonies he stretched out his hand and begged a companion to get him a drink of water. One of the bandits struck down his hand and told him to be quiet. All the men were under the revolvers of the robbers at the time end the man appealed to for water was unable to help his dying friend.

PRICES OF STEEL ABNORMALLY HIGH; EARLY ADVANCE LIKELY

Reports Engineer Barber in Drawing Comparisan Between Cost of Steel and Concrete Bridges—Strongly in Favor of Concrete Design—Big Arch Safe Proposition.

Talking of the relative prices of steel and concrete for the Hunter Street Bridge, last evening, Engineer Frank Barber declared to the Board of Works that any saving by adopting plans for a 225 feet steel arch span, with concrete floor and rails would be but little, if any, and not worth while changing the original concrete design for steel, he said, is at a high price and due for an advance

In support of this contention he quoted F C. Brunke manager of the United States Steel Products Co., as follows:

In 1915 prices on structural shapes plates and bars were approximately $1.15 per 100 lbs. base, F.O.B. Pittsburg district, these prices being about the same during the years 1913 and 1914

During the war prices on structural steel shapes $2.00, plates $3.25 and bars $2.90 per 100 lbs base. F.O. B ars, Pittsburg district.

These prices prevail today and some of the smaller companies are insisting that they be increased, as they are unable to make a profit on the same. The market today is very strong both as far as enquiries and orders are concerned, and our mills are filling up rapidly and we look for higher prices in the near future. According to the correspondent of one trade journal some manufacturers are now asking $2.75 for plate

Perfectly Safe

In support of the single arch span across the river Mr. Barber said it would be quite safe to eliminate a performance bond for the approaches and even for the whole bridge construction, for that matter. "The safest part of the whole proposition," he declared, "is the centre arch, because its piers will rest on bed rock within easy reach. There is not the slightest doubt as to that."

Fair to Contractors

Mr Barber made himself clear as to his standing in the contracting world "It has been said, he went on to say, "that contractors are afraid to bid on my specifications because I'm too severe on them That is an unfair statement. I have planned and supervised 25 per cent of the concrete bridges in Canada and surely it cannot be truthfully asserted that contractors are afraid to work from my plans and specifications. On the contrary, it is generally conceded by contractors that I am especially fair to them in all my specifications, even to safeguarding their interests equally with the interests of my clients.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

TUESDAY, JUNE 24, 1919

A CONFLICT OF JURISDICTION.

THE COUNTY as well as the city of Peterborough is well policed, the one by the Province, the other by the city. High Constable Archie R. Moore is a provincial official He is an officer of long experience who has demonstrated his efficiency as well as his fidelity in the service of the public. If the city is free from crime, comparatively speaking, as much can be said of the county. If there is detective skill in the city, Constable Moore has shown that he does not lack this qualification himself in his own field. Some of the cleverest captures for violation of the Ontario Temperance Act have been made by Constable Moore and License Inspector Stewart working in collaboration in the rural districts, where it is infinitely easier for offenders against the law to escape.

Constable Moore has been a terror to bucolic criminals. The members of the County Council and the Department at Toronto, to which he is chiefly responsible, have every confidence in him.

That being the case, there should be no overlapping of effort nor conflict of authority between the county and the city police. In this branch of service as in all others, the best results are achieved when every man confines himself to his own field and hoes his own row. There are local constables in all parts of the county men who are able and ready to do their duty at all times If there are fees to be earned for police duty in the county, these fees should go to the men whose only compensation they constitute, and not to officers who receive a regular salary from the city.

There has recently been a murder committed in the county. The plot originated in Toronto, and the capture of the men who are suspected was effected by county constables. The matter should be allowed to rest there. There seems no justification for the city police to butt in when the men are in custody or to seek to walk away with honor—it may be emoluments—that belong to someone else. The county machinery for dealing with such cases is as perfect as it is in the city. Leave it to High Constable Moore. Magistrate Langley too, can deal with the suspects in the early stages of the investigation.

Complaints are frequently being made that members of the police force are earning money on the side. Last Saturday one of the sergeants acted as hack driver at a funeral. During the parade of Oddfellows on Sunday that same sergeant acted as chauffeur of the jitney 'bus that carried passengers from the city to Little Lake Cemetery.

Is this a square deal, especially at a time when so many men are out of work? A police sergeant should be satisfied with the salary that the city pays him, without cutting in ahead of some other wage-earner less fortunate than himself. If there is an excess of men on the police force, so that one may be spared for side duty occasionally, the remedy is easy.

The citizens often complain that the Board of Police Commissioners is practically an independent body and that the city really has no voice in the management of its police force. The mayor of the city is a member of that board. Surely an official, even if he is an advocate of the longer hours for labor, will not in a time of stress stand for this double service on the part of a servant of the people. He may be in the minority on the Police Board, but he can at least register a protest and place himself on record as favoring a square deal for all

There has been too much of the spirit of bureaucracy in the management of the city's business, too much of the secret diplomacy that brought the world to the verge of ruin, and will do as much for any city in which it is tolerated There has been too much of this "the public be d——d" and the "take it or leave it," "the "if you don't like it you can lump it" sentiment. Public officials, once in office many of them seem to forget that enter into a conspiracy of silence on such questions that they are the servants of the people. Newspapers are failing in their duty to the public to the same degree as the officials themselves.

A SMILE AND A NOD.

THE EYES of the local Liberal party, just summoned from the grave, have evidently not become accustomed to the unwonted light. The party cannot adapt itself fully to its new surroundings. It has a smile for the farmers, but a mere nod for the workingmen. The interests of the latter are to be entrusted to a lawyer The farmers are given representation at both Provincial and Dominion conventions Right at the start a serious blunder is made by appointing three lawyers on the two delegations, at this of all times, when the general impression prevails that there are too many professional men among the platform builders and the members of Parliament and Legislature already.

A PLEA FOR THE PLAYGROUNDS.

IN HIS PLEA for financial support for the public playgrounds, made in yesterday's paper, Mr. J. W. Worth, who has been actively connected with the movement since the beginning, covers the subject completely. It would be all but impossible to add another to the list of arguments which he furnished. There are over one thousand school children in the city who will be unable to leave their homes to enjoy a holiday in the country during the two heated months of the year, the months when the schools will be closed. There are an equal number, however, who are more fortunate than these. There is an excellent opportunity here for the parents of the latter class to give their children a lesson in unselfishness. Let them encourage the little ones to make at least small donations out of their own holiday funds to help provide amusement for those who are obliged to remain behind while the rest enjoy a vacation in the country or at a summer resort where they will acquire new health and strength.

There never was a time when child life is of so much value as it is today. Four years of war have taken the flower of Candian young manhood. The places of these must be filed by the rising generation. The better the child the better the man into which he grows. The physical as well as the intellectual must be developed to make a desirable citizen.

If one thousand or more children are permitted to run at large for two months on the city streets, practically without supervision, for under such circumstances it is impossible for even their parents to keep an eye upon them, the good effects of ten months of school discipline will to a great extent be lost. Two months of supervised play, on the other hand, will be just as beneficial as the same period spent in school. To achieve this purpose all the outlay required is $1000, the amount that the Playgrounds Association asks for, and which means less than five cents per capita of the population of the city. Surely, as a mere business venture alone this matter has everything to commend it.

The public are by this time familiar with the aims of the Association which has for five years or more carried on the work. What Mr. Worth has to say is entitled to consideration both by reason of his connection in the past with the cause which he now so eloquently pleads, and from the fact that he is one of the most devoted members of the School Board. The latter circumstance suggests another idea. The Playgrounds Association's work should really be made a part of the school system, carried on by public funds, instead of being forced to rely on private contributions That is what it is altogether likely to come to in the near future under an Administration that during a little more than a year in office has shown the spirit of progress.

Donations may be left at either of the newspaper offices.

LABOR'S RATIONAL VERDICTS.

THREE RESOLUTIONS offered and vehemenly supported by a small minority of delegates were decisively defeated in one day at the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor. In each instance sound Americanism and common sense prevailed over vague radicalism.

The convention voted against the proposed general strike to force the authorities of California somehow to grant a new trial to Mooney, convicted of complicity in bomb murders and serving a sentence of life imprisonment. It voted down a proposal to change the Labor Day of America and Canada to May 1 in order "to unite the world of Labor," regardless of the profound differences that separate American trade uinonism from European syndicalism, socialism and bolshevism. Finally, the convention rejected a resolution urging recognition of "soviet Russia," or of Lenine's so-called dictatorship of the proletariat supported by red guard bayonets.

The committee that recommended rejection of the resolution relating to Lenine's Government took the ground that no government in Russia is worthy of recognition that refuses to hold a general election and to abide by the will of the people as expressed at the ballot box. With any thoughtful wage worker, American or Canadian, this consideration is, and must be, controlling. Autocracy is autocracy, and therefore abhorrent to free men, whether the name of the autocrat be Romanoff, Hohenzollern or Lenine.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

IT IS NOT A BRIDGE of sighs, but of intentions merely.

• • • • •

"ONE BIG UNION forever," but let it be a union of Canadian provinces, races and creeds

• • • • •

PETERBOROUGH COUNTY, the world will please note, is not a congenial spot for bandits from Toronto or elsewhere.

• • • • •

PERHAPS IT IS rather a 'peace of violence," as the Germans allege, but as much can be said of their methods of warfare.

• • • • •

NOT SO VERY LONG AGO at that, crossing the Atlantic by boat was very little less risky than making the trip now by airship.

• • • • •

THE COBOURG baseball team does well to play in the twilight. There are brands of ball that do not stand full daylight very well.

• • • • •

PETERBOROUGH elects its council under a special Act, but even with operation under the general statute results could scarcely be worse.

• • • • •

ALD. PHELAN holds the big job in the Council as chairman of the public works committee and his stand on the bridge question justifies his selection.

• • • • •

WHILE THE DAYS, and nights, too, may be oppressively hot, endure in hope and patience. The crops under such conditions are growing twenty-four hours a day.

• • • • •

THE PEACE just perfected is not without honor to the Germans who sign it, anything in the way of reflection applying only to the down-and-out party whose insanity made such a document necessary.

• • • • •

IN WAR OR IN PEACE the Teuton is not to be trusted, as witness the recent sinking of warships. The nation that will ignore the conditions of an armistice will do as much with the terms of a peace treaty.

• • • • •

IF THE THOUSAND or more children who will have a holiday in the country this summer would donate ten cents of their vocation money to provide a playground for the children forced to stay at home over $100 could be raised in this way alone.

DID THE WAR STOP TOO SOON?

New York Commercial.)

Returning soldiers, especially those who served in the Rhineland district, declare that the war ended a month too soon. Hostilities should have been carried onto German territory and a little of her own medicine administered to her in the devastation of her towns. The German people take the view that they were not conquered, but they merely stopped fighting. They still think they have "rights" which should be respected.

Germany lost the war because of her inability to understand psychology, which is simply a matter of putting yourself mentally in the other fellow's place. She invariably planned her course of action not upon what the other party would be likely to do under given circumstances, but upon what she herself would be likely to do under those circumstances. She could not very well do otherwise, for she lacked the necessary mental equipment. A people lacking in the feelings of humanity cannot imagine humanity in others. Those who have never loved cannot understand what love is. Selfishness, greed, brutality, treachery—these things they know and they expected to find them in others. Yes, and there is one other quality—fear! This they also understand and they also expected to find that in others.

Germans are brave only in victory in defeat they are the most craven cowards. They thought Americans would not fight because they were making so much money out of the war. They were amazed to find that America didn't care a snap of her fingers about money when humanity was at stake. They thought we wouldn't fight because we were afraid of them but they found we didn't know what fear was. But they understand fear. They surrendered precipitately when they found the opposing forces too great for them. They have been whining and crying about signing the peace treaty, a treaty far more generous than they had any right to expect and infinitely more so than they would have imposed had they been the conquerors. But they will sign

MAKING NEW MAPS OF THE WORLD

The "mapless world" of the last five years is soon to be but a memory. Within twenty-four hours after peace is officially signed, completed maps of the new world in colors, will be upon the market, available for historians, for students of the contours of new empires and for industry in planning its foreign trade. Printing plants also will be rushed night and day in preparing copies to be sent to practically every school room in America this summer for the use of history and geography classes next fall.

A visit to the big establishment of Rand, McNally and Co., Chicago, revealed feverish preparations to meet the worldwide demand for maps that will pour in a flood of orders from every continent the moment peace is signed. Every department in the intricate work of modern map making is set for the epochal moment of the treaty signing, while employes are on their toes. There is the atmosphere about it of a fire department or a metropolitan newspaper just before press time, with a big "scoop" to lend excitement.

Maps Kept Up to Date.

"Our artists, map makers and mechanical departments are all ready for the biggest day in map making in history," said Harry Clow, president of the company. "We have our representatives in Europe, who keep us informed by special cable of every change or impending change in national boundaries. Our artists are at work night and day changing these boundaries as the reports come in, so that at any hour of the day or night we have an up to date map of the world—as far as the world can be mapped with daily chnges being made.

Prepare for Five Years.

"The moment peace is signed, and the flash is given us that finally settles the boundaries of nations in Europe, our whole staff will be turned to making the new map of the world complete in every detail. We believe it can be done in less than twenty-four hours. We've been making preparations for this hour for the past five years. Especially since the armistice has it been a busy season to keep up with the changes in the world. The new maps will be printed in colors to indicate the old and the new boundary lines, showing graphically how the war has changed Europe.

"The only incomplete feature will be the boundary lines of Turkey, Greece and Austria, which are not yet fixed. This fact will be presented in a new way on the maps, so there will be no confusion.

"The new maps will be presented in geographies, atlases, histories, wall maps and pocket maps. As far as school books are concerned, the old maps will be used next year, as all school books for the fall are now on the press. But wall maps will be used to illustrate the changes and for final authorities.

Greatest Change in 500 Years.

"Not in 500 years has there been such a change in national boundaries, and it means an entirely new supply of maps for the world. We expect to be working night and day for years to come to fill the orders to meet the demand. The same will be true of histories, geographies, atlases, and political science works. About the only things not affected by the war, in the way of study, are geometry and arithmetic."

A tour of the map-making and printing departments of Rand McNally and Co., revealed everything apparently ready for the word "go!"

EDUCATING THE RETURNED MEN

SOLDIERS AID COMMISSION EXPLAINS THE PLANS FOR THIS PURPOSE.

It is desired by the Soldier's Aid Commission of Ontario to draw the attention of soldiers returned or returned from service, to the provisions for instruction in vocational training where such is desired.

The Association has recently issued a pamphlet, which gives in full detail instruction and information in regard to courses, both in manual training and in educational subjects. Copies of this pamphlet have been received at the local branch office, in this city, and are for disposal to those interested. The office is in the city building, and application may be made at any time.

This department of work in the interest of the soldier has grown very materially in the last year. Some sixty five courses are now available and will be added to as required. Instruction is given by the various means and include, under heads, the following:

Hospital Classes.

Soldier's Aid Commission Special Classes.

Technical Schools.

Trade Schools (Private Management.)

Commercial Colleges.

University Classes.

Manufacturing and private owned plants.

The whole educational machinery of the province of Ontario is cooperating with the Soldiers' Aid Commission and the Invalided Soldiers' Commission in providing a wide range of instruction Allowances are made for the subsistence of the soldier, or for the soldier and family while the course is being taken. Full preliminary information can be had at the local Branch office, or by letter to the Superintendent of Re-education Soldier's Aid Commission, 116 College street, Toronto, Ont.

Medical advice and vocational advice will be given by experienced officers, conversant with the needs of ployment and the suitability of certain industry, the opportunities for certain vocations to particular disabilities.

All men returned from service and who have in view taking up courses should consult at once with the people in charge at the locations as given above.

WIT AND WISDOM

What Was Meant?

"How was your speech received at the club?" asked one of Chumley's friends.

Appropriate

There are drawbacks even to being the wife of a wealthy man, as Mrs. Millyuns found out.

Although they have only been married a few weeks, she hardly ever has a quiet half hour with her husband. It's business from morning till night, and in the evening he only begs for peace and rest.

So the other day she came down to dinner in a sombre back frock.

"Why on earth, dear, are you wearing that frock?" asked Mr. Millyuns, eyeing her gown with distaste. "Why, it's almost half mourning."

"Of course it's half-mourning," replied the lady, with such meaning "Don't you always say, when you come home from the office, that you are half-dead?"

Satisfied

"Betsy," he whispered, as they sat together on the fence surrounding Mrs. Filligan's pigsty, "ow beautiful you be! Jes' think of it, Betsy. When us be married us will have a pig of our own. Think of that, Betsy-"

"Lan," she whispered, a note of resentment in her voice, "what do I care for pigs? I shan't want a pig when I've got you!"

Then all was silent once more save for the musical frolics of zephyrs already mentioned.

Entrance Exams. In the County

Examinations for High School Entrance will be conducted at the following centres in the County of Peterborough, commencing at nine o'clock on Wednesday, July 2. The centres are Apsley, Ennismore, Hall's Bridge, Havelock, Keene, Lakefield, and Norwood. Candidates are requested to take notice that at Havelock and Lakefield the examinations will be "run" on daylight saving or what is sometimes known as fast or railway time. At the other centres they will be on standard time. Attention to this may save inconvenience.

EDITOR'S MAIL

HUNTER STREET BRIDGE CONTRACT

Editor Review: My attention has been called to the fact that Mr. Barber takes exception to the letter on this subject lately written by me to your journal, and appearing in your issue of the 16th inst., and considers it libellous. I am both surprised and pained to think that anything written by me could be so construed. Nothing was further from my mind than an attack upon Mr. Barber, and I hasten to say in the most public manner that I make no attack either by way of innuendo or otherwise on him, nor any suggestion derogatory of him or any aspersion on his honor or integrity. So far as I know, he is a most upright honorable, honest man, a capable engineer, and an ornament to the honorable profession to which he belongs, and if any person has the impression that my letter in the slightest degree reflects on Mr. Barber I can only say I am exceedingly sorry, and wish to remove any such impression, and I would tender to Mr. Barber the assurance that I regret any such impression should have been made by me so unintentionally. In my letter I distinctly stated that I was not attacking Mr. Barber, and this I now repeat.

I may say this letter is written by me voluntarily, Mr. Barber has not even communicated with me, my object being to remove as soon as possible every suggestion casting ny slur on the engineer personally, which I never intended to do.

I withdraw most unreservedly any statements or innuendo contained in my letter, which might cast any reflection on the honor and good name of Mr. Barber or his standing in the profession to which he belongs, and if by reason of my letter any injustice has been done to Mr. Barber, I am very sorry for it, and exceedingly regret it, and tender to him my sincere apology.

Kindly give this the same prominence you gave to my letter.

Yours truly,
JAS. GUISE-BAGLEY.

But Thieves escaped After Arrest by Constable.

D. Deyell, of Reaboro, left his automobile standing near the curb on Cambridge street, Lindsay and when he returned the car had vanished. After notifying the surrounding towns and cities, the car was located at Hastings. The two men in whose possession it was found were arrested by the village constable, but afterwards escaped. The car had seen some rough usage, the gasoline pipe and front axle being broken.

LESSONS IN RIGHT LIVING

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

Without implying any [illegible] for goodness knows few men [illegible] plead not guilty to silk socks or talcum powder, it may nevertheless be said—no, that is too la-de-da, what I mean is that I may say that "nervousness" is one sign of effeminacy. Don't get mad if you are nervous. "Stick around" around till I explain what I mean; it may help you.

Active effeminacy is a crime. Passive effeminacy is a misfortune. It is passive effeminacy to which I refer.

A man with a belt instead of suspenders to support his trousers, provided his trousers need any support, is guilty of active effeminacy in the first degree and ought to be sentenced to ten years of rod suspenders.

A man wearing a boiled shirt and a waiter's attire with silk stripes down the seams of his trousers, for convention's sweet sake, is guilty of involuntary or passive effeminacy and ought to be fined $10 for each offense. He wears the ridiculous get-up for the same reason that he tips the porter on a parlor car which is no reason at all.

Suppose some inconsiderate brute browbeats you and insults you and abuses you in public. You have three possible remedies. Either you may beat the fellow up or you may run away, or you may vent your wounded self-respect in copious tears. If you decline to make use of any of these remedies, the emotion the impulse to action which you repress goes to make you "nervous."

The man or woman who leaves office, store or business where repression of impulses is the routine all day and every day to seek recreation at a baseball game makes a mistake unless he or she takes part in the game itself. The excitement and yelling of the spectators or the game will scarcely suffice as a vent for pent up action impulses; nothing short of action will relieve the nervous tension which seeks relief. A little game of three old cat or knock up flies out in a vacant lot would do the sedentary individual a great deal more good.

Decorum, dignity and exaggerated conceptions of the rigorous rites of repression account for much of the "nervousness" which more so many lives. It seems that regard for the conventions rules human conduct with a heavy hand, and he or she who dares to defy convention is at once branded a freak or a "nut."

A woman writes me that since adopting the practice of rolling six somersaults before breakfast and at bedtime every day, she had reduced considerably in weight, discarded corsets an gained "much better control" of her nerves. A woman so regardless of dignity as to roll somersaults might possibly gain better control of her curves and her nerves at that.

Action, something to do mentally or physically, but especially muscular activity, is as necessary to youth as repose is to age. Repress the youthful impulse to action and "nerves" will certainly result.

Anaesthetic for Child

"Please tell me whether you consider it perfectly safe to administer an anaesthetic to a child 18 months old. Our baby has a prominent red blemish on her temple and the doctors say it is a nevus and that it can be removed now without leaving a bad scar. The little girl is [illegible] and heal[illegible]

"MRS. A. P. S."

Yes, the birthmark is better removed while the baby is young. There need be no fear whatever of the anaesthetic.

Those Happy Days

"Why is it that the hams we get from the packers have lost the flavor that country hams used to have? What has happened to the grease that used to come from the dry or salted side meat? Cook it with beans and there is no grease from it at all. Years ago we used to get Grisham hams in old Louisville—ham with the natural flavor. It is a pity * * *

"E. R."

Yes, it is a pity that things are never quite so good as they used to seem in the good old days. Visited the old swimming hole the other day and, say, it was nothing but a dirty little depression in the mud one could not understand how any boy would dive into such a hole.

Roller Skates

"Our little girl 6½ years old loves roller skating. But a woman friend advised against it for she claims it will make her hips and her abdomen too large. She said it is all right for boys to amuse themselves with roller skating in moderation, but * * *

"MRS. R. N. P."

On the contrary, roller skating tends to keep the hip from getting too large and develop the abdominal muscles, thus improving the figure. I buy my little girl new roller skates as fast as they bust up the old ones.

TO MAKE ECONOMICAL APRON

Worn-Out Shirts Can Be Turned to Good Service in These Days of High-Priced Cotton.

Every woman knows that when a man's shirt has wornout cuffs and holes below the collarband, making the shirt unwearable, there is still a quantity of good material left. When there are children in the family there is generally a way to use it; when not, it usually goes into the rag-bag.

An apron can be made of the material and in these days of high-priced cotton goods it will pay well to use the goods in this way. Cut off the neckband and yoke; cut out sleeves; lay body of shirt out flat and cut out apron, making it as large as the goods will permit. The openings on the side are sewed up. A facing for the top of the apron is cut from what is left of one of the fronts.

One sleeve will make the strings and the other sleeve will make a bib, if one is wanted, and with a little piecing a bib can be made with straps sewed into strings at the back.

This makes an apron that can be put on with one motion. No pins and no buttons, and bib always in place.

A good rule for the size of thread in making buttonholes is to have it no coarser than that used for making the garments.

German Guns.

A writer in an English paper gracefully describing the presentation of a couple of German guns to a certain town, dwells, picturesquely enough, on their introduction to a couple of older guns, from one of the old French wars, standing by the doors of the town hall. These guns, he writes, were probably fired last in 1708, and then, dropping like Mr. Wegg into history, he speaks of them as Turenne's guns. Well, in 1708 "Marlbrook" fought the Battle of Oudenarde, so that if the guns were taken then they must have been Vendome's guns. Of course, they might have been Turenne's first. But,—Turenne fell, in 1675, at Sassbach. A fact which makes the supposition mildly improbable.

Look More Natural.

Behold father and son at the photographer's: Algy seated stiffly in a chair, his father standing behind him at attention. "I think," smiled the photographer, "it would look more natural if you put your hand on your son's shoulder." "On the contrary," said Trotter, "to be really natural, Algy should have his hand in my pocket!"

Did Not Like to Change Words.

"Why do you object to the League of Nations?" "On musical grounds," replied an American. "After singing 'My Country, 'Tis of Thee,' all these years, I don't want the mental effort of changing to 'Our Countries, 'Tis of Those'."

Status of the Shoes.

Kathleen and her mamma had just returned from a shopping trip bringing home a pair of shoes for Kathleen, but only on approval. Upon arriving home Doris, Kathleen's older sister, out of curiosity immediately started to open the package. Kathleen indignantly said, "Doris, you just leave those shoes alone; mamma only brought them home on a furlough."

CONSTANT PAIN AFTER EATING

The Tortures of Dyspepsia Corrected by "Fruit-a-tives"

St. Martin's, N.B.

"For two years, I suffered tortures from Severe Dyspepsia. I had constant pains after eating; pains down the sides and back; and horrible bitter stuff often came up in my mouth.

I tried doctors, but they did not help me. But as soon as I started taking 'Fruit-a-tives', I began to improve and this medicine, made of fruit juices, relieved me when everything else failed."

Scheldt Was Barred to Belgium.

The broad river Scheldt winds its way through western Belgium and finally empties into the North Sea as a wide estuary studded with islands, writes Lothrop Stoddard in the World's Work. Some distance inland above this estuary, but with water deep enough to float the largest ocean steamships, lies the great port of Antwerp. Antwerp is marked out by nature as the sea-gate to the whole Belgian area, and flourished during the Middle Ages. But in the sixteenth century came the revolt of the Dutch against Spain, who then owned both Belgium and Holland. The inhabitants of the lower Scheldt estuary, who had always felt themselves to be part of the Dutch region to the north rather than the Belgian region to the east and south, joined the revolt and freed from Spanish rule not merely the islands but also the mainland fringe along the southern bank of the lower Scheldt—the district known as Dutch Flanders. After nearly a century of war, Holland forced Spain to recognize her independence in 1648, and, by one of the clauses of the treaty, Spain recognized Holland's right to close the Scheldt to navigation, thus making Antwerp an inland town. The Vienna Congress of 1815 laid down the principle that navigable rivers which flowed through more than one country should be free for the merchant shipping of the inland nations.

A Strange Post Office.

South America can boast of the simplest post office in the world. Opposite Tierra del Fuego is a very high, rocky cliff overhanging the Strait of Magellan, and from one of the rocks is suspended, by a long chain, a barrel which receives mail. To be sure, there is no postmaster nor is there any regular letter carrier or collector, but every ship that goes through the strait stops and sends a boat to this curious little post office, looks over the letters that are in it to see if there are any for the men on board that particular ship, and places therein letters for seamen on board ships that are known to be headed for the strait.

New Canadian Pacific Director

Captain the Hon. W. J. Shaughnessy

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Canadian Pacific Railway held on June 16th, Captain the Hon. William J. Shaughnessy was elected a director of the company to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of the Hon. James Dunsmuir, of Victoria, B.C.

Captain Shaughnessy is the son of the Right Hon. Lord Shaughnessy, who was for nineteen years the president of the Canadian Pacific Railway and is now the Chairman of the Board. Educated at Laval University, Montreal, and Cambridge, England, Capt. Shaughnessy is a prominent Montreal lawyer. During the war he saw three years' service overseas, leaving Canada as Captain and Adjutant of the 199th Irish Rangers, recruited in Montreal, and was in charge of the arrangements for the battalion's notable tour of Ireland.

On the breaking up of the Irish Rangers, he was sent to France as aide-de-camp to Brigadier-General Simms, the Canadian representative at British General Headquarters. After serving with considerable distinction in this capacity for some time, Captain Shaughnessy was transferred to the headquarters of the Canadian Corps, acting as aide-de-camp to Lieutenant-General Sir Arthur Currie, the corps commander.

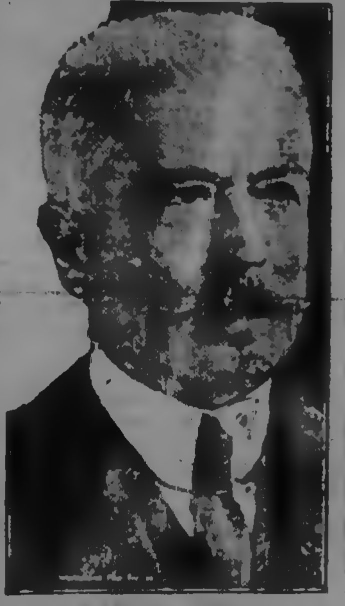
Premier Orlando of Italy,

Son of Sicilian Peasant,

Is a Brilliant Statesman

VICTOR E. ORLANDO is regarded as the strongest exponent of liberalism in Italy by many of his countrymen. He is a man of the people and has arrived at his position of eminence through sheer force of character and ability. Whatever may happen through political change or circumstance, Mr. Orlando will remain a force in the public life of Italy, because he is fearless, and progressive and has the confidence of the people.

Leonardo Vettetti, who was a pupil of Prof. Orlando in the University of Rome, and has the enthusiasm and reverence of all who have stood in this relation to the Premier of Italy, has been in the United States on a mission from his Government. "To understand Mr. Orlando you must know something of his life, the way in which he has come to the position he now occupies," Mr. Vettetti said recently. "He is a Sicilian by birth, and was born in 1860 when Garibaldi was entering Palermo, so they gave him the name of Victor Emmanuel. He was a good student, and, although of a peasant family, he acquired a fine education, making a specialty of Italian law, especially the constitution of the state. He began to write on subjects connected with this department of the law when he was very young, and was soon regarded as one of the most interesting and most important writers on the subjects.



PREMIER ORLANDO.

"Two of his books became, and have remained, standards, one on the constitutional rights of the state, and the other on the administrative rights. The information in these books is presented in the most interesting manner. Mr. Orlando has been professor of constitutional law in the University of Rome for many years. He began his political career by being elected to the Chamber of Deputies. Here he soon gave evidence of his ability, and became, successively, Minister of Public Instruction, Secretary of Justice, Secretary of the Interior, and Premier.

When the war broke out, he was Secretary of Justice in the Cabinet of Salandra, and he was one of the first to express himself as being in favor of Italy entering the war on the side of the Allies. Italy was in the position of not being obliged to fight, but Mr. Orlando was the leader of the great Liberal body who clearly and promptly saw wherein lay the duty of Italy. With the downfall of Salandra, Mr. Orlando was appointed Secretary of the Interior, and was soon facing the difficult days following Italian defeat. It was recognized that he was the man to meet the emergency, and he was appointed Premier. In a few weeks of wonderful work the Italian army was reorganized, and the nation was clothed with new strength for the prosecution of the war. To a large degree the credit for this must be given to Mr. Orlando, who had inspired the nation with courage.

"Mr. Orlando made a wonderful speech in the Chamber of Deputies on December 22 of that year, 1918, calling upon his countrymen to 'resist, resist, resist!' 'The voice of the fallen and the weal of the living,' he declared, 'demanded it.' 'There was only the one way with honor and safety—to resist, resist, resist!' Those words resounded throughout Italy and two months after the great defeat, the most critical moment of the war, Mr. Orlando had roused the people and prepared the way for future victory.

"He is a sympathetic man and his success has not dulled his generous impulses. He was at the front often after the defeat of Caporetto, encouraging the soldiers. On one of his visits he saw a little boy of the invaded lands. He learned that the father and mother were gone, the child was alone. He was the child of peasants and the Premier, who himself was the son of a peasant, adopted the lad as his own son."

A Dainty Dish.

What has been considered by oriental epicures as the daintiest dish in China, the birds' nest, is the product of the sea swallow, which constructs his nest of a gelatinous substance taken from sea moss. The Chinese method of preparing the nests for the table is to soak them and boil them in milk until they are very tender. Then they are placed in clear soup and are ready for use. On his trip to China, Gen. Grant was much feted, and one of the dishes set before him was the birds' nest.

Mastering Worry.

The person who knows no worry is a fortunate individual (if such a human being possibly exists), but worry as well as its first cousins, nerves, can be mastered if we sensibly take each day as it comes, smiling at its problems, and forgetting all about that "doubtful future" which some folks declare is full of woes.

Benefactor of Men.

HOW TOWNSHIPS ARE ASSESSED

The County Council Committee on Equalization and Assessments reported as follows:

(1) That all the municipalities comprising the County of Peterboro be assessed for the purpose of County Rates at the value set forth in the schedule hereto annexed, and that such valuations shall be the Equalised Assessment for the year 1920.

(2) That this Council is willing to have final Equalization of the Assessment, in case of an appeal, made by the County Judge.

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat if you feel Backachy or Have Bladder Trouble

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poisons, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will than act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

COAT OF PAINT FOR CITY HALL

INTERIOR OF BUILDING IS BEING THOROUGHLY OVERHAULED BY DECORATORS.

The City Hall is undergoing a complete overhauling today, a gang of six workmen under Foreman D. J. Eldred of the Arthur Kingdon Decorating Company being in charge of the work. The room of Tax Collector Green, has just been stripped and the men are now at work in the offices of the city engineer, Mr. R. H. Parsons. The whole building will be gone over with the exception of the offices used by the Utilities Commission.

All the paper is being torn off and in addition to repapering the ceilings the walls will receive three coats of paint and the wood work will get a coat of paint and two coats of varnish besides being grained. The stairways will also receive the beautifying touch of the paint brush. The floors will be oiled and the desks will shed their old coats and don new attire in conformity with their surroundings. All these changes will be completed not later than July 17, but in the meantime anyone with urgent business at the City Hall will find that there has been a temporary shift of quarters within the building.

SPECIAL SERVICE ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

HELD TODAY TO CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY OF JOHN THE BAPTIST.

The special services which were held in St. John's Church today were opened by the celebration of Holy Communion at ten o'clock, at which representatives from the various Anglican churches in Peterborough and the surrounding district were present. The services, which were in honor of St. John the Baptist, were conducted by Rev. Canon Davidson of St. John's, assisted by Rev. W. H. White, of St. Luke's. Rev. F. J. Sawers, the Rural Dean of Cobourg, was also present.

At the close of this service, a special meeting for women was held in the schoolroom, at which Miss Cartwright, the Diocesan President of the Women's Auxiliary of Toronto, and Mrs. Donaldson, the Diocesan Treasurer, also of Toronto, gave very thrilling addresses. The audience then adjourned for a social half hour during which the local ladies entertained the visiting friends with a tasty luncheon.

This afternoon there was a special meeting for men in the schoolroom at which Rev. R. C. Blagrade, of Toronto, will deliver an address with regard to the Forward Movement in the Anglican Church. This meeting was held in the St. John's schoolrooms at four o'clock.

IN NEGLIGEE SHIRT

Minister Who Appeared in it Claimed Scriptural Warrant

A member of the Bay of Quinte Conference appeared at one of its sessions in a negligee shirt and duck pants, much to the horror of a venerable minister who called the attention of the President, to the irregularity. The offending member showed that he knew his Bible as well as his own comfort by quoting, Ezekiel, Chapter 44, verses 17 and 18: "Whey they (the priests and the Levites) enter in at the gates of the inner court they shall be clothed with linen garments and no wool shall come upon them. They shall have linen bonnets upon their heads and shall have linen breeches upon their loins; they shall not gird themselves with anything that causeth sweat."

Leaders Inspect The Arrangements

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Versailles, June 24.—Premiers Lloyd George and Clemenceau and President Wilson visited the palace this afternoon to inspect the arrangements for the ceremony of signing the peace treaty.

ALL DAY PRAYER SERVICE AT GEORGE ST. CHURCH

Will Be Held Thursday in Connection With Revival Services Now in Progress in Tent on Hunter Street.

In connection with the revival services now being held in the tent on Hunter street there will be an all day prayer meeting Thursday in the basement of the George Street Methodist Church, which is supposed to be the coolest place in the city for this purpose. The services will begin at 10 a.m. and continue until 2 p. m. There will be a special session for the business men of the city between 12 and 1, the only hour at which it is possible for them to attend.

There was a good attendance at the tent last night and an excellent musical program was furnished by the well trained choir from Mark street Church under the leadership of Miss Emma Kemp. Some of the special features were solos by Mr. W. G. Mulligan who has charge of the singing at the services; Mrs. Er Ward and Miss Ella Kemp and a duet by Mr. Fred Walden and Mrs. C. Hughes. Evangelist Kennedy preached an interesting sermon from the text "There was no room for them at the Inn." At the close of the services he asked all those who wished to re-consecrate themselves to go forward and about 90 per cent of those present responded. The subject of the address tonight will be "The Second Chance."

The following are some of the pithy paragraphs in Mr. Kennedy's preaching.

SPARKS FROM KENNEDY'S ANVIL

If any city neglects her slums, soon the slums run the city.

In giving to God we are taking the surest way of getting from God.

You are to love your neighbor as yourself, not as your wife or mother.

If you have any difficulty about doing it, just look in the mirror.

A woman that fits into society better than into a prayer meeting, needs fixing up.

Some folks are like the wax figures in the show windows—not the real thing.

When a church loses its desire to save the lost, it loses its right to be called a church.

Running round with the devil six days a week and trying to keep company with Christ on Sunday won't do.

We are not only to keep Christ's commandments, but to do the things that are pleasing in His sight.

The question is not as to whether there is any harm in doing a certain thing, but is there any good in it, does it please the Master we profess to serve?

If the Apostles had not stood up for Christ better than many church members today, we would never have heard of Christianity after the first century.

Their enemies said of them: "These men have been with Jesus, not because of their gentleness, but because of their boldness"

We need a holy boldness today in all the pulpits of our land.

A sermon that makes you comfortable in your sin, may be eloquent, but its not from God.

A mirror is no good unless its true and Christians are worse than no good to the cause of Christ if they do not reflect the Master.

PASTORS DEMAND SENATE REFORM

MEMBERS OF BAY OF QUINTE CONGRESS ADOPT STRONG RESOLUTION.

Whitby, June 24.—There is no uncertain note in the Bay of Quinte Methodist Conference regarding the Canadian Senate; a strong resolution was passed unanimously in full Conference, indicating a growing dissatisfaction and distrust that that body is acting as dictator and not as servant of the Canadian people. It was therefore resolved to "urge upon the leaders of all political parties and especially upon the leaders of the Union Government at present in power, the necessity of taking immediate steps toward thorough control of the people," or, as an alternative, that the complete abolition of the existing Upper Chamber be considered as the most satisfactory remedy for the existing abuses, and a step which would not be regretted by any large body of Canadian citizens.

CHRIST'S HOSPITAL.

The Quaint Old School In Newgate Street.

"The old school in Newgate street, founded in 1553, and sacred to the memory of Charles Lamb, Samuel Taylor Coleridge, Leigh Hunt, and many other distinguished men, was built on the cramped site of an ancient monastery. The new school at West Horsham occupies one of the finest sites in Sussex. Picture vast spacious buildings, grouped at intervals round the wind-swept playgrounds, a large tuck-shop, and plenty of sunlight and air; then go to Newgate street, and you will realise how the Blue Coats have prospered." Thus did the retiring headmaster of Christ's Hospital summarise, recently, the past and present of the famous Blue Coat School. It is all true, of course. No one who travels down to Portsmouth, say, from London, and looks out of the window as the train rushes through West Horsham, and takes note of the glorious playing fields of the new Christ's Hospital can fail to agree with Dr. Upcott that the Blue Coat boys have, indeed, prospered. And yet, although the new Christ's Hospital is tremendously engaged in making history, and, during the past few years, with its thousands of Old Blues who have served in the war, has made much, the great story of Christ's Hospital still centres round Newgate street. It does so, perhaps, the more perfectly because the story of its 350 years in Newgate street is a closed book. The famous buildings, "the much-loved cloisters pale" of Coleridge's memories, the Hall, the Counting House, the Mathematical School have not been "adapted to other uses." They have been swept away, and so are preserved in history as the school left them.

As a matter of fact, Christ's Hospital was ever used to changes. The authorities never hesitated to pull down a building and put up another in its place, if the advantage of doing so was obvious. Thus the famous Erasmus Smith School, associated so vividly with Lamb, Coleridge, and Hunt, was pulled down in 1790, and another building erected at the expense of another Smith, John by name. So, as one writer justly remarks, "it was in Erasmus' and not John's building that Coleridge "enjoyed the inestimable advantage of a very sensible, though at the same time a very severe master, the Rev. James Bowyer"; there Charles Lamb learned nothing, because his master, Matthew Feilde, "was engaged in gay parties, or with his courtly bow at some Episcopal levee, when he should have been attending on us," and there Leigh Hunt's "grammar seemed always to open at the same place." Feilde "languidly bearing his cane as if it were a lily, and hearing our eternal Dominuses and As in praesenti's with an air of ineffable endurance."

And so when the Charity Commissioners just upon twenty years ago, taking note of the enormous value of the site in Newgate street, and considering all that could be done with the proceeds of its sale, to say nothing of the manifest advantage of moving the boys out of the city into the country, secured the royal consent to the great change, Christ's Hospital acquiesced with better grace, perhaps, than might have been expected. Two years later the exodus had been accomplished, and the great army of boys, so long familiar in the city, in their long blue coats, leather belts, yellow stockings, white tuckers, and with hatless heads, had moved to West Horsham.

It was just 350 years before this happened, namely, in 1552, that the boy King Edward VI, being greatly moved by a sermon preached before him by "Maister Doctor Ridley," then both consulted with "two aldermen and six Commoners," and, as a result of it all, it was decided that "the House of the Grey Friars must become a hospital for fatherless children and other poore men's children, who could not find meat, drink, clothes, lodging and learning, and officers to attend upon them." The very same year, about 300 children were received into the new house, whilst a hundred others were lodged out in the country, and ever since that time Christ's Hospital has, with varying efficiency and under changing regulations, been carrying out its mission. It has passed through its evil days, and its periods characterised by bitter harshness and neglect, but all that is left far behind, and it maintains, to-day, as it has maintained for so long, its proud position as one of the best schools in the United Kingdom.

Austria Headed Road Movement.

Curiously enough, the question of removal of snow from main highways which is now being agitated was first undertaken nationally by Austria in 1877, at which time a law was passed compelling municipalities to remove snow from state roads in order to keep them up for travel.

Every Wage Earner An Investor

Every wage earner can be an investor in gilt-edged securities bearing a high rate of interest without sacrifice or worry.

The plan is so simple and secure that it commends itself to everybody.

All of us spend a portion of our earnings thoughtlessly. It is human nature. Yet most of us would be glad if someone would take the money we fritter away and save it for us, because we find it difficult to save it ourselves.

Make your employer do it by means of War Savings Stamps. Say to him: "I want you to take five per cent. of the money in my pay envelope each week and buy me Thrift Stamps. Then with each $4.00 worth of Thrift Stamps buy me a War Savings Stamp. When you have bought each War Savings Stamp, put it in my envelope. Go on doing that for a year."

That is all. Your mind is free. You will not miss that 75 cents or that dollar which you have hitherto squandered on trifles.

But at the end of the year you will have a little package of War Savings Stamps, each bearing the $5.00 mark, but which have cost you but a few cents over $4.00 each. These Canada will redeem in 1924.

In June W-S.S. Cost $4.00

PENSION RAISE IS DECIDED ON

FORTY-FOUR THOUSAND, NOT INCLUDING WOMEN AND CHILDREN, ON LIST.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, June 21.—Hon. N. W. Rowell's committee on soldiers' and sailors' pensions have recommended various increases and bonuses to disabled soldiers and relatives of deceased soldiers. Two thousand will be affected by these increases which will amount to half a million per annum. About forty-four thousand persons, not including women and children, are on the pension list at present and the estimated pension liability in all is thirty-nine million dollars per year.

PRICE OF WHEAT MUST BE FIXED

MILLER SAYS THIS IS ESSENTIAL AND SUGGESTS NEW PLAN.

Ottawa, June 24. — During the course of his examination before the cost of living committee, W. A. Black, vice-president of the Ogilvie Milling Company, was asked to express opinion in regard to the fixing of a price on wheat. In replying, Mr. Black referred to the situation in the United States where the farmers will receive a price of $2.26 per bushel guaranteed by the government. He was inclined to think that unless something were done there would be a considerable slump in the price of wheat. He expressed the view that the wheat trade and the banks will be afraid to purchase in large quantities, because of the possibility of incurring loss. On the other hand, he said if a price were fixed in Canada, even at a figure lower than in the United States, wheat could be purchased with confidence.

Mr. Black suggested another method of dealing with the situation. He said the farmer might be paid, say, $1.25 per bushel by government, which would handle the crop. At the end of the season the farmer could be given any additional profit which might accrue to him as the result of the sale of his wheat.

Hermann Mueller To Act For Germans

TEACHERS GIVEN $100 INCREASE

STAFF AT MAY'S SCHOOL GOT WHAT THEY ASKED FOR.

The five teachers in May's School, Mrs. H. Jackson, principal, Miss D. Stocker, Miss V. Watt, Mrs. Alice Stilson and Miss F. Nicholls, asked for an increase of $100 a year for the coming school year. This request has been granted by the board who are well satisfied with the presestn stac and are axious to retain their services.

NO STREET CARS RUN IN TORONTO

COMPANY EVIDENTLY HESITATES TO SET STRIKE BREAKERS AT WORK.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, June 24.—There was a meeting of citizens in the Mayor's office today to discuss the tie-up since Sunday of the Toronto street railway service. The proceedings were private but it is expected that a statement will be given out later. Brigadier General Gunn, commanding the military district was one of those present. No attempt was made this morning to run cars as the company had decided to await a more opportune time.

NOT YET SETTLED

The session of St. Paul's church held a meeting last night for the purpose of selecting an organist. The matter is still under advisement.

A 2-year-old Detroit girl, standing on a chair watching her reflection in a rain barrel, fell in and was drowned.

Honesty between husbands and wives is the best insurance against divorce.

Some men worry because they have no work and some others worry because they have.

Figgerers.

In the Scientific Monthly Prof. R. D. Carmichael, of the University of Illinois, differentiates among and characterises several of the world famous mathematicians.

"We begin with Euclid," writes Dr. Carmichael:

"To what extent he was an original investigator is unknown, but he must have made important contributions, since otherwise his elements would not so quickly have supplanted the work of his predecessors. It is clear that he took delight both in the beauty of the content and of the form of his work and that he developed it primarily from the love of truth for its own sake."

Of Archimedes, he says:—

"He was probably the greatest mathematician of antiquity. He was inspired primarily by the love of pure science, rejoicing in the truth because it is the truth and feeling a certain contempt for the applications of truth in the way of supplying our grosser needs; and yet he was a great practical inventor and had a wide range of knowledge of phenomena. He founded the theory of hydrostatics and contributed effectively to the initial development of mechanics and of astronomy."

And of Fermat:—

"He seems to have cultivated certain parts of mathematics for the pure love of their beauty. Probably he was hardly conscious of motive at all, since his activity was so nearly spontaneous, and gave new impulses to certain isolated studies."

Newton, the writer thinks—

"was undoubtedly moved primarily by a desire to understand and interpret natural phenomena. To this motive, therefore, we owe his invention of the differential and integral calculus (shared with Leibnitz), the founding of celestial mechanics and rational mechanics in general, and the consequent development of applied mathematics in many fields of science."

No Drawback.

The best story accredited to Sir Aston Webb, president of the British Royal academy, concerns a politician. "I wonder what he'll do now?" said one. "What's the matter with him?" "He's lost his reason," replied the other. "Oh, that won't matter, so long as he retains his voice!" was the retort.

The Black Sheep.

A Kansas City girl, who a year ago scandalised her weeping family by laughing aloud at her sister's wedding, disgusted the relatives again this week by sobbing through the sister's divorce hearing, utterly oblivious to the smiles of her aged mother and jubilant sisters.—Kansas City Star.

MR. BURNHAM DISCUSSES CREDIT TO OTHER POWERS

Takes the Stand That Sending Goods to Roumania Will Raise the Cost of Living in Canada.

When the question of granting credit to Roumania to buy Canadian exports was before Parliament Mr. J. H. Burnham spoke on the motion as follows:

The most serious question before the country today is the high cost of living and if we bonus certain industries at the expense of the general consumer the high cost of living for the consumer will not go down but will go up and there will be greater unrest than there is now. The hon. member (Mr. Stevens) at the close of his remarks, said that there is a great temptation to make use of, or to take advantage of, the foreign market at the enhanced price. That is to say, the subsidized exporter is to have the benefit of this credit at the expense of the general consumer. But the general consumer will not stand for it. It is all very well to have a brilliant prospect, but it may be a rainbow dream; and that it what this is. If the money we were making by taking advantage of the foreign market and of foreign possibilities enured to the general benefit of Canada then the argument would be justifiable, but when it is not so, you are, to use plain language, robbing the general consumer in order that the exporter may profit. The people of Canada are endeavoring to find out what the difficulty is, and when they find that it is that our butter, eggs, meat, and so on, are being rushed to a foreign market which is subsidized by our own people, and that they are being tortured accordingly. I am very much mistaken if they do not rise and call a halt, saying: "The limit of the suffering which we have to endure and the extra high prices which we are asked to pay. If we are going to play fast and loose with the affairs of the country in this way and take advantage of a temptation which is only going to carry its own sting with it any attempt to solve the difficulty will be hopeless.

There is a prevailing heresy amongst some members of this House that if you sell goods in a given market you can always buy other goods from that market; that people must have goods bought from them if they expect to buy goods from you, or you hope to sell to them. That takes no account whatever of the element of profit, all of which is comprised in the single phrase "rate of exchange." Everybody knows that when the rate of exchange is against a country, as it is against Canada and in favor of the United States at the present time, this country pays from $13,000,000 to $15,000,000 in hard cash for the privilege of having the balance of trade against it—and that is the very thing that has come up in this argument now. To my mind, it shows a complete absence of a grasp of the difficulties of the situation.

An Austrian miner at Pittsburg, Kan., ignited a fuse attached to a stick of dynamite and killed himself by lying down on the explosive.

Rev. John Melich, Brooklyn, N.Y., was awarded $48,000 for injuries received by falling through a broken stairway on the elevated railway.

MAYOR DUNCAN

labor and of the tenders on fyle came in for the now time-worn treatment, Ald. Crowe declared he would vote for no tender which did not protect individual members of the Council from liability.

Barber Guarantees.

Mr. Barber in reply said he would guarantee the individual aldermen against liability in this way:

"I'll guarantee that, in my judgment, the city has plenty of money with which to build even the original wide bridge. I'll assume the responsibility for that, and I'll put it in writing before the contract is let."

Mr. Barber here went on to say that his solicitor advises that it is all nonsense to talk of the individual liability of aldermen on this question. All responsibility falls on the contractor for excess of cost. In one case, for instance, where construction exceeded the amount of money voted, the responsibility fell on the contractors, who failed to get paid the amount of his excess. In any event in this cost the matter would never go so far as that, as the contracts would quit after the city's appropriation had been expended.

Bone of Contention.

His Worship here said he would vote on no proposition tonight but to wait for a bid from the Leonard Construction Co.

To Ald. Hamilton, His Worship replied that Mr. Cormick of the Quaker Oats had assured him that Mr. Stuart had informed Ald. Phelan that Mr. Hadsall of the L. C. Co. would put in a lump sum bid in a few days.

Ald. Phelan: "There's a misunderstanding somewhere. I told Mr. Stuart just before he boarded his train that I could not postpone this meeting tonight as Mr. Barber was to meet the Board by appointment."

To Ald. Hamilton, the Mayor did not know whether Mr. Hadsall would bid on Mr. Barber's plans or his own.

Near to Blows.

When a resolution by Ald. Turner and Edgar to invite Russell-Townsend to estimate on the approaches to the bridge, and the committee to get plans and estimates for a steel arch, was before the Board, trouble arose between His Worship and Mr. Barber.

Ald. Crowe interjected: "Better wait a few days and get a tender from the Leonard Construction Co."

Just exactly what Mr. Barber remarked is not quite clear. Neither Ald. Crowe, nor Morrison, between whom he sat, heard distinctly; but it sounded like "No use waiting for that."

His Worship, however, replied: "You're not here, Mr. Barber, to give an opinion, but to tender advice when asked for it. You keep quiet or I'll put you out."

Mr. Barber here jumped to his feet and appealed to the chairman for ruling.

The Mayor: "You sit down or I'll put you out."

Mr. Barber: "Mr. Chairman, if I have disturbed a vote pending, I apologize, but I merely passed a remark to Ald. Crowe."

The Mayor here again threatened to put Mr. Barber out, saying: "You've been butting in here all evening."

Mr. Barber here lost his head, and made for His Worship, daring him to eject him.

However, both gentlemen quickly realized the absurdity of resorting to a physical test, and Mr. Barber retired to his seat and apologized for having lost his temper.

The Mayor never left his chair, but had the last word in a caution, that he would call the police if necessary to eject Mr. Barber should circumstances warrant.

Ald. Edgar, in defence of Mr. Barber, did not think he deserved the Mayor's attitude toward him. He had been instructed, he said, to be present in consultation on the bridge, and was entitled to his opinions.

Delayed Till Friday

On motion of Ald. Hamilton and McIntyre, the clerk was instructed to telegraph Mr. Hadsall of the Leonard Construction Co. at once and enquire if he would make a bid on the bridge from Mr. Barber's intact plans, the city to reserve the right to substitute a steel arch for the concrete one if deemed advisable. The Board would consider his tender if to hand by Friday noon next.

Gives Up Hope.

Ald. Crowe, in the course of proceedings, replied to Ald. Gainey that as it seemed no use attempting to get a resolution for day labor through, they might as well vote some other way. (Laughter.)

Ald. Gainey: "Stick out for day labor on principle."

There were present Chairman Ald. Phelan, Mayor Duncan, Aldermen Hamilton, Gainey, McIntyre, Crowe, Morrison, Taylor, Turner, Edgar.

Just as the city marshal was evicting a New York family for non-payment of rent, the stork arrived. Eviction was postponed.

EDWARD CLARKE COMPANY.

THE EDWARD CLARKE COMPANY.

The musical organization of the third day will be the Edward Clarke Company of Chicago, consisting of:

Mr. Clarke, Baritone
Mrs. Clarke, Violinist
Mr. Prahl, Pianist

These three Artists have made a name for themselves in the Musical World. Mr Clarke is in constant demand by the leading Musical and Territorial Societies, having recently appeared with the Apolo Club of Chicago, the Arion Club of Milwaukee and many other Clubs of high standing.

Mrs. Clarke is a native of Poland, a country that has produced some of the world's greatest Violinists. Among others she studied under Jacques Thibaud, who is considered by many as the world's foremost Violinist. She plays her way into the hearts of her audience.

Mr. Prahl has made a reputation for himself as a Composer and Pianist.

They present a programme of the best music in the most popular way.

THEATRICAL

GERALDINE FARRAR in THE STRONGER VOW
Goldwyn Pictures

AT THE GRAND TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY

MISS FARRAR AS SCREEN BRIDE

MADGE KENNEDY NOW HAS A RIVAL IN BRIDAL HONORS.

Madge Kennedy should look to her bridal laurels. The piquant Goldwyn star has become an adept at marching to the Mendelssohn strain, so often have her Goldwyn scenarios required her take the vow to "love, honor and obey." In "The Stronger Vow," newest of Geraldine Farrar's Goldwyn pictures, the famous diva poaches on Madge Kennedy's preserves and does a little marrying on her own account.

Dolores de Cordova (Geraldine Farrar,) a Spanish girl acquires a nobleman for a husband, the Marquis of Valera, whom she meets while scouring Paris in search of Juan Estudillo to avenge the murder of her brother in Spain, where are laid the opening scenes of "The Stronger Vow," which will be repeated at the Grand tonight and tomorrow.

The wedding, proves a brilliant event, with Dolores enjoying the first ray of sunshine that has come into her life. Hundreds of Parisians, including members of many aristocratic families are there to do honor to the Marquis and his beautiful bride. But before the great day ends and while she is still in her beautiful wedding gown, tragedy again lays its heavy hand upon her, word having come to Dolores that the man she has married was Juan Estudillo before he was made a Marquis, [illegible] the bride of the man she has taken the blood vow to kill.

No picture in Geraldine Farrar's long and brilliant screen career has demanded of her such a variety of skillful and powerful emotional acting as "The Stronger Vow," newest in the famous diva's series of Goldwyn productions. The role of Dolores de Cordova gives Miss Farrar opportunities to portray all the emotions that can engulf a beautiful girl in a whirlpool of tragedy, intrigue, love and adventure.

TWO FAMOUS STARS IN THIS PICTURE

CARLYLE BLACKWELL AND EVELYN GREELEY IN "COURAGE FOR TWO."

Two famous and popular stars appear in the new World Picture "Courage for Two" now running at the Grand. They are Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greeley, and the roles in which they appear are particularly congenial.

This picture is another one in the successful series of snappy, zestful, interesting, lively Blackwell-Greeley entertainers. It is jam-packed with the sort of delightful picture material that film fans have learned to expect from this popular pair from seeing their work in "The Beloved Blackmailer," "By Hook or Crook," "Love in a hurry," and other successes.

Mr. Blackwell is seen in a double role in this picture, the first he has played in a long, long time. Each of the roles he assumed is effectively different from what the spectators might expect, and each characterization is distinct and lifelike. Mr. Blackwell's work in this production is among the best that he has ever done.

Miss Evelyn Greeley is seen in "Courage for Two" in the thrilling role of Marion. It is a congenial role and needless to say, Miss Greeley handles it to perfection.

From every angle "Courage for Two" is screen entertainment of just the sort that every film fan likes to see. It is the sort of entertainment that is not ordinarily seen on the screens, and for that reason it will prove all the more acceptable to those people who are looking for the best motion pictures.

To the youth in love whose salary is $9 a week an ice cream sign looks like a nightmare.

There is safety in numbers. The more lady friends a bachelor has the more likely he is to remain a bachelor.

Shaving Soldiers.

It was in warfare that the idea was evolved of soldiers having their chins clean shaven to enhance their fighting power. In olden times, when fighting at closer quarters than now, soldiers' beards offered a very ready means of seizing one another, and it was the man who first succeeded in seizing his opponent's beard who usually had the best of the bargain. The early races are said to have effected a compromise in order to retain a fitter military appearance and the ancient Egyptians who had cut off or could not cultivate beards often wore heavy false beards when they went into battle. When an enemy seized hold of their beard it came off instantly and the ancient Egyptian was able to despatch his quarry while in a trance of stupefaction and horror.

The Origin of Dutch.

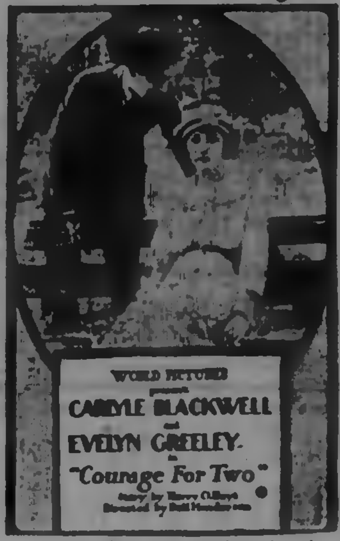
The name Dutch is derived from Dietsch, meaning the vernacular, as distinguished from Latin. It is the same word as the German Deutsch. Dutch belongs to the Frankish division of the Low German, and is closely related to the Flemish, with which it is now practically identified in its written form. The Dutch language is one of the Germanic group of dialects, and is practically the same in its structure.

Weather Forecasts.

United States weather forecasts are based on the general study of types of weather combined with the study of the series of the daily weather maps for a few days immediately preceding the period for which predictions are to be made. No forecast of weather is made for a period in advance longer than is warranted by the rapidity of atmospheric changes at that time. Many almanacs contain astrological predictions, but they are not taken seriously.

Patriotic Address.

The Wild Onion school teacher lectured on the United States a few nights ago to a large audience. In the course of his remarks he paid a glowing tribute to our country, and it is regretted that everybody in the United States were not present. One reason we keep so far ahead of the other nations, said he, is because we are getting up and going to work every morning while the folks around the other side of the world are just going to bed.—Hogwallow Kentuckian.



At the Grand Tuesday and Wednesday.

Care of Umbrellas.

Carelessness in the treatment of umbrellas is a great factor in their rapid deterioration. An umbrella merely damp should be opened and left until dry, while a very wet one should be put to drain first, handle downward, and opened for the final drying.

Unique Nation.

Costa Rica is unique among modern nations, inasmuch as it has more teachers than soldiers. The standing army is only 500 strong, while the teachers in active service number about 2,000. For nearly 45 years the country has enjoyed internal peace.

Horse is Deceived.

A horse sees everything about 22 per cent larger than does a man. So that a six-foot man looms up a little short of seven feet six inches high. The fact has, of course, never been proved, but a favorite explanation of the large image in a horse's eye is that if a horse knew man's exact size he would realize his power and pass beyond his control.

Oil of Turpentine.

Various conifers, the pinus pinaster in France, the Scotch pine, the swamp pine, the loblolly, the long-leaved pine, Southern yellow pine and Georgia pine are sources of oil of turpentine and resin.

FANS ARE STILL PUZZLED HOW TO DOPE OUT FIGHT

Willard is Favorite, But Question is Will Bout go for Twelve Rounds to be Decided by Referee or Will There be Knockout?

Todedo, O., June 23.—On July 4th Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey will chamber through the ropes on the arena at Bayview park for what probably will be the greatest sporting spectacle in modern history. For three weeks a public which has sent thousands of persons to the training camps where the men have been working has been trying to decide the respective merits of the two men. Yet today, a fortnight before the contest, even the shrewedest of sporting followers are frankly at loss to determine which should be favorite.

No heavyweight boxing championship ever has seen such a divergence of opinion as this one. Previous bouts have seen one or the other of the contenders an overwhelming choice. In many—most instances—this favoritism proved unwarranted, but the Willard-Dempsey contest sentiment veers daily, even hourly. Keen judges of boxers are changing their opinion in the short half mile ride from Willard's to Dempsey's training camp.

While the greatest crowd which ever saw a sporting event probably will see Dempsey and Willard box, and while more persons than ever will be watching the tickers the afternoon of July 4, there will be less betting, proportionately with the interest taken, than on any other hevyweight battle. That will be because of the very uncertainty. Betting men can't make up their minds and hold them to a certain belief for two days at a stretch and they won't back that sort of uncertainty with coin.

Willard probably will enter the ring a favorite. Ther eis ample reason to believe that Not only is he champion, a reason in itself for making him favorite, but he possesses most of the material advantages. He has the weight, the height and the reach. He is a straight puncher and Dempsey is a hooker. Dempsey's advantages, the advantage of youth, the advantage of being a natural instead of an artificial fighter, are too intangible for the betting men to put up hard cash on. Jess rules a 7 to 10 favorite now and probably will be 1 to 2 by July 4.

But after all the betting odds don't make any difference. Sullivan was favorite over Corbett, Corbett was favorite over Fitz Jeffries was favorite over Johnson and Johnson was favorite over Willard, but that didn't make any differerce in the result. It will be the blows struck and the blows taken on Independence day which will decide the issue, not the posted odds in the pool-rooms.

Even as there is a wide divergence of opinion as to the outcome of the bout, there is just the same diversity of thought regarding how the contest will end. It seems about equally divided between those who believe the contest will go the full twelve rounds to a referee's decision and those who believe that the referee's count of ten will spell the end of the spectacle. And each side has specious arguments to advance to prove that it is right.

Germans Have Discovered That Mathias Erzberger Possesses No Principles

After his fiasco as an armistice delegate the German press is bitter against Herr Erzberger. Rejoicing in the fact that he was not included among the peace delegates, George Bernhard says, in the Vossische Zeitung:

"It is a piece of good fortune that the German nation would have been glad to enjoy long before this. For this inverted Northcliffe, who in spite of reckless expenditures of state money and shameless corruption of the press could not make his propaganda successful, could have no success with the Entente, as they have too complete a dossier regarding him. He should never have been allowed out of Germany as a negotiator. The task of the German delegation in Paris will be more difficult because of his mismanagement of the armistice negotiations, and the German nation has him to thank for what is taking place in Posen today."

The Berliner Neueste Nachrichten thinks a survey of his past career worth while and states a few of the blunders committed by the statesman:

"His extraordinary following as a parliamentarian led to the belief that he was supremely fitted to occupy the position of chief of propaganda, while his willingness and zeal showed itself in the sum expended for this end, which was no less than 28,000,000 marks."

On the other hand:

"He used his office lightly, affiliating himself only with those papers whose corruptibility was no secret and whose significance had already sunk to a low level. The discovery of this fact gave Italy and Roumania additional reasons for making war upon Germany, and when America declared herself on the side of our enemies Erzberger no longer considered propaganda in favor of war worth while, and, with a rapid change of convictions, began to push propaganda against war. He defended Wilson's plan for a league of nations, which he attempted to explain to the German people in a book."

Regarding his failure as an armistice delegate the Berliner Neueste Nachrichten continues:

"No one had a better chance of making good his stilted phrase: 'I wager that after I have sat for only half an hour at the table with Lloyd George and the others we will have an immediate peace.' Now he has been sitting for months with the negotiators of the Entente, and we are not only not at peace, but he has agreed to the most humiliating terms possible for Germany."

MATHIAS ERZBERGER.

According to the Frankfurter Zeitung, "a well paid porter with a placard bearing the word 'We accept' might just as well have been sent to Treves, instead of the nodding official," while the Hanover Courier reaches the conclusion that "where antique grandeur alone would have been fitting, thick-headed bourgeoisie had been sent."

Rare Fruits.

There have been found in the Philippines two fruits entirely unknown to Europe and even to America. One of these is the durian, which grows on a lofty tree somewhat resembling an elm, is about as large as a cocoanut, has a shiny shell and contains a creamy pulp which combines some of the flavor of delicious custard with those of a fine cheese. American soldiers in the Philippines have dubbed the durian the "vegetable limburger." The other rare fruit is the mangosteen, but the exquisitely flavored liquid it contains has not yet been successfully preserved for shipping.

New Giant C.P.R. Locomotive

Ten of the largest locomotives ever built for use on Canadian railways have been under construction for some time at the C.P.R. Angus Shops in Montreal, and one of these, No. 5302 was inspected the other day by President E. W. Beatty, and Vice-president Grant Hall. These locomotives are of the heavy Mikado type and are intended for freight service, being designed and built under the direct supervision of Mr. W. H. Winterrowd, the Chief Mechanical Engineer.

The weight of the engine and tender in working condition is 500,000 lbs. the engine alone weighing 323,-000 lbs. The diameter of the driving wheels is 63 inches. The cylinders are 25½ inches in diameter by 32-inch stroke, which with 200-lbs. boiler pressure makes these locomotives capable of exerting a maximum tractive effort of 58,000 lbs. The diameter of the boiler is 80 inches at the front end and 90 inches at the back end. The fire box is 84 inches wide and 120 inches long, and the grates are moved by steam grate shakers.

The cab is of the vestibule type, which is the C.P.R. standard, and every effort has been made to make the accommodations for the enginemen as comfortable as possible. One side of the cab is fitted with a clothes locker 14 inches by 20 inches wide, in which clothes can be hung and lunch pails carried.

The tender has a capacity for 12 tons of coal and 8,000 imperial gallons of water.

President E. W. Beatty and Vice-President Grant Hall, of the C. P. R. snapped after inspecting the new engine.

Not So Sick.

China's position as one of the sick nations of the earth does not seem so hopeless if one considers what her natural resources are.

"No man," says the World Outlook, "has computed them. There is enough coal in the one province of Shansi to last the entire world for some hundreds of years.

"China has also great iron mines. The copper mines of Szechwan and Yunnan are very rich and may make China the greatest copper producing nation in the world. She is now producing a large amount of antimony. There are possibilities of gold and silver in North China and in the mountains of Eastern Tibet.

"There are even unheard of possibilities in Chinese agriculture. Their land is constantly enriched and irrigated, and after 5,000 years the Chinese farms still average from two to four crops a year."

Jamaica Wants Flour.

Jamaica expects to import this year 227,500 barrels of flour, chiefly from Canada and the United States.

Had 200 Portraits.

Guzman Blanco, late President of Venezuela, whose daughter married the Duc de Morny, and who died a few years ago in Paris, not only had his portrait painted about 200 times, but erected about a dozen statues to himself, writing with his own hand their fulsome inscriptions and invariably calling himself in gigantic capitals "The Illustrious American, Pacificator and Regenerator of the United States of Venezuela."

Why Marry?

At a "husband's night" of a woman's club a feature of the entertainment was the answering by the men, on slips of paper, of the question, "Why should a woman marry?" and by the women of the question, "Why should a man marry?" A prize was offered for the best answer to each of these questions. The best man's answer was adjudged to be this: "Because in that way a woman wins perfection"—a kind of double-edged compliment to each sex. The woman's prize went to this answer: "I know no reason why a man should marry"—a bit of subtle feminine self-effacement that seemed so unusual in these days that it "hit" the awarding committee. The shortest answer given to the question, "Why should a woman marry?" was, "Alimony." The longest was this: "Because character, not happiness, is the object of life; and in sacrificing her happiness by marriage a woman confers character on a man and wins it in greater measure for herself." A well-known artist wrote the question, "Why should a man marry?" and opposite it simply drew a picture of a pretty girl. Another answer to the same question was, "To save that extra thousand on his income tax."

New Rendering of Old Song.

A young lady at a New Year's party was asked to sing. She complied, and this is what her audience made out of the song: "Mid playsure sand palaces, tho' heam a roame, be it averse oh wum bull, there snow play sly comb!"

ST. ANDREW'S FILES PROTEST

At a meeting of the session of St. Andrew's Church on Friday night it was decided to protest against the recent action of the Senate in dealing with the proposed liquor legislation. Accordingly a letter was drafted and submitted on Sunday morning to a joint meeting of the session and Board of Managers when it was approved and ordered to be sent to the Prime Minister, Sir Robert Borden. Copies were also sent to the speaker of the Senate, to Senator Nicholls, and to Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P.

Following is a copy of the letter:

"In view of the great benefits that have come to this community and to the country as a whole from the prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquors, and especially in view of the greatly increased efficiency of the prohibitory law brought about by the action of the Government of the Dominion in forbidding interprovincial traffic in intoxicating beverages, the Session and Board of Managers of St. Andrew's Church, Peterborough, Ont., in joint meeting, desire to express appreciation of the efforts of the Government and House of Commons toward making that prohibition permanent to protest, with all possible vigor, against the recent action of the Senate in refusing to enact this measure, to voice the hope that some means may be found of averting the disastrous consequences that will otherwise follow the action of the Senate, and to assure you, your government and the House of Commons that in any action you may take toward this end, you will have our hearty and undivided support.

Signed on behalf of the Session and Board.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. John F. Orde, K.C., of Ottawa, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Smith, Charlotte street.

Mrs. J. H. Burnham arrived in the city from Ottawa last week. Mr. Burnham is expected this week.

Mrs. S. J. Stubbs, 661 Water street, left the city this morning to spend a few days with friends at McCracken's Landing.

The members of Mrs. Shield's Bible Class, in the George Street Methodist Church, have been invited by Mrs. Hugh P. Lindsay to spend Thursday at her summer cottage at McCracken's Landing.

Mrs. Denison and Miss Denison were the week-end visitors of Mrs. W. J. Hopwood, at Chemong Park.

Mr. Vincent Eastwood and family have opened their cottage for the summer at Chemong Park.

Mr. W. J. Thompson and family have opened their cottage at Chemong for the summer.

Mrs. Alfred Simmons, Montreal, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Roy, Rubidge street.

Mr. Gordon Matthews and Miss Jessie Matthews motored from Toronto yesterday.

Miss Mary Harstone is home from Havergal for the summer holidays.

The big event of this week end last night was the circus gotten up by the Trebilcock boys and John Thompson. It was a huge success and well patronized by the grown-ups. It was held in Trebilcock's garage.

Mrs. John Porter Shearer, with her little daughter, Louise, from Nyack-on-Hudson, New York, is visiting her sister Mrs. J. H. Renwick, 267 Aylmer street.

Mrs. Gay, Prust avenue, and her small son, have gone to Chemong Park for the summer. Her husband, the Rev. Robert Gay, of St. Monica's, will follow her later in the summer. Mr. Gay had a pleasant little surprise on Sunday afternoon, when at the tea-party, given in the Parish House on Sunday afternoons for, and by, the staff of the church and Sunday school, the fifteen delegates who are to go from the parish to the summer schools, gave him a fitted club bag and an alarm clock in recognition of Mr. Gay's many weeks of preparation for the summer school's work. Eight of the fifteen delegates will go to the summer school in St. Catharines five to that to be held in Ashbury College Ottawa, and at which Mr. Gay will be one of the lecturers.—Globe.

NEW ATTRACTION FOR JULY FIRST

ENGAGEMENT OF FAMOUS SOPRANO SOLOIST WITH BAND.

Included in the program to be rendered by the Anglo-Canadian Leather Co. band at the Exhibition Grounds on Dominion Day, is a number by Leonara James Kennedy, a soprano soloist known the continent over. This lady contributed solos with the above named band four days at the Toronto Exhibition last fall, for which she received flattering press notices.

At Peterborough's coming Big Gala Day Leonara James Kennedy will sing, in the evening, "Caro Nome," by Verdi, and visitors should keep this booking in mind, as it will unquestionably prove "worth while."

Music Pupils In Pleasing Recital

A pleasing entertainment was given at the Conservatory of Music Hall on Saturday afternoon, when the pupils of Miss Margaret Macdonald, assisted by a violin pupil of Miss Logan, Mis Donald Morrison, were heard in recital.

Quite a number were present, considering the weather conditions and each pupil rendered his or her respective selections in a manner that not only entertained but gave promise for the future. Every credit is due both teacher and pupils. Following is the program.

Jack Clayton—Humming Bird.
Bernice McIlwain—Mary's Waltz.

FIVE ALIENS IN THE COUNTY JAIL

NONE OF THE MEN IS ILL ALTHOUGH VERY MUCH DEPRESSED.

"The five prisoners awaiting trial in the County Jail on the charge of murdering Jhilip Yanoff are all in first class condition stated Gaoler H. Nesbitt this morning. "The report that one of them was sick is entirely without foundation, the only trouble with him being that he was a little downhearted. No doctor has been sent for or asked for by eitther the prisoner himself or his solicitor They all obtain the regular prison fare, which includes meat every other day. In addition they get tea twice a day.

Mr. Nesbitt then went on to tell about some of the murderers who had been confied in the County Jail. The last one was a man named Henderson who was hanged about eight years ago for murdering a woman with on axe at a place only a few miles distant from the scene of this murder. In Mr. Nesbitt's opinion his face bore a striking resemblance to that of the celebrated Frank McCullough.

At present there are thirteen inmates in the jail six of whom are serving time, two are awaiting transportation to the reformatory and the five who will appear before the Court on Monday make up the quota. These five are being kept separate as far as possible, two being in one ward, two in another and one in a third.

Helsingfors, June 25—Russian volunteer White Guards have occupied Peterhof, 18 miles from Petrograd, according to reports received here.

Workingmen Are Called to Mobolize

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, June 25.—The Hungarian Communist Congress has ordered a general mobilization of all workmen, a despatch from Budapest says. The military situation is said to be unfavorable to Hungary and in addition the morale of the troops is bad.

BROKE INTO JAIL

But it Was to Obtain Liquor Secured There

Nashville, Tenn., June 25.—Burglars last night broke into the jail here, sawed their way into a cell, and secured 125 gallons of seized liquor, valued at about $2,000.

BUSY TIME FOR DOMINION POLICE

CASES OF NINE DEFAULTERS DISPOSED OF THIS WEEK SO FAR.

The Dominion Police of Peterboro have had a very active month so far. Out of 23 prosecutions under the Military Service Act during the month they have lost only one case, That of Bert Eason. Twenty men received the minimum fine of $250 and costs, and two were assessed $500 and costs each for being defaulters.

This week promises to be a record-breaker. Three cases have come up every day so far, making a total of nine. The attitude of terror on the part of the defaulterts and their friends is fast disappearing on account of the courteous manner in which men who voluntarily surrender themselves are being treated.

The staff of the Dominion Police in Peterborough is made up entirely of war veterans who have done their bit in France and who have been wounded in the cause. Consequently when it came to a foot race, as often occurred in the past, they were no match for the A2 defaulters, some of whom had won prizes as racers.

ALLIES MAY SEND ANOTHER ULTIMATUM TO GERMANS

Demand That They Send Representatives to Sign Treaty of Peace Within Certain Number of Hours—Are Becoming Tired of This Delay

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, June 26.— The treaty of peace will be signed either Friday or Saturday it is believed although the day has not been definitely fixed it has been decided that the hour for the ceremony will be at two o'clock. The Peace Conference Secretariat is still without official knowledge of the personnel of the New German peace delegation and does not know when it will arrive in Versailles.

If the head of the allied powers in Paris do not hear from Weimar very soon regarding the German delegation for signing the peace treaty an ultimatum will be sent to the German government according to the Paris official of Reuters, Ltd., The ultimatum will demand the appointment of plenipotentiaries within a certain number of hours.

It was announced today that President Poincaire's official dinner to the peace plenipotentiaries will take place on Friday night. It was originally planned to hold the dinner on the night of the signing of the treaty but uncertainty as to the date for the ceremony has caused Friday to be named definitely for the dinner irrespective of the time of the event at Versailles

TORONTO TO PERMIT STREET CAR COMPANY TO RAISE RATES

This Condition Regarded as Essential to Granting Demands of Men and so Settling Strike.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, June 25.—Strikers and officials of the Toronto Street Railway Company today express themselves as more hopeful of a settlement following the various conferences during the past 24 hours. This is brought about by the general admission that an increase in fares will undoubtedly be an essential to a settlement of the men's demands.

This afternoon there will be another conferance of all parties with Mayor Church and a committee of citizens. Sir William Hearst, provincial premier, will take part in this meeting or be repreented by members of the provincial cabinet.

Things were quiet this morning at the Lansdowne avenue barns, where rioting broke out last night when strikebreakers housed inside played hose on the crowd without. No attempt to run the cars has been made at any time since the inception of the strike.

Riot Last Night.

Strike-breaker guests of the Toronto Railway Company at Lansdowne car barns suffered severely last night from that raw recruit disease, the "wind-up," and gave vent to their nervous tension at 10.30 last night by drenching a large but inoffensive crowd, in cluding women and children, with all the many hoses available in the barns. The cause of this attack was the fact that a few adventurous little boys climbed upon a window-sill to peep into the halls of mystery and inadvertently broke the glass. The result was a volley of bricks that broke every window on the premises, and the onrush of every male in a crowd of six thousand to batter down the main doors, a feat eventually performed with a torn down telegraph pole.

According to evidence collected from onlookers and by the admission of the police themselves, a perfectly orderly crowd was collected about the premises stretching from Lansdowne avenue to Paton road. They were there out of curiosity, and by the presence of children and women proved their ineffensive attitude Rumors of armored cars, stories of strike-breakers, possibilities of minor excitements had brought them there. The ubiquitous boy was on the rampage as usual at what he considered a free circus, but not contented with the more sober gazing of his seniors must needs investigate what lay behind the closely boarded windows and smashed one window pane in his eagerness. Instantly two hundred husky 'blacklegs' left their hammocks, seized pick handles and hose nozzles, and drenched hundreds of unfortunate women to the skin. A roar of rage arose; in a twinkling, a pole was torn down and smash went the door. Patient police without using batons, withheld the crowd amist a storm of brick-bats, aimed at the strikebreakers within. By their stubborn resistence, time was given for 65 constables and 13 of "Denison's Dragoons" to arrive at the scene of disorder and to check in the bud what meant scant shift for the strikebreakers and company property. Even as it was every door of the building beside the main door had been smashed in with trolley poles and over $1000 of damage inflicted. Hoses still played on the crowd until Inspector Umbach with police behind him dashed in and called upon the strike breakers to desist.

As soon as the reserves arrived they formed ten abreast and urged the crowd slowly down Lansdowne eve to Bloor street, where they dispersed, exhorted by the police officers to behave quietly and go home.

ALLEGED PLOT TO KILL EX-PREMIER

NUMBER OF GERMAN SOLDIERS ARE ARRESTED ON THAT CHARGE.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, June 25.—A number of soldiers have been arrested in Weimar, according to an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Copenhagen, on charges of having planned to arrest and murder Philip Scheidemann, former premier. The plot was to have been carried out Monday evening.

MAJOR TOLMIE TO LEAD.

Western Grits Claim He Will be the New Chief.

Widsor, June 25. — Major J. C Tolmie, member of the Provincial Legislative Assembly for Windsor riding, will be chosen leader of the Ontario Liberal party at the convention in Toronto, according to prominent local Liberals. He has the support of the delegates from Windsor, North Essex and South Essex ridings and will be backed by the majority of the members of the Assembly, it is said.

NEW PAPER FOR LAWYERS.

The first number of a bright and snappy little journal entitled Executors and Trustees appeared on the tables of the local lawyers this morning along with their other mail. It is published by the Toronto General Trusts Corporation, has the usual lengthy greeting of a new arrival on its front page, and contains a very good photograph of the late Judge Wichester.

REMOVE THE POLES FROM GEORGE ST.

UTILITIES COMMISSION AIM TO BRING SYSTEM UP TO DATE.

The unsightly poles that line the east side of George Street will be removed within the next six weeks, providing that no unusual circumstances such as strikes or accidents occur to delay the work. This was the statement made by Mr. H. O. Fisk the manager of the Peterborough Utilities Commission this morning. While Mr. Fisk was not prepared to state just how the electric service would be continued it will probably be by means of lines along the streets running east and west.

"We have found that the poles on George St. are in a rotten and dangerous condition," he declared, "and we are working as fast as the demands of the service permit to bring our system up-to-date This is a very difficult task as no matter what hour of the twenty-four we disconnect a certain system for repairs or alterations some one is bound to suffer some inconvenience. Of course in the case of the larger users, particularly hospitals, we make special arrangements to find out just what time would suit them best to do without their light. These generally cause the least trouble: it is the ordinary householder who wakes up in the middle of the night and is unable to obtain any light that make the majority of the kicks."

Anyone who takes the trouble to compare the two sides of George street today will have little difficulty in imagining the change that will occur in the appearance of the main street of Peterborough when the power poles are removed. This will be another great step forward just as their erection some twenty-six years ago was at that time. These poles which were comparatively easy to secure at that time are practically impossible to obtain now. Many of the original poles are still doing service.

REPORT OF TERMS REACHES EXILE

ATTENDANTS SHOCKED BY NEWS THAT EX-KAISER MUST BE SURRENDERED.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Amerongen, June 25.—News of Germany's decision to accept the peace terms, including the clause providing for the delivery of the former German emperor to the Allies, reached the castle late yesterday evening. Exactly how the former emperor was affected by the tidings cannot be ascertained, but the attitude of members of his party gives rise to the belief that the news was a considerable shock. When the Associated Press correspondent talked with the attendants, they declared the news was already known at the castle. They made the most scathing criticism of the German national assembly for its action. Evidently they had held to the hope that some way would be found for the former emperor to return to Germany. Now, however, it apparently is realized that he is exiled forever from his country.

The former monarch resumed his customary log-sawing at the usual hour.

HENS RAN AT LARGE.

For allowing his hens to run at large in Mrs. Wells' garden, Michael Donoghue paid a fine of $2. Foster Eggleson was assessed $2 and costs for a breach of the traffic bylaw. While turning to go west on Hunter street from George street he cut the corner. Both cases were heard in police court this morning.

WINNIPEG STRIKE HAS BEEN OFFICIALLY DECLARED OFF

Trouble Ended This Morning and Men Are Returning to Work in All Lines—Street Cars Are Running as Usual and the City is Quiet

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, June 25.—The general sympathetic strike which has been in progress here for six weeks was officially called off early this morning and workers who have not yet returned to work are expected to go back to day if their positions are still available. This is expected to facilitate negotiations with the Metal Trades men, for [illegible] this general strike was called. Since the rioting on Saturday afternoon the city has been quiet. There has been no further necessity for extra police or military protection. Street cars are running on practically a normal schedule

Edmonton Strike Ended

Edmonton, Alta, June 25.—After being out on strike for a month and a day the general strike has been called off. The men went back to work this morning.

Meeting Held This Afternoon Organize For Referendum Vote Which it is Expected Will Be Held October 9

This afternoon an organization meeting of the temperance forces of the city of Peterborough is being held in the Y.M.C.A. It will be addressed by Mr. T. M. Wesley, the organizer for the Ontario Referendum Committee. He has charge of the work in the counties of Durham, Haliburton, Victoria and Peterborough and in the city of Peterborough. This is the first place that he has selected to begin the work of organization, and he proceeds from here to Lindsay where he will address a meeting to organize Victoria County. Some work has already been done in Peterborough County, and the Counties of Durham and Haliburton have not been touched as yet.

A City Referendum Committee will be appointead, consisting of a chairman, two vice-chairmen, a secretary, a treasurer and a Council of ten In addition, the chairman and secretary of each of the five ward committees will be ex-officio members.

The Ward Committees will consist of a chairman, two vice-chairmen, secretary, treasurer, council of five members, and the captain, secretary and treasurer of each polling subdivision.

Each polling subdivision committee will consist of a captain, treasurer, secretary and five or more workers.

The duties of this organization will be to examine the voters lists as soon as the ennumeration is completed and see that names improperly put on are struck off. They will also see that all names that should be recorded are put on, and on the day of polling the vote on temperance which is expected to be October 9, they will see that conveyances are on hand to bring out the vote.

HIRAM WALKER'S ONT. ESTATE NOW IN HANDS OF THE PUBLIC

Upwards of $1,000,000 Involved in Order Made by Mr. Mr. Justice Sutherland in Toronto.

Toronto, June 25.—Under the Consolidated Orders-in-Council concerning trading with the enemy, Mr Justice Sutherland, at Osgoode Hall, made an order vesting in the Minister of Finance as Custodian of Enemy Property, the share of the Countess Matuschka in the estate of Franklin Hiram Walker, of Detroit. The amount which the Custodian will thus take charge of is upwards of $1,000,000.

The order provides that the undivided one-half interest in the assets of the estate of the National Trust Co., be vested in the Minister of Finance and Receiver-General of Canada as the Custodian appointed by the Consolidated Orders respecting thading with the enemy, and it is further ordered that the Custodian shall have power to join with the National Trust Co., in doing all such acts and executing al lsuch documents in respect of the interest of the scheduled assets vested in him by this order as may be necessary for the due and proper administration of the scheduled assets

May Bring Action

Nothing, it is provided, shall prejudice any action which Mrs. May Walker, widow of the said Franklin Hiram Walker, may bring within three months from the date of this order for a declaration that no part of or interest in the scheduled assets could, under the said consolidated orders, properly be vested in the Custodian, or for such other declaration or relief as she may be advised

The testator, Franklin Hiram Walker a citizen of the United States of America, resident in the city of Detroit, made his will on the 14th day of June 1916, and died there three days later. He appointed the Detroit Trust Company executor and trustee under the will and left an estate inventor'ed at $3,762,297.90, of which $2,969,209.40 were assets within the Province of Ontario, and $793,184.41 outside thereof in the State of Michigan.

Married a German

Some years prior to his death his daughter and only child, Ella, was married to Count Manfred von Matuschka, a citizen of Germany, where she was residing with him at the time of her father's death, and was, in a legal sense, like him, an alien enemy. The testator's widow, Mrs. May Walker, was like himself a citizen of the U. S. Towards the end of 1916, the Countess Matuschka came to the United States from Germany and remained till about February, 1917, when she returned to Germany being apprehensive that there would be a break between the United States and that country

Executed Agreement.

As a result, Mrs. Walker and the Countess executed an agreement whereby the Ontario assets were allocated as the share of Mrs. Walker.

"This allocation agreement," said Mr. Justice Sutherland, "assumes to segregate all the Canadian assets of the estate for the benefit of May Walker."

Topsy Turvy.

Justice Sutherland goes on: "If effect is given to the contention put forward by the National Trust Co the result is that Canada, a participant in the war at the time of the testator's death has lost an opportunity to lay its hands on upwards of one million dollars' worth of property of which an alien enemy is alleged to have been the beneficial owner at the time of the death of the testator; and the United States, which became a participant at a date considerably subsequent to his death, has acquired a right to impound twice as much as the estate as it would have had the right to do had they been combatants at that date.

"I am of opinion that the Countess Matuschka is an alien enemy to whom the War Measures Act and orders pased thereunder apply.

May Arrange.

"It was suggested that he making of an order might interfere with the reasonable use and enjoyment by Mrs. Walker of her interest in the reserve of the estate in the province of Ontario and her income therefrom. This would, of course, be regrettable. As, apparently, however, a one undivided half interest belongs to her in any event it may well be that some arrangement between her and the custodian can be made which will alleviate to a very substantial extent any anxiety or difficulty on this score."

NO WORD RECEIVED FROM GERMANS

UP TO LATE HOUR TODAY AND CONFERENCE IS PERPLEXED.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, June 25.—Up to 4.45 o'clock this afternoon, no official word had been received here as to Germany's plans with regard to the formal signing of the peace treaty. The Peace Conference leaders were undisguisedly perplexed over the situation.

WAR BOARD AGREES TO MEN'S REQUEST

QUESTION OF WAGE INCREASE IS POSTPONED FOR THREE WEEKS.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Montreal, June 25.—The Canadian Railway War Board this morning delivered a communication to the executive officers of Railway Division No. 4, Railway Shopmen of Canada, granting the request of the latter for delay in salary increase negotiations of three weeks. Within the three weeks' limit the director-general of the United States railway administration, it is understood, will deliver the findings in the case of the railway shopmen of that country. Upon this the Canadian Railway War Board will base their findings and negotiations will be reopened.

COMMITTEE READY TO MAKE REPORT

WILL RECOMMEND PARLIAMENT TO ESTABLISH A PERMANENT COMMISSION.

Ottawa June 25.—One of the recommendations which the Cost of Living Committee will make to Parliament as a result of the investigations which it has been carrying on since the first meeting on June 5, it is now apparent, is that a Trade Commission or Board of Commerce shall be appointed as a permanent investigating Committee.

Proposals have been made by various witnesses that either business courts or such a Commission should be formed with powers to deal with trade matters similar to those exercised by the Dominion Board of Railway Commissioners.

WILL GO TO TORONTO

Local Liberals Who Will Represent City at Convention.

Messrs. G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., Joseph Wearing and W. G. Telford, of Smith, will represent this riding at the convention of Liberals to be held in Toronto today and tomorrow. It was proposed to have two lady delegates, but it is announced that none of the new voters are available for this service.

SERVICES IN TENTS.

THE GREATEST PREACHER, the most remarkable and powerful Evangelist of them all, while on earth had no place in which to lay His head. Neither had He church or temple in which to preach. The edifices of the orthodox religious bodies were closed against Him. His ministrations were regarded as irregular and heretical.

And He made out fairly well in His mission. The model sermon, the one the purity of sentiment and the doctrinal truth of which cannot be challenged, the discourse that is still regarded as the world's masterpiece after two thousand years, was delivered from a mountain. The Nazarene worked in the open air. Paul preached his greatest sermon from Mars Hill. The leading revivalists of modern times have held forth in tents or other structures that lacked formal consecration. Absence of this ceremonious rite, however, did not interfere with the results.

Of course, there are people in Peterborough, as elsewhere, who consider it beneath the dignity of piety to attend a religious service in a tent. Still, precedents, some of them justified, are not lacking. The Preacher who saved the world should certainly be regarded as a worthy example.

THOSE PRE-WAR GROOVES.

A TORONTO PASTOR, speaking in this city last night, warned the people that unless care is taken, unless the church rises to its duty, all that was won by four years of war will be lost and that the world will slip back into the old grooves in which it moved before the conflict started.

That is certainly the case. The outstanding cause of the present day unrest is the fact that the people are divided into two camps. One class would conserve and perpetuate what has been achieved by four years of abnormal sacrifice. The other class is just as set on getting the social and industrial machinery into the old pre-war grooves to which the clergyman refers.

There were enormous profits made in certain lines during the war. There were high profits before the first shot was fired. The trouble is that the so-called profiteers are not satisfied even to revert to the pre-war conditions, but are struggling to adhere to the grooves into which they dropped while the war was in progress. The man who as a result of the war was able to lay up treasure to the tune of 72 per cent. on his investment is not inclined to remodel his business affairs and content himself with only a fair return on his capital. The Cost of Living Committee is digging up one industrial sensation after another, and with each revelation the public unrest increases.

Perhaps the church can remedy these conditions. If it can, may more power be given it. But the task ahead of the clergy is stupendous, impossible of achievement if support is lacking from the laity and the legislators.

SLAMMING THE NEWSPAPERS.

MR. G. B. NICHOLSON, lumberman, chairman of the High Cost of Living Committee, now in session at Ottawa, caused another diversion yesterday when he charged the press of Canada with sensationalism. The accounts they publish of the doings of the committee Mr. Nicholson regards as sensational. He believes these reports tend to increase the public unrest and he questions the wisdom of starting such an investigation when the results are considered.

Naive Mr. Nicholson, the new press censor who has arisen in Canada! If the committee persists in uncovering commercial sensations, if it continues to disclose the fact that there are members of the Cabinet who hold stock in cold storage plants, that there are firms making as high as 72 per cent. profit on their investment, then it is the duty of the newspapers to circulate these facts. If there are sensations, the press is not responsible for them. They originate in economic conditions, and are uncovered, perhaps unwillingly, by some members of the committee.

If the public are being bled to death, they have a right to know it, and the press is the only medium for circulating the information. The committee was appointed to discover the truth. If the members stumble upon unpalatable facts occasionally, they have no right to attempt to withhold the information. Mr. Nicholson seems not entirely averse to taking the public into the committee's confidence, but he would do it with due care. If he winked at the people, he would first equip his eyes with a pair of automobile goggles or colored glass spectacles that would obscure his design.

CHOOSING A PROVINCIAL LEADER.

THE LIBERALS of Ontario meet in convention at Toronto today and tomorrow to select a permanent leader and to draw up a platform for the party, two essentials that have been practically lacking since the days when the Opposition was able to muster a tolerable showing in the Legislature. The party realizes the desperate condition to which it has been reduced, and the call is for a new policy and a leader who will show some of the virile qualities that leadership demands. Mr. Proudfoot, the present temporary head of the forlorn hope, has been distinguished chiefly by a tendency to resolve his following into an adjunct of a mutual admiration society, a legislature without the snap of debate, in which policies of mutual advantage are agreed upon.

Those who are ambitious to lead in Province and Dominion are already at work pulling wires. Literature is in circulation. The Arnprior Watchman publishes a long editorial that is evidently inspired, and wide circulation is being given it. The choice of that paper for provincial leader is a farmer, and for the Federal Moses no less a person that Hon. George P. Graham, the man who at the last election was unable to find a seat anywhere in Ontario.

The Watchman says that a serious mistake was made in 1911 when Hon. Newton Wesley Rowell was chosen leader. He proved to be a failure from the beginning and during his tenure of office forced the provincial party into the mire of despond so deep that it will take a long time to bring it to the surface again. No improvement was made in the party leadership when Mr. Proudfoot was selected. Mr. Proudfoot had an excellent opportunity to become one of the biggest men in the Liberal party, but he has failed, and failed badly. He has shown himself to be as clay in the hands of the potter. As a political leader he will not do; he had his chance and failed.

"Where will the Liberals in Ontario get a leader? The names of Mr. Justice Sutherland and Mr. Hartley Dewart, M.P., have been mentioned. Mr. Justice Sutherland will be one possibility. He is a member of the Supreme Court of Ontario and can hardly be expected to give up a lucrative judicial position to re-enter political life. Mr. Dewart hails from Toronto, and that fact alone is enough to kill his chances of leadership. He is capable, has excellent ability, and is clever. But his chances are killed by one word—Toronto. That city has long dictated the course of public affairs in Ontario and Canada, but it can do so no longer. Toronto is the seat and leader of unrest so prevalent throughout Canada at the present time. Other portions of Ontario now have their chance to speak intelligently.

The man whom the Watchman suggest for leader in Ontario is Thomas McMillan of Seaforth, who, it believes, would be able to hold the farmers' vote. Of George P. Graham it says:

"He is the man for Federal leader. All things considered, he is the strongest and biggest man in the Liberal party today. He is a man of outstanding ability, and in every respect able and clever. He was for many years the trusted first lieutenant of the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier. True, he may have wavered slightly on the conscription issue, but not far enough to have committed any great sin. He did not forsake his leader and party and when the call to arms came for the 1917 campaign he responded nobly for Laurier and Liberalism."

"Wavered slightly" is rich. If Mr. Graham only wavered on the conscription issue it would be interesting to learn the Watchman's idea as to what would constitute a collapse.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

PERHAPS those bandits were out to raise money enough to attend the prize fight at Toledo.

• • • • •

AT LEAST the war has not destroyed the hope of George P. Graham to acquire the leadership.

• • • • •

AND THE WORST OF IT IS that the Canadian Senate may yet pass judgment on the treaty of peace.

• • • • •

ENGINEER BARBER must admit that the local papers have handled him more gently than has Mayor Duncan himself.

• • • • •

LEADER PROUDFOOT will receive a practical illustration of what happens to the man who is neither hot nor cold.

• • • • •

WHY GO TO Toledo to see a boxing match while our own city officials are apparently ready to stage a similar exhibition fight at home?

• • • • •

CHAIRMAN NICHOLSON appears to forget that is is the profiteers rather than the newspapers that are on trial before his committee.

• • • • •

BUT EVEN Mr. O'Connor, who sprung the first sensation, could not uncover more than the members of the High Cost of Living Committee is locating.

• • • • •

STUDYING the evidence taken by the Cost of Living Commission justifies the conclusion that during the war the trend of percentage was upward except in the case of the poor man's beer.

OPINIONS OF OTHER EDITORS.

GETTING AT THE PROFITS.

(Toronto Times.)

Mr. John R. Robinson of the Toronto Telegram may be vigorous in his expression and furious in his thinking but he bore himself well before the parliamentary committee on the cost of living and justified his comments. He was right in saying that the public is less interested in the retail prices of foodstuffs and other necessities of life than in the spread between those prices and the manufacturing costs.

EASY PROBLEM TO SOLVE.

(Toronto Telegram.)

No trouble to secure a speedy and satisfactory solution of the cost of living problem. It is so easy to satisfy all hands in view of the certainty that nobody asks or expects anything but the lowest possible price for everything they buy and the highest possible price for everything they sell.

THEIR PEDIGREE.

(Hamilton Spectator.)

All of Wininpeg's "Big Five" strike leaders were opposed to conscription. That alone should damn them in the eyes of those who either fought for liberty or upheld those who did.

UNLIKE SOME DUPES.

(Toronto Globe.)

The "reds" in the Winnipeg strike movement, unlike most of their dupes, were anti-war men. They prefer the kind of fighting they are now engaged in.

OUR POULTRY SUPPLY.

(Toronto Star.)

Over 3,500 fowls have been stolen in Wentworth County in the past three years. Hamilton ought to be pretty well fed up on chicken by now.

THE PROBLEM STRIKES EGYPT.

(Detroit, Free Press.)

The Egyptian is howling about high cost of labor. Before the war farm labor was 12½ cents per day. Now it's 40 cents.

ENGLAND NOT "SHOT TO PIECES"

Light is thrown upon the economic and industrial position of Great Britain resulting from the war, in correspondence which has passed between Prof. James Mavor of the University of Toronto and C. W. Barron of Boston.

The clash of opinion developed out of a statement in one of Mr. Barron's letters in which, referring to England, he said: "Economically she has been shot to pieces and she does not yet know it," and subsequently: "Economically, financially and industrially she has been sunk."

In the following letter, which is condensed, Prof. Mavor sets up certain standards which he terms the "criteria of industrial stability" by which he judges the position of England:

Since you ask me to do so, I shall develop my criticism of your phrase "Great Britain is economically shot to pieces and sunk." In your letter you define the expression in this way: "Every nation is economically shot to pieces in a war which for the time being destroys her industrial base."

This definition seems to me to be too ambiguous and indefinite. I suppose that by industrial base you mean the foundations of industry, but this is by no means clear.

. . . No doubt some time must elapse before British external trade reaches the magnitude of the past. This does not, however, mean that the foundations of her industry are affected. Indeed, the foundations of British industry lie primarily in the trade of Great Britain itself, and the extent to which Great Britain could, if the economic conditions demanded, be self-contained, has been much en[illegible] the war. It has been shown that she could, with some inconvenience, no doubt, to her people, greatly restrict her imports from abroad—even of food-stuffs. Foreign trade has been shown to be after all not so vital for Great Britain as it had been supposed to be.

Even before the war it was the fashion in some quarters to speak of the decline of the British economic system. The Germans were fond of deriding it. They spoke contemptuously of individulistic capitalism of the English type as being archaic.

My own feeling was for some ten years before the war that Germany was an economic bladder blown up to the bursting point. I have no doubt that had no war taken place the German economic system would have collapsed like an over-blown bladder. I hope nothing will induce the people of Great Britain to imitate German methods. Better a solid and careful, if smaller trade, than an unstable system built upon an insecure foundation.

I now come to the question what are the criteria of industrial stability? These are I think:

(1) Industrial capital adequate to the requirements of industry at the time.

(2) A system of finance—public and private—which contributes to the maintenance of an adequate supply of industrial capital.

(3) An industrial population trained in the exercise of the industries in which they engage.

(4) A fair and reasonable system of industrial remuneration.

(5) An adequate supply of raw materials.

(6) Internal and external markets which taken together absorb the products of industry at a level sufficient to subsist the industrial population at a reasonable standard of comfort.

(1) and (2) Before the war Great Britain had a great excess of total capital, as is proved by her large foreign investments. This total capital has been diminished by the war. Has it been diminished to such an extent that the provision of adequate industrial capital is imperilled? I do not think there is any evidence that it has. I think you will admit that if Great Britain can finance her industries, her international position is secure. Her system of finance has already withstood a tremendous strain.

(3) The industrial population of Great Britain has been increased rather than diminished by the war, and its adaptability and skill fully proved.

(4) This element has, I think you will admit, received more effective treatment in Great Britain than anywhere else at the present time.

(5) There is no want of these. The British Empire considered as a whole, may be regarded as potentially self-contained.

(6) The internal markets alone must for a long time develop sufficient demand to keep a large proportoion of the industrial plants in motion; and there is at least a sufficient remnant of external markets to make up the difference between that proportion and a total large enough to relieve the industrial population of anxiety.

Unless you can show that in these six essential points Great Britain has become deficient, I do not see that you sustain your thesis, that she is all shot to pieces—and sunk.

WIT AND WISDOM

"You are suffering from brain fag and ennui," announced the specialist. "You should take more interest in your business."

"I would like to," replied the patient.

"Then why don't you?" demanded the specialist.

Miss Seventeen Year Old and very much kissed was beginning to have vain regrets.

"Mother, did you love to flirt when you were young?"

"I'm afraid I did, dear," answered her mother.

"And were you ever punished for it, mother?" she asked wistfully.

"Yes, dear. I married your father."

"Charlie, dear, what is a monopoly?" she asked as she rested submissively in his arms, with her dainty head nestled against his coat collar.

"Well," began Charlie, manfully struggling to bring his mind to cope with abtruse subjects and failing altogether to get beyond concrete facts, "I sincerely hope this is!"

A Philadelphia woman did not approve of the dress of her cook. One day, as the cook, in a particularly stylish frock, showed up after a day off, the mistress said: "Why, Mary, what elegance. It would be hard to distinguish the lady from the cook." "Don't worry, mum," said Mary. "The cooking would tell."

VETERAN INVENTS NEW POWER LOOM

MICHIGAN MAN'S MACHINE WILL WORK REVOLUTION IN INDUSTRY.

(Special to The Review.)

Menominee, Mich., June 25.—A one-armed man operating the newly invented Lloyd loom so impressed the Hon. G. M. S. McNeilage, member of the Australian Legislature during a trip through the Lloyd Manufacturing Company's plant here that arrangements were completed by cable whereby the Australian Government pays $250,000 for rights to use the machine as well as Lloyd's new method of production. They will only be used in giving employment to returned and crippled soldiers and sailors.

The Lloyd loom is the first mechanical device ever made which will weave reed or fiber for baby carriages, furniture or baskets. From the very earliest time—even when Moses was found in the bull-rushes, tucked into a hand-made reed basket—these articles have been woven by hand. Marshall B. Lloyd, one of the best known American machine inventors, struggled many years over the task while scores of others failed. Success has finally come in a machine which will weave these fabrics thirty times faster than the most skilled hand-worker can and with much greater perfection. The gap of ages has been spanned in an industrial manner and reed and fiber manufacturers look for a complete revolution in their industry as result of the Lloyd loom.

A machine is now enroute to Australia. More will follow soon and a large factory will be built in which returning heroes will be employed. The facts that physically deficient men can do the weaving on the Lloyd loom instead of the most efficient hand workers and that Australia is doing everything possible to aid its wounded prompted the expenditure of one-quarter of a million dollars for a single machine.

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

"Dear Old Dr. Brady," writes a reader, "can you please advise me how to keep from getting fat? I am so large and real short of breath. My weight is now 220 pounds and I think I am getting stouter. I have taken so much dope—spent a lot of money foolishly, so I thought I would write you for some honest advice. Respectfully, Mrs. Nameless One."

Note that Mrs. Nameless One wants honest advice. What does she mean by that, I wonder?

Well, whatever she means, let's try to give her what she needs, but probably will not want.

No one is overweight unless he or she eats too much. No matter about the circumstances. This rule has no exceptions; at least we have never encountered an exception.

There are only two ways to avoid growing fat or to reduce superfluous weight. First, by consuming a diminished amount of each and every kind of food taken; and, second, by burning up more fat in daily exercise. In certain cases of obesity it is possible and advisable to reduce by medicine, but that is wholly a professional problem which no one but the victim's own physician is capable of managing effectively and safely. Reduction of weight by control of the diet, by fasting or restraint of the appetite, and to manage without any medical supervision.

One of the simplest methods of diminishing the intake of food, and so reducing weight gradually and with distinct benefit to health, strength and endurance, is by Fletcherizing. In order to Fletcherize intelligently read Horace Fletcher's "The New Glutton or Epicure" (available in most libraries). Fletcher reduced his own weight some fifty or more pounds.

THE MERCHANTS' COLUMN

Edited by

MANSFIELD F. HOUSE

(Copyright.)

(In this column which appears every Monday, Wednesday and Saturday, will appear news and short articles of special interest to merchants, their salespeople and business men and women in general. All phases of store management—buying, accounting, advertising and retail salesmanship—will be dealt with not theoretically, but by descriptions of methods actually in use by successful merchants.)

Tells How She Sells

A young woman who was a very successful saleswoman before she became buyer for a big New York store attributes her success largely to the personal relations she was able to establish with her customers.

"When I sold behind the counter," she said recently, "I used to make ever so many friends—personal customers for myself and friends of the store—by rendering little thoughtful bits of personal service, courtesies. I tried deliberately to make customers like me by performing out-of-the-ordinary services that they usually remembered and appreciated.

"For instance, I had one customer, an elderly man with an invalid wife, who detested standing before counters. In his wife's place, however, he was frequently forced to shop for her. When I learned his dislike for shopping, I suggested that he sit down in some inconspicuous part of the store while I made his selections for him, bringing them back to him for his approval. This customer appreciated this little help of mine immensely and he always sought me when he entered the store. If I were busy, he used to wait until I were disengaged. I made a steady customer of this man by catering to his little idiosyncrasy.

Hot Days and Cool Thoughts

"On hot days I used to receive innumerable appreciative smiles by offering tired, flustered customers a chair as soon as they approached my counter. Then, I would have a few little fans and if a plump lady looked particularly warm and red-faced I handed her the fan with some little comment about the hot weather—a comment that I knew she wanted me to make out of sympathy. In some cases it paid for me to suggest bringing the customer a glass of ice water.

"On occasions when a customer looked particularly tired and laden with parcels I would suggest having her cloak sent up to the cloak room while she shopped and would offer to have all her parcels delivered with the purchase she was making. Women always respond gratefully to this thoughtfulness.

"One time I noticed a customer's eye roving toward a certain bead necklace in the show case. Without her asking, I took it out and showed it to her. Before long she bought it, though she hadn't even asked to see it. It pays to watch a customer and observe her interest in some special thing.

"It's a good idea to flatter the vanity of customers by appearing to recognize their knowledge of merchandise. I once made a sale by saying to a woman customer, 'I see you understand wool materials when you see them.'

"Many women customers like to have you notice their smartness of attire. Once I sold a beautiful real lace collar and cuff set by remarking to a smartly dressed young girl: 'We received some delightful neckwear yesterday; you'll probably appreciate it because you're undoubtedly interested in advance fashions.'

"Then, of course, there's the old, invariable rule of paying flattering attention to a child accompanying your customer. This never, never fails to help you make friends with customer and child.

"I could go on indefinitely enumerating little ways of making customers like you. Every sale brings its own conditions, however, and if you really make up your mind to render little thoughtful courtesies to your customers you'll find hundreds of opportunities."

Sells "Specs" With Warning

Oliver Abel an optician and oculist of St. Louis, Mo., resolved to break down the ancient barriers and tell people some things they ought to know. His main object is to sell glasses and service—but to sell them to people who are really neglecting their eyes.

Abel's plan is obvious. He selects the well know abuses to which eyesight is subjected—and talks turkey.

"The motion picture," says Mr Abel, "is unquestionably the greatest modern marvel. It brings before men, women and children phases of life, information of events and progress in science, in an environment of comfort and beauty, at a cost so small that no other form of entertainment can hope to match it. The flickering and involved motions on a flat surface have little possibility of damage to normal eyesight. Pictureshows have therefore my hearty approbation, but—take care that your eyes are in a condition to enjoy this great popular amusement. If any distress is observed do not blame any picture show, as your vision was defective in the first place and you should have your eyes examined."

New Twist to Old Phrase

Every now and then, usually when we least expect it, up bobs a sign that clothes an old phrase in entirely new garments.

Samuel Cohen, a shoe repairer on Spruce street in Philadelphia, evidently got good and tired of announcing and claiming that his prices were the lowest and the quality of his goods the highest so he took a leaf out of the morning newspaper and erected the following placard in his window:

"Airplane Quality at Submarine Prices."

"Wanted—A Position

The Pittsburgh-Barstow Heater and Filter Company, 1010 Olive Street, Pittsburgh, held demonstrations of electric washers, advertised them, just as washers of his kind have always been exploited, and schooled clerks in the gentle art of shaking people out of their own unprogressiveness. Still electric washers did not seem to go. The old tub-and-scrub was an established institution.

Then some one hit upon an inspiration.

The electric washer was humanized. It was given a personality. The copy read as if it referred to a living, breathing unit of the household: "Wanted—A Position as Laundress," read one of the advertisements. If you glanced on down you saw that a machine was talking. It wanted to come into your home and do the washing. It wanted —even volunteered — to assume all the drudgery. "You can't hire help in St. Louis for two cents an hour," says the washer, "but I'll work for that."

Church Next Door Sells Brides

In recent newspaper advertising the department store of Franklyn Simon & Co., New York, capitalized its location in an interesting and effective way.

The store is on Fifth avenue at the corner of Thirty-eighth street, the only other building in the block being the Brick Presbyterian Church which occupies the Thirty-seventh street corner. The advertising in question was addressed to prospective brides and bride's attendants, and to suggest the idea graphically a line cut was placed at the top of the ad, picturing the block with a wedding in progress. It was unmistakably a wedding, with its canopy from the church to the curb, with its waiting automobiles, and its bridal procession emerging from the church.

The sketch included not only the church with its wedding, but the store with its outfits for weddings, and the two ideas were instantly associated in the reader's mind.

"My husband had a bad attack of bronchial trouble last fall, and the doctor had us apply a pneumonia jacket. He was in bad six days. He got over his cough in a few weeks, but the doctor has warned him not to remove the jacket until next summer. It gives him much discomfort, and we wonder whether there would be any danger in taking it off now.

"F. M."

The danger would be that the old doctor would be shocked. Aside from that, of course, the danger is wholly imaginary. Another month or so and the health board will start something.

Diagnosis of Tuberculosis.

"Can the presence of tuberculosis be determined by a blood test? Has tuberculosis ever been successfully treated with a serum? D. H. F.

I know of no blood test for tuberculosis. The tuberculin test, in which tuberculin, a substance obtained from killed tuberculosis germs, is administered either by hypodermic injection, or by injunction after scratching the skin (as for vaccination), or by instillation in one eye, is a positive test for the presence of tuberculosis, but does not necessarily signify that the tuberculosis is active or accountable for the present disturbance of health. I know of no serum which has been successfully used in the treatment of tuberculosis.

A Case of H. B. P.

"What is the normal blood pressure for a woman of 41 years? Can high blood pressure be cured by diet alone? Is it dangerous in time? Does it affect the heart? MRS. K. B."

The normal systolic pressure for a woman of 41 years old is somewhere between 120 and 135 millimeters mercury. High blood pressure is not a disease, but a sign of various disease conditions. Its cure, therefore, would depend on the nature of the disease of which it happens to be one symptom. Often regulation of diet will reduce an excessive blood pressure. High blood pressure is in itself a load or strain upon the heart; that is, if the pressure is constantly above normal.

The Hottentot

By JEROME G. BEATTY

(Copyright)

The rain was pouring down outside our room on the fourth floor of the Zendine, and O'Grady and I sat playing twosome bridge with dummy hands. It was nearly three o'clock in the morning. I was dealing to O'Grady, who sat facing the windows.

"I never knew an Irishman in my life who wouldn't try to lick everything, even the worst animal that delirium tremens ever—"

O'Grady stopped short.

I looked up.

He was staring at the window behind me, and slowly and carefully he began to pull out the drawer in the table in front of him. We kept our revolvers in that drawer.

I stopped dealing.

"Keep on. Don't move," he commanded softly.

The rain seemed to have stopped. I found later that I dealt all the cards in the middle of the table. Behind me, through the open window, I heard the clang of chains and a sort of scraping on the brick wall. There was no fire-escape there and the ground was four stories below. I thought I heard a low growl.

The next instant a brown human skull fell on the table before me, rolled over and stopped, staring with empty eyes at my throat.

O'Grady fired past my head. I turned quickly, and out of the window, where it had crouched I saw a big, dripping, hideous, one-armed, hairy figure, from whose breast a long horn protruded.

And it had no head!

We rushed to the window, O'Grady first, carrying the revolver. The huge beast was several feet below our window, hanging to the water-pipe, its feet on a brick cap over the window below ours. Chains hung from its body, and by the light from the street we could see that its long hair was matted with mud.

Horrified, we watched the thing struggle a moment to get a firm footing and to hold with one arm, which, I noticed now, was attached to its side instead of its shoulder.

Then in a muffled growl, the headless giant spoke!

"Can't you give a guy a lift?" it said.

We couldn't tell where the voice came from.

"What are you?" I asked in astonishment.

"Talk up or I'll shoot again," O'Grady commanded.

"I'm the Headless Hottentot of the Himalayas—the Blood-Sweating Kiosk of the Holy Writ, and my name is Bill Klank. You missed me the first time, but please don't shoot again. All I want is somebody to undo me and let me get at the pie-eyed rat that got me into this."

"Who? Us?" asked the ever-cautious O'Grady.

"No," grunted the Headless Hottentot, and with remarkable agility, considering that he had only one arm, he began to crawl up the water-pipe.

We helped the wet, muddy giant into the room. On his instructions we unhooked him down the back, and Bill Klank—a whole man—stripped off his skin and sank into a chair. His head and one of his arms had been inside the padded covering, which was so devised as to make the top of his head level with the shoulders of the headless animal he represented. To see, he had been forced to look out two slits in the chest of the skin.

The porter was called from the bar, cigars were put at the side of the Blood-Sweating Kiosk, and he told us this story:

"I was a high-wire man, doubling in a trapeze act with the Bingley Brothers' circus until a month ago, when I met that heathen, sneaking yeggman that—"

"Have another drink," interrupted the diplomatic O'Grady.

The Kiosk swallowed the liquid with a toss of his head, and continued:

"Tom Hanks was ballyhoo man at the side-show. He framed up the scheme where we were to have so much money that the price of a motor-car would be small change. 'The only thing about this plan that makes me hesitate,' Tom says to me, 'is that somebody might murder us so as to steal our act.' We took the chance—rather I did. Tom, the yellow-hearted, cheese-brained—

"Thanks. This is good liquor.

"The man was to make a Headless Hottentot and take him round the Rube route—country fairs, you know. I was to be the Hottentot, and Tom was to ballyhoo. We bought us an old lion's cage from the circus and got us a lot of chains, and I made that suit. It's a great suit," he said proudly; "made it out of mule-skin and horse-hair and a cow's horn. I wouldn't take a hundred dollars for it. It hooks up so good you can look all over me when it's on and not find how I got into it.

"We got a banner painted. I furnished the money. Gee, if there ever was a goat, I was it, and all because that long-nosed son of an orang—

"Much obliged. This is better liquor than we got out in the prairies.

"We made our first pitch over in Nebraska. Tom chained me in the cage, loosened up the bars so I could rattle 'em, and fixed the springs so when I thrashed round—I was supposed to have torn up trees before they caught me—the cage would nearly fall over."

"But what did you do with this?" I asked, pointing to the skull which still lay on the table.

"That was my head. It was cut off in the jungles of Hanky-Foo, where I tried to murder a gang of the world's most famous scientists. Oh, you got to give it to Tom. He was a big top spieler. This was his stuff, I know it by heart:

"'Look! Look! Look!' he'd yell and hold up that skull.

"The crowd would come on the gallop. After a couple or three women had fainted in the crush of people who were afraid they'd miss a free pike at something, he would begin:

"'Upon the in-side, la-dies and gen-tel-men, is the mar-vel-us zo-o-log-i-cal speas-i-man brought here this week for your approval by your own government—the United States of America.'

"Then he'd wave the head.

"'While searching for orang-utangs in the Himalayan jungles of Hanky-Poo, where the most mammoth species of the beasts abound, a party led by Prof. Jules Le Pax, the noted French scientist, of whom you all have heard, came upon a huge, hairy being, the largest orang-utang the scientists ever had seen.

"'Like the enraged monster it was, it leaped from a tree with murder in its heart. After a bloody battle in which two men were struck dead with trees which the brute uprooted and hurled at the members of the party, Prof. Le Pax, with one swoop of his machete—the only weapon ever used with success in battling with orang-utangs—severed the beast's head from its body.

"'Never have the chains been removed. It is feared that once released it might rush among the people, killing hundreds in its blind flight.

"'Prof. Le Pax presented it to the French government, which turned it over to the French Society for Scientific Research, and after the influence of our greatest diplomats was brought to bear, it was leased by the United States. A bond of half a million dollars was deposited by the treasurer of this nation, guaranteeing the safe return of the monster, and the beast is now being displayed to certained favored communities.

"'The Headless Hottentot is securely caged; loaded with chains so there is no danger, and any little child may view with safety this marvelous educational exhibit in the amphitheater behind me. It's a government exhibit, ladies and gentlemen, and just to cover the traveling expenses the government authorizes us to charge only a dime—ten cents—for every admission ticket which you can purchase from the lady at my left. Here's his head. Go in and see the living, breathing body.'

"And the way they would fight to get up to pay a dime to see me was enough honor to last me all my life. Tom would come inside and give another lecture. I'd try to batter down the bars, tear round the cage just as if I could strangle a bull with one hand.'

"At night Tom would unlock the padlock that held the chains on me, unhook me, and we'd go to our hotel and count our money. We saved nearly a thousand dollars in three weeks. We landed here three days ago, and have been playing to all the Rubes in the world. It looked like to me.

"About four hours ago, after the show was closed, Tom came round. But he didn't unlock the cage. He stood in front and laughed.

"'What's the joke?' says I.

"'It's on you,' he answers, sort of pert. 'I'm going to leave town with the capital stock.'

"And, laughing fit to kill, he turned out the gasoline lights and walked out of the tent.

"I thought he was fooling, but he wasn't. I waited about an hour for him to come back. There I was chained in the cage in that dark tent and nobody round. I yelled and tore and fought the chains and shook the wagon—it wasn't any put on. I was a raving brute for sure. I woke up all the people in the neighborhood, but nobody would come within a block of me until the town marshal arrived. He stuck his head in the tent.

"'What you want?' he says, speakin' timid like.

"'I want out,' I answers, and tears out a couple of bars.

"He ran off and got the whole police force. The police force wanted to shoot me for fear I might get loose and kill everybody in town; but the marshal shook his head, bless him, and said if they did the French government might get after 'em. So they all went home and locked their front doors and went to bed.

"Finally I pulled the chains loose from where they were fastened to the cage and got away. I couldn't get out of the skin, and I was in a fine fix. The only valuable property I could find round the show was the skull, and I thought I might want to start the show again and brought it along.

"I've been sneaking through alleys in this rain all night, carrying my 'head' in my one hand or hung on that horn.

"Every time I'd start toward a fellow to ask him to unhook me he'd yell, and be 16 blocks away before I could say 'good evening.'

"Finally I saw your light and decided to climb up the water-spout, get you in a corner where you couldn't run, and make you unhook me, even if I got killed first."

"But how were you supposed to be fed?" O'Grady asked.

The Headless Hottentot's face was blank.

"Darned if I know. Nobody ever thought of that before. That's the only thing that Tom overlooked."

Possible Granary.

The harvesting of the corn crops in Venezuela commences in September or October. In most sections of the country only one crop is raised annually, though with irrigation there could easily be two. Most of the corn raised in Venezuela is white, and the market for this is not so good in the West Indies as for the yellow varieties. In case of any deficit in the corn crop in the United States, Venezuela might well be considered as an available source of supply.

Metric Denominations.

The metric denominations and values for measures of capacity are as follows: Kiloliter or stere, 1,000 liters, equals one cubic meter; hectoliter, 100 liters, equals one-tenth of a cubic meter; dekaliter, ten liters, equals ten cubic decimeters; liter, equals one cubic decimeter; deciliter, one-tenth of a liter, equals one-tenth of a cubic decimeter; centiliter, one one-hundredth of a liter, equals ten cubic centimeters; milliliter, one one-thousandth of a liter, equals one cubic centimeter.

70,000,000 MATCHES A DAY

Twenty-five thousand feet of soft, smooth-fibred pine enter this factory every day. It is stored with scientific care long enough to make it burn freely and odorlessly. Then it is split into fragrant blocks and fed to automatic machines. 70,000,000 matches a day are required from this huge plant to keep Canada's home fires burning.

Eddy's Silent 5 Matches

are made only from the choicest and best seasoned pine blocks. They are guaranteed to be absolutely sure-fire. No danger of accident. They are non-poisonous and will not explode when stepped on.

CONDITIONS ON ONTARIO FARMS

The following is a summary of reports made by Agricultural representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Late sown fields of spring grains are suffering from drouth and the unusual June heat, but those got in earlier look fair. Buckwheat and millet are still being sown. Corn for husking is practically all in, and in Essex the tobacco crop is set out. There is some complaint from Elgin of injury to the corn crop by cutworms.

Fall wheat is now well headed. Recent rains have somewhat lodged the crop, which is long in the straw.

Clover is now being cut and is turning out a fair crop. Spring clover seeding is reported to have done very well.

Alfalfa and sweet clover have also been cut, and are said to be yielding well.

Most of the potatoes are coming along nicely, but some of the root crops are suffering from the rusting of heavy soils owing to the intensely hot weather. The season for roots is considered to be very backward, as turnip sowing is being completed only this week.

The Lincoln representative reports that some peach orchards are suffering seriously from leaf curl, and that sweet cherries have been badly affected by brown rot. Other tree fruits will be medium in yield. Bush fruits promise well should the drought lift but many strawberry patches are disappointing owing to the effects of the scorching of the past weeks.

Halton reports considerable shipping of cattle by farmers' clubs at advanced prices over last week's figures. Complaints come from Huron and Oxford of injury to cattle by the heel fly.

The milk flow, taking the Province over, was never better. Prices paid for milk vary with local conditions. A condensery in Elgin is paying $3 a cwt. for 5 per cent. milk, but the tests from a number of herds run as low as 3.3 per cent for the last month, bringing the price down to $250.

Prices for hogs run from $21 to $22.25 a cwt. Over eighty were shipped from Dutton, Elgin Co., on Saturday at $21.75 a cwt.

With haying now beginning, and much hoeing to do, there is in most quarters a pronounced shortage of farm help.

Our idea of a wise girl is one who can't sing and knows it.

The Man With One Arm

HOW one arm and efficiency can combine forces is strikingly described by a writer in the National Review, who commences his article by the statement that "in the army dictionary you will not find the word can't." One-limbed people, he affirms, "won't have the word can't in their vocabulary," and one can well believe it on a perusal of the following hints to the one-armed person. To strike a match, for instance, without any outside assistance: "Take the box between the third and fourth fingers, the match between the thumb and first finger. Then strike the match across the box instead of along."

"Tieing a boot lace when laced straight is to put a knot at one end and pull it through the bottom eye of the boot till the knot stops the lace going through. Lace the boot up. Carrying the remaining end round the remaining end round the ankle until it comes back to the lacing. Then fasten it with a half-hitch to the beginning of the lace going round the ankle. When laced criss-cross, cross the two ends, place one foot on the loose end and pull tight with the other. Then make a loop and place your second finger on it. Secondly, take the remaining loose end and make another loop with your thumb and first finger, pass it over and under the original loop. Transfer your second finger to the end of the first loop and press. Take the second loop between your thumb and first finger and pull your bow complete.

"Tieing a white bow tie. Put the tie round your neck, cross the ends. Take one end in your mouth and pull as tight as you can. Notice this is above the collar. Drop the end you have in your mouth, pass it under and over the other end. Then tie an ordinary knot, pull it tight by putting the other end in your mouth. Pass each loose end through the knot from opposite sides. Now ease the tie and the collar, which will pull the bow tight.

"Cutting your nails. Place the nail required to be cut between the blade of the scissors. Hold the scissors in position with the thumb. Place the other end of the scissors between the knees and press; the nail is cut.

"Drying your hands is a simple matter. Take the towel by one end, roll it round your hands, then move your fingers about and it is done.

"Writing a telegram on a slippery desk comes down to a matter of using your little finger as an anchor and being able to use your thumb and first finger separately.

"Most games present no difficulties. Take billiards. Until you have become practiced enough to play off the cushion without using a rest, an ordinary hairbrush supplies quite an efficient bridge.

"Dealing cards is easy. Hold the pack with the fingers, deal the cards out with the thumb. Arranging your hand is only a matter of separating your hand into two packs, holding one between second and third fingers, the other between third and fourth, putting the cards top and bottom of their respective packs with the thumb and first finger. To play the hand, hold the card required to be played with the lips and draw it from your hand, then put it on the table.

"Tennis, cricket and soccer are only a matter of practice. Rugger floors you, although if your side is a man short you can be of some use as a forward.

"Driving a car is as easy as with two hands. If you have lost your right hand all that you have to watch is that you have room to pass your hand between your knees and wheel. While you are changing gears there is no trouble in steadying your wheel with your knee.

"On the range there is no trouble shooting over a sandbag. A one-armed man right-handed can get off twenty rounds, left-handed 15. If you are shooting with a shotgun you will find it a convenience to have a handle attached to the small at a convenient distance behind the trigger guard. Should you go to war of course you will arm yourself with the most convenient weapon for a gun, possibly the long Boche automatic pistol with butt is best, sighted up to 1,000 metres.

"Now in conclusion, until the three-movement artificial arm has each individual movement controlled by the brain, it cannot be of as much service as an ordinary socket pad which holds a book with a loop on the other side. Through the loop you can put a pen and write. With hook you can lift and carry many articles. By screwing an eye into many tools you can guide them. With a hook you can dig, bow, and carpenter, and many other things. A firm has got two-armed men photographed making every motion while working a tool or machine. They then cut out one arm and from that make graphs. Thus they find out what he cannot do easily with one hand. They then give him a tool designed so that he can carry out the remainder, to attach to his stump.

"When people stop trussing the one-armed man up with useless contraptions, when they stop telling him that he can't do anything with one arm, when they stop sympathising because they think him helpless, then he will become a useful member of society. There are two ways of doing everything. Let the one-armed man find his way and be happy."

A Brave Old Woman.

A Belgian woman 83 years old, the Widow Tack, has been decorated with the Leopold Order by King Albert for her courage in remaining throughout the war in her home near the firing line and caring for and heartening the soldiers.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW

SHE HAD SUFFERED FOR THIRTY YEARS

"TANLAC IS GRANDEST MEDICINE ON EARTH," SAYS KANSAS CITY WOMAN.

"For the first time in thirty years," said Mrs. M. Buckingham, residing at 2438 Kensingston avenue, Kansas City, Missouri, in an interview recently. "I am able to eat without suffering afterwards and I can't sit down to the table without feeling thankful for what Tanlac has done for me."

Mrs. Buckingham is the wife of W. G. Buckingham, the well-known carriage and auto maker. He has been with the Russell Carriage Company for twenty-three years. Mr. and Mrs. Buckingham have lived in Kansas City for more than thirty years and are highly respected by all who know them.

"What I would eat caused me pain," she continued, "and if I went without eating there was an awful gnawing sensation in my stomach so I just suffered nearly all the time. The gas on my stomach affected me so that I could hardly breathe and my heart acted so peculiar that I became alarmed for fear I had heart trouble. I could not rest and would get so nervous I did not know what to do. At times I was so bad off that I should have been in bed and just dragged around at my work. I was so dizzy I could scarcely keep my balance and couldn't stoop over without falling.

"Well nothing ever helped me except just for the time being, until I began taking Tanlac and that's saying a good deal for it, seems to me I had tried everything. For a while I thought Tanlac was going to disappoint me, too, for I never felt much better until I had finished my 3rd bottle, but since that time I have improved rapidly. I can eat just anything now and since my food digests properly and the gas has stopped forming on my stomach I never have palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath or a pain. My nerves are almost normal, and my housework is no longer a burden, but a pleasure to me. Really, I am feeling better than I have since my troubles began and I just think Tanlac is the grandest medicine on earth."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

HOME FROM OVERSEAS

Pte. William Hunter Welcomed by Millbrook Friends

(Special to The Review)

Millbrook, June 25—Pte. William Hunter, son of Mr and Mrs. J. J. Hunter, Mt. Pleasant, arrived home on Friday last.

Pte. Hunter enlisted in the 136th Bn., in March, 1916, and went overseas in September, of the same year. He was transfered to the C. F. C. as he was turned down as unfit for service in the trenches. However he did good work in England and Scotland in the Forestry Bn. He went over on the Corsican and returned on the Royal George. He is delighted to be home safe and all join in extending to him a right hearty welcome.

BOY SCOUT NOTES

The local council meeting has been postponed until Monday, July 6th. Every member is asked to be present on that night.

The boys have been given an invitation to help the Exhibition Board on July 1st. Local troops who have planned to camp out have made the sacrifice and given it up so as to join in the parade from the armories and to get tickets for the great $50 prize. Watch for further notice.

St. Luke's and Maple Leaf troops are asked to meet the secretary at the Mark street rink on Thursday night, at 8 o'clock. All turn out for a short while. Every Scout with bugle and drum will be wanted for July 1st.

Boy Scouts—Play the game.

OBITUARY

E. J. W. BURTON

One of Port Hope's oldest and most prominent citizens, E. J. W. Burton passed away here Monday. He was for many years Collector of Customs, but has lived retired for some time, with the exception of acting on the Military Exemption Board. He was a prominent Mason and Orangeman and a staunch conservative. His wife survives.

A. W. LLOYD

The death took place at Nicholl's Hospitals this morning of A. W. Lloyd, aged 42 years, after a short illness. The late Mr. Lloyd was a member of L.O.L. No. 1175. He is survived by his wife and six children. The funeral wil be held from the family residence, 492 Parnell street, on Friday, June 27th, at 2.15 p.m. Service at the house at 1.45 p.m., conducted by Rev. A. J. Thomas.

EDITOR'S MAIL

RE. THE KING v. ZALUSKI ET AL

Editor Review—For two days in the last two issues of the Review, statements have been contained regarding certain men who were charged with murder, and defended by the writer, which appear to state as a fact that these men originated a plot in Toronto to murder a man in Havelock, and in addition to that emphasis has been laid on certain facts, which, if true, would make every man charged with the offence guilty, and these statements have been made in the Review as true, and no suggestion is made that they are alleged or may be alleged, on the part of the Crown.

We wish to draw to your attention that this case is now pending trial and some of these men whom we are defending may be seriously prejudiced.

We are drawing this matter to your attention so that you may correct this manner of dealing with this case, which of course, we appreciate is unusual and more or less sensational matter in Peterborough.

We are not saying what we will do if the offence is repeated because we are relying on your good judgment and sense of fairness to deal fairly with some of the unfortunate foreigners.

You can appreciate it is hardly fair to suggest that five men are guilty of the offence where there is such flimsy evidence of conspiracy to commit murder.

We remain,

Yours truly,

GORDON & O'BRIEN

MASONIC OUTING TO SOUTH BEACH

OVER ONE HUNDRED GUESTS AT DINNER FOLLOWED BY DANCE.

The members of Moore Preceptory Knights Templar and the Corinthian Chapter of the Royal Arch Masons accompanied by the lady friends, motored out to South Beach near Young's Point last night. The party which numbered about 105, spent a very enjoyable evening. A program of sports was run off, and then all adjourned to the South Beach Hotel where a splendid dinner was served by Mr. W. E. Brooks. Mr. E. B. Fowler moved the toast to the ladies which was fittingly responded to by Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner. A dance was then held, the music being supplied by Mr. Simmond's orchestra, at the conclusion of which everyone returned home well satisfied with the outing.

Hopes Women Will Adopt This Habit As Well As Men

Glass of hot water each morning helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and vivacious—a good clear skin; a natural, rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain-fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember than inside cleanliness is more important that outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

QUAKER OATS EMPLOYES WILL ATTEND THE REVIVAL SERVICES

That is Program For Thursday Night—Double Quartette Selected From Their Number Will Render Special Music.

The small army of employes of the Quaker Oats Company will attend in a body at the revival services in the Hunter street tent Thursday night. A double quartette, selected from their number, will render a special musical program, and a rich treat is promised all those who attend Evangelist Kennedy will preach a sermon of unusual interest on that occasion, his theme being "Judas." This discourse is regarded as Mr. Kennedy's best of the many excellent ones which he preaches on Bible characters. The subject of tonight's address will be "Hoeing Your Own Row."

Mr. Kennedy preached a powerful sermon last night on "The Second Chance," from the words "Behold, I stand at the door and knock." The attendance shows an encouraging increase as the meetings continue. The music last night was furnished by members of the choir of Trinity Church with solos by Messrs. G. W. Mulligan and F. Walden. The ministers who assisted were Revs. A. G. Doner and A. J. Thomas.

The all-day prayer meeting will be held tomorrow in the basement of George Street Methodist Church from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. with a special program for the business men of the city who are invited to attend between the hours of 12 and 1.

SPARKS FROM KENNEDY'S ANVIL

We have too many children in some churches today. I mean by that—children from thirty to eighty years old—always crying about something—nothing the preacher does seem right to them. Do any of them wear your coat?

Some people start out of church before the benediction and then complain that the folks in that church are not sociable—always playing the baby act.

Some folks want the "sincere milk of the word," they say. What is milk? It's something that has already been digested by another, so it's not hard to take it's good for babies.

Some people never read the Bible themselves. They want the preacher to make hash—for them, and then hand it out Sundays with the chewing already done.

A lot of people are too lazy to do any real thinking for themselves.

Its all right to be children under ten, but after people grow up they should be men and women.

Paul said: "When I was a child I was like a child, when I became a man I put away childish things."

Children want new things and religiously a lot of grown people are like them and they run after every new religious fad.

Any religious cult that desires the deity of Christ is not a church.

Christ said to Peter: "On this rock—your testimony of my deity—I build my church."

I am not attacking the religious sins and cults of today. They are attacking all of us who stand on the old things that Peter and Paul, Luther and Knox, Wesley and Spingeon taught.

A man may be called very good natured, but he is a fool if he stands by and lets another man dig a hole under his house big enough for to fall into.

Some one is knocking at the door of your church, your home, your library, your heart but do not open till you hear His voice, for the devil these days is trying to immitate the works of Christ under the form of substitutes for the real thing, but he cannot immitate His voice.

"All my sheep know my voice."

RIGHT-HAND MAN OF LENINE.

Radek is the Arch-Conspirator of Bolshevism.

No attraction of opposites could be more striking than that between Nicolai Lenine and Karl Radek, the Damon and Pythias of Bolshevism. In their devotion to the republic of the Soviets they are one. In all else, according to the Petit Parisien, they are as the poles asunder, for Lenine inclines to moderation and Radek is the most fantical of Spartacides.

Lenine, we learn from our French contemporary, is of goodly size physically. Radek is a pale, slim youth when not in one of his countless disguises. Lenine is quietly dressed, his linen always white and starched. Radek is true to Bolshevism in the picturesqueness of his madly-synthesized attire, the collar rolling, the hair a bush atop of the skull, the coat looking as if it had been slept in. Lenine evidently has a bourgeois tailor, but Radek looks as if he had attired himself out of the stock of a theatrical costumer who specialized in the period of the Robespierre terror. Lenine is bald. Radek has almost as much hair as Trotsky unless we are to assume that the real Radek is never seen through his perfect disguises. Some journalists accuse him of running regularly across to Paris in false wig and whiskers, equipped with forged passports that bear the most auspicious scrutiny. Lenine looks hungry and emaciated. Radek has lots of neck, but his huge head neutralizes that accident. One would deem Lenine a country doctor. Radek looks like a metropolitan actor. Lenine has spectacles, a notebook and lead pencil that he chews nervously. No one ever saw Radek with such a professional apparatus, even when disguised.

Lenine is mild and smiling. Radek looks violent even in repose, and when in action his gestures make him look like a windmill. Lenine is satisfied and confident. Radek is nervous of speech, declamatory, argumentative, shouting proletarian ideas with a wave of a substantial fist. Lenine is no Jew, despite many statements that he is; but Radek is a Jew to the finger-tips. Lenine, again, is a true native Russian, whereas Radek is a Galician Pole who has been Germanized, but Germanized romantically, even poetically.

Radek's occupation is that of traveling man for Bolshevism, its agent in the field, and thus he shows markedly the difference between his temperament and that of the contemplative Lenine. All conspiracies must be hatched by the people's "commissars" at headquarters, but Radek is the only man with authority to actualise, realise, dramatise them in the name and with the authority of the Soviet republic. Radek will undertake to overthrow any bourgeois government anywhere, but he is true to Bolshevism and will never set to work until Lenine gives the order. Whether he is leading his bands through the Thiergarten at Berlin or blowing up the royal palace at Bucharest, Radek, the man of action, knows neither fear nor defeat, and he shouts his hatred of the bourgeoisie with a fury that makes Lenine seem tame. Radek in public is a master of invective.

This remarkable pair have been friends, according to the Paris press, for a long time, although there is a decided difference in their ages, Radek being much Lenine's junior. The intimacy began when Radek, then known as Sobelsohn, was having his troubles with the Socialists of Warsaw. Sobelsohn, or Radek, spent his early manhood in the Jewish quarter of Warsaw, the London Post says.

Jest and Joke.

A joke is often rougher and less delicate than a jest, as a practical joke, but jest often suggests more of lightness or scoffing than a joke, as to turn everything into jest. Joke is the word to use where action is implied, while jest is generally applied to something said.

HASTINGS

(Special Correspondence.)

Hastings, June 25.—The steamer Geneva, under the auspices of the congregation of the English Church, conveyed a party of excursionists to Peterboro on Wednesday. The day was all that could be desired and the people on board thoroughly enjoyed the day, reaching home about 9 o'clock.

Mrs. Walter Humphries received the sad news of the death of her sister, Mrs. Aikins, who resided in the vicinity of Healy Falls. Death is attributed to heart trouble. She leaves to mourn her loss, besides her sorrowing husband, two little children of tender years, to whom the sympathy of the entire community is extended. The funeral took place on Saturday afternoon.

A number from Peterboro came down on Friday last via steamer Stoney Lake and spent a short time here. The chief object of attraction for the visitors was the new tannery.

The local champter of the I.O.D.E. have generously donated to each of the village churches the sum of $50 to be applied on some suitable memorial for the boys who have fallen in the late war. Each church will decide as to the form of memorial for its own members.

The severe electrical storms of the past week are being followed by much cooler weather, to the advantage of all.

On Friday last as Master Walter Turner was playing on the wharf, he accidently slipped into the water, and had it not been for the prompt action of a near-by neighbor, another drowning accident would undoubtedly have to be recorded.

On Sunday evening the members of the Holy Name Society in connection with the R. C. Church, marched to the church where a reception was tendered to the new members. It is hoped this society may result in much good, as its object is assuredly praise-worthy.

At the recent meeting of the Court of Revision, it was moved by Mr. Plant, seconded by Mr. Doxsee, that the names handed in to be placed in assessment roll, and the clerk have them placed on the voters' list, and that the assessment roll be confirmed as now amended and the minutes be signed by the Secretary and chairman. Carried.

Council Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Town Council also was held with the following members present:—Reeve Dr. Hess, Councillors Dr. Wilson, Plant, Doxsee and Chapman.

The minutes of the last meeting were read, and, on motion, confirmed. The following accounts were read:

Henry Mc Millan, fire dept.	$ 3 00
A. Wilson, scales	18 03
A. Wilson, town hall	9 34
Canadian Express Co.	75
Wm. West, sidewalks	3 60
Paul Barry	3 20
Harry Dodd	3 20
C. P. Douhty, printing	15 00
John Prest, town hall	5 00
G.T.R watchman for April	8 33
James Barry, streets	5 25
Thos. Shaughnessy, streets	3 50
R. N. Simpson, streets	23 10
Fowlds Co., electric light	99 71
W. P. Plant, fire dept.	1 06
W. P. Plant, bridge	57 71
Wm. West, salary as constable	11 25
Wm. Boyle, salary	8 33
D. Cook, fire dept.	6 25
Bell Telephone Co.	84

Moved by Mr. Doxsee, seconded by Dr. Wilson, that the accounts as read be paid and that orders be drawn on the treasurer in the usual way for the several amounts. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Chapman, seconded by Dr. Wilson, that Mr. George Dickey be granted a rebate of $10.00 on his butcher's license. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Plant, seconded by Dr. Wilson, that the Council secure the stone crusher when the County work is going on and spend the sum, not to exceed $250.00, starting on Water street and Clyde street and the drain from Spellman's to Lambert's be required. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Chapman, seconded by Mr. Doxsee, that the reeve have the traffic sign placed on the corner of Front and Bridge streets. Carried.

The Council adjourned.

Reception to Veterans.

During the week Westwood tendered a right royal reception to three returned soldiers—Pte. W Wilson, Pte. S. Wilson and Corp. R. Dickson. The Speakers were M. F. D. Kerr, of Peterboro; Rev. Mr. Howard, of Westwood, and Mr. Wm. Knox, of South Drummer. A good program of music, recitations, etc., was given, after which each of the boys was presented with a handsome gold watch.

Some farmers have begun haying, which promises an unusual yield.

Mrs. S. Carter has been visiting in Peterboro, the guest of her daughter, Mrs. W. Atkinson.

Miss Violet Huycke, of Winnipeg, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Huycke, Sunny Brae.

Mr. Henry McMillan is engaged by the Norwood Council to operate the stone crusher.

Miss Carrie Hayden has returned to her home in Port Hope, after a pleasant visit in Hastings.

Nursing Sister Helen Fowlds, recently returned from overseas, left during the week for Toronto for duty in a military hospital there, prior to her departure for the city the members of the local chapter of the I. O. D. E. met at her home and presented her with an address and a beautiful pearl necklace, to which she made a suitable reply.

The Misses Fowlds have returned from Toronto where they spent the winter months and are occupying their summer home, "The Maples."

A number of sportsmen have arrived in town to enjoy the pleasure of fishing in the River Trent.

Constable West on Monday received notice to be on the look out for two strangers who had stolen a car from a Lindsay garage. The car was found badly damaged near Birdsall's Station, but the occupants had made away with another one belonging to Mr. Hope, near by. Two strangers were noticed in Hastings on Sunday and it is supposed they are the culprits. Constable Dixon started out on Monday morning but failed to locate them.

Mr. and Mrs. Prentice spent the week-end in Foxboro.

Mr. and Mrs. V. German motored to Lindsay on Sunday and spent the day with friends. They were accompanied by Miss Jessie Wilcox, Mrs. Wm. Tate and son.

Sunday being conference Sunday Mr. Alernethy, of Campbellford, occupied the pulpit in the Methodist Church in the morning. In the evening the service was withdrawn as Rev. Isaac Snell was in Whitby.

Mrs. Isaac Thomson returned on Friday from Owen Sound where she has been visiting her son and is staying with her daughter, Mrs. B. F. Doxsee.

Mr. J. Oakley has purchased a new Chevrolet motor car from the Hess garage.

Mrs. W. Elphick, of Peterboro, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Hill, town.

Dr. J. H. Hess and family visited friends in Wooler on Sunday.

The steamer Stoney Lake passed through on Monday with a party of excursionists from Peterboro, en route for Campbellford.

Mrs. Roberts has returned from an extended visit with friends out of town.

DOWNEYVILLE

(Special Correspondence.)

Downeyville, June 25.—Miss Grace Meehan, of Lindsay, is visiting at the home of Mr. T. J. Morrisey.

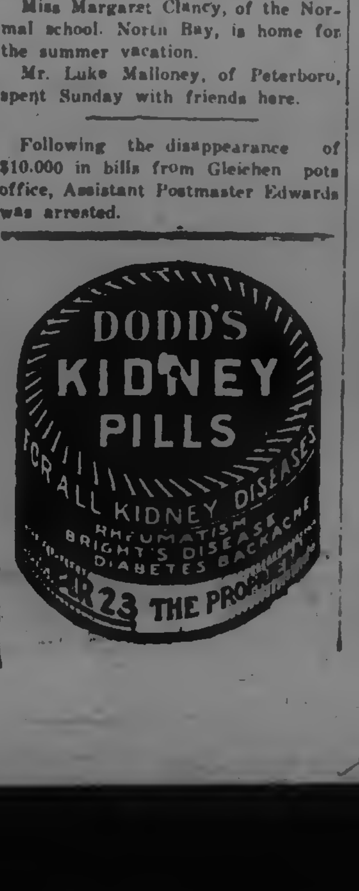
Mr. Alphonse Herlihey, who has been in Peterboro, has returned home.

Mrs. Patrick Herlihey spent the week-end with friends at Lindsay.

Miss Margaret Clancy, of the Normal school, North Bay, is home for the summer vacation.

Mr. Luke Malloney, of Peterboro, spent Sunday with friends here.

Following the disappearance of $10.000 in bills from Gleichen pots office, Assistant Postmaster Edwards was arrested.



DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS FOR ALL KIDNEY DISEASES RHEUMATISM BRIGHT'S DISEASE BACKACHE DIABETES

ANCIENT DRUGS.

Quacks and Doctors In the Dark Ages.

Do you regard cold cream as an ultra-modern palliative?

Or pure food and drug laws as a comparatively recent type of legislation?

Or the familiar "cure all" as an up-to-date quack device for the twentieth century credulous?

You are wrong.

Most people at some time or another use cold cream. It seems quite a modern luxury, indispensable alike to peer and peri, and adapted to many and varied uses. In fact, one traveler tells recently of having some of his cold cream eaten by a fat, hungry valet in Germany. So we are inclined to regard it as a fairly modern product. And yet "Unguentum Refrigerans," cold cream, has come down to us from Roman days. The first formula is attributed to Galen, who lived and wrote in the second century. What we use to-day is practically the same, though "Doctor" Galen's original formula was imitated and "improved" hundreds of times.

Emperor Frederick II of Sicily, in 1240 or 1241, published the first pure food and drugs act. He was about 700 years ahead of Dr. Wiley, for he specified strict regulations of the standard of drug purity, and provided for drug inspectors, and fined all offenders.

The practice of medicine was also regulated. A physician was required to have a diploma from a university before he could study medicine; then he took a three-year course in the school of medicine and one year practice under a practicing physician. Special post-graduate work in anatomy was required if he was to do surgery.

All this was in the so-called "dark ages." Even the fees of physicians and pharmacists were strictly regulated by law and were in purchasing value about the same as the charges of the present day. Physicians were not allowed to own drug stores and drug adulterators were severely dealt with.

Mithradatium was the name of the great antidote of Roman pharmacy. It had from 40 to 50 vegetables ingredients, few of which had any real medicinal value except opium, and these drugs were blended with honey.

It remained for Nero's physician Andromachus, to put the finishing touches to this wonderful compound. Andromachus added viper's flesh to the formula and called his new compound Theriaca. He wrote some verses dedicated to Nero, describing this medicine and claiming virtues for it which in our day would subject him to prosecution under the anti trust act. Evidently he believed he had created in this one compound a veritable pharmaceutical monopoly.

Galen, one of the fathers of medicine, went even further. He recommended it as a cure for all poisons, bites, headaches, vertigo, deafness, epilepsy, apoplexy, dimness of sight, loss of voice, asthma, coughs, spitting of blood, tightness of breath, colic, the iliac passion (appendicitis), jaundice, hardening of the spleen, stone, fevers, dropsy, leprosy, melancholy, all pestilences, etc. Nowadays, he would probably have included cupon thumb, golf shoulder and mov eye.

As Galen's writing dominated medical thought for over 1,500 years, it is not surprising that this advertisement made Mithradatium, or [illegible]erifica, a valued remedy. [illegible] physician of note for centuries afterward claimed some improvement on the original formula.

"Black Plague."

The "Black Death," or "Black Plague," was also known as the "bubonic plague," and was a scourge in Europe and Asia in the years between 1334-1351, when millions were swept away by the scourge. It has recurred from time to time since then, but never so severely.

MINERAL OIL
For Chronic Constipation

By buying this product from us you can get the highest in quality that can be procured at an ESPECIALLY LOW PRICE. There are many thin oils on the market that are not suitable for internal use; other oils have irritating qualities which render them also unsuitable. The one we are selling is guaranteed thick and entirely pure.

It is recognized that a good grade of Mineral Oil is one of the best remedies for CHRONIC CONSTIPATION that is being used. It acts mechanically, and does not irritate the intestinal tract, nor does the dose have to be continually increased, as is the case with ordinary purgatives.

It is much better and cheaper than Castor Oil as a laxative for children, since Castor Oil has two effects, the first of which is purgative, and the second or after effect, which is Constipating.

From Fighting to Farming

(1) A Soldier and His Family on a C. P. R. Colony Farm. (2) A Soldier Seeding the Soil. (3) A Typical Colony Farmstead.

Not many months ago two men were in the same battalion in France—the one an officer, the other a private. They both were in at the end and in the short interval since the armistice was signed have come back to Western Canada, received their discharge from the army, and are now occupying neighboring farms in one of the farm colonies prepared for returned soldiers by the Canadian Pacific Railway in Southern Alberta.

Here in these colonies are soldiers of all ranks, a number of whom were in the firing line up to the signing of the armistice. What surprises one most is that so many of them have so soon got back to practical work again and the Canadian Pacific Railway is to be congratulated on having had the foresight to adopt a practical scheme which has made it possible for a large number of men to begin farming on their own account in so short a space of time after their release from military duties. But this company has a reputation for making it easy for the right kind of men to get a start at farming, and its soldiers' settlement scheme is only an elaboration of its original "Ready Made Farm" and settlement plans, by means of which many of Western Canada's most prosperous farmers were enabled to begin farming in a new country under most favourable circumstances and which has contributed in no small measure to their present success.

The soldier settler in these farm colonies has an unusual opportunity to make good. He finds on the farm a comfortable house ready for him to move into with his family and effects. There is a good barn for his horses and cows, his water supply is provided for, his farm is fenced, and he has forty acres of land broken and ready for crop which will bring him a revenue during his first season. For this farm he is not required to pay anything for three years; time enough to give a man an opportunity to bring his farm to a fine state of development and with average luck to have acquired a fair sized bank account as well.

Moreover, if he is unable to purchase live stock, farm implements and seed, he is provided with a team of horses and harness, two cows, a sow some poultry, some necessary implements and small tools and seed for his forty acres, for which payment is to be made under an agreement entered into for the purpose.

Some of the larger implements are available for use by the colonists in common, a set being allotted to every three farms and use by them in turn under the direction of the colony superintendent. A fixed charge per day is made for the use of these implements.

The colony superintendent is an expert agriculturist and it is his duty to assist the colonists with advice to the best manner of conducting their farming operations. His headquarters is the central control farm, a farm somewhat larger than the rest of the farms in the colony, which is used largely for demonstration purposes, and among other functions, serves as a supply depot for male live stock. The central control farm is situated at a point most conveniently reached by all the settlers in the colony and will no doubt become their chief meeting place.

A more enthusiastic community of farmers will be hard to find anywhere than those in process of formation in these veterans' colonies in Alberta. To see the men at work, or themselves, on their own farms, after what they have gone through is an inspiring sight. The spirit of mutual help and comeradie that is everywhere evident, speaks well for the success of the venture. These farm colonies are sure to become centres of considerable agricultural activity.

IN CASE OF ILLNESS

When nervous energy is depleted and the eyes are denied extra enervation needed to correct defective vision, people say "it settled in my eyes." Don't wait till the eyes are so bad that you are actually driven to do something for them. Have Dr. Fowler examine them and tell you their condition. He will advise you correctly whether it means any business for him or not.

JOHN A. PICARD.

Jean A. Picard.

Picard is a Frenchman, fought as a Lieutenant in the first Battle of the Marne, was seriously wounded and has since been the Representative of his country on this continent, telling of the spirit of France in the Great Contest. He is a wonderful Representative and interpreter of this great people, and will tell us what the spirit of France is to be in the re-construction period.

No man on the platform can answer questions more satisfactorily than can Lieutenant Picard. We are placing him upon the afternoon programme so as to give an abundant occasion for this. Be sure to hear him.

THEATRICAL

"THE LOVE DEFENDER" IS TITLE OF JUNE ELVIDGE WORLD PICTURE

Famous Star Has Charming Role in New World Picture Which Will Soon Be Seen Here.

"The Love Defender" is the title of the newest June Elvidge World Picture. This delightful unusual and charming production is scheduled for showing on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, at the Grand Theatre. It is a particularly pleasing subject and is certain to interest and entertain all those who are so fortunate as to see it.

Miss Elvidge portrays the role of Hope Meredith in this picture. Hope is a good-looking, bright American girl of fine ideals. She falls in love with Frank Rodney, a young, likable doctor, and she marries him. And then her troubles begin. But everything ends happily for the two.

The story of "The Love Defender" was penned by Maravene Thompson, the famous author whose short stories and novels have been published in so many of the leading American periodicals. This story is one of the very best things that Mrs Thompson has ever written and is particularly suited to Miss Elvidge.

Miss Elvidge is supported by a notable company in this production including Frank Mayo as her leading man, and charming little Madge Evans who appears as Hope's young sister.

"The Love Defender" is not alone notable as a decidedly good picture but is remarkable for the beauty of the outdoor scenes which figure in it. These scenes will prove delightful to all movie fans in every locality.

"The Love Defender" is a dandy picture and you will enjoy every single foot of it.

JAP ROOM ADDS ARTISTIC NOTE

TO PLAY "SYLVIA ON A SPREE" AT GRAND FOR WEEK END.

A Japanese tearoom done in exquisite lacquer and oriental embroideries, will be one of the attractive features in "Sylvia on a Spree," to be shown at the Grand on Thursday for a three day enagement. Emmy Wehlen, the fascinating young Metro star will play the leading role.

The room is a veritable artists delight—handsome teakwood tables, covered with dainty embroideries and holding trays containing a tea service of delicate china, dot the room—daintily inviting for those who wish to drink their tea amid the charming surroundings. Gorgeous silk hangings adorn the walls showing to advantage the screens of carved ebony and ivory which are placed at a table here and there.

The walls show a handsome design of black cherry boughs against a mustard colored surface, while a background of feathery bamboos are done in stencil.

Beyond the tearoom a spacious set, depicting the lobby of one of New York's most fashionable afternoon hour when the gay crowd of handsomely gowned women and distinguished men are on pleasure or business bent. The impression of vastness and seething activity which this scenes presents will be appreciated by all familiar with hotels of this kind.

Puffing People Up.

Some men seem to be awfully afraid to tell the neighbor down the road that he has the best piece of corn in town. Puffs him up so, you know. But how those same men do like to be puffed up that way! Doesn't hurt them a mite, oh, no! Beats all what a difference it does make which way the puffing up is going.—Exchange.

Needed Prompting.

Mr. Jobling was asked by his wife to call at a shop on his way home and get her three articles of feminine wear. When she reached the shop he had forgotten what they were, so he said apologetically to the attendant behind the counter: "Excuse me, my wife told me to come here and get her some things to wear, and I've forgotten what they are. Would you mind naming a few things?"

Armenia's Needs.

Armenia is a country rich in its soil and in its mineral deposits. But like most of the Orient it has not had the most advanced methods or machinery to develop its natural resources; and during the occupancy of the Turks a deliberate effort was made to keep the people poor and as nearly in the class of slaves as possible. A less sturdy race would have become truly subject; but the Armenian in spirit has never been anything but a free man, however, poverty stricken or persecuted, says World Outlook. Some who escaped into Mesopotamia and Palestine have been within the British lines and have been taught, or at least have had the opportunity of seeing new methods of agriculture and industry in operation. The American relief committee has supported about 5,000 refugees in Egypt and the boys have been given manual training and instruction in various trades which will help them to develop their country when they return to it.

In view of what should have been done, the accomplishment has been small. This statement does not reflect in any way on any of the relief organizations. It simply means that they have had barely enough, when they have had that, to keep the exiles alive. With the death rate, because of exposure and malnutrition, exceeding the birth rate by almost 500 per cent. the societies have been hard pressed to save any part of the population. A careful survey has convinced them that the $30,000,000 which they are raising will restore the country—give all those who have survived a chance to live until they can become self-supporting once more.

Economy.

A negro entered a southern ticket office and asked for two round-trip tickets to Charleston, N.C. The agent knew him and asked who was going with him. "My brother," said the negro. "Your brother?" asked the agent. "Where is he?" "Out there in a box. He's dead," answered the negro. "Well, if he is dead you don't want a return ticket for him." "Yes, suh," said the negro; "you see we ain't goin' to bury him in Cha'leston; but we have about forty kinfolks down there, and we reasoned that it would be cheaper to carry him down to Cha'leston fo' de fune'l service and bring him back, than to bring all the family up here."

Did You Ever Do This?

Visitors or strangers coming into an office are often embarrassed by the discourtesy of office employees who ignore their presence—or wait for some one else to inquire the visitor's errand. Any employee who happens to be near when a stranger enters should address him courteously and ask if he can take a message or be of assistance. The visitor's impression of the employer often is affected by the attitude of the employee.—Biddy Bye.

Ears That Listen Through Earth

ARTIFICIAL ears developed during the great conflict are at once the most ingenious and most delicate contrivances imaginable. Their hearing is not only incomparably more acute than any man's, but it locates with accuracy the source from which a sound proceeds, its direction and its distance—a thing the human ear cannot do.

By such means in a single day, shortly before the signing of the armistice, more than 100 hidden German guns were located in one sector, placing them at the mercy of the Allied artillery.

A survey of German gun positions made after the armistice was signed, on a part of the front where listening devices were installed, proved that the actual positions varied not more than twenty to thirty feet from the locations calculated for them.

So extraordinarily sensitive are the instruments used that the operator, merely by picking up the sound of the guns, can determine their calibre. Apparatus of the kind located the "big Bertha" cannon (of which there were several) that fired upon Paris from a distance of seventy-two miles, thus enabling the French aviators to bomb them and destroy at least one. Another was blown up, and a third was put out of action in some way not definitely ascertained.

Each set of instruments covered a five-mile front, and the sounds they recorded were conveyed to them not through the air, but through the earth. In many instances the operator occupied a sort of telephone booth, listening through a pair of rubber tubes connected with two hearing-disks placed on the ground.

The apparatus chiefly employed is called a "geophone," and was used for many purposes other than locating German guns. Provided with this instrument, a man would take his station at the extreme subterranean end called the "sap-head") of a mining tunnel and listen for enemy counter-mining operations. If any such were in progress, he could tell exactly where the digging was being done. He could distinguish the blows of a pick, the noise made by a spade, the sawing of timber for props, or the tamping of an explosive charge.

The problem then was merely to arrange matters so that when the enemy's sap-head had reached a certain point, with a bunch of Huns busy digging, the whole business could be blown up, destroying the countermine and giving sudden and permanent burial to the excavators.

By this means German mining operations on the west front were interfered with to such an extent as to put a stop to them almost entirely.

In work of the kind the "geophone" was importantly supplemented by a wholly different instrument, which was a long-distance microphone. It could be used for either underground or surface listening, and was of utmost value in the trenches.

Provided with one of these microphones, the observer, in a safe place a mile behind the front line, could hear what was going on in No Man's Land. If an enemy patrol was silently crawling across that dangerous territory, he could give warning. Small noises unheard in the trenches were audible to him.

Whereas the man with the "geophone" was obliged (for detection of enemy mining operations) to place himself in the sap-head, the microphone operator need not enter the tunnel at all. With the help of wires suitably strung, he might be a mile away and listen to what was going on in the neighborhood of half-a-dozen tunnels.

Volcanoes' Two Lives.

Mount Elburz, the Caucasian peak that towers 2,700 feet higher than Mt. Blanc, has been puzzling the world by bursting into activity after the lapse of untold ages.

The puzzle of its renewed life was explained by the librarian of the Royal Geographical Society.

Elburz is surmounted by two volcanic craters, connected by a saddle or ridge. Near the base of the great dome which supports this are traces of a long extinct cone surrounded by lava; the remains of a crater that burned itself out in some remote geologic age, before the glacial period arrived.

There are other instances of a volcanic mountain enjoying a "second innings." Vesuvius, for instance, stands on the long extinct crater of Monte Somma, and other examples are the Peak of Teneriffe and Barren Island in the Bay of Bengal. Mount Shasta, in Northern California, after having lain buried under vast fields of ice, again renewed its activities. There are somewhat similar instances in Scotland, where extinct craters have been built up on the ruins of others whose age can be reckoned only in geological periods.

Saved the Funds.

An entertaining story is told by an Italian writer concerning the manner in which the municipal funds of Coutrai were saved at the time of the German invasion. When the enemy arrived these funds, totaling a very considerable amount, were at the town hall, and the problem of their removal greatly exercised the civic authorities. The mayor hit upon the idea of a mock funeral and on the second day of the occupation an imposing cortege moved slowly through the streets with what the Germans were led to believe were the remains of a distinguished citizen. The funeral car was heaped high with flowers, the city chamberlain walked behind, the German officers stood stiffly at the salute as the coffin was borne past them. Needless to say, the "corpse" has now been exhumed.

THE TOLL OF WAR.

Fifteen Million Graves as Result of Conflict.

There have been busy days in the harvest fields of death lately, says the Thrift Magazine. Fifteen million new-made graves are scattered over the lands of the earth or hidden away in the depths of the sea.

From the best information obtainable the total death statistics of fighting men are as follows: Germany, 2,000,000; Austria, 1,000,000; Turkey, 250,000; Bulgaria, 150,000; Russia, 2,500,000; France, 1,300,000; Great Britain, 900,000; Italy, 500,000, and the United States, 50,000. In addition to which there are the millions who gave the blood of their hearts for Belgium, Serbia, Roumania, Montenegro and other countries. So, if all the soldiers could come marching back from their graves to-day, they would form an army not less than 9,000,000 strong.

And who can count those other millions who have been butchered in their homes, or have starved, or have perished at sea; or the millions more that still must go from wounds, lack of food and broken hearts?

Even the pestilence of influenza, we are told by medical scientists, owes its grim success to war. Every great war in history has been followed by some kind of pestilential disease, and, while the curse of influenza, which has caused a death roll of 6,000,000 human beings, cannot be charged directly to the conflict, a very large percentage of the fatalities must be so listed. This disease is known to be at least 400 years old, but never before has it assumed such malignant form because the war had brought about a general condition of low physical resistance among all mankind.

VETERANS FAILED TO FIND KIRN WITH MEN ON BASES

Lost Game With Orientals Last Night by a Score of 9 to 5—Winning Pitcher Struck Out Ten Men.

The Orientals last night defeated the G.W.V.A. by a score of nine to five. Though each side made seven hits and seven errors, the difference in the score is not a matter of luck. Two errors are recorded against the Oriental's catcher when S. Wade scored a run in the seventh after being struck out. In the second innings a hit and three errors only netted one run for the Veterans, chiefly because Kirn gave his team a chance to pull themselves together by striking two men out. Failure to hit when there were men on bases and hits meant runs was largely the cause of the Veteran's defeat.

First Innings.

G.W.V.A.—Anderson doubled; S Wade was hit by the pitcher; Foley and Le Gros struck out; A. Wade singled, scoring Anderson; Daynard's triple brought in two more, and Kirn put the last man out. Three runs, three hits, no errors.

Orientals — Cherrett walked and Heenan singled, but Cherrett was caught trying to make third on the play, Phelan's fly to Foley resulted in a double play, Heenan being caught off second. No runs, one hit, one error.

Second Innings.

Morrow made first on Cherrett's error; O'Heron grounded to first; Anderson made first on Murray's error; S. Wade singled, scoring Morrow; Foley and Le Gros struck out. One run, one hit, three errors.

Clancy was thrown out at first by Foley and Murray went out at the same place; Le Gros to Morrow; Kirn singled and a wild throw to first and an error to the pitcher brought him in and put Coughlin on first; McCarney grounded out to Morrow. One run, one hit, one error.

Third Innings.

A. Wade made first on Coughlin's error, but the latter redeemed himself by catching Le Barr's and Morrow's flies after Daynard had been thrown out at first. No runs, no hits, one error.

Nicholson was thrown out at first by the pitcher; Cherrett doubled; Heenan's foul was caught by O'Heron; Phelan singled, and Cherrett came in on a clever double steal; Clancy walked, and Phelan scored on a wide toss; Murray was hit by the pitcher; Kirn doubled, scoring two but was caught on the road to third. Four runs, three hits, no errors.

Fourth Innings.

O'Heron was thrown out at first by Kirn; Anderson grounded out to Phelan and S Wade fanned. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Coughlin fanned; McCarney missed his third strike, but O'Heron lost the ball and he reached first; Head, who replaced Nicholson, fanned, and Cherrett flied out to Le Barr. No runs, no hits, one error.

Fifth Innings.

Foley struck out; Le Gros and A. Wade flied to McCarney and Clancy. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Heenan made first on Le Gros' error, stole second, went third on a passed ball and came in on Foley's error; Phelan walked; Clancy was thrown out at first; Phelan came in on a passed ball the ball rolling over to the Oriental's bench where it was picked up by one of the players. Manager Le Barr protested and Phelan was sent back to third, Umpire Kay promising a fine of a five dollars to the next player who wilfully interfers with the ball while it is in play. Murray grounded to first, and Phelan was thrown out at the plate. One run, no hits, two errors.

Sixth Innings.

Daynard flied out to McCarney; Le Barr was thrown out at first, and Morrow's fly went to Kirn. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Kirn walked but was forced at second; McCarney walked and S. Wade's error let Coughlin in and Head make first; Cherrett's fly to Foley resulted in McCarney being caught off second. One run, no hits, one error.

Seventh Innings.

O'Hero flied out to Cherrett; Anderson was thrown out at first by Murray; S. Wade made a complete circuit of the bases, reaching first when the catcher missed his third strike and coming home one a wild throw to catch him at second; Foley walked; Le Gros singled and A. Wade flied out to Kirn. One run one hit, two errors.

Heenan singled; Phelan was hit by the pitcher; Clancy's sacrifice advanced them each a base and Murray's single scored two; Kirn was thrown out at first and Coughlin flied to Anderson. Two runs, two hits, no errors.

Eighth Innings.

Daynard singled; Le Barr made first on Clancy's error; Morrow reached first when Daynard was caught at the plate; O'Heron fanned and Anderson flied out to McCarney. No runs, one hit, one error.

McCarney made first on Morrow's error; Head flied out to Anderson and Cherrett to Le Barr; Heenan and Phelan walked but Le Barr saved the situation by another nice catch of Clancy's fly. No runs, no hits, one error.

Ninth Innings.

S. Wade was thrown out at first; Foley fanned; Le Gros singled, and A. Wade made his exist in the same manner as his brother. No runs, one hit, no errors.

FANS STAND IN HEAVY RAIN TO WATCH DEMPSEY BOX

Challenger Takes Natural Shower Bath in Preparing for the Big Job on July Fourth

(By Battling Nelson)

Toledo, O., June 25—Jack Dempsey took a natural shower bath the other day while taking his workout at the Overland club. Soon as Dempsey started working it comenced to rain. After Jack was working fifteen minutes it rained hard, but the young challenger said:

"I want to get used to this kind of weather in case it rains on the fourth of July."

He kept on as if nothing had happened until Jimmy Deforest, who has charge of the challenger called a halt. There was quite a crowd at Camp Dempsey, although many of the fans who were at the champion's casino, hurried home to keep from getting wet. Just as Willard finished training the rain started to sprinkle, but when we got to Camp Dempsey it looked as if the rain was going to blow over.

Champion Boxes Nine Rounds

The champion boxed nine rounds, starting off three rounds in succession with his old standby, Jack Hemple and following with Big Jack Henlen for one round. Willard allowed Henlen to recuperate from the rough handling while he kidded little Joe Chip for two successive rounds when he took Henlen for another stormy sesison.

At the close of the seventh round Willard was bouncing his large gloves off Henlen's chest. Jess always tries to hit Henlen on his gloves in order not to hurt him, but once Jack forgot to duck or cover his jaw with his glove when the champion let his right uppercut go. It caught Heinen flush on the point of the jaw and he sat down as if he were used to it and stretched out full length on the canvas. It was some time before he recovered.

While Chip was boxing he made a vicious looking face and one of the spectators exclaimed:

"Isn't he a scrapper! Hasn't he got a fighting face"

Chip may have a fighting face but, take it from me, it takes more than a fighting face to get Willard in condition to go against a husky buck like Jack Dempsey who has a real "fighting face" and everything that goes with it.

Circus Man Favors Jess

Just before the champion started boxing with Sergt Walter Monahan I turned to Ray Archer.

"You are a circus man," I said. "Tell me about the weather."

Instantly Archer said:

"Start taking down the big top," which in circusdom means rain.

It started to sprinkle a few minutes later and blew up a storm. Ray Archer, who is Willard's business representative, during his conversation with some friends and sport writers said:

"Bad luck to any who tries to force the fighting with Willard. He will be knocked out sure."

"Don't you know you are standing next to the most aggressive fighter the world ever saw?" I asked. "There isn't a fighter in the world that ever boxed twenty rounds that didn't back up more than I have done in twenty years and I fought the cleverest toughest sluggers in the lightweight class and the aggressiveness was what took the heart out of them. Then I put over the K. O. punch.

BELLEVILLE MAY BE THROWN OUT OF CENTRAL ONTARIO LEAGUE AT MEETING IN LINDSAY TONIGHT.

There promises to be a lively time at the meeting of the Central Ontario Baseball Executive tonight in Lindsay. Port Hope has protested the game last Wednesday on the grounds that Weir, Mills and Goyer of the Belleville team played with another Belleville team in the Bay of Quinte league. Belleville claims that its team is entirely made up of local players, five of whom it designates as kids. They suggest through the Bellville Intelligencer that Port Hope should drop out of the league if they are not in their class.

The storm will probably develop over the proposal to rule the Belleville team out of the league. They came to take the place of Bowmanville and there have been several complaints from the teams they have played against. Whether any definite action is taken along this line or not the matter is at least bound to be brought up for discussion tonight.

Anumber of the N.W.M.P. raided the Western Labor News, Winnipeg, and took steps to suppress further publication.

LAWN BOWLING

Mr. J. A. McKone and Dr. A. A. Fowler are presenting a cup for singles competition, commencing early in July.

Dr. A. E. Hammond is presenting a prize for doubles competition, commencing July 3rd.

These competitions are open to any member of the club in good standing.

Members are asked to make arrangements with the one with whom they wish to play and enter their names on card in club house.

Two rinks are going to visit Port Hope on Thursday next..

PACKERS PLAY AT LINDSAY TONIGHT

WESTINGHOUSE TEAM FROM HAMILTON HERE FOR A GAME SATURDAY.

The Matthews-Blackwell team play against the Lindsay nine tonight in the latter's town. On Saturday they will meet the hitherto unbeaten Westinghouse team of Hamilton at Riverside Park. This should prove to be an extra good game, as both teams have a very high repstation to support. This will make three games in four days for this team as tomorrow night they are billed to meet the De Lavals in a City League contest.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

BROCK—LEWERS

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday, June 18, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Brock, Ops, when their eldest daughter, Alma Jean, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Frederick Joseph Lewers, of Cavan. The ceremony, which was witnessed by only the immediate friends of the bride and groom, was performed at one o'clock by Rev. Val. E. Tilton of Lindsay. The bridal couple, who were unattended, stood in an arch of weeping birch and orange blossoms with a back ground of yellow roses.

The bride entered the room with her father to the strains of Wagners bridal chorus wedding march, played by Mrs. Harry Deyell, sister of the groom, and was becomingly attired in gown of crepe de chene, draped with Georgette crep. trimmed with beads. She carried a large sheaf of roses and carnations with ferns. The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl sunburst and to the organist a fleur-de-lis pin set with pearls.

After the congratulations were extended, the bridal party retired to the dining room, which was prettily decorated with pink and green where a hearty wedding dinner was partaken of by all present.

Costly and numerous were the presents, showing the high esteem in which the bride was held, among them being a miscellaneous shower from the institute in which the bride was a valued worker. The happy couple left by train from Lindsay for Toronto and other points, the bride wearing a suit of sand colored silk poplin with hat to match. On their return they will reside on Cedar Springs farm, Cavan.

OBITUARY

(Th Hastings Star, 29th May.)

We venerate old age; and we love not the person, who can look without emotion, upon the sunset of life, when the dusk of evening begins to gather over the watery eye, and the shadows of twilight grow broader and deeper upon the understanding. To have known one good old person—one person who through the chances and mischances of a long life, has carried her heart in her hand, like a palm-branch, waiving all discords into peace—helps our faith in God, in ourselves, and in each other, and in heaven.

To have known the late Mrs. Mary Ann Huycke was to receive a stimulus to have faith in the God who guides and sustains life. For many long years she bore by precept and example a faithful testimony of God's power to save, control, guide and keep all trust in Him. Mrs. Huycke whose maiden name was Gibson, was born in Prince Edward County, on June 7th, 1823, near the village of Consecon. She was the daughter of John and Ann Gibson. On Feb. 23rd, 1842 she was united in marriage to Andrew C. Huycke, also of Prince Edward County. They settled on what is known as the Huycke farm, opposite what is now the Armour place and after two or three year moved to what is now the farm on which her son Charles resides. Here they remained until 1878 when they removed to Hastings.

MRS. A. C. HUYCKE

She and her husband spent 78 years in Percy Township. In those early days, what is now Hastings, was known as Crooks' Rapids. They settled in Percy when in this vicinity there was but one other settled named Jimmy O'Reilley, who was living on what is now known as the Dutch Line. They knew the meaning of pioneer days when the country was mostly bush and the howl of the wolf was a familiar sound. Together through sunshine and shadow, through defeat and triumph, they toiled and lived and developed that sturdy type of rugged character where plain living and high thinking abounded.

Mrs. Huycke was a woman of remarkable vitality. Of exceptional physical vigor, she walked on one occasion from the farm in Percy to Consecon, a distance of 44 miles in one day. She was always usefully employed—weaving and spinning were among the accomplishments she could call her own. In mental grasp she was above the average, and almost to the last her memory remained unimpaired. In questions of morality she stood firm for what she conceived to be the right. Her spiritual vision remained unclouded to the last. Her faith in her Saviour was very real and her interest in the church of her choice continued to the end.

This type of sturdy pioneer connecting this generation with the past is all too rapidly passing away. To few is given the gift of so many years of earthly life! She had reached the ripe age of 95 years, 11 months and 15 days, and could count five generations—a son, son's daughter, grand-daughter's daughter and great grand-daughter's daughter.

On Thursday, May 22nd, the Master called her to change mortality for immortality. The funeral service was conducted by her pastor Rev. Isaac Snell, assisted by Rev. D. A. Thompson. The text was taken from James, 4th chapter and 14th verse: "For what is your life? It is even a vapour that continueth for a little time and then vanisheth away."

She leaves to mourn her loss five sons—Cornelius, of Brandon, Henry, of Vancouver, Charles, of Percy Wesley of Peterboro, Taylor of Hastings.

ANGLICAN CHURCH AIMS TO RAISE WORKING FUND

Rev. Dr. Blagrave, of Toronto, Explains Forward Movement and Its Objects—Two and a Half Million Dollars Required.

"It requires no proof or argument that the issues of the war were spiritual and moral," declared Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave of St. Mark's Anglican Church, Parkdale, Toronto. Yesterday afternoon at a meeting in St. John's schoolhouse in the interests of the Anglican Forward Movement. "It would be the greatest calamity to the world if these issues were not conserved. Unfortunately we run a great risk of slipping back into the old prewar grooves. There is no other institution in the world outside of the church which can take up this task of preventing a retrograde movement. Every church member must feel that he is impreatively caled on to help hold that which we have won."

"Some super-service must be done in order that we may not lose the great results of the war. We must appeal to those outside of the church altogether whether rich or poor. All churches throughout Canada, though not combining in organization, are all working together with this great end in view.

"There is a great work in this country in coalescing the various ingredients that have come in with our immigrants. Alien conceptions and ideals are particularly difficult to harmonize with our ideals, and the duty lies mainly on the church.

"How is this work to be done in the best way? Reconstruction is going on very slowly because there has been too much talk and too little action. An evangelistic movement would be a fine idea in theory, but it would probably only add to the amount of talk, without doing very much in the way of action."

The speaker then went on to explain the $2,500,000 which the Anglican Church of Canada is asked to raise. It will be used as a vast fund to be drawn on for the various spiritual activities of the Anglican Church. The Church of England requires more ministers, especially in the outside districts. The salaries of these ministers have been too small to give them and their families a living wage. "There is a great campaign on now," declared the speaker, "to keep up and increase the effectiveness of the Anglican Church.

"There must be a definite organization which will include every member not only of the large church but of the little mission on the hill as well. You will need in this deanery a central organization composed of live wide-awake members, who will be linked up with the great central movement."

This committee will consist of a chairman, a secretary, and four or five other members with power to add to their numbers from time to time The work of preparation will commence immediately, and the appeal to the church members will take place in November.

At the conclusion of the address Rev. H. F. Sawers the Rural Dean of Northumberland, who was formerly the rector of St. Luke's Church, Peterborough, called for the nomination of a committee to organize and advance the interests of the Anglican Forward Movement. Eight members were appointed including a representative from the Woman's Auxiliary, Mrs. C. C. Abbott. Mr. R. B. Rogers is the convenor and the other members are Messrs. C. E. Sissons, J. J. Turner, J. A. Aylmer, S. Jay, W. D. Tyrer and A. E. Dawson. These have power to add to their number from time to time as they see fit. The meeting of the south half of the Deanery is being held today in Cobourg.

Otonabee Chapter's Garden Party

What turned out to be one of the most pronounced successes of the season was the Otonabee Chapter I. O. D. E. garden party held at the home of Mrs. R. R. Hall, Reid St., yesterday afternoon and evening. The grounds presented a very pleasing color scheme, being decorated for the occasion with the flags of the Allies. The house decorations which consited of flowers and foliage were most artistically arranged. Quite a number of the ladies played bridge in the afternoon. At this interesting feature of the entertainment the prizes were won by Mrs. Gardiner and Mrs. Hartley.

In the evening form 8 to 9 a drawing-room concert was given under the direction of Mrs. G. H. King. This consitsed of local talent and was enjoyed by an especially appreciative audience. Captain Maurice Park acted as chairman, and the program was as follows:

Piano solo—Miss Ida Sanderson.
Vocal solo—Miss Murray.
Solo—Miss Florence Scott.
Quartette—Mrs George H. King, Capt. and Mrs Park and Mr Carlyle.
Solo—Miss McLaren.
Duet—Douglas Carlyle and Capt. Park.
Solo—Miss Waugh.

Each of the artists rendered their selections admirably, but worthy of special mention was the quartete. This was certainly enjoyed by the crowd and received a rousing encore.

After this musical treat the young people, of whom there were quite a number present, indulged in dancing for the remainder of the evening.

This entertainment was without a doubt one of the greatest successes successes of the season.

ENSIGN DUNLOP VISITS OLD HOME

SALVATION WORKER WILL ENJOY A SHORT REST IN PETERBOROUGH.

Mrs. (Ensign) Dunlop, of Vancouver, B.C., arrived in the city saturday night, and is visiting her brother, Mr. Thomas Lang, 544 Elm street. Mrs. Dunlop is better known to her many friends in Peterborough as Captain May Lang, this being her home until about ten years ago, when she was married to Ensign R. Dunlop at Vancouver, B.C., and with her husband, has been in charge of several Salvation Army Corps in B. C.

Mrs. Dunlop has had poor health for the last few years and it is hoped her few months' visit to Peterborough will be beneficial to her health. While Mrs. Dunlop is on furlough the Ensign is engaged in organizing the Red Shield Drive throughout B. C.

Rev. Canon O'Meara, parish priest of St. Gabriel's, Montreal, was found dead in bed from heart failure.

Lightning struck the home of J. Randall, Elmira, during an electrical storm, but no person was injured.

EX-CROWN PRINCE MAKES HIS ESCAPE AND IS IN GERMANY

Believed This is Part of Plot to Restore Military Situation and Embarrass Allies.

Paris, June 26.—Frederick William Hohenzollern, former German Crown Prince has escaped from Holland and made his way into Germany.

Hints have come from Germany withing the past few days that the military caste there would not be averse to bringing about a military situation within the former empire that would embarrass the Allies in putting the peace treaty into effect and it seems probable that the move made by the ex-crown prince is connected with some such plan. The former Crown Prince made his way into Holland shortly after the signing of the armistice last November and was interned there by the Dutch government, taking up his residence on the Island of Wieringen in the Zueyder Zee.

Conference is Stirred

The news of the escape of the ex-Crown Prince caused considerable stir in the Peace Conference circles. While it is not felt that he is the figure around which the reactionaries and monachists would gather enthusiastically, nevertheless his act is regarded as an event of considerable significance in view of other German recalcitrancy.

Report at Washington

Washington, June 26.—Confidential reports from the former German Crown Prince and also probably the former Emperor would attempt to re-enter Germany after the signing of the peace treaty were received recently by Government officials here This became known today after the despatch telling of the escape of the Crown Prince had been received.

EARLY MORNING FIRE IN STORE

MRS. M. BRADY'S GROCERY ON RUBIDGE STREET WAS DAMAGED.

The contents of the store at the corner of Townsend and Rubidge streets were badly damaged by a fire, which broke out about 5 o'clock this morning. Mrs. M. Brady, who rented the building from Mrs. John Bell, 541 Water street, had approximately $1500 worth of goods in the store at the time, of which some were burnt, some charred and all more or less tainted with smoke.

Mrs. Brady had been in the habit of piling her empty sugar bags underneath the counter until they were called for and it was among this pile that the fire started. She first detected the fire by smelling the smoke which penetrated up to her bedroom in the third story. The firemen were immediately summoned and by their prompt reply confined the fire to the one room. The shelves, as well as the counter, were destroyed, and the fire had begun to make its way through to the second story before it was extinguished.

SENDS THE BILL BACK TO SENATE

SIR ROBERT BORDEN OBJECTS TO AMENDMENT TO THE PROHIBITION ACT.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, June 26.—Sir Robert Borden in the morning session of the Commons presented a motion returning the amended prohibition bill to the Senate and asking for reconsideration by that body of its amendment, which means that the Dominion prohibition law is repealed when peace is signed. Sir Robert declared that if the Commons assented to the Senate's amendment the very principle for which the bill was passed would be denied.

New York is to have a new $7,500,000 hotel.

ANOTHER DANGER IN DELAY

The average citizen does not realize in full what it means to the city to have the Aldermen wrangle for months over the question of building the Hunter street high level bridge and to take one position today and recede from it tomorrow. This lack of ability to accomplish anything is no credit to the city.

Reports go abroad among the business firms of Canada, that this city has a board of Aldermen who are unable to handle such a problem as the erection of a bridge, a matter that a board of directors for a private concern would easily dispose of in a few hours. The enormous Quaker Oats plant, for example, was erected without any apparent effort and there was nothing heard of any hitch in the preliminary arrangements.

The wobbling of the Council has tended to increase the unrest in this city. There are hundreds of workingmen in Peterborough, skilled, and unskilled, who based their hope for summer employment upon the erection of the bridge These men have been disappointed for no reason which they are able to understand.

What are outside business firms, responsible and high in the commercial world, to think of a Council that will vote in Committee to accept a tender, legally submitted and with every condition met, only to rescind this action later?

But, there is another and an equally grave danger in this delay. The city has been promised a Federal grant of $50,000 to help build the bridge. That grant may eventually be lost. Such allowances by Parliament are good only from one session until another and if they are not accepted in the meantime must be revoted Even Parliament is likely to weary of attempting to do business with a Council that simply marks time.

LABOR AND CAPITAL MUST BE BROUGHT INTO HARMONY

Manufacturers to Ask Board of Trade to Arrange Series of Meetings Between Two Classes to Promote Cooperation.

At the largely attended meeting of the members of the Manufacturers' Association of the Board of Trade last evening the problems touching the city's industrial growth were given special attention. Every effort will be made by the manufacturers to speed activity and increase employment.

Those present at the meeting were Chairman W. R. Breyfogle, managing director of the De Laval Co.; W. C. Ackerman, of the B F. Ackerman, Sons and Co.; Treasurer Edgar Worth, of the Bonner-Worth Co.; J. J. Turner, secretary of J. J. Turner and Sons, Ltd.; Thomas Donaldson, of the G. Walter Greene Co.; D. J. Holland, of the Campbell Flour Mills Co.; E. G. Patterson, of the Canadian General Electric Company; Adam Hall, P. P. Westbye, of the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Co.; Homer J. Meyers, of the Peterborough Cereal Co.; Roland E. Wilson, of the Peterborough Machine and Lufricator Co., and Gordon Matthews.

To Secure New Industries.

American and British manufacturers are now seeking and preferring locations where industrial relations are good and dependable. It is essential to Peterborough's growth that conditions be made substantially attractive and the co-operation of the association in this work was pledged.

Special Committee Appointed.

The skilled workers of the city are also concerned in this effort and it was voted to appoint a special industrial committee to look into the who's question and report as soon as may be. This committee is composed of P. P. Westbye, of the Wm. Hamilton Co.; C. H. Thompson, of the Briton Carpet Co., and Roland Wilson, of the Peterborough Machine and Lubricator Co.

Harmonize Capital and Labor.

A better acquaintanceship among the men engaged in industry whether in office or shop is openly desired by the association, and it is the intention to ask the Board of Trade to arrange a series of meetings for the discussion of co-operative plans by both employee and employer, looking to united action to build up industrial Peterborough.

It was voted that an additional $1800 be passed by Treasurer Edgar Worth to Treasurer Fraser of the Board of Trade to aid the Board to engage additional assistants to handle the increasing work of the Board itself and also of the Manufacturers' and Merchants' Associations.

ST. ANDREW CONGREGATION TO BUILD A MEMORIAL HALL

New Sunday School Room Will Be Monument For Young Men Who Made Supreme Sacrifice.

Messrs. W. J. Campbell, R. M. Waddell, J. R. Allen, J. John, W. G. Reid, A. McNabb and J. W. Fraser were appointed a committee to take preliminary steps for the erection of a new Sunday school room for St. Andrew's Church. This action was taken at a meeting of the congregation last evening and which was the outcome of a proposition that has been before the members and adherents for some time The present building has outlived its usefulness and is in many ways inadequate to take care of the constantly increasing attendance at the Sunday school sessions. The committee will set out to secure funds, and just as soon as the sum of $13,000 has been pledged work on the new building will begin.

The building will mean more than a meeting place for the Sunday school, as it was decided last night to make it a memorial in honor of the young men from St Andrew's, many of them members or graduates of the Sunday school, who made the supreme sacrifice overseas. This was deemed a more fitting tribute than a tablet in the church or any other form of memorial that could be adopted

SHOE DEALERS HAVE INNINGS

TELL COMMITTEE PROFITS ON PAIR OF SHOES IS NOMINAL.

Ottawa, June 26.—T. H Reider, recently appointed president of the Ames-Holden McCready Company, and until then a director of the Canadian Consolidated Rubber Company stated to the cost of living committee of the Commons that the United States Rubber Company controlled the stock of the Canadian Consolidated.

He also said that during the last few years the cost of crude rubber had declined. In 1912 it was $3.10 per pound and it was now 39 cents per pound

The cost of rubber goods had not advanced in the same ratio as leather goods and had not gone up to the retailer more than 25 per cent Prices charged by different firms for their rubber goods were the same: the largest company made its prices and the other followed.

The cost of producing was greater than before the war

As to the Ames-Holden McCready Company he stated that the average percentage of profit in the last four years was 2.6. The profit on a pair of boots was a little over 13 cents. War orders since 1916 amounted to $3,203,965 and the profits amounted to $86,044.

Tariff Had No Effect

N. D. Detwiller, of the Hydro City Shoe Manufacturing Company, of Kitchener, Ont., which has been in business for 29 years declared that the profits did not quite average 6 per cent. The profit on a pair of shoes was less than 10 cents.

So far as his line of goods was concerned the tariff had no effect in prices There might be competition if the tariff was removed but prices would not lower.

Thomas Sullivan of E. T. Wright & Co., St. Thomas, who was complimented both by counsel and members of the committee on the clearness and definiteness of his statement said his company was a branch of an American company of Brockton, Mass. It had been doing business at St Thomas since 1912.

Until 1916 the losses amounted to $47,743, but since 1916 the gains had been $43,350. The profits in recent years were due to the larger volume of business and the rise in prices.

He stated that the average profit was 8 per cent on the turnover. As to materials some lines were about the same price in Canada as in the United States, but in other lines the prices were from 30 per cent to 40 per cent lower across the border. His company sold direct to retailers.

Germans Select Peace Envoys

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Berlin, June 26.—Hermann Mueller, Foreign Minister and Dr. Bell, Colonial Minister, it was announced have been selected as the German envoys to sign the peace terms. They will leave Berlin Friday.

Will Suppress Hamburg Trouble

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, June 26.—Representatives of the Industrial Councils have assumed full political and military power in Hamburg and are sitting in the hall, according to advices from Berlin, quoting newspapers advices received here. General Von Lettow Von Berk has been ordered to Hamburg with strong forces to restore order.

An unexploded 17-pound high explosive shell was found in an ash can close to the entrance to the New York traffic court.

The young men of St Andrew's were not slow to answer when the call came for service at the beginning of the war Year after year they left for the front as they attained the required age, and year after year the roll of the fallen, posted in the vestibule, grew steadily longer.

GERMANS MUST MAKE PUBLIC THEIR PLANS BEFORE NIGHT

If They Fail to do so Allies Will Send Another Ultimatum—German Government Seems to be Unable to Find a Man Willing to Act For the Republic.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, June 26.—It is understood that if no official communication is received by night-fall from Berlin, relative to the plans of the German Government for the signing of the Peace Treaty, something in the nature of an ultimatum will be sent to Berlin by the Peace Conference.

Cannot Find Representatives

Berlin, June 26.—The identity of the men to be delegated to go to Versailles as German representatives to sign the treaty of peace will not be announced before Thursday, according to an official statement.

The Tageblatt is informed that Hermann Mueller, Minister of Foreign Affairs, is urged to accept the assignment to go to Versailles, but has declined on personal grounds. The Newspaper says, the best and most natural solution of the situation would be to have Mathias Erzeberger set his name to the peace instrument. He, however is evidently not inclined to draw a logical conclusion from the peace policy he had been pursuing in recent months. The Tageblatt also states that it has been suggested that a committee of officials who were outside the pale of politics, or former members of diplomatic corps, should be appointed, provided such individuals would accept the assignment.

Germany Warned.

The German peace delegates have been informed by a note from Premier Clemenceau that the German Government will be held strictly responsible for the unofficial support of any movement against the Polish authorities in territory given Poland in Posen and in East and West Prussia.

Germany has also been notified in not esent today by the Allies that they possess right to punish her sons responsible for the destruction of German ships and to collect reparation for the loss. The sinking of the fleet is denounced as a violation of the armistice and a deliberate breech in advance of the conditions of peace.

Sign on Saturday.

Efforts were being made today to arrange for the signing of the peace treaty at three o'clock Saturday afternoon. The Council of Three is ap- satisfied with the semi-official assurances that Germany would be on hand.

80TH BATTALION TO HOLD REUNION

ACTION TAKEN RECENTLY AT MEETING OF TRUSTEES OF FUND.

The trustees of battalion funds, 80th Battalion, Canadian Expeditionary Force, Lieut.-Col. W. G. Ketcheson, Major H. H. Alger, Capt. R. E. Layfield and Mr. H. F. Ketcheson, ex-Mayor of Belleville, appointed by the officer commanding overseas forces, held a meeting June 22nd.

The funds of the battalion are available to expend in small grants for the use and benefit of the deserving of all ranks of the battalion who proceeded with the battalion overseas, or the dependents who are in need, or as the trustees see fit.

The band instruments and music were presented to the individual members who played same, and proceeded overseas. The distribution of these instruments will be under the direction of Lieut. H. A. Stares, late bandmaster of the 80th Battalion, divisional band. The majority of these players are now connected with the 91st Regimental band, Hamilton

It is the intention of the late commanding officer of this splendid unit to call a re-union of all ranks in the city of Belleville.

HOUSE COMMITTEE BOARD OF TRADE

WILL ALLOW FREE USE OF ROOMS FOR PUBLIC MEETINGS.

The House Committee of the Board of Trade met yesterday afternoon with Chairman A. G. Roberts, Joseph John, Percy Hooper, Chris. Graham and Russel Cooping present.

This committee succeeds the former committee on furnishings, of which Frank Whitehouse was chairman, which committee has completed its work and made its final report to the council of the Board It will have charge of the rooms and social meetings of the Board. One of its principal duties will be to promote a better acquaintanceship among the members.

The committee granted the use of the council rooms to the shareholders of a mining company to be held on Monday afternoon. The Board is pleased to have its rooms used for meetings of citizens. No charge is made but all requests for the use of the rooms must be made to the House Committee in advance in order that reservations can be made during the active season.

INTERIM REPORT BY COMMITTEE

RECOMMENDS PERMANENT TRIBUNAL TO DEAL WITH THE COST OF LIVING.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, June 26.—The immediate creation of a tribunal with power to investigate mergers, trusts, monopolies and all other matters affecting the cost of articles of food and apparel used by Canadian people is recommended in the interim report presented by G. B. Nicholson, chairman, and his Cost of Living Committee to Parliament. The committee says, it has not yet reached final conclusions and will make further reports later. The interim report says legislation creating this tribunal should be enacted at once.

Berlin Soldiers Clash With Mobs

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, June 26.—Disorders are increasing in Berlin, the Exchange Telegraph correspondent reports. Many streets are barricaded and there have been serious engagements between government troops and mobs.

HONORS FOR PETERBORO MEN

At the annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, representatives of Peterborough's leading industries took a prominent part The city's growing importance has been recognised by enlarging its official representation on the executive and committee activities of that body.

Mr. W. R. Breyfogle, chairman of the local Manufacturers' Association, has been an active and prominent member of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and is now a member of the executive council and also of the transportation committee.

Mr. W. S. Campbell, traffic manager of the Canadian General Electric Co., was made a member of the transportation committee.

Mr. W. A. Richardson, secretary-treasurer of the Peterborough Canoe Co., was honored by election as a member of the executive council

Mr. Edgar Worth of the Bonner-Wotrh Co., was chosen a member of the tariff committee.

COLUMN FOR THE MERCHANTS

Under the heading "The Merchants' Column," we will run every Monday, Wednesday and Saturday many valuable hints to merchants, their salespeople and business men and women generally. All phases of store management will be dealt with, including buying, selling, accounting and advertising, by an expert The series of articles is from the pen of Mr. Mansfield F. House, who has had many years experience in all branches of merchandising both in Canada and the United States and who knows his subject thoroughly.

We commend these articles to the merchants of Peterborough, their salespeople and incidentally to the buying public and feel assured that all will find some little idea worth while in them. They are not merely theoretical instances but are descriptions of methods actually in use by some on the most successful merchants in America today.

The series began Wednesday, June 24th and will continue for some months.

LAKEFIELD MAN IS DROWNED IN CANAL

R. FILLEMORE EMPLOYED BY DOMINION DREDGING CO. AT ST. CATHARINES

(Canadian Press Despatch)

St. Catharines, June 26.—Reginald Fillemore, of Lakefield, an employee of the Dominion Dredging Company was drowned in the new harbor of Welland ship canal at Port Weller. He was tieing up a scow when he was missed by his fellow workmen. A diver located the body in a few minutes. A jury will open an inquest this evening.

Omaha, Neb., is threatened with a general strike.

Cars Will Resume Operation Today With the Strikers on Duty

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, June 26.—The Ontario Railway and Manicpal Board this morning made an order taking over the Toronto street railway and promised to commence the operation of the cars, presumably with the employes now on strike, for the rush hours this afternoon. A conference is being held between representatives of the men and the civic and provincial authorities this afternoon to determine the basis on which the men will return to work.

R. Harris, Toronto's commissioner of works, has been named by the board as temporary manager of the company

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

THURSDAY, JUNE 26, 1919

THE COST-PLUS PLAN.

THE COST-PLUS PLAN will become the general policy in all branches of endeavor when the world becomes civilized to the necessary standard. The system is coming more and more into favor, and will be generally adopted when men achieve that stage where they will no longer doubt the honesty of each other. Contractors will then be able to do business on business principles Killing competition will be eliminated and the sign "To let" can be hung on the doors of the courts of bankruptcy. Receivers and liquidators will find themselves out of a job. The workingman will no longer be ground between two millstones. Men will have faith in each other. Even city councils will not be haunted with the suspicion that every firm that tenders on a job is looking for the easy end of the bargain. The cost-plus plan is simply a herald of the industrial millennium, when all men will accept the word of each other.

ALARMING THE PUBLIC.

LET A PUBLIC MAN or a newspaper uncover or discuss any economic evil and there will be found plenty of social pietists who will brand the one as a pestilential agitator and the other as a sensation monger. "Why alarm the public; why add to the prevailing general unrest?" ask these pietists.

Why, indeed? Followed out to its logical conclusion this style of reasoning would result in something like the following:

If a man is dead in trespasses and sin, do nothing to rouse him. Otherwise you will get his conscience into working order and cause him uneasy moments. Leave him as he is.

If a man is the victim of an incipient disease that is certain to result fatally if not treated, leave him alone Tell him nothing about his trouble, acting on the theory that ignorance is bliss.

Do not arouse the sleeping inmates of a burning building. To do so will throw them into a panic. Let them slumber into the land of death.

The evangelist, the physician and the rescuer of human life are all agitators; all disturbing elements in a community, according to the logic of the pietists referred to, the sum total of whose creed is that what a man does not know cannot hurt him.

SIGNING THE TREATY.

THE ARMISTICE with Germany stopped the enormous sacrifice of human life, and for that reason was hailed with acclaim the civilized world over. To all intents and purposes it meant peace, and the general celebration that followed was most certainly warranted The terms of that armistice have been violated in certain cases by the Germans. Everybody who understands Teutonic guile believes that the agreement would have been ignored altogether but for the threat of compulsion held over the Huns.

It required force to compel the Germans to observe the conditions of the compact that ended active hostilities. The same agency will have to be employed to preserve the peace treaty in its integrity. The formal signing of the document will not really change the situation, but will rather tend to intensify the opposition of the German people to an agreement that they regard as unfair to themselves. The event of the formal signing might well be allowed to pass without another civic holiday or celebration. It really alters the situation not at all. It most certainly will not relieve the Allies from the unceasing vigilance that has been their task since the last shot was fired

FOR A COST OF LIVING COMMISSION.

THE SAME STATE authority that regulates the percentage of alcohol in the poor man's beer can control the percentage of profit that is to be allowed the manufacturer, the wholesale or the retail dealer. It is all a question of ways and means. It is useless to expect anything in the way of relief from Parliament. That body is too cumbersome and unwieldy to deal successfully with details. Another drawback is that there are so many members of Parliament financially or otherwise interested in the very concerns that are either charged with or suspected of making excessive profits.

It is said that the latest High Cost of Living Committee will recommend to Parliament the appointment of a permanent commission to deal with this problem If the committee did nothing else aside from making such a recommendation, its creation and somewhat turbulent existence would be amply jutsified The members seem to have got at the very kernel of the matter and suggested the remedy that promises the single hope of relief.

Parliament was unable to exercise anything like adequate control of the railways of Canada until a permanent commission was appointed with well-defined powers and with jurisdiction equal to that of the Government itself so far as the transportation lines were concerned. This practically meant state control of the railways with the management left in expert private hands. The commission regulates the railway rates for freight and passengers alike, and recently has really been the deciding factor in the question of wages.

A permanent commission, composed of men outside of Parliament, organized on exactly similar lines as the Dominion Railway Board, could accomplish as much in dealing with the profits made by manufacturers and those who handle the products of the other. The cost of living could thus very easily be kept within bounds and the so-called spread between production and ultimate sale price held in check. That would be state control less the friction and vexatious delay that is inevitable when Parliament takes up the matter.

Special and temporary committees in the past appointed for this purpose have accomplished little of moment and made few practical recommendations to Parliament when they finally reported. The record, however, is now likely to be broken. The suggested commission could accomplish the end in view just as a similar commission could regulate anything like injustice in the operation of the tariff if the Government could be induced to appoint such a body.

THAT UNPOPULAR SENATE.

THE MAJORITY of the members of the House of Commons have placed themselves on record as in favor of provincial divorce courts, a proposition which if given effect will supply a deficiency in the Canadian legal machinery long apparent. But the measure is not yet out of the woods, for even if it passes the final stage in the House, it will have to take its chances in the Senate, and it is too much to hope that that collection of reactionary statesmen will ever consent to the survival of such an advanced piece of legislation.

It is not the purpose of this article to attempt to show the necessity for provincial divorce courts, a necessity that has long been admitted. Under present conditions divorce is attainable only by the wealthy. Provincial divorce courts might, it is true, tend to make legal separation more frequent, but they would hardly encourage an increase in the grounds for such separation. If a divorce for scriptural reason is good for the members of the upper classes it should not be placed beyond the reach of those of moderate means.

But the Senate is the real divorce court of the Dominion, and all evidence is heard by a committee of the Red Chamber members. The venerable members of that body are not any more likely to surrender any of their prerogatives than they are to voluntarily vote themselves out of existence.

Church conferences and assemblies, congregations and ministerial associations have a perfect right to join in the popular clamor against the Senate for that body's frequent thwarting of the exvpressed wishes of the people. It is idle, however, to call upon the Dominion Parliament to abolish or even reform the Senate. Parliament has no more right to clean the senatorial house than the senators have to vote the members of the elective body an indefinite holiday. Both exist under the B. N. A. Act. Their several functions are clearly defined. The Act in question, it has been established to the apparent satisfaction of legal lights, can be amended only by unanimous consent of the parties to it. That was one feature that was overlooked by the fathers of confederation, an oversight that is likely to perpetuate the features of the Act that experience demonstrates to be objectionable.

The people must bear their burdens with patience, and not the least of these is the Senate The great trouble is that the friends and the opponents of that venerable body vary according to the party in power at any particular time The Senate has in the past not been without its uses. It has on occasion removed into comparative obscurity and desuetude statesmen whose active usefulness had departed. Then again, by collusion, which cannot be visited upon its devoted head, the Senate has at certain times and in divers manners helped an embarrassed administration out of a tight corner Let him who runs read, and in some cases the task is easy.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

PETERBOROUGH COUNTY has constables who can do things. Bandits will be well advised to go elsewhere.

• • • • •

BUTCHERING TREES in Holland is a harmless occupation compared to the butchery of women and children in Flanders.

• • • • •

AT ALL EVENTS, we refused to believe that those bandits simply had in mind a fraternal visit or a friendly call.

• • • • •

THE EX-KAISER threatens to commit suicide rather than submit to trial, thus furnishing another excellent reason for the Allies to insist upon court proceedings.

• • • • •

DEMOCRACY will still continue to eke out a precarious existence in any country where the pension scale makes a distinction between the officers and the rank and file

• • • • •

THERE WILL BE millions of gallons of liquor left on hand when the United States goes dry next Monday night, but, thanks to our Senate, this surplus stock can be dumped upon Canada.

• • • • •

THE EX-KAISER is said to have destroyed fifty thousand trees in Holland, a clear exaggeration. Probably the press agent reckons the royal family tree at four thousand nine hundred and ninety-nine.

• • • • •

GERMANY ALWAYS lacks something First, it was someone willing to assume the responsibility for starting the war, and now it is a plenipotentiary with nerve enough to put the official signature on the treaty.

• • • • •

THERE IS TOO WIDE a spread between the manufacturer's percentage of profit and the percentage in the poor man's beer, but, coming or going, the latter seems to be made the goat. If weak beer is good for him, reasonably priced clothing should certainly not hurt him.

OPINIONS OF OTHER EDITORS.

NO SENSE OF FITNESS.

(Toledo Blade.)

Bolsheviki have selected the dragon fly as their symbol. They should have selected the blowfly. They have no sense of fitness.

WHETHER OR NO.

(London Advertiser.)

The early application of the peace terms as they stand whether Germany signs them or not will be the best service the Allies can do the world.

PLATFORM OF THE BOLSHEVIST

The salient features which constitute the program of Bolshevism as it exists today in Russia are summarized as follows by the Overman Comittee of the United States Senate which has just issued its report on German Propaganda and Bolshevism

The repudiation of democracy and the establishment of a dictatorship.

The confiscation of all land and the improvements thereon.

The confiscation of all forests and natural resources.

The confiscation of all live stock and all agricultural implements.

The confiscation of all banks and banking institutions and the establishment of a State monopoly of the banking business.

The confiscation of all factories, mills, mines, and industrial institutions and the delivery of the control and operation thereof to the employes therein.

The confiscation of all churches and church property, real and personal.

The confiscation of all newspapers and periodicals and all mechanical facilities and machinery used in the publication thereof.

OMEMEE

Omemee, June 25.—Mrs. G. A. Balfour and son of Lindsay are spending a few days in the village.

Mr. Clarke of the Lindsay Post was a visitor to Omemee on Monday.

Mr. Herb Dyes accompanied by Mrs. Dyes and Mr. and Mrs. George Milner, all of Toronto, spent the week end in Omemee. Mr. Dyes is an Omemee old boy and thirty years have passed since his last visit to his old home town, consequently the changes he notes are many.

The death of Mr. James McCaffrey, son of Mr. Charles McCaffrey, which occurred in Toronto on Saturday has cast a gloom over the village where he was so well known. "Jimmie" as he was popularly called was ill just a short time death being due to tuberculosis. To the sorrowing widow, father, brother and sisters is extended the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community, this being the seventh death in the family in seven years. The funeral was held in Toronto on Monday, the remains being laid to rest in Prospect Cemetery.

Rev. John Garbutt of Oshawa preached an inspiring sermon to the Masons who turned out in large numbers on Sunday evening to hear him. Rev. John Veal, a brother Mason, assisted in the service and special music was furnished by the choir.

Mrs George Dundas of Toronto is the guest of Reeve and Mrs. Farsons, while renewing old acquaintances in Omemee.

Mr. Dave Deyell's car which was stolen in Lindsay, on Saturday passed through Omemee the same day. Suspicion was aroused owing to the inability of the driver to back his car, also the fact that they ordered several gallons of gasoline when the tank was almost full. The number was taken by a resident of the village, which later proved to be that of the stolen car.

Miss Lyla Beatty of Rochester is home for a month's holiday.

Mrs. Sheckleton of Midland is visiting her sister, Miss Magill.

Mr. Will Balfour who returned from overseas some time ago and who has been the guest of his sister Mrs. Rutherford, left on Tuesday morning for Edmonton.

Rev. Mr and Mrs. Clare and family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. A. Scott.

Rev. J. G. Lewis returned on Tuesday from the Conference at Whitby

Mr. and Mrs. W. O'Brien of Peterborough were visitors to Omemee on Saturday.

NO INCREASE FOR HIGHER RANKS

NEW PENSION SCALE PROVIDES HONORS FOR RANK AND FILE.

The new scale of pensions for all ranks below and including company sergeant-major is derived by adding 20 per cent., or one-fifth, to the amount now given to the rank and file, or 13 per cent. to the amount paid sergeants, etc. It will be noted that the recommendations of the special committee investigating pensions only cover an increase for one year, and no mention is made in their report of the advisability of converting this year's bonus into a permanent schedule. Whether it is the intention of the Government to legislate for a permanent increase when the Pensions bill is drafted, or whether the bonus is intended merely as a form of temporary relief necessitated by present living conditions, is a question that has been puzzling veterans throughout the country.

Scale in Detail.

The new scale provides the following sums:

	New Scale for all Ranks.
Total disability	$720
99 pc.—95 pc.	684
94 pc.—90 pc.	648
89 pc.—85 pc.	612
84 pc.—80 pc.	576
79 pc.—75 pc.	540
74 pc.—70 pc.	504
69 pc.—65 pc.	468
64 pc.—60 pc.	432
59 pc.—55 pc.	396
54 pc.—50 pc.	360
49 pc.—45 pc.	324
44 pc.—40 pc.	288
39 pc.—35 pc.	252
34 pc.—30 pc.	216
29 pc.—25 pc.	180
24 pc.—20 pc.	144
19 pc.—15 pc.	108
14 pc.—10 pc.	72
9 pc.— 5 pc.	36

Other details of the new scheme which were not included in the first reports show that there are no increases for the higher ranks, neither were their pensions interfered with despite a certain amount of agitation for the equalization of pensions.

No Deductions For Earnings.

Provision is also made for doing away with deductions from a mother's or a widow's pension of any amount earned.

In addition if a pensioner is killed within three years of discharge in a civil accident, his wife, will be entitled to 80 per cent. of his pension.

Pontypool Farmer Missing From Home

The city police have been instructed to search for D. H. Carscadden, one of the most prominent citizens of Pontypool, Ont., who has been missing from his home since June 5, when he bought a railway ticket at his home town to come to Toronto. The people with whom he was to have stayed while in this city have neither seen nor heard of him since the time he left Pontypool.

Mr. Carscadden has been in indifferent health for some time. He is about 42 years of age, weight 175 pounds, and standing about 5 feet 9 inches in height. His eyes are blue, he has dark hair, has a clean sunburnt complexion, and when last seen was wearing a navy blue suit, Panama hat, and brown boots.

Plague of Toads On Water Street

The heavy rain last night drove a large swarm of small toads out of Goose Pond and this morning they were to be seen in thousands hopping about over the road and sidewalk on Water, Harvey and adjacent streets. A popular superstition is that these toads are a certain cure for ague if swlalowed whole. The toads hops about in the victim's stomach until they break the bile which is causing the trouble. Whether any human sufferers tried this treatment this morning or not, there is no doubt the birds had a royal feast, and to judge by their vocal chorus at noon none of the feathered tribe will need medical assistance for some time to come.

LESSONS IN RIGHT LIVING

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

Forty is a dangerous age for those who are ignorant from the neck down. It introduces the most eventful decade of life, in which Old Gen. Cardio-Vascular Degeneration plays havoc with so many health-ignorant mortals. High blood pressure is not a disease, but just a sign of some disease. The familiar expressions of cardio-vascular degeneration are hardening of the arteries, slow heart muscle failure, chronic Bright's disease and apoplexy.

I've harped on the subject a great deal and several readers declare I haven't no clew as to the causes. That only goes to show how unappreciative readers are, for I have twangled the life out of one string of my harp—on over-eating and insufficient exercise. That is the most common cause of premature physical breakdown, cardio-vascular degeneration. You may watch the C. V. D. factory in full operation any day by visiting a popular hotel or restaurant or riding a few hundred miles on a Pullman train.

The use of alcohol as a beverage comes second to overeating as a cause of cardio-vascular degeneration. Uncle Sam is doing what he can to remove this factor.

The use of tobacco as a narcotic comes third in the list of causes. The younger the individual who uses tobacco, the greater the damage done. A penalty of at least ten years' imprisonment should be exacted from any person under the age of 21 years found with tobacco in his possession. Of course such a law would not please the morticians the least bit, but health comes before business nowadays.

Syphilis poison and the poisons of other infectious diseases are frequent contributing causes of cardio-vascular degeneration. It must be remembered that syphilis is innocently acquired in about one-third of all cases.

Chronic lead poisoning, incident to various occupations and industries, and in some instances due to the use of cosmetics containing lead, is a cause of cardio-vascular degeneration in many cases.

To this list add dignity, the politest killed of all, and you have a fairly comprehensive understanding of the causes of C. V. D. and premature senility. The difference between youth and age is that youth is not dignified.

Fifty Pound Back.

"Ever since I had the flu last winter I have been troubled much with gas on the stomach and fullness after eating. I am also short of breath when I am bloated. Have been growing stouter all winter. I am 36 years old, about five feet and three inches tall, and weigh 190 pounds.

"MRS. C. J. G."

Your trouble may be due to organic fatigue, from carrying around that fifty pound pack. Reduce the weight of your pack and you will feel better. You should not weigh over 140 pounds. Karell a spell. Send S. A. E. for how. You eat a great deal too much, and probably too fast.

Back Line Fence Hygiene.

"Overheard a mother telling her neighbor the other day that she never allowed her little girl to have a bit of candy because she'd heard it made children have worms. I felt kinda sorry for the kiddie. Is the mother right, or has Aunt Sairey been nosin' round? M. J."

Sairey has been there, all right. I feel sorry for the kiddie, too. Of course, sweets and candy have nothing to do with worms; growing children, if live ones, need greater proportions of sweets and candy than their elders; and, finally, even if a child does have worms, it is of little consequence.

MRS. F. B. KELLOGG IS THE BEST GOWNED WOMAN IN WASHINGTON

That is Opinion of Ultra-Fashionable Modistes in That City Where Rich Feminine Attire Prevails.

Washington June 26.—The art of good dressing knows neither latitude nor longitude, according to the careful observer in Washington, where smartly attired women from every part of the country are to be met daily in the galleries of congress, at the country clubs and at the succession of dinner parties which continue to claim the attention of society due consideration of graver things.

In the members' gallery of the senate Mrs. Frank B. Kellogg of Minnesota, Mrs. Joseph E. Ransdell of Louisiana, Mrs. James Wadsworth, Jr., of New York and Mrs. Miles Poindexter of Washington follow the debate on the floor with the intelligent interest one expects to find in the families of the great lawmakers of the nation, each dressing according to her individual fancy and all dressing well.

According to the accepted standards of the most fashionable modistes, Mrs. Kellogg is probably the best gowned woman of the senatorial circle. This is at present. The gossips say Mrs. Peter Goelet Gerry will undoubtedly claim this distinction on her early return from Paris, as it is well known her great desire to go abroad at this time was to purchase clothes for the Newport season and for use in Washington next winter as well as in the immediate future.

The young wife of the Rhode Island senator has had her gowns from a famous Paris maker from her childhood and in peace or war has never been limited to American made clothes.

The maximum of style and comfort is achieved by Mrs. Kellogg in a skirt of invisible plaid so dark it would seem black except by contrast to the snappy little back jacket with which it is worn, a dainty blouse of white muslin trimmed only in narrow little frills that finish the open neck and the long sleeves, and a broad brimmed black hat faced in white georgette and trimmed in a scant well poised spray of soft black plummage. A string of ivory beads, some carved, some plain and of graduated size, falling to the waist line, and white doeskin gloves are details of the becoming toilet of the lady from Minnesota.

Mrs. Ransdell is also a notable supporter of woman suffrage, but unlike her neighbor from the far west, is a lady given to becoming frills. A dark blue gown, with vestee and cuffs of white net, a large transparent hat trimmed in tufts of paradise is a favorite costume of this genuinely popular and gracious matron.

Mrs. Poindexter usually wears a serge but a well cut coat suit of black serge and when the temperature of the gallery reaches an uncomfortable altitude, removes her coat, always showing the freshest of man tailored blouses in plain white. The hat topping this is almost invariably a rough straw black sailor, trimmed in plain ribbon band. Mrs. Poindexter is a handsome as well as distinguished figure in this severe costume.

A particularly smart afternoon gown at one of the fashionable weddings of the past week was an orchid colored chiffon worn by Mrs. Robert Lathem Owen, wife of the senator from Oklahoma. This is on conservative lines with skirt of medium width and rather full tunic falling almost to the ankles, an all over pattern in long narrow lines in chalk white beads holds the gown in the straight and narrow lines of the day, while a soft girdle of mauve interwined with half inch lines of blue, crimson and gold gives the French coloring that this season indorses. The hat worn with this was of black net in tiny frills covering a medium round shape with a wreath of flowers reproducing the blue and crimson of the girdle at the base of the well proportioned crown. Black slippers with hosiery the exact shade of the gown were worn with this.

On the same occasion Miss Ruth Hitchcock, daughter of the senator from Nebraska, wore a particularly becoming demi-toilet of pink taffeta made with narrow skirt and pointed drapery and dainty draped bodice with long close sleeves. The hat worn with this was openwork ecru straw trimmed in pink roses.

An interesting young matron quite unspoiled by the sudden turn of the limelight in her direction, is Mrs. Albert Cushing Read, wife of the commander of the NC-4, who is awaiting the return of her husband with Mrs. Barker, widow of Commander Read's uncle, the late Rear-Admiral Albert S. Barber, at the Barker home in N street. Mrs. Barker and Mrs. Read are practically at home every afternoon (the former still in mourning for her distinguished husband), Mrs. Read in a simple white voile, or occasionally in a gray crepe with the tunic embroidered in soft water green shades, a gown just as cool looking as the white tub gowns which the Florida born wife of the foremost American aviator naturally wears with grace.

SUMMER STYLES

This summer it would appear that every hat must have a dash of bright color.

A band to stand up on the brim of a hat is one of the smart new French ideas.

Silver cloth and orange mousseline combine to make a most striking evening gown.

The bodice and skirt—the first of a fitted sort—rival the beloved chemise dress.

The heavy cotton known as Indian head is always excellent for common skirts.

Dove gray is popular for the travelling suit.

Apron fronts and backs are seen on lingerie frocks.

Jet t[illegible] possesses much decorative quality.

All for Sadie

By NEWTON A. FUESSLE

(Copyright.)

The Lloyd School of Scientific Beautification boasted imposing, two-color letter-heads, bearing the picture of the 12-story Ramge building and that of a handsome lady in evening dress, labeled "Mme. Josephine Lloyd, president."

The school, in reality, consisted of one Harry Lloyd Rugglesford, one rebuilt typewriter, one peroxidized six-a-week stenographer, one second-hand roll-top desk, and a small dingy room on the top floor of the Ramge building. The pictured building on the stationery was, therefore, a case of metonomy, and that of the shoulder show a gentle fake.

H. Lloyd Rugglesford was president, secretary, treasurer, board of directors, and office boy of the school, along with its faculty of able teachers and far-famed authorities on hair-dressing, facial massage, manicuring, and chiropody, and kindred recherche, erudite and recondite subjects.

His course of instruction was by correspondence. It comprised 12 lessons. The fee was $20-in-advance-you-pay-but-once-results-guaranteed.

He advertised in newspapers and western magazines whose advertising managers were not yet overwhelmed by advertising reform.

When the beauty doctor's follow-up system was slow in convincing the village belles that they should be scientifically beautified, he made haste to hold forth the lure of a special rate of $15.42—$12.36—$9.19—$7.29—$3.05—or $1.77.

He gauged his haste and figures by the quality of the stationery upon which mademoiselle had propounded her inquiries. As a judge of human nature—I mean feminine nature, for there is a difference—by the stationery route, Harry Lloyd Rugglesford was an adept.

The twelve printed lessons cost him fourteen cents. Advertising he figured at fifteen cents an inquiry. Office rent was seven dollars a month. The depreciation of the rebuilt and of the P. B. stenographer were small. Over head expenses were less. Hence his sound judgment allowed him not infrequently to descend to the one dollar and seventy-seven cents mark.

Forgive me, reader, for this lagging start and the array of dull statistics. I apologize also to the editor, the linotype man and the proof reader. Anon will I endeavor to redeem myself.

Do you crave romance, love, osculation? A dab of pathos, a shift of scene, a few surprises? A villain, brief paragraphs, lively conversation? Oh very well. Perhaps I can accommodate you.

'Twas June.

How's that for a telescoped paragraph?

H. Lloyd Rugglesford swung jauntily off the trolley car, winked at the man on the corner decorated with the sign, "Please Help the Blind," received an answering wink, paused at the florist's, purchased a 50-cent bunch of violets, and was elevated to the twelfth floor of the Ramge building.

The doctor of beauty entered the beauty school with a satisfied air.

Sadie, the stenographer, was pounding out form letter No. 7. That same epistle was calculated to plunge the fair recipient into the seventh inferno of despair because she had not yet purchased a money order and essayed the route of scientific beautification.

Form letter No. 7 was a masterpiece of selling talk on the scientific elimination of pimples, freckles, moles, blotches, birthmarks, hair on the face, ingrown fingernails and the like.

"Hallo, Sade," said the beauty doctor. "I believe you said you liked violets. I've bought you a few."

He handed her his offering with a truly Elizabethan bow.

"Ever so much, Harry," she said gaily, raising the bouquet to her pretty retrousse nose. "I haven't saw as swell a bunch as this all spring. You're there with the keen eye for nifty flowers, all right. Them roses the other day was too dear for anything."

"Quit kidding, Sade," said the beauty doctor, smiling archly. "You know that nothing's too good for you. Anything much in the way of mail today?"

Sadie handed him a bundle of letters.

An examination of their contents disclosed 14 money orders, eight festive letters of warm commendation of the course, 19 vigorous kicks from disgruntled students, six threats to report the institution to the post office authorities if certain sums were not forthwith returned, and 22 answers to advertisements.

"Anything startling, Harry?" inquired Sadie, pausing in her clatter.

"Same old thing," he rejoined. "Kicks and kopeks galore, and 22 new nibbles."

"Well, ain't that just fine!" rejoined the private secretary, renewing her mastication of the chicle and her attack on the rebuilt.

Harry returned to his morning's mail, strove to translate the aspect of the 22 inquiries into terms of dollars and cents, but his thoughts persisted in drifting into other channels.

And this was the picture that floated before his mind:

He saw himself in a little flat. It was breakfast time. Opposite him, across the breakfast food, bacon and pot of steeping Young Hyson, he beheld a fair young creature, with red cheeks, eyes like violets, retrousse nose, and hair of dainty, drug-store flaxen hue.

You guessed it, reader.

It was Sadie.

For weeks had this wonderful picture hung in Harry's mind. For weeks had he argued the question of marriage pro and con. At times he had been on the point of laying bare his soul and begging Sadie to go with him to the courthouse and clergy, and thus make him the happiest beauty doctor on earth.

Yet, always, before he could seize her fair hand and begin his matrimonial canvass, a still small voice had warned him that before he hitched his chariot to a marriage license he must needs address Satan in the terms of the Biblical command, eschew his undignified and dangerous calling, and cast about him for a more genteel and desirable vocation

He knew that already a post-office inspector was camping on his trail, and he knew not the day nor the hour when a cruel and untimely governmental jolt would relegate the institution of scientific beautification into the discard. Incessantly had the sinister vision of the post-office inspector been haunting him, flitting into his dream by night, harassing his thoughts by day.

What—marry Sadie while standing thus upon the thin ice of his professional life? No, it wouldn't be right to commit such a reckless act.

He had therefore cast about him for a buyer upon whose shoulders to unload the institution of latter-day learning. And yesterday he had found a man who had offered him a thousand dollars for the gay enterprise, forever to have and to hold. He had accepted the offer, and closed the deal with impatient dispatch.

And now he had resolved to turn his youthful energies into the real-estate business, place a "best investment" upon Sadie's finger, and become a desirable citizen beyond the pale of post-office inspectors and kindred worries of his hitherto dangerous pursuits.

Little wonder that Harry's thoughts were thronged with flatirons, flapjacks frying pans and fluffy kimonos instead of with the unregenerate details of a business taboo!

Harry pulled himself together, wheeled his chair about with a suddenness that startled Sadie, and said:

"Sade, I've been wanting to tell you something for a good many weeks."

"What's on your mind, kiddo?" asked the girl coyly.

"Well," pursued the beauty doctor, "I've come to the conclusion that this correspondence school graft isn't exactly the stunt for an ambitious young chap like me. I've been cleaning up quite a bit of velvet in it, but the fact is it's not precisely on the level. You know that, Sade.

"It ain't the sort of business that a man would like to have his wife, for instance, tell the neighbors her husband was in. It ain't what he'd like to leave to his son when it came to an aerial in the direction of the sweet by-and-by.

"Worse than that, there's been a post-office inspector hanging round here for a couple of weeks trying to get a line on the institution. I've stopped him and swapped conversation with him a number of times myself. He's one of these smooth guys, and never tipped it off that he was interested in the school at all.

"But I've caught him wandering round here entirely too often to make me feel comfortable. His snooping round here is getting on my nerves, Sade, and I've decided to sell and get out from under before they let something drop on me.

"My successor takes charge tomorrow. I'm going to take a whirl at the real-estate business, Sade. What do you think of that?" he added triumphantly, with a conscious blush of pride.

"Oh, get out," said Sadie. "Are you on the level?"

"On the dead level, Sade. And listen," he continued, drawing his chair closer to hers. "I'm doing it all for you, girlie.

"It will be hard for me, awfully hard, to break into anything like the real-estate business after being in this correspondence work so long, and I've a hunch I'll have a hard time getting to like the new business, but I'm doing it for you, so that I can be on the level and decent and look folks in the face from now on.

"You've had me on the run ever since you began pounding out form letters for me. I'm all to the psychopathic about you. You've panhandled my pump for fair, Sade, and I want you to marry me. Gee, but I love you, kiddo, and I've got just the coziest little flat all picked out!"

Harry rose, took a step in Sadie's direction, then suddenly paused. A strange look had come into Sadie's face.

"I'm awfully sorry, Harry," she said, "awfully sorry. But you know that post-office inspector you saw round here? Well, he ain't been investigating the school at all. He's been round here to see me— And—well him and I was married yesterday at noon."

P. S.—Somehow, the moral of my story has become slightly twisted. It is either: "He who hesitates is lost," or "Act in haste and repent at leisure."

CHOICE OF BLOUSE

Decision on Style Is of Importance to All Women.

Garment to Accompany Suit Should Blend Properly and Coat Must Be Long Enough.

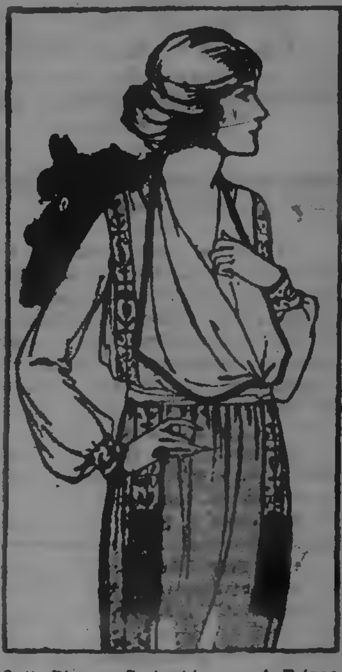
Selection of the suit blouse is a much more important matter than many women think. If the blouse chosen to accompany a suit does not blend properly with the suit, the entire outfit appears at a disadvantage, declares a fashion writer. If the suit is a dressy one, the blouse should be of the same type, and if a plainly tailored or sport suit is worn the blouse should be equally severe.

The blouse shown in the sketch is a smart model for wear with a dressy suit. The coat of the suit must be long enough to cover the entire blouse, of course; but suit coats this season are practically all quite long. Thirty-eight inches is about the minimum length, and some reach almost to the hem of the skirt.

The blouse shown is made of georgette, with the front cut on surplice lines. The back is plain, finished at the neck with a little round yoke or collar embroidered to match the long panels that extend down either side of the front. This blouse would be smart, made of white georgette, with embroidery and piping of revers in oriental colorings, or a single color to match the suit with which the blouse is to be worn may be chosen. This blouse might also be made of satin or crepe de chine, with very good effect.

A great many of the smartest blouses shown this season combine two colors. The upper part or sleeves may be of rose, with lower half, from bust to waistline, of navy, or the entire blouse may be of rose color with navy sleeves for example.

There is a clever conservation scheme in utilizing last season's blouses of sheer white, such as georgette, lace, net, etc., as the foundation over which are worn little low-necked, sleeveless blouses made of georgette in a color to match the season's suit. These little sleeveless georgette blouses in color are even worn over sheer lingerie blouses.



Suit Blouse, Embroidery and Fringe Trimmed.

A great many tailored crepe de chine and satin blouses are shown this season made with high collars. These collars usually button severely, and are finished at the edge with a little turn-over of self-fabric.

The long Russian blouse continues to be a favorite with French designers; but Americans accept it rather reluctantly. One recently shown was made of purple georgette, embroidered in gold thread and banded about sleeves and edge with navy satin.

Music in the Home

UPHOLDING THE BANNER OF CHORAL MUSIC.

Music Is Enhanced When Associated With Words.

Not long ago there appeared an article setting forth the alleged superiority of instrumental music as against vocal music. It claimed a place of somewhat exclusive pre-eminence for orchestral music. It was convincingly written and many of the points were well taken. Having read the one side of the story, it is interesting to hear the other. The side of vocal music is strongly championed in an address by Dr. P. C. Lutkin, dean of music at Northwestern University.

After years of study and teaching of and familiarity with the best of piano, organ and orchestral music, Dr. Lutkin expresses himself as follows: "It is considered by many that instrumental music owes its greatness to the fact that it is hampered by no text or fixed program. This may be true, but with all its vast import there is a certain lack of definiteness in wordless music. It means one thing to one sensitive soul and something different to another. It even assumes different meanings to the same person at different times. Its overwhelming effect at times is doubtless due to the instinctive feeling that we cannot entirely sense its ultimate significance.

"When music is set to words, all the vagueness vanishes and the experienced and responsive listener has a positive guide to the intent and purpose of the music, for it is the task of the composer to enlarge and enhance the meaning of words through the peculiar power of music. The art of music is frequently referred to as the language of the emotions and is said to begin where speech ends. These statements are no exaggeration. This expressive power is so great that good music can ennoble the most commonplace words, and, unfortunately, the reverse is equally true, that poor music can belittle the most worthy of texts. The saving grace in the situation is the fact that inferior composers are rarely attracted by good verse; they gravitate to their natural level, and so, as a rule, the irreverent and cheap gospel hymn is linked to the jiggy and meretricious tune and the verse of the street is sung to the tune of the street.

"When we turn to the masterpieces of choral art, the interested and intelligent student cannot but observe the high quality of the texts that are chosen for musical settings. Palestrina wrote masses which consist of petitions for mercy, ascriptions of praise, declarations of faith, all couched in noble and dignified terms. Bach also wrote masses, and, in addition, innumerable motetes or anthems set, of course, to texts embracing the lofty thoughts and the hue diction of the Bible. Handel, who was a contemporary of Bach's, gave to the world his massive oratorios on biblical texts, which for grandeur have never been excelled.

"Beethoven's Mass in D is one of his monumental works, and in the finale to his Ninth Symphony he turns to the great poet, Schiller, and his Ode to Joy for an inspiring text to bring his greatest symphony to its massive climax. The choral ending is introduced by a recitative implying that the tones of the orchestra were not sufficient for complete musical expression, but that there was an impelling necessity to add the human voice—that greatest of all instruments. Thus Beethoven adds his testimony to the contention that vocal music has in it a quality which is not to be attained by instruments."

PROVING THE TEACHER.

The teacher's best advertisement is in the pupil himself. No amount of printed matter or personal canvassing can convince prospective patrons of the teachers' ability so conclusively as will the proof of it. This proof is demonstrated to the majority of people by the number and kind of pieces the child can execute creditably.

All the carefull drilling on hand position, technique and interpretation naturally should bear fruit in the composition. Keeping this important fact in mind, a teacher should spare no pains in making each piece serve this purpose. Weeks are spent in the preparation of a composition; therefore, do not, through hasty selection, compel a child to work on an unattractive piece or one technically unsuited to him. It will give the pupil no pleasure in the learning, neither will it give the friends who hear him play any delight in listening to it, for when a child forms an aversion to a composition he rarely plays it well.

FARMERS KEEN ON MUSIC.

The Canadian Music Trades Journal says: "Mr. Frank Whitehouse, the Nordheimer piano dealer at Peterborough, motored into Toronto the other day to urge more pianos. Like all the trade, Mr. Whitehouse realizes and regrets the unavoidable under-production of instruments. He works a large agricultural community and finds that, thanks to the motor car, good roads and rural mail delivery, the farmer is as keen on musical education for his children as his city brother. Education also makes him a buyer of a piano on better terms," observed Mr. Whitehouse.

We listen too much and sing and play too little.

WILL THERE BE NO MORE VARIATIONS COMPOSED?

When most of us were young our musical hero or heroine was the person who could sit down and play Home, Sweet Home, Lead, Kindly Light, Annie Laurie, or another familiar and well-liked piece with variations. To see those fingers running up and down the piano with lightning speed, and especially the parts where the players crossed hands, held our youthful attention spellbound. In those days variations were quite the thing. There were innumerable variations on all kinds of operatic airs, national songs, hymn tunes and the old standard pieces that are handed down like family property. But as one musical writer has charged, it is now no longer correct to play anybody's arrangement of somebody else's tunes unless the somebody happens to be much greater than the anybody. "Variations as a class," he says, "have gone over the top and been killed in the fray. It was not ever thus. In that golden age of which the poets talk there were variations by the thousands."

Beethoven published fourteen variations on one theme, thirty-three on a waltz, twelve on a Russian dance, seven on God Save the King, five on Rule, Britannia, and a few dozen others. Mozart, Hayden, Chopin, Handel, Weber, Mendelssohn, Schumann and Brahms all wrote variations on different themes. Original composition always deserves all reasonable encouragement, but it is not permissable to think that a composer should be above anything but original themes.

"Why is it, then, that the variation has practically ceased to interest composers?" asks the writer before alluded to. "Today the fashion seems to be for fancy names that mean nothing. What connection can there possibly be between Nevin's well-known impromptu and the name 'Narcissus'? 'Narcissus' by any other name would sound as well. It might just as well have been called 'Geranium' or 'Goldfish.' Chopin called his work a ballade, or etude, or prelude. A composer today would label the same works 'Semiramus and Hiawatha,' 'Moonlight on the Lagoon,' or 'Raindrops in a Persian Garden'—as if that pseudo-romance added one iota to the merits of the music!! . . . . If a composer can produce an attractive, strong, original theme, he has done the hardest part of great composing. And sometimes great composers compose variations greater than the great themes they have borrowed."

ARTISTIC PIANO PLAYING.

Artistic piano playing is a combination of art and science. The art of expressing emotion in tone and the science of tone production together is technique. Expression is produced by variations in force, speed and tone color; and by the use of the above easily grasped rule, the student will begin to develop the most important of all musical faculties—that of tonal realization. He will be forced to listen to his own playing and form the habit of attention, which in all good players has been brought to a high degree of perfection.

Always listen to the tone you produce. Never bring harsh, disagreeable sounds from the piano which result from stiff arms and key hitting. The keys should be caressed and the tone drawn from the strings by touch, and not by blows. All good music is the expression of human emotion, which can be reproduced only by the corresponding tone color.

When playing a Chopin Nocturne try to tell the listener a sad story, to reproduce in tone some sorrowful event in your own life, or, better still, your conception of the sorrows in the life of the composer. The gentle, whispered sounds, which can be drawn from the strings by a caressing touch, are full of meaning, and they will reach the heart of the hearer where a louder sound will not.

When you play a quick, bright piece, make your fingers express happiness. Try to feel again some joy you have known.

MUSICAL REFLECTIONS.

In its common aspects, as, for example, a band playing a spirited march, rhythm is the simplest and most easily understood of the elements of music.

If we have committed an unpardonable musical sin in the past it has been that we considered music something to be "performed" instead of something to be "used."

Ex-President Eliot, of Harvard University, is said to have remarked that "taking part in ensemble music is as keen a sensous and intellectual enjoyment as the world affords."

It is always an inspiration to play on a Grand piano when you have been accustomed to play on an upright, and this is a point that the teacher should keep in mind in reference to her pupils and their enjoyment of their lessons at her studio. Where the pupil is practising on an upright at home, there is always an added interest in the performance of any study or pieces on the teacher's Grand piano. Taking it for granted that this teacher's piano is always in good tune, it can be counted on that the pupil will be eager to come to lessons on it. On the other hand, if by chance the pupil is practising on a Grand at home, the teacher cannot afford to let that pupil feel a "come down" on entering her studio if she can afford a Grand.

WORTH MORE THAN ALL MONEY ON EARTH

MRS. RASPBERRY ABLE TO DO HOUSEWORK FIRST TIME IN FOUR YEARS —GAINS THIRTY-FIVE POUNDS

"I had rather see my wife well and happy like she is since taking Tanlac than to have all the money in the world," declared Henry Raspberry of 1812 Campbell St., Kansas City, Mo. Mr Raspberry who has recently been employed as a foreman by the Armour Packing Company, was formerly in the service of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad.

"Before my wife took Tanlac," continued Mr. Raspberry, "She had rheumatism in her limbs so bad she couldn't even dress herself. I would have to help her out of bed in the mornings and put her clothes on for her. Her stomach in the mornings was in such a bad condition that she could hardly digest anything. The gas on her stomach would cause intense pains in her side and such awful spells of palpitation of the heart that she could hardly stand it. She was extremely nervous and her breath was short and very offensive, and she had fallen off in weight until she was hardly more than a frame.

"At the time she began taking Tanlac she only weighed eighty seven pounds and had not been able to do any of her housework in four years. But now she weighs one hundred and twenty two pounds—has actually gained thirty-five pounds—and is as healthy and active as she was thirty years ago. The rheumatic pains have all left her and she can do all her work and look after the family without the least trouble. She can eat meats, pickle, all kinds of vegetables and anything else she wants and never have a sign of indigestion. She is not the least nervous any more, sleeps like a child every night and is as well as she ever was. I can't find words to express my thankfulness for what Tanlac has done for her. It is nothing short of wonderful."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in field by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lake-Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Geiert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

IRISH HOTELMEN EJECT BRITON

WHO OBJECTS TO SINN FEIN EMBLEMS IN NEW YORK.

New York, June 26.—When Sir Charles Carrick Allom, the English sportsman and airplane manufacturer, went into the St. Regis Hotel at Fifth avenue and 55th street for luncheon he was asked by two girls in the lobby if he wished to subscribe to the Irish Victory Fund, now being collected in this country for the benefit of the Sinn Fein movement in Ireland. Several different versions of the conversation that followed were given tonight by persons taking part, but all agreed upon several of the main questions said to have been asked the girls by Sir Charles. After the conversation with the girls Sir Charles called for R. M. Hahn, the manager, and protested against the displayed of the emblem in the hotel. All those who took part in the discussion and those who heard it admitted it was animated, but reports of the conclusion of the argument differ widely.

Mr. Hahn and his brother, Joseph Hahn, said that Sir Charles was ejected through the main door into 55th street by attendants who admit Irish parentage, and that a hat and cane picked up in the lobby also went into the street. Sir Charles denies this version of the story, and says that he left the hotel voluntarily after an animated discussion with the managers and some of the attendants who were not in sympathy with his views.

Selecting Leaders For The Liberals

TORONTO STRIKE TO BE SETTLED

BOARD OF CONCILIATION CERTAIN WAGE DISPUTE CAN BE ADJUSTED.

Toronto, June 26.—With no attempt on the part of the Street Railway company to comply with the order of the Railway Board that it resume operation of its street cars before 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, events in the strike situation have moved one step further toward the taking over of the road by the board. Progress was also made yesterday by Judge Barron's conciliation board, and it is expected to reach a decision today regarding the wage and hour clauses which are in dispute.

Representatives of both parties left the city hall last evening confident that a settlement which will bring the strikers back to work is not far distant, although none of them were prepared to give full expression to their reasons for this view. The suggestion put forward at yesterday's conference with the Premier, providing for an increase in fares, from which the revenue would be ear-marked for additional wages to the men, has apparently not been entirely abandoned since there was some discussion of it at last night's sitting of the board.

One evening Napoleon III. sat in his box at the opera. Across the hall in a loge which faced his he observed a stout man in a brown wig whose attention was divided between the performance, a box of bon-bons and the telling of a joke. The emperor turned to an attendant, saying, "Bring him to me." The stout one apologized as he entered the imperial box for not being in evening dress. "My friend," said Napoleon, "ceremony is unnecessary between emperors." His visitor was Gioachino Rossini, Emperor of Music, as Napoleon was Emperor of France.

GUNNER F. C. WALKER HAD WARM TIME IN FLANDERS

Interest Account of the Great Battle Which Began at Amiens on Aug. 8, 1917

Gunner Fred C. Walker, of the 52nd Battery of the 13th Briade, has a very interesting story to tell of his experiences from the time he left Peterborough on March 1, 1916 till he returned home on Monday evening last. He was in the great battle which began at Amiens on August 8, 1917, and which was one of the cleverest pieces of strategy ever staged by the Allied generals.

This front had been so quiet for such a long time that on the morning of the advance the Germans had prepared a raiding party to find out what the Allies were doing. The enemy was taken completely by surprise and the advance followed through Arras and Monchy Hill up to the Drocourt-Queant line. When this was taken the Canadians passed through Cambrai on to Valenciennes.

At the last named place the 52nd Battery had a very exciting experience. It was necessary to fetch an eighteen pounder up to within 100 yards of the Germans in order to clean out three machine gun nests on the opposite side of a canal which they had to cross. They brought the gun as close as they dared by means of horses, but the last part of the journey it had to be hauled along by the men. The ammunition was brought up in the same way. Success crowned their efforts; the machine gun nests were destroyed, and the infantry were able to advance.

After the armistice was signed Gunner Walker's battery moved up to Seigburg in Germany. This is a typical Prussian town, containing the residences of many of the professors from the University of Bonn. He took the opportunity to visit Cologne and climb to the top of its famous cathedral. The bell, which the Prussians captured in the war of 1870 from the French, was not there, having been used by the Germans in the manufacture of ammunition.

Before leaving for England the 52nd Battery had a banquet at Huppaye in Belgium, the menu cards being decorated with the names of the twelve engagements in which the battery had taken part.

How Expression Originated.

"Cooking his goose" is a phrase which originated when the king of Sweden, on approaching a hostile town, excited the contempt of the inhabitants by the smallness of his army. To express this they hung out a goose for him to shoot at, whereupon the king set fire to the town to "cook their goose."

Rare Bells of Gold.

Gold and copper bells served as money among the peoples of Mexico and Central America before the time of the American Indian. The gold bells of Costa Rica are exquisite examples of metal-work; many of them are modeled in the form of birds, monkeys and grotesque heads.

Flowers and the Voice.

Flowers are said to have a remarkable effect on the voice. Sime Reeves never cared to smell a rose; he said the perfume of a bouquet of flowers made his throat "off singing for a week." Another famous opera singer declares that the odor from a bunch of violets makes his voice quite husky.

Would Do Better Next Time.

While in the act of playing coalman Robert dumped some building blocks out of his sister's doll buggy. His sister being asleep at the time, I told him to make less noise, as he might wake her up. His answer was: "I'll get soft coal next time, daddy, and she won't wake up."

The Baby Seal.

When seals are born they are snow-white, which makes them invisible on the ice on which they lie. Their eyes and noses are black, and when the little ones are suddenly alarmed they close their eyes, bury their noses and lie quite still.

Life a Loan.

Life is given for us to use; it has been given to us as a loan without interest, and not to be paid back on any fixed day. Fortune distributes time in unequal portions at her will; she hurries off the young; she props up the old.—Persius.

Switching the Subject.

Once upon a time, we heard of two women who had lost their hair. One had been through a sick spell and the other found hers later behind the dressing table.—Indianapolis Star.

Course Not.

Optimistic Thought.

After a season of sport the mind is prepared to resume its studies with increased vigor.

EX-ALD. DOBBIN IS CHOICE OF TEMPERANCE FORCES

Will Be Secretary of Local Organization—Has Consents to Accept Position—Meeting Yesterday to Prepare For Referendum

"We are today at the top of the hill as far as Provincial prohibition is concerned," stated Mr. T. M. Wesley, organised of the local branches of the Ontario Referendum Committee at the meeting in the Y.M.C.A. yesterday afternoon. "Now that the referendum on the question of prohibition is about to be taken we should see that we do not lose what we have."

"It is not my intention," he continued, "to dictate to you your course of action in this city, but we have a scheme outlined by which your organization will be linked up with the General Committee of Ontario."

He then proceeded to outline the course of procedure to be taken in organization. Rev. R. Pogue was apponited as chairman and Mrs. W. R. Morris as secretary for the meeting. Mrs. Jas. Kendry spoke of the necessity of having every member in perfect sympathy with the aims of the prohibitionists, and she mentioned that Mrs. Harstone, the president of the National Council of Women, was in full accord with their ideals.

Rev. A. J. Thomas then read the four questions which will be submitted to the electors on polling day.

"We must have a system of education against wine and beer drinking," he declared. "We do not want that any more than we do the open bar."

Rev. F. E. Malott continued on the same lines. "The strongest anti vote that we will have to meet will be in favor of beer and wine licenses. While in Germany I investigated their statistics and I found that they had 31 large institutions solely for the cure of drunkenness. These handled in one year 65,000 cases caused by beer drinking. There is something in beer that deadens the moral nature of the drinker and makes him even a greater menace to the community than the man who drinks stronger liquors. No matter what sort of a law we have there will be evaders. It is the duty of every citizen to obey laws that are in the interests of the public at large.

Rev. J. R. Webb then moved the resolution, seconded by Mrs. C. H. Shields, that this meeting is strongly in favor of the continuance of the prohibition measure, and advises everyone to vote "no" on all four questions submitted to them

"I am ten times more a prohibitionist now than when I went overseas," stated Mr. T. M. Wesley. 'In one town about the size of Lindsay I saw 24 hotels and on mentioning the facts I was told that I had just missed 15."

"I don't believe in pledging anyone to an iron-clad rule," said Mr. A. B. Cunningham, who moved, seconded by Rev. J. R. Webb, that the work of organization be proceeded with on the platform of the Provincial Committee. This was carried and the meeting proceeded to elect its officers.

On the motion of Mr. G. W. Powell, seconded by Mrs. Goodfellow, Mr. H. B. Cowan was appointed as chairman. Mrs. Robert Harstone was elected as vice-chairman.

It was resolved that Mrs. W. R. Morris, Mrs. James Kendry and Mr. A. B. Cunningham be appointed a committee to select a secretary.

That this committee first ask Mr. F. H. Dobbin to act, and in case they were not able to secure him, they should appoint any suitable person. The last suggestion was carried on the motion of Rev. J. R. Webb, seconded by Dr. J. Bernie.

Mrs. Jas. Kendry was appointed as treasurer without any further discussion. The council of ten will consist of the following members who were elected by acclamation:—Mrs. C. H. Shields, Mr. A. B. Cunningham, Dr. J. Birnie, Mr. Stabler, Mr. Joseph Wearing, Mrs. A. Mowat, Mr. H. G. Walker, Mr. Frank Ellis, Mr. W. R. Breyfogle and Mrs. (Rev.) A. J. Thomas. The appointment of the various ward committees and polling subdivision committees was left in the hands of the executive and the council.

EVANGELIST KENNEDY MAKES CLEAR ROAD TO SALVATION

Members of Churches Admit That They Were not Really Converted When They First Made Public Profession of Faith—Special Attractions Tonight.

Those who find fault with evangelists on the ground that they do not make the way of salvation sufficiently clear or that they cover it over with needless words, could have found no reason to fault the message given by Evangelist H. D. Kennedy last night in the big tent meeting on Hunter street. Never in Peterborough was the way of salvation made more simple and clear than by the speaker last evening. There is only one way, he stated, of finding God and that is through faith in Christ as the sinner's substitute. Mr. Kennedy said that there are many people who are trusting to be saved somehow because they belong to churches and quoted the great evangelists, Dr. R. A. Torry and Dr. Wilbur Chapman, as authorities for the statement that four out of five members of the churches of the United States are unconverted.

[illegible] are many people who hope to get to heaven because they live moral lives or are good to the poor or because they pray to God. None of these methods will save any one. Some people talk of Christ as the "way-shower." He is not. He is the "way." Only through Christ can any one reach God. Some people speak of Christ as the "Revealer of Truth." He is more than that. He is the "Truth." God will not save any one. Christ is the only one that saves. God has decreed that only through faith in Christ will He accept us. Christ is the door and sinners can enter God's presence only through that door. People who try other methods of being saved than the method God has provided are lost. It does not matter how good they may be in the sight of the world, or even in their own sight. The one thing that counts is how do we stand in God's sight. Unless we have recognized our sinfulness and old helplessness to find God and unless we have accepted Christ as our "Perfect Sacrifice," we cannot have peace with God. Mr. Kennedy quoted, "Therefore, being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ," Romans 5-1, and asked how many present had peace with God. He showed that every one might have that peace which comes through faith. At the close of the service four definite conversions were recorded, two young men and two young women.

Handling the Audience.

Mr. Kennedy shows great tact in handling his audience. He "divides" his audience by asking all Christians to stand, thereby making those who are not Christians feel uncomfortable and singled-out by the fact that they are left sitting. Last night he first asked all Christians who joined the church below they were really converted, but who later became saved, to stand up. There were fully 25 people, including a number of well-known church members who stood up. In ways such as these he makes it easy for those who are not Christians to take the stand if they desire, by getting Christians to lead in taking the first steps.

Tonight a large attendance of the employees of the Quaker Oats Company, including a number of the heads of the departments, purpose attending in a body. Special seats are being reserved for them. The subject tonight will be "The Only Way of Salvation." There will be a double male quartette by members of the staff of the Quaker Oats. The girls, including those not now working, are asked to meet at the tent door at ten minutes to eight and the men at eight o'clock.

Last night the members of St. Paul's Church choir turned out well considering the weather, and led the singing. Tonight the singing will be led by the members of Park Street Baptist and Bethany choirs. Tomorrow night the Salvation Army songsters will lead. In the early part of last night's service, Mr. Waldon gave an instrumental selection. The ministers who assisted last night were Rev. Messrs. Thomas and Malott. The ser[illegible]rowing in power and interest night by night. There is abundant reason to believe that as they progress they will be the means of accomplishing a great work in Peterborough. The fact that no collections are taken up on week nights continue to make a good impression. It is understood that Christians of the city are being given an opportunity to contribute privately to meet the expenses. Those who care to have a part in this, may do so, by sending their remittance to the treasurer, Mr. William Madill.

The following are extracts from some of Mr. Kennedy's sermons:

SPARKS FROM KENNEDY'S ANVIL

Morality has nothing to do with a man's salvation. It has only to do with this world.

There are just two classes of people in the world. Saved and lost.

What has a man to do to be lost? Nothing. All are lost now, if they have not accepted Christ as their personal saviour.

You may say you are as good as your neighbors but maybe your neighbors are going to hell.

The moralist works to be saved. The Christian because he is saved.

Christ said: "I am the way." He did not say He and you were the way. He needs no help to save you.

We are not saved out of good, but unto good works.

No man goes to hell because he sins, but because he will not accept Christ as his Saviour.

Some are more anxious for a new hat than for a crown of glory.

Few people acept their own photograph unless its better looking than they are.

There are more pretty photographs in windows than photographs of pretty people.

A photographer would have a hard time making money if he made people look just as they are.

No woman likes another woman very well if she has a dress on that looks like the one she got on the bargain counter.

If one man can be good in any calling in life, any man can.

It some wives knew their husbands as well as God does, they would give them the whole hunk.

The more you do for some folks the greater your obligations seems to be to them.

Ingratitude is the meanest of all sins.

When Anna saw Christ she wanted to tell it—The woman of it. When Simeon saw Him he wanted to die—The man of it.

Some self-made men never finished the job.

Some women claim to be self-made, when they are only hand painted.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

Presentation To Popular Teacher

On Wednesday afternoon the staff of the King George School met to express their regret at the departure of Miss Edna Mae Butler whose marriage takes place in St. Barnabas Church, Toronto, on Monday next. Miss Butler has been a member of the staff for the past year and during the year has made many friends, both on the staff and in the city.

A witty and unique address was read, after which Miss Butler was presented with a handsome silver Mayonnaise dish.

Miss Eastwood Is Home Once More

Miss Pearl Eastwood, nursing sister of Canadian Army Corps, arrived in the city last evening.

Miss Eastwood is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Eastwood, 805 George Street. She crossed on the Scotian which docked at Montreal, on Saturday. Owing to the delay in getting her luggage she was unable to reach home sooner. Miss Eastwood went overseas in the fall of 1917, and although she did not have a chance to go to France, did splendid work in Moore Barracks, Shorncliffe, Kitchener Hospital, Brighton, The Duchess of Connaught and the Red Cross Hospital at Tatelow on the Thames.

During Miss Eastwood's voyage across the ocean she had the misfortune to have her nose broken in participating in the ship's sports, but otherwise reports a very enjoyable trip and one continuous round of pleasure during the voyage. The sports were exceptionally fine as there were a great number of her friends in the Canadian Army Medical Corps, on board.

Her many friends in Peterborough will be glad to welcome her home.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC

George Street Will Have Annual Outing Friday Afternoon.

The annual picnic of the George Street Methodist Sunday School and congregation will be held Friday, 3 p.m., at Nicholl's Oval.

A good program of sports have been arranged for the children, and from 7 or 8 o'clock the friends having autos are asked to give the children an hour's ride around the city.

There will be a general table, the school providing sandwiches, tea and milk. Parents are asked to provide cake pies, etc.

Farmerettes are in big demand in New York State.

In two auto accidents at Watertown, N.Y., five were killed and seven injured

More than $360,000,000 is invested in shoemaking in the U.S. employing more than 200,000.

All Day Service George St. Church

The all day services at George Street Methodist Church today were largely attended by both men and women. Beginning at 10 a.m. the services were held without interruption till 5 p.m. under the direction of Evangelist Kennedy. This meeting of Christian men and women cannot fail to make its influence felt in the great revival campaign now on.

After the audience has sung several hymns and a number of the ministers had offered prayer, a service of testimony was held. Many of the city's most prominent citsens testified to the value of Christ in their lives. During the afternoon addresses were delivered by Rev. A. J. Thomas and other ministers.

THEATRICALS

Emmy Wehlen Famous On Stage And Screen

BEAUTIFUL STAR OF "SYLVIA ON A SPREE" IS INTERNATIONALLY CELEBRATED.

Emmy Wehlen, one of the most popular and talented stars of the stage and screen, who will be seen in "Sylvia on a Spree," at the Grand Theatre today for a three day engagement, has attained the highest success in both lines of dramatic work for which she is famous that of the stage and the screen.

This gifted actress began her stage career when very young and to the surprise of her friends chose the heavy, emotional end of the drama appearing in many Shakespearian plays and again in those of Isben Suderman, Wilde, Keats, Barrie and others. Her ability in this line was marked but as she possessed a splendid soprano voice she was approached by managers with tempting offers of musical comedy engagements. She was at length persuaded to enter this field of work and made her debut in London at the Gaiety Theatre. Among other plays she was starred in "The Dollar Princess," and "The Merry Widow," and such was her popularity that she soon became the toast of London, and was the idol of musical comedy.

She came to America at the head of the big Gaiety production, "Tonight's the Night," and made a sensational hit, since when she has devoted herself to the American stage.

Like many other noted players who have developed their work in the motion pictures, Miss Wehlen prefers the screen to the stage and her phenomenal success in this field will be seen in her Metro productions some of which the "The Shell Game," "The House of Gold," "His Bonded Wife," "The Duchess of Doubt," "The Trail of the Shadows," and "Miss Robinson Crusoe."

Miss Wehlen was born in Vienna but moved to London where she was educated and where she lived with her parents until she came to America.

Defended Her Love From Another Woman

JUNE ELVIDGE HAS A PARTICULARLY DELIGHTFUL ROLE IN "THE LOVE DEFENDER."

June Elvidge has a particularly delightful role in "The Love Defender," the new World Picture, which is scheduled for showing on today at the Grand Theatre. In this picture she has the role of Hope, a young wife, who discovers that her husband is in love with another woman. She does her utmost to defend her love against this other woman's aggression, but it seems as though she is not going to be successful. And then, when everything seems most dismal, everything turns out all right.

"The Love Defender" was written by Maravene Thompson, the famous writer of short stories and novels, whose work has appeared in so many reading magazines and in books issued by leading publishers of the country. In this story she has penned a picture that gives Miss Elvidge one of the best roles of her career and which also offers all the members of the cast exceptional opportunities for the display of their talents.

Some of the outdoor scenes in "The Love Defender" are notably beautiful. They will appeal to all lovers of the beautiful in motion pictures.

Frank Mayo plays opposite Miss Elvidge in this picture in the role of her husband. He has one of the best roles in this picture that he has yet had. Mdge Evans, the charming little star who has been seen in a number of big World successes, is also seen in an important role in "The Love Defender."

Don't Do It.

It is bad manners and bad business etiquette for two employees of the same office to discuss the personal affairs of fellow workers or of their employer. Almost every worker is in possession of some private information as a result of his work, but that should be regarded as a trust not to be betrayed. It is also bad manners to inquire as to the wages or the particular duties of fellow workmen.—Biddy Bye.

Fireless Cookers That Are Safe.

Recently the national board of fire underwriters issued a caution against using wooden pails or tubs in making home-made fireless cookers. To eliminate the danger of fires from these valuable fuel savers, the department of agriculture advocates using [illegible] up asbestos in place of hay, [illegible] wool for packing [illegible]. Additional safety may be attained by making [illegible] cooker from a [illegible] can.

Why Busy People Have Leisure.

They say that the busiest people have the most time to give in service to others, can turn clear attention to a new subject at an instant's notice. This is simple because the busiest people, the ones who are accomplishing the most, have learned the art of prompt action, of quick dismissal of what has to be done. They can give you at any moment undivided attention because their minds are clear and ready.

Familiarity Bad Form.

In offices and shops where men and women work together, it is bad form for workers to address each other by their first names. Men should be careful to address woman workers as Miss ——. Women should not fall into the bad habit of calling men by their last names, as Brown, or Jones, without prefixing Mr. It is possible—and wise—to be friendly without being familiar or undignified.—Biddy Bye.

Teaching Patriotic Sentiment.

Nancy had been sent to put Baby Betty to sleep. She rolled the carriage into the front room and put "The Star-Spangled Banner" on the phonograph. As the record began, her mother looked in to see Nancy lifting Betty to a sitting position. "Now, Betty," she admonished, "I know you're too small to stand up when they play 'The Star-Spangled Banner,' but at least you can sit up very straight."

Fruits of the Spirit.

The fruits of the spirit are love, joy, peace, kindness, benevolence. The lesson here is not only for the great powers, hitherto concerned at peace settlements only with division of spoils; but it is also for labor and capital, for the upper ten and the lower five, for all the varied and sometimes embattled elements in our complicated social framework. The mind that is ruled by hate is sowing seeds for his own reaping in loss and shame. The Sermon on the Mount still stands. —Exchange.

Cat a Model to Children.

In some of the little books which were published from 1800 to 1850, and a few of them even earlier, one finds the cat frequently set up as a model of good behavior, especially for little girls. She taught them by her example to wash their faces once a day, to look clean and neat, and when they walked out of doors never to step in the wet. One significant sentence reads: "It would be well for little girls to sit as still while they are learning their lessons."

Bible's Place in the World.

Bacon furnishes more than seventy allusions to the Bible in twenty-four of his essays. Addison, Johnson, Pope, Young, Browning, Tennyson, abound in Scripture. "For more than 1,000 years," says Coleridge, "the Bible, taken collectively, has gone hand in hand with civilisation, science, law —in short, with the moral and intellectual cultivation of the species, always supporting and often leading the way."

CANADA'S RAILWAY GIANT

A handsome tribute to Lord Shaughnessy was paid by the C.P.R. shareholders at the annual meeting to-day. Mr. Huntly R. Drummond moved the following resolution:

Resolved: That there be inscribed in the record of this meeting an expression of the appreciation of the shareholders of the great services rendered to the Company and to the Dominion of Canada by the Rt. Hon. Lord Shaughnessy who has recently retired from the Presidency and assumed the Chairmanship of the Company.

The outstanding position held by the Canadian Pacific Railway not only in the markets of the world but also in the respect and affection of the Canadian people provides the greatest of all tributes to the genius with which Lord Shaughnessy has directed the affairs of the Company, but the shareholders cannot let this occasion pass without the further tribute of their thanks for the services he has rendered during the thirty-six years with which he has been associated with this enterprise.

Through Lord Shaughnessy's financial skill and executive ability, an immense transportation system has been built up and consolidated with such efficiency and economy that the Canadian people have enjoyed efficient service at moderate rates, have seen their resources developed beyond all expectation and have been encouraged during normal years by a steady flow of immigration, while the financial returns of the Company have amply justified the confidence placed by investors in Canadian industry and management.

It is particularly gratifying to the shareholders that under Lord Shaughnessy's Presidency the Canadian Pacific Railway Company should [illegible] consider it [illegible] sighted policy that under such circumstances the Canadian Pacific Railway Company should not only have required no assistance from the Canadian Government but should actually from its reserves have been able to provide substantial aid to that Government in maintaining the high standard of Canadian credit.

The shareholders deeply appreciate and honour the spirit of self-sacrifice with which Lord Shaughnessy maintained the arduous duties of the Presidency during the anxious years of the war in spite of physical disabilities. They rejoice that these disabilities have been ameliorated and that with renewed vision he can once more enjoy the beauties of that Canadian landscape which the Canadian Pacific Railway has made accessible to the world.

When the prospect of peace enabled him to hand over the more active duties of the Presidency with clear conscience to a younger man, it was with genuine pleasure that the shareholders heard of Lord Shaughnessy's decision to remain as Chairman of the Company, not only because they realized that the Company would thereby continue to have the benefit of his counsel and advice, but also because they are proud to retain as their titular head one who is held in such universal honour.

The shareholders trust that the indomitable spirit which has been so characteristic of Lord Shaughnessy's whole splendid career will be rewarded with many years yet to come of health, prosperity and happiness.

Moved by:
Huntly R. Drummond.
Seconded by:
Colin Campbell.

Lord Shaughnessy replied:

I appreciate most heartily and thank you, Mr. President and fellow shareholders, for the complimentary remarks referring to myself in the President's address, and in the Resolution adopted by the meeting. I would [illegible] speaking in candour if I failed [illegible] great pride in the progress of the Company during my Presidency [illegible] in its present splendid [illegible] physically and financially. [illegible] in the faith and confidence [illegible] shareholders who, with [illegible] responded to [illegible] for capital by subscribing for additional issues of stock, even only on occasions when in deference to [illegible] the issue price was less favourable to the subscribers than it might properly have been. My predecessors, Lord Mount Stephen and Sir William Van Horne, who carried the responsibilities of the Chief Executive through the periods of construction and the first few years of operation, had a most difficult task as is well-known to our senior colleagues on the Board of Directors, Mr. Angus, Sir Edmund Osler and Mr. Matthews, but it was my good fortune to become President just when the tide was turning and when Canada was coming into her own.

The expansion in the country's business and the consequent increase of traffic compelled capital expenditure on a large scale to furnish improved transportation facilities presently required and to anticipate the future, and the money for these purposes was provided year by year from 1900 to the outbreak of war.

The policy of your Directors was bold and forward.

There was never any hesitation, and looking back over that period they are justified in the conviction that few, if any mistakes were made and that conviction is, I am sure, shared by the great body of the Canadian people and of the Company's shareholders.

It was fortunate indeed that when the time arrived to transfer the responsibilities of Chief Executive to younger and more vigorous shoulders your Directors had available for the post a man so capable, so energetic, so conscientious and so well versed in matters relating to the Company's policy as the new President, Mr. Beatty. I shall not hurl back at him such compliments as he paid me in great profusion, but I may be permitted to say that he enjoys the complete confidence and respect of the Directors and of the Canadian people. The shareholders' interests could not be in safer hands.

After so many years of business and personal association it was somewhat of a wrench to my fellow-Directors as it was to me to alter our relations by permitting me to retire from the Presidency, but they felt as I did, and as I hope you feel, that it was best for the future of the Company.

HOW THEY PLAY THE GAME IN MICHIGAN-ONTARIO LEAGUE

Here is the Report, Taken From London Advertiser, of a Struggle Between London and Hamilton.

"Dad" Stewart trotted out the London Tecumsehs over in West London last night, and hardly anybody recognized them until Frank Shaughnessy's Hams started in to beat them. They took on the old familiar appearance again with the usual result. The Shagmen annexed the game by an 8 to 3 count.

The Indians looked different, it is true, as far as personal appearance goes. But it remains to be seen whether Stewart has an improved club. Last night's game was nothing to judge by. The Shagmen won simply because they pounded the old pellet all over the premises. They gathered a total of fourteen bingles off Paul Malloy, who jumped the London team once, and then jumped back again. Just why he jumped back again is not yet apparent.

Schettler Hard at First

Old Louis Schettler, who used to pitch in the old days before the war and must have a hard time keeping out ofthe oldmen's home these days, was on the mound for Shaughnessy. The Indians were slow getting wised up to his slants but in the latter stages of the contest he wasn't much of a puzzle. Perhaps he slowed up when he saw the lead his teammates were spotting him. Schettler seemed to have a full assortment of his old time speed and curves, and he was always a good pitcher in this league.

The New Indians

The Tecumsehs presented almost a new infield. "Dusty" Bullock who is another relic of the old Canadian League was on second, while Miller a big, husky chap, was shortstopping. Newman, a Chicago product was on first and he looked like ready money to local fans. This boy puts one in mind of Louis Cliermbauer at his best and his hitting brought a few spasms of joy to the loyal bugs who have been starved by the London players as far as hits were concerned. Newman figured prominently in the London scoring. He drove in Malloy with the first run and later sent Mitchell home with a nice clean double. The London outfield still looks as if it could stand a bit of bolstering, though. However, the team looks as though it might give a fairly good account of itself if the pitching is right.

Malloy Grooved Too Many

Malloy suffered from his old trouble of grooving too many pitches. He seemed to lack good control, and at times he couldn't keep the ball out of the place where the Hams were swinging. Zinn had a big day with the stick, getting a couple of doubles and two singles in five times up. He struck out the first time he went to the plate.

"The Tigers" opened the scoring in the second, when Lowry walked and Donnelly singled. A wild pitch advanced both runners but Lapp fanned. Lowry died at the plate on Carlin's roller to Miller, but when Carlin was caught off first, Newman uncorked a wild peg to second and Donnelly registered. Behan made a third out.

Shag. Delivers in a Pinch

In the third Zinn doubled with two down, and Shaughnessy scored him with a blow to left. In the fourth the Hams got a pair of runs. Donnelley walked, but Lapp fanned again. Carlin beat out a grounder and when Behan rolled to Bullock, Miller muffed the throw and gummed up what looked like a sure double play everybody getting safe. Schettler flied to Mitchell who muffed, and Donnelley came in. Carlin was nailed at the plate by Bullock on O'Rourke's slow grounder, but Zinn's single brought Behan home. Shag struck out with the bases full.

The sixth saw the Tigers annex two more after the first two batters were easy outs. Schettler hit for two bases, and O'Rourke counting on Zinn's drive, though Hazel made it close at the plate. Zin was caught off first.

In the eighth, Carlin, infield hit a sacrifice and hits by O'Rourke and Zinn, the latter's a double, brought the visitors' count up to eight.

How London Scored

The Indians went hitless and runless until the fifth when Shaughnessy muffed O'Rourke's throw on Malloy's grounder. Mitchell fanned, and Hagel was thrown out by Lapp, but Newman dropped one over Carlin's head and Malloy counted. In the sixth Grodick and Pitenger both singled with one out, but Milligan and Malloy could not bring them in. In the seventh Mitchell was safe on his hit to Schettler. Hagel had a third strike caled on him, but Newman doubled to deep centre, Mitchell coming all the way home. Bullock singled to right, and Newman counted. In the ninth, with two down, Newman singled and went as far as third, when the Hamilton infielders failed to cover second and Lapp threw to the outfield. Bullock walked, but Zinn went out near the fence and grabbed Miller's long fly.

NO GAME—RAIN

Owing to the rain yesterday the game between the Matthews-Blackwell team of this city and the Lindsay team was cancelled.

Blind Handicap At Weekly Shoot

The Peterborough Gun Club will hold a couple of handicap shoots at the grounds on Friday evening, June 27th, when all members and shooters are requested to be present as these events will create considerable interest. One of events will be a 15 bird blin handicap when each shooter will draw his handicap, which will be unknown to all shooters, after he has shot his fifteen.

All interested in trap-shooting will be welcome.

OSHAWAS HERE ON JULY FIRST

GAME ON HOLIDAY WILL START AT 10.30 IN THE FORENOON.

On July 1 the Oshawa team will play here at Riverside Park. Owing to the ruling of the C. O. executive last night, they are the only players that have scored a win over the local men. The game will start at 10.30 a. m. The standing of the teams at present, as they have been readjusted is:

	W.	L.	P.C.
Peterborough	3	1	.750
Belleville	3	1	.750
Port Hope	3	2	.600
Oshawa	3	2	.600
Lindsay	2	3	.400
Cobourg	0	5	.000

Three men made an attempt to burglarize the store of Newan and Livingstone at Napanee, but were scared away by Constable Beard, who captured one.

Hail fell during a rainstorm which followed a temperature of 95 in the shade at Moose Jaw.

EXECUTIVE ALLOWS PROTEST OF PETES RE BELLEVILLE GAME

Contest in Latter City Does not Go and Must Be Replayed—Port Hope's Protest Fails

At the meeting of the Central Ontario Baseball League, which was held in Lindsay last night, the executive ordered that the game between Peterborough and Belleville, which was won by the latter in Belleville on June 14 by a score of five to four, should be replayed. The game will take place on July 4 at Port Hope, Messrs. Alex. Kay and John Roseavear being appointed as umpires. The protest lodged by Port Hope against the game played there between them and Belleville on June 18 was disallowed.

Among those present at the meeting were Mr. S. Lockington of Port Hope, the president of the league; Mr. A. Gemmel, of Cobourg, the vice-president; Mr. J. D. Dedman, of Lindsay, the secretary-treasurer; Messrs. Alex. Kay, of Peterborough; John Roseavear, of Port Hope, and Richard Butler, of Lindsay, the three official umpires; Mrs. John Nott, of Oshawa; Messrs. Russell Copping, Jake Solomon and Ward Paterson, of Peterborough; Messrs. Mills and Thompson of Belleville; Mr. Moines, of Lindsay; Mr. Higginbotham, of Cobourg.

Small Dividends Paid by Crime

MONK EASTMAN, one of the most formidable of modern thugs, was mustered out of the United States army the other day, a full sergeant, with a fine military record and a decoration. He enlisted under an assumed name, of course, and will either retain this name or another when he makes his great effort to "come back" and work for a living as he announced his intention of doing. How many prison convictions Monk had against him it would be difficult to say, but much easier than to compute the number of assaults and killings that constitute his record. He was the leader of the most dangerous gang of gunmen that New York has known for years, men like the band that worked for Police Lieut. Becker and made away with Herman Rosenthal for a reward or to ingratiate themselves with some higher up, would kill for fun, for revenge, or for a set price. They would shoot their own enemies for nothing; they would shoot anybody else's enemies for a reasonable sum. For twenty years Monk made his living this way.

Returning home he says: "There is nothing in crime. There is nothing in being a thug. A gang leader never gets anywhere. The pity of it is that there are a lot of young fools growing up who try to make a reputation by being slick. If they could only know in advance, as I know, how little there is in it beyond disgrace and privation, they'd quit now. They'd get jobs and stick to them. They'd let booze alone and stay away from gangs. I am now 44 years old and the rest of my life is going to be spent honestly, at hard work, and not in being a rotten outcast." Monk's estimate of the dividends crime will pay is confirmed by a glance at the careers of several notorious criminals reviewed in the New York Sun. Some of them made tremendous hauls. Without exception they are down and out. At the end of their careers they have less to show for their dangerous labors than a man who has been a laborer, or a woman who has taken in washing, to say nothing of the humiliations they have brought upon themselves and others, and the stern punishments they have had to undergo.

A striking example of a criminal who ought to have prospered if such a thing was possible is Alonso J. Whitman. He was well educated, had a fine, even a striking, appearance and a magnetic manner. He worked at forgery for twenty years. Now at the age of sixty, without a dollar to his name, he is serving a sentence in an Ohio prison. He was born of respectable parents, his father being rated a millionaire shortly before Alonso began his career of crime. That the young man was well qualified mentally is indicated by the fact that at one time he was a state senator in Minnesota. He ran for Congress and was defeated. He moved to Chicago and speculated in wheat until he was wiped out. Then he became a bookmaker, and for a short time cut a considerable swath on both western and eastern tracks. Within a year he was cleaned again and without money or credit, he concluded that forgery was a likely business. His first known venture was a failure, for he was sent to prison for it.

He had better luck afterwards, and though hounded by the police, he often had enough money to fight them off. In the end he found himself friendless, penniless, a man to whom any policeman was entitled to apply his boot on sight. Thomas Courtney began cracking safes in the early nineties, often making $20,000 at a haul, and was regarded as one of the aristocrats of the underworld. Not long ago he finished a prison term, his health shattered, not a dollar hidden away. He had to apply for a hack license. He is now as little to be feared as a snake whose fangs have been drawn. In thirty years of criminal practice Jimmy Farrell is estimated to have made $200,000. A few days ago he was seen begging in a New York street, shortly after being discharged from penitentiary. His few remaining years will probably be spent in cadging, for he is a member of the down-and-out club.

The most notorious of American women crooks is probably Ellen Peck, who at the age of 90 is without a dollar or a home. For fifty years she conducted swindling operations, and was a member of some of the most desperate bands of crooks in the world. It is said that she must have stolen a million dollars in her time. Her career is remarkable in that as a girl she was admired and respected. She was comfortably married and had a pretty daughter when she committed her first recorded crime. This was a swindle of the sort she continued to specialise in. She persuaded a soap manufacturer that she could recover for him $200,000 which had been stolen by one of his employes. She worked $19,000 out of the manufacturer before she was exposed, but escaped imprisonment by a plea of insanity. Her next victim was a jeweler, who was the poorer by $20,000 through her acquaintance. Frans Meyer, who organised a volunteer regiment at the time of the Spanish-American War, was swindled out of $100,000, and so clean did she pick his bones that at one time he was driven to the necessity of shooting sparrows in his back yard to provide his family with food. From various other persons she wheedled tens of thousands of dollars by pretending that she was an intimate friend of Jay Gould and could give them stock market information.

Ennui.

"Wot's dis here ennui, Bill?"

"It's when a feller gets so lazy he feels dat loafin's blamed hard work."

Beginning Tower of London.

A royal palace, consisting of what is known as the "white tower," appears to have been the beginning of the Tower of London. It was commenced by William's son, William Rufus, who, in 1098, surrounded it with walls and a broad ditch. Several succeeding kings made additions to it, and King Edward III erected the church. In 1638 the old white tower was rebuilt, and in the reign of Charles II a great number of additions were made to it. The new buildings in the tower were completed in 1850.

Making Americans.

If we will plant the children of our immigrants in American soil, give them American companions, teach them in the American language, let them breathe American literature, discipline them in the American art of self-government, warm their hearts in the sunshine of American tenderness, sympathy and good fellowship, and always respect the nature which God has given them however it may differ from ours, they will grow up loyal, patriotic, devoted Americans.—Lyman Abbott.

Early Morning Exercise.

"Don't roll out of bed like a sailor," says a newspaper doctor. "Stretch the muscles and the legs and abdomen immediately after awakening. Putting on one's stockings in bed is a good way to accomplish this result and reduce flesh." Obviously, to follow these instructions, one should take the stockings to bed the night before. Most of the exercise, then, naturally will consist in finding the stockings among the bed clothes the next morning.—Kansas City Star.

Records Salt in Sea Water.

An instrument has been devised which gives a continuous record of the salinity of sea water by the measurement of its electrical conductivity. A pair of electrolytic cells have been designed which, when used with a suitable alternating-current galvanometer, will give satisfactory operation in connection with a recorder. The temperature compensation is obtained by placing both cells, which are in the two arms of a Wheatstone bridge, in a uniform temperature bath.

SILVER TEA SERVICE AND TRAY FOR MR. AND MRS. WEBB

Congregation of Murray Street Church Make Presentation to Pastor and Wife on Occasion of Their Silver Wedding.

The people of Murray Street Baptist Church have their own quiet way of doing the beautiful thing, but they always do with heartiness and taste what they undertake. By some means they discovered that June 25th is the anniversary of the wedding of their pastor, Rev. J. R. and Mrs. Webb. During the day there was sent to the parsonage a full silver tea service and tray with suitable engraving and inscription.

No greater surprise could have come to Mr. and Mrs. Webb than when at the evening hour this was on their table. The costly gift was accompanied by an address which is both unique in its style and beautiful in its composition:

To Rev. J. R. and Mrs. Webb:

"Twenty-five!
Within that compass
Loving, honoring and obeying;
Each supporting and upholding,
Carrying on
In God's great vineyard
Making ready for
The Master.
Thus you've gone
In splendid teamwork,
June vows living, justifying,
Planting flowers along the wayside
As you've travelled.
Perennial bloomers
To remind those coming after
Of the fragrance and the beauty
Coming from your lives of service.
Thro' the dark-to-days of sorrow
Smiles a glorious tomorrow—
Faith enfolded, hope developed,
Charity your constant consort
So you're wending, onward, homeward,
Being loved as you are loving;
May God spare you both a long while
In his service here among us.
All of this to have and hold
Our silver thoughts in the Webb of Gold.

The above lines, the Review learns, came from the same pen as that which signs the most responsible correspondence of one of Peterborough's largest business enterprises. Success in the realm of business does not necessarily mean the absence of literary gifts and sentimental appreciation.

LABOR ASKS THAT ALLIES DROP CONSCRIPTION POLICY

British, French and Italian Workingmen Object to Their Intervention in Russia, and, Decide to Hold Demonstration by Way of Protest—Heated Discussion Results.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Southport, England, June 27—British, French and Italian Labor representatives have decided to make a general demonstration on July 20 or 21 to protest against the Allied intervention in Russia. This announcement was made by Arthur Henderson, British labor leader, at the labor conference here today.

Mr. Henderson explained that the demonstration would be an attempt to prevent the Governments of Europe from adopting a reactionary policy throughout that continent. It would be left to each country, he added to decide whether the demonstration would take the form of political or industrial action. Resolutions would be passed protesting against any intervention in Russia and remanding the abandonment of conscription.

The Conference later passed a resolution calling upon the trades union congress to take industrial action to compel the British Government to stop operations in Russia. There was a heated discussion over the resolution which was passed on a card vote by 1,894,060 to 935,000

UNION PARTY IS ORGANIZED AT GOVERNMENT CAUSUS THURSDAY

Premier Borden Offers to Resign but Followers Refuse to Accept Resignation and Express Confidence in his Leadership

Ottawa, June 27.—There will be a permanent Unionist party. This was decided at an enthusiastic caucus of the Government followers on Thursday. A resolution was adopted unanimously putting the gathering on record to this effect. A few western members who voted against the Government on the budget kept their seats, including Thomas McNutt, J. A. Maharg, Levi Thomson and James Douglas. Hon. T. A. Crerer, Dr. Michael Clark, Hon. W. S. Fielding and Fred Pardee, all of whom have already broken with the government although invited, were not present. Hon. F. C. Carvell of whom there has been talk of retiring from the Government, was an absentee.

Confidence in Premier

In addition Sir Robert Borden offered his resignation as leader of the new party. He said he had had a long and strenuous political career and was willing to retire to private life. The caucus, however, would not consider it and unanimously refused to allow him to think of retiring. Confidence in Sir Robert as Prime Minister and as leader of a new Unionist party was expressed by the gathering and it was given three rousing cheers and a tiger which fairly raised the roof of the museum when the gathering broke up.

Need Permanent Party

There was a general feeling that action in forming the new party and in establishing an organization should not be delayed. It is understood that the Cabinet will draft a preliminary platform, which will be presented to another caucus before the House prorogues

Sir Robert presented at length to the caucus his own views on the subject of a permanent Unionist party. He explained the patriotic moves which were behind the formation of the Union Government originally and expressed the view that the reasons were as strong as ever for a continuation of Union Government and for the formation of a permanent party.

Give and Take

Sir Robert reviewed some of the principles which he felt should be laid down in the formation of a permanent party. He recognized that the fiscal question was one of the stumbling blocks and expressed the opinion that it was not an insuperable obstacle. A policy of give and take would have to be adopted between the East and the West in order to form a united country. The eastern manufacturers must not think that they were the whole of Canada, and the western grain growers should recognise the fact that there were other interests in Canada besides their own.

Endorse Views

Hon. C. C. Ballantyne and Hon. J. A. Calder as Liberal Unionist members of the Cabinet, strongly endorsed the views of Sir Robert.

The caucus as a whole then overwhelmingly endorsed the views of the Cabinet Ministers. Amid much enthusiasm a resolution was then presented endorsing the proposal for a permanent party. The resolution was moved by F. B. Stacey, Liberal Unionist member for Westminster District.

HUN SITUATION GROWING WORSE

OWING TO RAILROAD STRIKE COUNTRY IS THREATENED WITH STRIKE.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Berne, June 27. — The general situation in Germany is becoming more serious, according to the latest despatches. The railroad strike, it is reported, is about to extend over the entire country. The Spartacans do not conceal their belief that their hour has come. In view of the transportation strike and the poor food supply, some reports state that famine appears imminent. On the other hand, it is said, a counter revolution seems to be brewing in the East, and the news from these is increasingly alarming.

HARTLEY DEWART IS NEW LEADER

WON OVER J. C. TOLMIE, M.L.A., ON SECOND BALLOT AT TORONTO.

Toronto, June 27,—The first ballot cast for leadership of the Liberal party at yesterday's convention showthe following results: Hartley H Dewart, K.C., 147; Major Tolmie, 97; J. E. Elliott, 37; Mr. Proudfoot, 33, and Mr McMillan, 8. On the first ballot Mr. Dewart did not have the necessary majority—a fifty per cent vote—which necessitated a second vote being polled. On the second ballot he polled 158 votes which gave him a majority over the nearest competitor of 37. Major Tolmie received 121 votes and J. C. Elliott, 24. When it was announced that Mr. Dewart was the successful candidate loud cheers greeted him as he stepped on the platform.

UNION A MENANCE TO PROTECTION

J. H. Burnham, M. P., Says That There Must Be No Compromise With the Fiscal Policy of Canada.

M. J. H. Burnham, M. P., who is in Peterborough for a few days from Ottawa, said to the Review, today: "You asked me what I think of the determination of the Unionist caucus to form a permanent Unionist party. I may say that I am a moderate protectionist but a protectionist all the same and will not support any compromise with free-traders even for the purpose of providing a way of escape for the Liberals who bravely joined up politically for the period of the war.

A Unionist party without Crerar, Clark, Fielding and Pardee is not worth discussing except for the danger it may do to the trade policy of Canada. People who are ready to give up their principles are not desirable and if they retain these principles sometimes they are even less desirable. A Unionist party in Canada is not like a Unionist party in Britain where both parties agree on the foreign and domestic policy.

I had hoped that Sir Robert Borden would go to London and that Sir Thomas White would lead a sound protectionist Canadian national party. I can find few here who differ from me in the above views. I am afraid I can already hear the sound of the breakers.

LOCAL LIBERALS SHOW SIGNS OF REVOLT

Rank and File Refuse to Accept Hartley Dewart as Leader—Toronto Globe Editorially Throws Him into the Air.

There are signs of rebellion in the ranks of the local Liberals today. The election of Hartley Dewart to the leadership is by no means acceptable to the leaders. Even the members of the party who are irrevocably opposed to prohibition believe that a fatal blunder has been made in the selection and that the result will be the alienation of those who have stood and still stand for the Ontario Temperance Act, and not only for that but for national prohibition as well.

One of the most prominent and ardent Liberals in the city, a man who has supported the party in every contest by moral and financial assistance, declared today that he would never accept Mr. Dewart as a leader and that he would not consent to sit on the platform with him if the new chieftain ever appears at a public meeting in this city.

One of the local delegates to the convention received a double shock. The first was the triumph of Mr. Dewart over Major Tolmie. The second and no less serious was the fact that apparently just as many lady delegates supported the one as the other. That delegate is a friend of equal suffrage and had always hoped that women with the ballot would help purify politics and support all social reforms. The vote was, of course, by ballot, but from the feminine applause accorded the two leading candidates, it was not hard to form an approximate idea as to how the new voters divided their support.

One local Liberal said today that there is no certainty that Mr. Dewart will be the permanent leader. The action of yesterday may be revoked as a result of the general protest that is certain to arise. In fact, another convention may be called and a new leader chosen by those who cannot accept Mr. Dewart.

Renounced by The Globe.

The Globe practically repudiates Mr. Dewart as leader in the following editorial in today's issue:

The Globe of August 22, 1916, commenting upon Mr. Hartley Dewart's election in Southwest Toronto, acknowledged his abilities and capacity for public service, adding:

"The Globe, in loyalty to its own record and to its duty as a public journal devoted to progressive Liberalism, deemed it proper to withhold its complete endorsement of Mr. Dewart's position during the campaign."

This qualification was prompted by Mr. Dewart's attitude toward the Ontario Temperance Act. He reserved his right of personal judgment on that measure "should emergent circumstances bring it again into the arena of parliamentary discussion and action." The liquor issue was injected into the Southwest Toronto bye-election when the Government candidate, Mr. Norris, advocated the granting of beer and wine licenses and received the endorsement of the Prime Minister, in a moment of backsliding. Those agile opportunists, Messrs. Lucas and Ferguson, then as now in the Cabinet, assured the electors that a victory for Mr. Norris would be a signal to the Government that it had gone too far in abolishing the bar. Temperance Liberals were disappointed because this challeneg was not taken up by a Liberal candidate. Probably the majority of them agreed with the view expressed by the Globe at the time: "Speaking for itself, and itself alone, the Globe would prefer to support at the present critical time, when the success of the temperance cause is still in the balance, a straight temperance Conservative rather than a Liberal nominee whose loyalty to the temperance plank in the platform of the Liberal party is at all in doubt."

The "emergent circumstances" against which Mr. Dewart made his reservation did not arise in the Legislature, because the Government found later that the Ontario Temperance Act was its most popular measure, but the liquor interests will take care that the liquor issue is never long out of politics. It will be a grief to temperance Liberals, a weakness to the Liberal party and a breach with Liberal traditions if in the referendum campaign the Liberal leader of the Province is not found in the thick of the fray battling with the prohibitionists against the new onslaught of the liquor forces. If Mr. Dewart in 1916 was loath to say an approving word of so mild an installment of prohibition as the Ontario Temperance Act there is little hope that he will be other than a handicap to the cause, or that the enforcement of temperance statutes, should he become the head of the Government, would be more satisfactory than at present. The real sentiment of Ontario Liberalism, as Mr. Dewart will discover, was expressed in the courageous resolution, moved and seconded by women delegates, and adopted by a large majority, condemning the Senate in vigorous language for its rejection of the Federal Government's amendments to supplement provincial prohibitory laws.

EX-CROWN PRINCE OUT ON A LARK SAYS ONE BIG PARIS NEWSPAPER

But Council of Four Says That Until Further Advices Are Received the Reports Cannot Be Taken as a Matter of Speculation.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

The Hague, June 27.—Frederick William, former German Crown Prince, whose escape from Holland to Germany had been reported, was still at his residence on the Island of Wieringen in the Zuyder Zee this morning, it was officially announced here this afternoon

Doubts Arise

Paris, June 27.—Thursday's report of the escape of the former Crown Prince from his internment in Holland it appears from available advices, came from British official sources in Paris. The accuracy of the news apparently was accepted without question in Peace Conference circles. As hours passed without details of the reported happenings doubts arise that advices were correct. It was even suggested by one of the Paris newspapers that the ex Crown Prince had been out on a lark within Dutch territorial limits and that this had given rise to reports that he had fled into Germany. Until fuller cable advices are received however, circumstances surrounding the origin of the report cannot be a matter of seculation.

Hold Dutch Responsible

Paris, June 27—As the hours have passed without further denials of the escape from Holland of Frederick William Hohenzollern, some doubts have been created in the Peace Conference circles as to the accuracy of the advices. Nevertheless the Council of Four, newspaper state, has decided to call the attention of the Dutch Government to the grave consequences which might follow the former Crown Prince's escape, and to ask that watch over the former Emperor be increased in vigilence.

TROUBLE IN HAMBURG

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Berlin, June 27—The German Government troops ordered to Hamburg to surpress disorders there reached the suburbs of the city yesterday. The troops ordered immediate cessation of hostilities, release of all prisoners, and delivery of weapons.

STREET CAR MEN WILL NOT ACCEPT

ONTARIO RY. BOARD'S OFFER OF MAXIMUM WAGE OF 48c AN HOUR.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, June 27.—By a vote of 1,511 to 21 striking Toronto street railway employes this afternoon refused a maximum of forty-eight cents per hour offered by the Ontario Railway Board in settlement of the wages dispute which has resulte in a strike in the system since last Saturday night. The men are holding out for 55 cents an hour.

It is probable that other offers of settlement will be made, but hope of having the cars run this week was practically given up this afternoon.

Revolution In Hungary Put Down

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Berne, June 27.—A counter revolutionary movement in Hungary, during which a monitor on the Danube was seized by anti-government forces, has been put down, according to advices to the Vienna correspondents' bureau from Budapest.

EX-CROWN PRINCE PREDICTS ANOTHER WAR IN TEN YEARS

Says East Prussia and Silesia Will Never Consent to be Governed by Poland—Ex-Kaiser Plans to Leave Holland and Return to Germany to Anticipate Allied Action.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, June 27.—Former Emperor William is planning to speedily return to Germany before the Entente can demand his surrender from Holland, accordin gto Stuttgaart despatch to the Euberliner Zeitung. The despatch states that the Dutch Government, thoroughly approves of his return as the former emperor is "an unwelcome guest, and his presence in Holland is an increasing problem before that country."

Another War in Ten Years.

"After peace is signed, I will return to Germany to live on my estates in Silesia and perform my duties as a land owner," said the former German crown prince in an interview last week at Wieringen. The prince is also quoted as declaring that "East Prussia and Silesia will never consent to be governed by Poland. There will be another war in ten years."

Envoys on the Way.

Coblenz, June 27.—Foreign Secretary Mureller and Colonial Secretary Bell, the two German peace delegates on their way to Versailles, passed through Cologne at 9.45 o'clock this morning, a telephone message from Cologne reported.

Will Sign Tomorrow.

Paris, June 26.—While no official announcement is made regarding the time for the ceremony of signing the peace treaty with Germany, arrangements for the event are proceeding on the understanding that it will occur at 3 p.m. on Saturday. The Council of Four was in session this morning, perfecting plans for the event.

FURTHER EVIDENCE TAKEN IN HAVELOCK SHOOTING CASE

Coroner Holdcroft Is Seeking to Establish That Philip Yanoff Was the Man Shot in Quarry Camp Sunday Morning.

The inquest into the death of Philip Yanoff, which was adjourned from Havelock to the County Court building at Peterborough, was once more adjourned yesterday afternoon. Five witnesses were called, but as none of them could swear that the corpse which was brought from Havelock to Peterborough and sent on to Toronto was the body of the man killed at the Rock works on Sunday morning, the jury were unable to make any finding. Dr. J. Holdcroft, the coroner, adjourned the inquest to the Armstrong Hotel in Havelock last night in order to secure the evidence of Mr. Curtis, the undertaker.

Dr. A. S. Thompson, of Havelock, the first witness, objected to an oath and made a declaration instead. He said that he had been called to the undertaking rooms of Mr. Curtis on Monday to conduct a post-mortem examination on the body of Philip Yanoff. He made a thorough examination of the body, assisted by Dr. S. P. Ford, of Norwood.

"Had you ever seen the victim before?" asked Crown Attorney Hatton.

"Not that I remember."

"What would you say was the cause of his death?"

"Internal hemorrage due to a bullet wound in the right lung."

"Did you find a bullet?"

"Not then, but after the corpse was brought to Peterborough the bullet was discovered by an X-ray examination."

The bullet was then produced in court by the doctor. It was the ordinary sized bullet used in revolvers, copper-jacketed with a nickel coating. Dr. Thompson then produced a diagram showing the course of the bullet from where it entered the back of the neck at the left side to the seventh rib on the right side. It passed close to the spine in a sloping direction, passing through the upper right lobe of the lungs, and after smashing the sixth rib was found embedded in the seventh.

Dr. S. P. Ford, of Norwood, corroborated his evidence as far as the post-moratem examination in Havelock was concerned, but he was not present at the X-ray examination in Peterborough.

Mr. W. H. Connor, the carpenter foreman, was then called. He heard the racket about 4 a.m. Sunday morning and rushed over to the bunkhouse. There he found Philip Yanoff lying on his bed, his lips were moving slightly and he was about dead. The other workmen were standing around him. The body lay at the bunkhouse all day Sunday and was not brought into Havelock until Monday morning when Mr. Curtiss, the undertaker, went out for it in his automobile.

[illegible]er Coronoff was the next witness called, and as his English vocabulary was extremely limited, Abraham Low, the grocer at 262 Simcoe street, was called in as an interpreter. They held conversation, but at the conclusion Coronoff said he didn't know what the interpreter was talking about and started to give his evidence in his own way.

"All men sleep—". Here he was interrupted by Coroner Holdcroft who tried to find out if he understood the nature of an oath. Holding up a bible, he said, "Do you know what this book is?"

"Yes; good book."

"Now," continued the corner, "when you hold this book in your hand you promise to tell the truth and not lie. Do you understand?"

"True talk, not lie," replied witness, nodding his head. His evidence was then taken.

"How long have you been in this country?"

"Five years."

"How long did you work at the quarry?"

"Three weeks this year, and two and a half months last summer."

"Did you know Philip Yanoff?"

"Yes, well. His farm and my farm five minutes' walk," he exclaimed with appropriate gestures of his hands. "Leave Macedonia, come here. That night, everybody sleep till gun shot Philip. Everybody get up look, see men with guns pointing for every heart."

"How many men were there?"

"Five men, five guns, maybe some have more. Men shoot Philip, in ten or fifteen minutes he's dead."

"What did these men have on?"

"Pull cap down and black cloth pull up on face."

"Could you identify them again?"

"No."

"Who fired the shot?"

"Everybody sleep, no see who shot gun."

George Manoff was called but was not sworn, as he did not see the body at Havelock.

The missing link in the chain of evidence as obtained by the Crown consists in proving that the man who was shot at the quarries is the same man on whom the post-mortem examinations were held in Havelock and Peterborouh. None of the witnesses had seen him at both places, and an appeal was made to the jurors to resign their positions and come into the witness box. None of them

THE NEW LIBERAL LEADER.

HARTLEY DEWART has been chosen leader of the Liberal party in Ontario. The faithful are reverting to their former habits. The party porker that Newton W. Rowell attempted to wash has resumed its old time favorite pasture. The object of the Liberals in selecting Mr Dewart is too transparent, the reversion to type is too palpable, to deceive any one. The party is simply reverting to the policy that kept them for years on the ragged edge of office, just far enough from the precipice to delay the moment of final destruction.

No one questions the ability of Mr. Dewart. Neither is there any doubt as to his attitude on the great social problem that will be the outstanding question of public interest until the result of the referendum to be taken in October is known. Mr. Dewart's election in a Toronto riding on the Liberal ticket was for him a fortunate accident. Such a combination of circumstances is not likely to occur again in a lifetime. In a constituency in which the majority of the voters are or were of foreign extraction, if not of actual alien birth, he was selected as a protest against the adoption of the Ontario Temperance Act. From the very first, by reason of his outspoken opposition to that measure, Mr. Dewart was acclaimed as the future leader of the party the one Moses to lead the Liberals back into the Canaan of office.

There never was a sincere attempt to regulate the liquor traffic in Ontario until Sir James Whitney was elected premier. He tightened the reins of control in every direction. The local option legislation was amended so that once a municipality adopted prohibition to that extent the measure was more than likely to be permanent. The hours of sale were shortened, and on a number of days the sale of liquor was prohibited. Sir James Whitney was a man of his word, and he told the people that he would pass a prohibitory law for the entire Province just as soon as he received from them a mandate.

Unfortunately for this Province, Sir James Whitney was not alive when that mandate was given. But his successor in office implemented the pledge of his deceased chief, and Ontario was made dry for the duration of the war. The temperance question is in the next election to be the paramount issue, no matter whether that election be held this year or two years hence. The country is now clearly divided into two camps.

This latter fact becomes apparent when the vote for the appointing of a leader is considered. Mr. Dewart's chief opponent was Major J. C. Tolmie, a clergyman, who for over twenty years was in charge of the leading Presbyterian Church in Windsor and who was sent to the Legislature from that city because of his pronounced temperance views. He holds those views today, and this accounts for his presence in the race for the leadership. He lost because in the convention his followers happened to be in the minority.

But this is no assurance that the people who see eye to eye with Mr. Tolmie are numerically inferior the Province over. The convention at Toronto yesterday is no more representative of the Ontario electorate than the meeting of Liberals, with less than two dozen present, held in this city Saturday afternoon, was a representation of the riding. The delegates selected may have reflected the opinions of those who supported them, but that is as much as can be said of them.

A gathering of the old-time politicians in Toronto no longer represents an electorate that contains thousands of voters who at the next election will exercise the franchise for the first time and who had no part in the proceedings of yesterday.

As a specimen of political strategy the selection of Mr Dewart cannot be regarded as other than a blunder. His selection sets the party back into the old groove in which they were fast in the days when the late George W Ross moved heaven and earth and every available political machine in a vain attempt to save the fleshpots for his followers. The party that had an excellent chance to make a progressive move turned down its opportunity. It failed to placate in the slightest degree the factions that are disposed to get out of the party harness for other than purely sumptuary reasons. If a farmer of even moderate views on any leading question had been chosen, the party would have at least demonstrated its ability to perceive the trend of events. But the farmers and the temperance vote were thrown into the scales together against that of the liquor element and the result showed that the latter outweighed the other.

How can the Liberal party expect such party organs as the Globe and the Toronto Star to support their new leader, or any of the hundred and one newspapers in the Province that have preached prohibition since the first plebiscite was taken?

THE FORTUNES OF MINORITIES.

SIR LOMER GOUIN, Premier of Quebec, appears from this distance and from closer inspection to be neither a bigot, a provincial nor a partisan. He has been returned to power time after time with his hands stronger than ever. Many a leader would have been spoiled by the measure of popularity he has enjoyed, but Sir Lomer has stood the acid test of popularity. On the occasion of the provincial nominations he eclipsed all parliamentary records by having over fifty per cent. of his followers returned by acclamation. Election day gave him a following of sixty-nine as compared to nine members of the Opposition.

The people of Quebec of all shades of political opinion have confidence in their premier. His latest signal success occasions no alarm. The minority are not uneasy because they know from experience that their rights will be conserved. Even that staunch Conservative journal, the Montreal Gazette, says that Sir Lomer is a safe man, and that he has always been considerate of the interests of all classes.

There is a lesson in the situation in Quebec for the rest of the Dominion, and the breeder of racial discord again finds the ground cut from under his feet. The rights of the minority are not always in danger. The public records of that province are creditable to the controlling party. These show that since Confederation the minority have had in the Dominion Parliament ten per cent. of the representatives, or double that to which they are morally entitled if the members were elected in proportion to the population. In Ontario these figures have been reversed. The minority in Quebec have no grievances and no complaints. All they ask for is that outsiders shall not interfere on their behalf.

In the light of Quebec history, what becomes of the main argument against autonomy for Ireland, a measure of home rule that would place Ireland in the same position with regard to the British Isles that Quebec holds in the Confederation? The tenor of that argument is that the majority would ignore the rights of the few and that all sorts of strife would be engendered.

Human nature is pretty much the same the world over, and the masses in Ireland would, if given the opportunity, probably demonstrate that they are as worthy of confidence as are the majority in Quebec. Purified politics and big-minded leaders can work modern day miracles.

DOCTORS AND PROHIBITION.

SOMETIMES a zealous prohibitionist makes the charge that the doctors of Ontario since the adoption of the Ontario Temperance Act have become the bartenders of the Province. This is nothing less than a slander upon the members of a profession the majority of whom are quite as honorable as the high calling in which they are engaged. Why blame an entire class for the policy of a few? But it was ever thus. In the old license days it was the hotelkeepers and liquor dealers who were the targets for the shafts of the zealots. The majority of these kept the law strictly. A few violated it, and with some temperance advocates the custom was to condemn the whole trade indiscriminately. All men are not murderers because human life is occasionally taken by an assassin. All men are not thieves, even though arrests for stealing are of almost daily occurrence.

There are statistics in existence which show that ten per cent. of the doctors of Ontario have issued more prescriptions for liquor than all the other ninety per cent. combined. These figures tell their own story and should be sufficient to exonerate the physicians from all suspicion of commercialism in their practice, a charge which cannot be made either in the case in point or in any other branch of their work.

If it were an easy or comparatively easy matter to obtain liquor by the transparent artifice of a doctor's certificates, there would be less of the article smuggled into the Province and there would be fewer prosecutions and convictions for violations of the Act. The doctors of Peterborough are entitled to a clean bill in this regard. There have been no such disclosures here as have been made in other cities, and no practice of the kind could continue for any length of time undetected.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

THE LAW of supply and demand did not work out just right in the case of the Liberal leadership.

• • • • •

LIBERALS in convention, voting openly, endorsed prohibition, but elected their new leader by secret ballot.

• • • • •

THE LIBERALS have fair words for the farmer and the workingman, but more tangible appreciation for another faction.

• • • • •

IT IS THE PEOPLE who are in the saddle today, while the old-time party heelers are trudging along on foot in the rear.

• • • • •

MR. DEWART can plead by way of excuse that it took the original Moses forty years to get his followers out of the wilderness.

• • • • •

THE EASE with which Liberals make specious pledges is equalled only by the facility with which they break them later on.

• • • • •

"GERMANY proceeds with care," says a headline. Probably having learned by bitter experience that disaster invariably follows precipitate action.

• • • • •

MR. JOSEPH WEARING was a delegate to Toronto, but a man of Mr. Wearing's sterling principles can scarcely be expected to fall for the selection.

• • • • •

THERE ARE SHOALS ahead of every party leader. The drift of aliens in Canada back to Europe may interfere with Mr. Dewart's future success in his own riding.

• • • • •

"WHO STRUCK Billy Patterson?" is a question that has never been satisfactorily answered. Who mauled one of the murder suspects in the police station may be established by evidence at the hearing.

• • • • •

AND NOW THAT the hand of the German assassin against the flower of Canadian manhood has been stayed is the outlawed liquor from the United States and Quebec to be allowed free circulation in this country?

FOUR DEFAULTERS PAY THE PENALTY

FINES AMOUNTING TO $1,20 ARE LEVIED BY THE MAGISTRATE.

Though the Dominion Police were not able to secure the men they went after at midnight on May 5, this year they did secure a sweater coat with a bill from a Douro store in one of the pockets. These were produced in court this morning during the evidence of Constable Charles F. Lyons. He stated that after searching the house carefully at midnight they returned the next morning about 6 a.m. and saw a man run out from the barn and go across a ploughed field. Constables McBride and Rollo chased the man who flung off the coat as he ran, which Constable Lyons picked up. He took it to the father of the two men, who declared that he did not know who the fugitive was and did not recognize the coat. The bill, which was found in the pocket, bore the name of one of the men sought for. Each of the two defaulters was fined $350 and costs.

Another defaulter had applied for exemption through his lawyer, but the reply had never reached him. Instead it went on the files in the lawyer's office. $250 and costs was the magistrate's award. A fourth defaulter, who pleaded guilty, received the same fine.

Gathered Up the Wheat.

Twelve men appeared on the charge of having stolen property in their possession and nine of them faced an additional charge of trespassing on the C.P.R. On June 18 a car of wheat which was consigned to the Quaker Oaks Company of this city was damaged by a shunting engine while it was standing on the siding between Parnell and Chamberlain Sts. About 180 bushels leaked out of the damaged car, and several boys and men in the neighborhood took out small sacks and filled them up. About 32 bushels of this stolen grain was traced to its possessors, who appeared to answer the charges this morning. A fine of $1 and $8.10 costs was imposed on each case, and in addition, they were required to pay for the wheat at the rate of $2.20 a bushel.

Wheel of Delivery Truck Came Off

OUT ON HIS FIRST TRIP, OWNER NARROWLY ESCAPED SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

Within twenty minutes of the time he started out on his first trip with a new auto delivery truck, Mr Edward Conroy had an accident, which, but for the moderate rate of speed at which he was travelling would probably have resulted in serious damage.

He started out immediately after noon today with a load of furniture and while proceeding north on George Street the right hand rear wheel came off allowing the axle to drag along the pavement. The car was quickly stopped, and on examination it was discovered that the wheel had been put on without a nut to hold it in place, the nut cap preventing anyone from noticing the omission.

Fortunately the truck did not block the street cars and the damages to the brakes were speedily repaired, allowing it to proceed.

Direct sailings from Chicago to Liverpool via Great Lakes will begin this week when U. S. Shipping Board will despatch Lake Granby, 4,106 steel ship, over the new route.

Laws, Constitutional and Otherwise

(New York Commercial.)

It is not wholly surprising that in the multiplicity of propositions placed before the American Federation of Labor at its convention, some should slip through which upon closer study would be deemed unwise. Naturally, in such a large assemblage there are those of all shades of opinion, from ultra conservative to ultra radical, and some of the latter are able to offer resolutions appealing more to popular imagination than to good sense. For instance, there is the statement that "the power of our courts to declare legislation enacted unconstitutional and void is a most flagrant usurpation of power and authority by our courts, and is a repudiation and denial of the principle of self-government recognized now as a world doctrine."

Here is a confusion of ideas which it may be said, is not peculiar to the labor element, but extends even into the legal profession. It has been argued, for instance, that in England no such power exists, and that an act of Parliament, once enacted, remains upon the statute books until removed by the body which created it. Yet in all this argument the one great fact is lost sight of that Great Britain does not possess a written constitution, whereas the United States and every individual state does. The British constitution is an intangible proposition, consisting of judicial interpretation and precedent.

The United States Constitution is the bulwark of our freedom. The laws of the United States and of all the states must be passed in conformity with it. Of what use would it be if there were no power to declare that it had been violated? Laws have been passed again and again directly contrary to its provisions, yet if there was no power to declare this Constitution of the United States were withdrawn, chaos would result.

to be so the Constitution would be speedily become null and void. In fact, a legislature might pass a law to that effect, and upon the theory proposed, unless repealed by the legislature which enacted it, it would supersede the Constitution. Legislatures have been known to pass fool laws, some of them deliberately. There is, for instance, on the statute books of a Western state a law declaring it to be illegal "for any one to tie a politician to the tail of a wagon and drag him about town." It was passed during a lull in proceedings and was not intended to be taken seriously, but it happened that all the forms were complied with, including the presence of a quorum in each house, and the measure thus became law. In this case there is no question of its constitutionality, it being merely an example of the absurdities than can creep into legislation.

In fact, if the power to enforce the

He also expressed confidence that Communism would succeed in Hungary.

Editor Review: You have asked me my opinion about the cases under quarantine for smallpox.

Personally, I do not think it is smallpox, but have given the citizens the benefit of the doubt, and have placarded the houses and quarantined the cases.

Several of our local physicians say it is smallpox, and if it is we are liable to have an epidemic this fall, so, as the school term is over, I would strongly advise all children that have not been vaccinated lately to be vaccinated or re-vaccinated at once and thus possibly avoid considerable loss of time next term.

LESSONS IN RIGHT LIVING

By Dr. W. A. BRADY

The extreme low temperature of liquid air (347 degrees below freezing) does not necessarily kill microbes. Water derived from melted ice has been shown to contain living infusoria, rotifers and even worms. Some bacteria can grow and multiply at freezing temperature.

Cultures of typhoid bacilli do not give up the last ghost until they have been frozen for about three months.

In natural ice, however, most impurities are excluded as the water crystallizes into ice, but sometimes disease microbes and even visible masses of foreign matter are found in natural ice. Therefore it is important to protect from pollution any water from which natural ice is to be harvested and to protect the ice itself from pollution before it is harvested, and to see to it that no typhoid carrier or other person capable of spreading infection handles or delivers the ice to the householder.

Hutchins and Wheler reported in the American Journal of the Medical Sciences in 1903 an epidemic of typhoid fever in the St. Lawrence state hospital a few miles below Ogdensburg, N.Y., in which they were able to acquit the water, the milk and other sources, but found in the centre of the natural ice from the St. Lawrence river, harvested seven months before, dark brown masses which, examined under the microscope, teemed with bacteria, and from which both the colon bacillus and the typhoid bacillus were isolated by culture.

In spite of these findings, the evidence in the foregoing case was examined by Hill, another sanitarian, who doubted that the ice had anything to do with the thirty-nine cases of typhoid fever ascribed to it. Hill seems to consider ice a negligible source of disease. I think so myself, but Ido not like to drink iced water or anything else with ice in it. Typhoid bacilli are mean, low microbes with little regard for professional opinion.

Artificial or manufactured ice is made from water which has been boiled or distilled and hence sterilized. If there is a choice, the artificial ice is cleaner and safer than the natural.

Ice is ideal to cool things down to a degree that will delight the sympathetic nervous system. It is a bad, bad treatment to apply ice to the solar plexus direct, as you do when you down iced drinks.

How Not to Raise a Baby.

My baby is 13 months old and eats nothing but a soft boiled egg each day. Shall I wean her or nurse her all summer? She sleeps with me and nurses all night. She is very constipated. Is that because she is getting her double teeth?

"MRS. M. B. S."

The baby should have been weaned at least two months ago. The baby should never sleep with mother but in her own separate bed or crib, for the baby's health as well as for the health of the mother. The constipation is not due to the double teeth, but to the fact that the teeth are given no work to do. The baby should now be taking daily some well cooked vegetables strained through a sieve, some fresh meat broths, some cereal gruels, some fruit juice or a little stewed fruit pulp, and twice baked bread or stale bread. To wean the baby, give one less breast feeding every day, until in a week all breast feeding is discontinued. Then never again. And aside from a support for the breast, strictly adhere to the let alone policy, no matter what Sairey Gamp may threaten or advise.

Pellara.

"Please tell me how Bright's disease affects the system, what any one with Bright's disease should eat. And what is pellagra, and how any one should live to avoid it?

"T. H. T."

To answer your first question would be asking to sending your symptoms on trial, and when I wish a disease on a patient I insist that he have that disease whatever besides. Pellagra is a condition characterized by mental depression, obstinate stomach or other indigestic troubles and a peculiar skin rash in exposed parts of the skin resembing sunburn. Sore mouth and diarrhea are common. The cause is insufficient variety in the diet especially lack of daily rations of fresh milk, butter, greens.

Change Was Forced.

Ol' John Burroughs advises us that we must not always look for truth from the lips of a fisherman. In support, he cites this instance:

"Mistah Johnsing," asked old Ephraim, "what foh you call dat son of yoh's Izaak Walton when he was baptized George Washington?"

"Because, sah, dat rascal's reputation for veracity made dat change imper'tive."

If it is true that all philosophers are controlled by reason, logic and truth, then there are few philosophers today.

A RUSSIAN MARRIAGE

Involving a Local Custom of Proposal

By P. A. MITCHEL

Alexis Plekanoff, a young Russian of intellectual tastes, gave himself up so completely to study that his health was impaired. His physician advised him to live in the country for awhile, and the young man, not willing to be idle, bought a farm, intending to till the soil.

Alexis' farm had on it a dwelling house and other necessary buildings. He hired servants besides farm hands, for he was well to do and was soon devoting himself to raising produce with as much interest as he had previously shown in books. Nor did he, because he was city bred, keep aloof from his neighbors, but joined in their amusements, received them at his home and visited them familiarly.

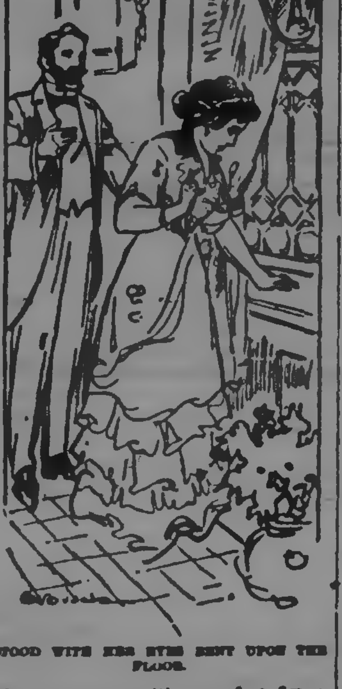
Soon after he was settled in his new home the people of the place where he had located assembled for a festival, which he attended. The exercises consisted principally of athletic sports—running, jumping and especially riding. The Russians are fine horsemen, and some of the feats performed at this festival were worthy of an American circus. There was also a dance in a barn.

Alexis was recognized among the country people for something better than themselves and was treated with great deference. One of the men approached him at the dance and said:

"If your excellency would like to dance I will introduce you to a girl whose parents, like yourself, came long ago from the city, though the young lady herself was born in her present home."

"I would be glad to be introduced to any of your girls," replied Alexis, "and do not doubt that any would make a partner not only worthy of me, but would honor me by dancing with me."

So the young man was introduced to Vera Troienako. She was a girl of nineteen years, with a perfect figure and a comely face. But what charmed him was a certain demeanor there was about her, a mingling of dignity and modesty. It was plain that she had come of different stock from the other girls of that region. Yet there was nothing haughty about her. She seemed to be friendly and companionable with them, though they appeared to recognize her superiority.



STOOD WITH HER EYES BENT UPON THE FLOOR.

Alexis asked Vera to dance, and she graciously accepted the invitation. She danced with a grace that made Alexis think her ancestors for generations had danced at the court balls at the imperial palace. Though she did not seem out of place here, she would not have been out of place there. Alexis danced with her several times during the evening. He would have danced with the other girls, but, whether or not the managers of the affair did not consider any of the others worthy to be his partners, they did not introduce him.

While Vera Troienako showed that breeding she could not conceal even if she would, she was a part of the community in which she lived. Her parents were past middle life when she was born. No one knew why they had come to that country, for they never gave any reason for leaving the city. That there was some misfortune attached to their coming was evident from the fact that they were very despondent. They had never mingled with their neighbors, but their little girl, who had no previous life behind her, fell in naturally with those about her.

One day when Alexis went to his home for his noon meal he met with a great surprise. Who should be there but Vera Troienako! She came forward to meet him with blushes and downcast eyes, the very picture of maidenly modesty. Alexis looked about, expecting to see her father or mother or some one else without whom he considered it improper for her to be there. Alexis' housekeeper, Maria Sasulitch, was looking on, vainly trying to attract his attention. Finally he turned toward her for an explanation of this singular proceeding, and she beckoned him to follow her. Alexis, after asking Vera to excuse him, did so. As soon as he was alone with the housekeeper she said to him:

"There is a custom of this country of which you are not aware, your excellency. Here it is the woman who proposes marriage to the man, not the man to the woman. When a woman wishes to marry a man she goes to his house and remains there till he marries her. If he refuses he insults her family, and if she has male protectors they punish the insult she and they are deemed to have received. In any event, the man who refuses the woman is scorned by the community."

"Vera has paid you the compliment of proposing marriage to you. If you refuse her she cannot be avenged by her father, for he is too old, and she has no brothers. But her father would not resent the insult even if he were young and strong enough to do so. He has never adopted our customs and is doubtless much displeased that his daughter should have adopted this one, so foreign to what he was formerly accustomed. But Vera is very dear to us, and should you refuse her all who know her would turn away from you, treating you as one who had insulted a woman they love and revere. It seems to me, your excellency, that you have a choice between two actions—either to accept the offer made you or go away from here."

It was some time before Alexis made any reply to this explanation. He was suddenly thrown under the influence of conflicting emotions. Following a custom which had been practiced by all her associates, there was certainly nothing immodest in Vera's action. She was a beautiful girl and beloved by all. Nothing would be more pleasing to him than to make her his wife. But, on the other hand, he had come to her country to remain only a few years, when he had expected to return to St. Petersburg. His father had brought him up with the understanding that he (the father) would select a wife for him, and Alexis believed that should he marry a woman who had been brought up among peasants and without his father's consent he would be disinherited.

What should he do? The girl who had proposed to him was waiting for his reception of her proposal. It seemed to him that since she had come there in accordance with the custom of the country he must either accept her proposition or turn her out. Of all considerations bearing on the case this ejection was the hardest for him to think of.

Alexis spent an hour alone turning the matter over in his mind. Then he resolved that he would go to Vera and explain to her that he had been brought up to understand that his father was to select his wife for him and he considered it his duty as a good son to abide by his father's decision. He went to the room where Vera was waiting for him. As soon as he entered she turned from him and stood with her eyes bent upon the floor.

"Vera," he commenced, "Maria has informed me of what I was ignorant, the meaning of your coming here. Your customs of this country are not our customs in the city. I have been brought up to recognize my father's right to select a wife for me, and I consider it my duty as a good son to abide by it, but"—

She bent lower and lower as he drew nearer what she knew was coming till now she was like a plant bent by the wind. Approaching her, putting an arm about her and taking her hand in his, he finished:

"Vera, I love you."

The nuptials were celebrated the same evening, all the people turning out to do the bride honor.

Alexis wrote his father, a prominent statesman, that he had married the daughter of one Troienako, who had come from Moscow and had lived for twenty years apart from the world of which he had formerly been a part. No reply came for some time; then one morning a sleigh drove up to Alexis' house, and his father alighted. Alexis was reassured when his father took him in his arms and kissed him. He also embraced Vera and said to her, "Come; let us go to your good father, who was my intimate associate in former years when we were both young."

Vera, delighted at the turn the matter had taken, put on her furs and, with her husband, got into the sleigh. Her eyes were moist when the two friends met. But she was to meet a much greater surprise.

"Count," said the visitor, "on hearing of my son's marriage with your daughter I made another and a much more important effort to induce the czar to grant you a pardon and permit you to return to that life in which you were once a shining light."

Drawing a parchment, he handed it to Troienako.

"What does this mean?" asked Alexis eagerly.

"It means," said his father, "that my old friend Count Nicholas Troienako became unwittingly involved in a political conspiracy against the present czar's father. Had the charge been proved against him he would have been sent to Siberia. As it was merely a case of suspicion, he was banished to this place. He is now restored to his title and estates."

The Plekanoffs and the Troienakos after that lived in the winter in St. Petersburg, where the young countess was much admired in the social life of the capital. In summer they returned to the country, where Vera renewed her life with the people whom she loved and who loved her.

Trouble With Father Time.

Father Time has got to move with the times. The daylight-saving system upset his equilibrium, and now he is to be regulated further by the twenty-four hour clock. The idea is quite simple.

Time will be reckoned from midnight to midnight, instead of from midnight to noon and noon to midnight, as hitherto. The hours on the clock of watch-dial will be numbered from 01 to 24 and the minutes of each hour from 01 to 59. There will be no need for the symbols "a.m." or "p.m." because the numbers will show whether a message has been despatched before or afternoon, or whether a train starts early or late in the day.

Thus: 12.20 a.m. becomes by the new time 0020; 4.50 a.m.—0450; 11.15 a.m.—1115. Noon becomes 1200 and after twelve o'clock midday the hours up to midnight are added instead of going round the clock again. For example: 2.10 p.m. becomes 1410; 5.50 p.m.—1750; 11.40 p.m.—2340, and so on. Midnight will be 0000 or 2400; but these figures will not be used, a message or despatch being timed 0001 or 2359.

The idea is by no means new. In fact it was carried out years ago on the continent, railway time-tables in France and Italy being all based on the twenty-four hour clock. Western Canada, too, has adopted the idea, but we had not regarded it favorably until lately, when the army decided that after September 30 the twenty-four hour clock was to be used for all military time. Adoption in railway time-tables is sure to follow and the system will no doubt come into general use as soon as we all become more familiar with it.—Tit-Bits.

Birds Used as Lamps.

It will be many months before there is a plentiful supply of oil for lamps, but there is at least one place in Great Britain where people don't worry about the supply of oil, and that is St. Kilda. There a bird called the fulmar is used as a lamp, for its body is so rich in oil that the St. Kildans merely pass a wick through its dead body and it is ready for use.

The oil is also one of the things exported from the island. It is found in the bird's stomach, is amber-colored, and has a peculiarly nauseating smell. In the island it is illegal to kill the birds excepting during one week in the year, but in that week eighteen to twenty thousand birds are destroyed.

Egg gathering is another great industry of the St. Kildans, and the ropes they use to help them in climbing the cliffs are made of human hair. These ropes have a strong hempen cord centre, drapped round and round with sheep's wool. Over this is a lining of horse hair, and finally strands of human hair. To manufacture such a rope is the work of years, and the St. Kildan women save their hair combings for this purpose religiously.

A curio collector who visited the island offered a very big price for a fine specimen of one of these hair ropes, but his offer was refused. The rope in question was the result of thirty years' collection from the heads of one family.—Pearson's Weekly.

Bestow Praise Generously.

Let us not be niggardly with a word of praise or encouragement as far as our own dear ones are concerned. The world will offer them neither—in fact, it cares absolutely nothing about them. Therefore, if we hope to bring out what is worth while in our children, or if we would make them truly happy, we must become their stanch allies. Otherwise, we are playing a losing game and can only look for defeat.

Writing Without Punctuation.

Chinese do not need punctuation or any other mark. It might be doubtful from the foreign point of view whether a language is possible that has done away with punctuation. The fact is, however, that punctuation is no longer necessary for Chinese. The characters, besides performing a function of their own, take over that also of the period, comma, hyphen, interrogation, exclamation mark, etc.

THE OLD FAMILY DOCTOR

(By Edmund J. Kiefer.)

He didn't wear a bristling beard
Or terrifying glasses;
By babies wee he wasn't feared,
He loved the lads and lasses.

He didn't have a mammoth six
To tote him round the city.
But he would help you in a fix—
Big heart that knew real pity!

He didn't tempt mortality
With knives of little beauty;
He asked no thousand-dollar fee
For doing just his duty.

He didn't write a brace of tomes,
He wasn't very wealthy;
But he brought cheer to many homes
And he kept people healthy.

Clarice: "Kitty married a man a good deal older than she is, so I hear."

Penelope: "Older? Why he's twice her real age and three times the age she says she is!"

A man seldom regrets the things he doesn't say.

Ostrich Walk Dance In "Sylvia on a Spree"

LATEST NEW YORK SOCIETY CRAZE IS FEATURE OF WEHLEN PICTURE.

Among other clever specialties introduced in the cabaret scene in "Sylvia on a Spree," the Metro play starring Emmy Wehlen, which will be the feature at the Grand theatre Today and Saturday, is the newest society craze, the ostrich walk.

The scene is laid in a fashionable road house on the outskirts of New York, and all the latest cabaret features are shown—the performers having been engaged from many of the most popular restaurants of the city.

Among the exhibitions are a Hawaiian dance, an Egyptian and Turkish dance, while a band of Nautch dancing girls give the performance for which they are famous throuhout the world. During the lulls in the performance the diners frequently rise and do the "ostrich walk"—the latest society favorite which has taken the place of many other hitherto popular dances.

The costumes of the restaurant guests, as well as those of the cabaret performers, are of the latest and most gorgeous description, showing many Paris models procured with much trouble for the scene of the lavishly staged picture.

"The Love Defender" Rapid Moving Drama

PLENTY OF ACTION AND THRILLS IN THE NEWEST WORLD PICTURE.

A rapid moving drama packed with action and thrills, is "The Love Defender," the new World Picture, starring June Elvidge which is showing at the Grand Theatre today and Saturday. The story tells of a young doctor, Frank Rodney, and his wife, Hope. Frank marries Hope under peculiar circumstances and when he is still in love with another woman. Some time after his marriage he decides that it has been a mistake. He asks his wife for a divorce, but she refuses to give it to him. Then the other woman presses him to run away with her.

It is at this point in the story that things happen at the liveliest sort of a rate. As a matter of fact, things happen at a rapid rate from start to finish through this drama and everything that happens is interesting and entertaining.

"The Love Defender" is the sort of a picture you will enjoy. It deals with the lives of people you know. It is jammed with surprises and is filled with real sentiment. It is, in short, a very superior picture of exceptional entertainment values.

A Torch of One's Own.

As Plutarch tells us, "It is well to go for a light to another man's fire, but not to tarry by it, instead lighting a torch of one's own." A torch of one's own! That is a possession worth having, whether it be a flaming beacon on the hilltop or a tiny taper in the window. We cannot tell how far a little candle throws its beams, nor who is laying his course by its flickering light. The most that we can do —and it is also the least that we should do—is to tend the flame carefully and to keep it steady.—Brander Matthews.

AT THE GRAND

Last night at the Grand a splendid new bill opened to a good house despite the extremely warm weather Two big feature pictures, a comedy and the ever interesting Screen Magazine make up the program which will be repeated today and tomorrow with matinees each day.

"The Love Defender," featuring June Elvidge, is a story of the infidelity of a husband and also of his return to the affections of his wife. The play is extremely well produced and some of the scenes are wonderful It is well worth seeing.

Emmy Wehlen in "Sylvia on a Spree" is the story of a young girl who wanted to see some Bohemian life and the amusing mix-up her curiosity got herself and companions into is very funny. Everything ends as it should finally and she is cured averring that after that she will stay at home and mend her husband's socks.

The Screen Magazine showed the different processes in the manufacture of chocolate and appeared to be of great interest to the audience

CHAOS IN IRELAND.

Sinn Feiners Have an Unrecognized Republic.

There are no signs as yet that the Irish factions will follow the advice of Count Plunkett, who said: "The Irish question can only be solved by Irishmen." An Irish republic has been declared by the extreme Home Rulers, but the new government remains quite unrecognized by the British Government.

Prof. Edward De Valera was elected first President of the Irish Republic by the National Assembly. According to the New York World, he was born in the United States in the early eighties:

"His father was a Spanish-American, whose wife was Miss Kate Coll, of Bruree, County Limerick. The elder De Valera died soon after Edward's birth, and his mother returned with her little son to her native town when he was two years old. The boy was educated in the Bruree schools and the Christian schools, Charleville and Blackrock colleges. After getting his degree of B.A. he became professor of mathematics, taught in Rockwell, University College, Maynooth, Belvedere, Dominican College, Eccles street, Dublin; Loretto College, St. Stephen's Green and Carysfort Training College for Teachers, and was Irish teacher at Tawin Summer College, founded by Sir Roger Casement."

He escaped the death penalty, when with other Sinn Feiners he was taken into custody by the British. A dramatic story of his escape from prison at Lincoln, England, attributed to Sean O'Kelley, Ireland's representative at the Paris Peace Conference, was told in recent despatches. These were followed by De Valera's own denial of the circumstances of his escape as related, issued from the Sinn Fein National Council, in which he said: "I don't propose to reveal how I got out, because other men will follow my example in the near future."

In an interview with Ralph F. Couch, United Press staff correspondent, which appeared in the New York Evening Sun, De Valera said that violence would be the only alternative remaining to Irish rebels if the Peace Conference at Paris fails to take steps to extend self-determination to Ireland. To quote him:

"We hope to avoid violence. It means bloodshed, deaths, courts-martial and perhaps executions. But if we have to fight again to gain our rights, if that is forced on us, we shall not hesitate. Ireland must have complete independence.

"We're going to win. I think every man in Ireland will be willing to back us in our demands when we make them. Meanwhile we have our government completely organized. We can take over the administration of our country at a moment's notice. That's what the Irish republican government was organized for."

Napoleon, as Propagandist, Tried to Control the News To Suit His Own Purposes

MODERN governments employ trained journalists to praise them in the public press. Napoleon Bonaparte tried a different scheme. He was his own propagandist and assumed all the duties and responsibilities which are nowadays delegated to a committee. But what a sad failure! At the beginning of his career he made no attempt to hide his intentions. "A Sovereign," he stated, "must confiscate public opinion and use it to his own advantage." Twenty years later, an exile on St. Helena, he dictated a few sad words of commentary: "My son will be obliged to rule with the help of a free press." Whatever his original ideas upon the subject, the great Emperor could not put them into practice until he had been appointed commanding general of the French armies in Italy in the year 1796. It was a time when freedom of the press ran riot in revolutionary France. Delivered from the restrictive laws of the old regime, every political party, every political leader, printed a little news-sheet of its own.

Napoleon wrote often to the directors and asked that steps be taken to protect his reputation. The Paris press, so he argued, was helping the Austrians and the Sardinians, and something must be done to counteract this evil influence. He suggested the foundation of an official newspaper, reflecting the opinions of the French Government. The directors listened patiently, failed to answer the letters of their commander-in-chief, and did nothing, until Gen. Napoleon, in despair, began to print his own newspapers. In the year 1797, the Courrier de l'Armee d'Italie appeared in Milan. A few weeks later it was followed by La France, vue de l'armee d'Italie.

The next year Napoleon transferred the scene of his activities to Egypt. As soon as he reached the shores of the Nile, the Courrier d'Egypte appeared, printed in Cairo, originally in the French language, but soon followed by editions in Arabic for the benefit of the native, who must be impressed by the glory and fame of the foreign conqueror. From that moment on Napoleon is master of the printed word in his adopted country. After the coup d'etat of XVIII Brumaire the freedom of the press was a dead issue in France. On the 17th of January of the year 1800 Napoleon restricted the number of newspapers that were to be printed in France to exactly 13. The others were suspended for an indefinite period of time.

Not contented with his fame on the field of battle the great general fought his quarrels on paper and concentrated his efforts upon a single sheet, the Moniteur. This journal was not a new enterprise. It had made its first appearance early in the year 1789 as an independent newspaper. After 1801 it became the defender and expounder of the Napoleonic theories of government and administration. It printed the official decrees and the official announcements and was to be found on the table of every Imperial office-holder. When a serious question was before the public, Napoleon himself wrote or dictated editorials and articles. As a source of inspired information the paper was never surpassed, not even by the kept press of Bismarck.

A little later the ruler of the French found himself in a bitter fight with the French cardinals and finally with the Pope. Then he started a publication strictly for home consumption, the Bulletin de Paris, followed shortly afterward by the Journal des Cures, which first appeared at the precise moment when all other clerical journals were suppressed.

Wherever the Emperor went he was followed by copies of his inspired newspapers. When the snow of the Russian plains and the tenacity of the Russian armies [illegible] turned his glorious Moscow campaign into complete failure, he [illegible] back to Poland, and from Wilna and Warsaw tried to influence French public opinion by short and crisp notes, telling of his plans for the future and lying gloriously about the actual conditions of the present. Not until he had left French soil did his activity as a newspaper man cease. And when he returned from Elba he resumed his work as unofficial editor-in-chief of the old Moniteur. For 100 days Europe was obliged to read this official organ if it wished to know what the hated Corsican had to say upon all subjects from war to the administration of museums and the final destiny of conquered provinces.

The suppression of news was maintained at all hazard, but even Fouche and his spies could not prevent the ultimate spread of the truth. And two days before his death (May 3, 1821) Napoleon confessed that he had been wrong. "I tried to give France liberal ideas, but I failed. In the beginning I felt that I was obliged to suppress news. Afterward it was too late"—a commentary which ought to have served as a warning to all who have since flattered the French Emperor by an imitation of his most unsuccessful and disastrous methods.

Your Eyes on the Goal.

The runner who looks over his shoulder to see whether his rival is gaining on him, is pretty sure to lose the race. Keep your eye on the goal. The backward look means lost time, whatever sort of race you are running. The things behind you do not matter. All that concerns you is on ahead.

Seemed Like Wasted Time.

Markets for a short time during the war were not doing any delivering. Mary, age five, one night at bedtime was saying the Lord's prayer. Coming to the part "Deliver us from evil," she exclaimed: "Mother what is the use of praying for that, they won't deliver a thing in this town."

After Being Relieved of Organic Trouble by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Oregon, Ill.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for an organic trouble which pulled me down until I could not put my foot to the floor and could scarcely do my work, and as I live on a small farm and raise six hundred chickens every year it made it very hard for me.

"I saw the Compound advertised in our paper, and tried it. It has restored my health so I can do all my work and I am so grateful that I am recommending it to my friends."—Mrs. D. M. Alters, R. R. 4, Oregon, Ill.

Only women who have suffered the tortures of such troubles and have dragged along from day to day can realize the relief which this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, brought to Mrs. Alters. Women everywhere in Mrs. Alters' condition should profit by her recommendation, and if there are any complications write Lydia E. Pinkham's Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice. The result of their 40 years experience is at your service.

EX-ALD. DOBBIN IS FLOORED BY QUERY

CANNOT ANSWER QUESTION PUT UP TO HIM BY ORILLIA PACKET

Says the Orillia Packet:—"Who is great Scott?" The editor of the Peterborough Review himself a Mac—with the modesty one is accustomed to associate with his race, says the question is an easy, since all Scotts are great. Mr. F. H. Dobbin, Peterborough's Encyclopedia, also kindly takes up the Packet's challenge, and make answer in another column.

Ex-Ald. Dobbin's Answer

Ex-Ald. Dobbin's article in this week's Packet is as follows:

The Review reprints your enquiry "Who was Great Scott." Hanged if I know. The phrase is an interjection, just as one other was in common use years ago, "Moses Oats." Now we were able to place Moses for he was a distant personality. He was much anathemised for a prodigious quantity of bad weather. Possibly deservedly. Who knows? Here are a few others, in kind. And it may be added that the definition of who was Great Scott rests among other unsolved problems, as for instance:—"Who was Tichborne Claimant." We were, at the time, told who he should be, but the combined legal talent of England and the House of Lords thrown in couldn't tell.

"Where was Moses when the candle went out?" Never, my dear sir, satisfactorily explained. As none of the immediate relatives of Moses are around for consultation the matter is one of conjecture. Positively a problem for theological interpretation. Suppose we hand it to one of the Conferences, now in session, to wrestle with along with that other pertinent inquiry shall the Methodist Book Room be run for profit, for fun, or for the Glory of the Church.

"Who struck Billy Patterson?" There you have a puzzle with a distinct antique flavor. To a mature judgment, same as yours, it appears to be a political problem, for it grew out of an election row. Who was Patterson anyway? And for what was he welted? Who administered the punch? Was it effective? It must have been so for the outrage has lived in history, from, well, from away back. Long before the Fenian Raid, and goodness that's long enough.

Then there is another hiatus. "Who pied the nonpariel Grecian Antique cap case." This interrogation was one frequently and insistently howled by the foreman when I was a cub printer in the first year of my academic course. It seems to me that it is one entirely typographical, and while never settled and loaded off on to any one hand, may be left to the Soviet in your printing office to settle. Possibly the members wish to bust into controversy.

On calm reflection I would, if I were you, send your enquiry on to Dave Williams, of the Collingwood Bulletin. He is an alumni of some Historical Association or other. Very capable on rocks and bones and queer said-to-be stone implements. Williams, I am sure from what he hasn't told me, can see battle-axes and stone hatchets and skinning knives all along the King's highway where any plain general-purpose citizen would only find fragments of the palaeozoic age.

Say. One never knows where he may strike a fish. Why not get after George Laidlaw, of the Fort, on Balsam Lake? Laidlaw is a very Demosthenes when it comes to real antiques. He's fed up on them and prospers, which is something no fellow can understand. He takes the aborigine to his heart. He hails a real weather-tanned, wrinkled and entirely attenuated Indian as a blood brother, and has him ticketed docketed and enshrined in the archives before one can say Jack Robinson or Sam Hill.

But look here. Who the mischief was Sam Hill, anyway? "Who the Sam Hill" was Sam Hill? let me repeat.

I leave the enquiry in your hands. Go to it.

Oppose Constant Change In Styles

LOCAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN TAKE STAND ON DRESS QUESTION

—Regina, Sask., June 27.—Before the final adjournment the National Council of Women passed a resolution on the subject of women's dress:

"Resolved that in the interests of health, morals and thrift, this convention shall appeal to the women of the Dominion to oppose the constant changes in the fashions and styles in dress; and further, that they shall make every effort to adopt a dress of quiet and artistic character for use in their business life."

Next year's meeting will be held in St. John, New Brunswick.

A motion which was passed unanimously was that the National Council of Women endorse the use of the union label on its year book and all stationery. This was in response to the address on the subject made by three members of the International Typographical Union.

Sixty-five resolutions in all were put through by the National Council of Women at the Regina meeting.

One of the last of the 65 was that the Government be permitted toe the Government be petitioned to forbid the publication of all papers in foreign languages unless translated in parallel columns in either of the official languages of Canada. There was a recommendation that Provincial Governments make a survey of the mental defectives in the Provinces, and that these be segregated on small farms.

The National Council of Women will continue the system of allowing delegates to carry votes from societies which are not sending delegates themselves to the annual Council of Women's meetings. Three divisions were taken last night on clauses concerning this subject. They were lost on a vote by a single ballot. As a majority or two-thirds was required before any change could be made in the constitution or by-law, the motion for doing away with the proxies was lost.

He Felt Guilty.

Mrs. Pickett—Sometimes I think that Darwin was right.

Mr. Pickett (startled)—Great cats! What have I done now?

The Lawyer Approved.

A young gentleman appeared before a lawyer in a great state of excitement.

"Jones called me a liar, a scoundrel and a puppy. What shall I do about it. Would you advise me to fight for that?"

"By all means," answered the lawyer, "there is nothing nobler in this world, young man, than fighting for the truth."

Extensive improvements are planned in City Hall Park, New York, including removal of Post Office Building and home of Federal Courts.

BOY SCOUT NOTES

The Scout's duty is to be useful and help others.

On Monday, June 30, at 7.30 p. m., the Scouts will hold their first general march around the city and help boost the exhibition and carnival. Every boy scout turn out, bugles and drums with those who have them.

On Tuesday, July 1st all will parade to the Fair Grounds. Boy Scouts must be in parade to go in free. Both parades will start from the armouries sharp on time.

The Honor Contest Tickets are now being given out. The public is asked to buy tickets from the Scouts and help them to get a camp outfit to be used by all Peterborough Boy Scouts.

Twelve boys will take the tickets each night at the shows. Now for one big celebration of peace and a bigger Peterborough Fair.

HOUSE OBJECTS TO SENATE'S ACT

RETURNS AMENDMENT TO PROHIBITION BILL BY 105 TO 34.

Ottawa, June 27.—By the overwhelming vote of 105 to 34 the House rejected today the Senate's amendment to the prohibition bill this morning and stood by its guns. There was a solid Government front, while ten Opposition members voted with the Ministry. The Quebec members voted almost solidly against prohibition. The cross benches voted with the Government.

The vote itself caused considerable amusement, the Opposition members singing a French song, "I Want a Little Drink," while the Government supporters responded with the refrain, "How Dry I Am."

MOTOR BOAT MEN SHOULD SET PACE

MONTREAL GAZETTE CALLS ATTENTION TO TRENT CANAL AS HIGHWAY

The Montreal Gazette asks the motor boat owners of Canada to use and so popularize the new waterway that is opened up by the Trent Canal. The Gazette says:

What a change. In days of old with early spring, Montreal and Quebec saw the harly coureur-debois start on his long journey for furs in canoes up the Ottawa River, then issuing on the Georgian Bay from the French River. Skirling along the north shore of the bay behind Manitoulin Island, Sault Ste. Marie was reached and the interchange of goods took place for the splendid furs trapped by the Indians. I think of the long days of arduous paddling, the carrying over long portages and the well-earned nights of repose, stretching the trip both ways into months.

Today, how different the splendid and swift motor boat can leave Montreal and run up to Lake Ontario through the charming Thousand Islands and entering the Trent Valley canal, in a short time, find itself on Lake Simcoe. Verily doth time work wonders. A committee of senators and members interested in the route are campaigning for the publicity of the route and with the following inducements ask motor boat enthusiasts to blaze the way this season.

Take the Trent Valley Canal at Trenton on north side of Lake Ontario, thence, to Lake Simcoe.

Least draft of water—6 feet.

Locks open on Sundays at certain hours.

Length of locks between hollow quoins, 134 ft.; width, 33 ft.

Telephone, telegraph system and good hotels allong the route.

Take your party by automobile to Lake Simcoe, let another party proceed by motor boat to Lake Simcoe, then change and each party have the two trips.

From Lake Simcoe, south side, run into Toronto by Radial and see this fine city.

The route for the swell yacht, the medium-sized one, and fine for the husky boys who can camp along the way.

See at Peterborough the highest lift lock in the world—65 feet.

See fine progressive towns and beautiful farms en route.

Good fishing on the way.

In 1920 your motor will be able to go throught o Georgian Bay.

See immense electrical power plants on the way and the industrial results with large manufacturing concerns.

Come up from Quebec over this grand water system with your boats and stir up a reciprocity from Ontario with your brother motor boat enthusiasts to go down and see the beauties of the magnificent St. Lawrence River and your cities.

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat Less Meat, Also Take Glass of Salts Before Eating Breakfast

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy, the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad. Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irratation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which every one should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

As to Snobs.

The true gentleman and the true gentlewoman are always above snobbery. The glitter and glare of wealth, the vulgar show of money, the display of possession—these are not the evidences of real superiority. Character and true worth are the only standards by which men and women can be judged, whether they be rich or poor. And, as for snobs, why, may heaven save us from them.—Exchange.

First Automobile.

There has been considerable discussion as to who built the first automobile, but it is generally admitted that no one man can be given the credit, as the automobile is the result of work along the line for more than three centuries. The first horseless carriages, as they were called, were very crude and quite unlike the modern automobile.

LACE IS IN VOGUE

Decoration Promises to Be in Demand This Spring.

Coming Season to See Revival of Trimmed Batiste or Lawn Frocks Necessary to Women.

Are you aware of the fact that we are about to experience a revival of interest in lace?

Doubtless this has been brought about in part by the men and women whose business interests center in the sale of lace. Moreover, writes a correspondent, it is again possible to get laces that were unavailable during the war. The revival of lace will mean that numerous women of Europe will have a means of earning a living; that we can help them to help themselves during reconstruction.

Real laces will be especially in demand, and this is in keeping with the revival of interest in all hand-wrought fabrics and tissues. But we are not going to be content with the old-time mode of applying lace, which was too often stiff and prim.

Designers are going back to the lavish method of the Renaissance, when ecclesiastics combined the most costly of laces with the most gorgeous of embroideries and silks in the vestments worn on great festivals, and to the great court ladies of those days, who vied with the great prelates in their lavish use of lace and brilliant fabrics.

The prediction is made that this spring will see a revival of the sort of lace-trimmed batiste or lawn frocks that we used to regard as indispensable to every woman's wardrobe. If made by hand they require days and days of work, and if by machine actually miles of fine stitching. There are yards and yards, moreover, of lace insertion, and sometimes innumerable tucks. The result is a frock that is perennially fresh, for if it is not made to go in the tub, it is at least capable of being cleaned repeatedly.

Colored sheer cotton fabrics are used in the advance models for frocks and blouses, and instead of using white lace on these many of them show valenciennes that has been tinted to match the fabric with which it is used.

Although in most of the new frocks for evening and afternoon wear there is a decided lack of lace or other trimming to relieve the severity of the line at the neck, still it is said that this spring we will enjoy a revival of dainty neck laces—neck accessories, frills and jabots and ruffles. They will be worn with suits and day frocks, and will make use of a lavish amount of beautiful laces.

BRONZE NET EVENING GOWN

The above is regarded as one of the season's charming evening gowns. It is in bronze net, beaded in the same color.

PALE COLORS FOR THE GIRLS

Blue and Pink the Standard Combination With Maize and Mauve a Favorite Blend.

Pale blue and pink is still the combination for girls of eighteen; maize and mauve, another happy blend, with accordion-plaited foundations, also finds favor with younger women.

Silver metal lace allied with pale blue velvet ribbons and a posy of flowers are the suggestions for one dainty confection, with long wing sleeves and a many-flounced skirt. For a tall girl there's a dress pretty enough to tempt one to break the tenth commandment.

Of flesh-colored crepe de chine, the V-shaped neck is edged with net, while the sleeves are of georgette. The skirt is made of plain crepe de chine, three rows of pearl fringe giving the triple-skirt effect rather in favor just now. The piece round the waist is also thickly incrusted with motifs of pearl beads.

Another frock is of that romance-inspiring moonlight blue crepe, and the new trimmings are of pompons called les aenoties. Draped tulle is responsible for the sleeves, with scarf-ends held in by a charmeuse belt. On the corsage and top of skirt is a touch of beautiful embroidery.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.

Premier Venizelos Takes Place Among Aristocrats Who Championed Democracy

"THE greatest statesman at the Paris conference." This most unusual epithet was bestowed the other day on Eleutherios Venizelos, Premier of Greece, who represents before the world tribunal not only his own country, but also the unredeemed Greeks of the Aegean islands and the mainland of Asia Minor. It has been said before that no European country of modern times owes as much to the genius of one man as Greece owes to Venizelos; he was called "the best friend the Allies have in Southeastern Europe," and it may be added that if the Balkan peninsula ceases to be the sore spot of Europe and its peoples are to be relieved from the political, economic and cultural burden which has burdened them for centuries, it will be due to no mean extent to the vigor and foresight of the Cretan leader.

In one respect, at least, Venizelos belongs to that interesting group of statesmen which is adorned by names like the Gracchi, Julius Caesar, Fox and Mirabeau. Whatever differences of character and circumstance separate from one another these historic personages, they yet have one trait in common: They are all aristocrats who aligned themselves and became leaders of "the people," as against "the rulers." They were all democrats, in the particular sense this rather elastic term carried in their respective ages.

Like the rest of the Balkan states, except Roumania, modern Greece has no titled nobility. There are, of course, families of ancient standing and culture, considered patricians, as in New England or the South. Among these patrician lines that of Venizelos ranks foremost.

His grandfather emigrated to the island of Crete, and there, in due time, his father, Kyriakos, became a leading merchant. Here Eleutherios Venizelos was born, in 1864. Because of his political activities, the father was banished by the Turks. His education, therefore, took place mainly at Athens, where he graduated in law in 1880. He returned to Crete and soon became a prominent lawyer. At twenty-five he was member of the Cretan Legislature. He rendered conspicuous service in the revolution of 1890-92. In 1898 he became Minister of Justice, in which capacity he reorganised the laws of the island.

The story of his activities on behalf of the Allies in the Great War is familiar to all, but in order to understand Venizelos, it is necessary to understand the genius and the inspiration of the man. The Premier of Greece is an aristocrat by birth. He has culture and a high intelligence, but he has chosen to use his wonderful gifts to further the cause of democracy. He believes in government by an enlightened people, and he is leading the Greeks along the road to idealism. No other nation can boast a leader who has done as much as Venizelos to form the minds of his people. That is why he stands out as a unique statesman.

Weimar.

Some of the German newspapers, and doubtless many of the German people, are puzzled over the selection of Weimar as the seat of Government. The idea is advanced that, the former government having lost national support, Berlin was held to have fallen into corresponding disrepute with the people generally, and the selection of Weimar was expected to win popular approval because of the city's literary and musical traditions. Berliners, however, could hardly have been expected to see it that way; and at least one dissenting journal, speaking for its own constituency, holds that it was the duty of the new government "to protect both the reputation and the political significance of the chief city of the empire." Any other choice would perhaps have aroused equal criticism; but whether or not it was with that intention, the choice was well made to remind other nations of German achievements in music and literature that the whole world justly admired.

Peppery Pulchritude.

"Is that why they say she's a raving beauty?"

LABOR POLICY OF THE LIBERALS

OPS THE PARTY IN CONVENTION THREW TO THE WORKINGMEN

Toronto, June 27.—The Ontario Liberals' labor proposals in detail were read to the convention by W. A. sebuca as follows:

"A general minimum wage for both men and women to apply generally to all industry throughout the Province.

"The appointment of a permanent commission to inquire continuously into the cost of living in various localities and from time to time, with power to increase the minimum wage to such a rate as will, under all conditions, provide a respectable living to all wage-earners.

"A law fixing the eight hour day for all industrial occupations throughout the Province, as applied to both men and women.

"Better inspection of factories and other industries where men or women are employed, particularly with a view to the protection of women and a more rigid enforcement of child labor regulations.

"A law prohibiting employers from compelling their employes to enter into agreements not to enter into labor unions, and a recognition of the principle of collective bargaining.

"Insurance against sickness and unemployment, based on the principles of the English law.

"Abolition of imprisonment for debt; the increase of the exemption of married men's wages from attachment from $25.00 to $40.00; the revision of the list of articles exempt from seizure for debt, so as to leave the actual necessities of home life.

"And generally in dealing with protection of men and women and the improvement of social conditions the committee recommending the following:

"Mothers pensions to be administered by the Department of Labor with power to provide medical attendance and necessaries, whenever required for the proper birth and bringing of children.

"The amendment [illegible] so as to ensure to a married woman a fair and adequate share of her husband's estate which he cannot will away from her.

"Better protection for deserted and ill-used wives.

The resolution was seconded by R. L. Brackin and unanimously carried.

Would Abolish Senate

Amid a scene of wild enthusiasm the convention adopted a resolution passed by the woman delegates last night advocating the abolishment of the Senate.

The resolution was not entirely unanimous but another resolution condemning the action of the Senate in regard to the Temperance Act legislation was unanimously agreed to.

No member, however, had any defense of the Senate to offer and the opposition to its abolition was confined to a motion to strike out the clause which was seconded without discussion and lost on the division.

JACK DEMPSEY'S SHORT REST HAS GIVEN HIM NEW VIGOR

'Battling Nelson Says That the Challenger Has Lost None of His Old Time Snap.

Toledo, O., June 27.—Revenge is sweet. Jack Dempsey, the challenger for Jess Willard's championship title, was smarting under the criticism cast at him Sunday because he allowed Big Bill Tate to put a few punches on his jaw. One time it appeared to the unsophisticated that he was staggering.

Idon't think Sergt. Tate wanted the crowd to follow behind him with the band playing slow music. When the champion stepped into the ring yesterday his hands were itching to wallop Tate, and, believe me, all his sparring partners earned their money. The young challenger gave the Jamaica Kid the finest going over he has had since he has been at Camp Dempsey earning his daily bread.

Following the Jamaica Kid's two rounds. Big Bill Tate was trotted in for his, and he got it good and plenty. After his first knockdown he got up, walked around like a drunken man and took another stab at the young challenger with his left hand and stopped one that put him down for a goal.

K. O. for Big Bill Tate.

While he was being carried out Dempsey called for his other sparring partner, Jock Malone, and he was trotted in for a couple of rounds, but Dempsey went easy with him because he was rather small, and there was just enough for the fast work and not the rough stuff. I guess the fans that started saying Sunday that Big Bill Tate could put Dempsey out whenever he wanted to changed their minds after they saw Dempsey work yesterday.

Willard was like a kid yesterday taking his vacation from school, because all the road work he did was in his touring car with Ray Archer and his trainer. Today he will be right on the job, working hard as ever, until a few days before the battle, in which he feels sure he will retain his title.

Jess a 2 to 1 Favorite.

Among the Willard fans Jess is a 2 to 1 favorite. Among the Dempsey fans Jack is the same kind of a favorite. Sunday, after Dempsey was bounced by Tate, he took rather a slump in the betting. By rights, Willard should be a 2 to 1 shot over the challenger, because he is champion and weighs fifty pounds more than Dempsey.

There was nothing definite done regarding the referee yesterday, but some time this week everything will be settled. All the wise Johannies are commencing to make book as to the selection. You can take a tip from yours truly that whoever happens to be the official he will have to be a man that is thoroughly honest, understands the game from A to Z and back again, can count ten in ten seconds and has the nerve to do the right thing at the right time. Also, one the public knows and has confidence in. As to a prediction, I prefer to wait.

Toledo Mayor at Camp.

Mayor Cornell Schreiber, who is a strong booster for all clean sports, is quite a baseball fan. He was pitching at Dempsey camp the other day. Although he does not know much about the boxing game, he thinks it is beneficial and likes any one who has the fighting spirit, because after all is said and done, the world is nothing but one fight after another and generally the best fighter wins.

Charley Barry, the old time Milwaukee lightweight, whom I boxed over twenty years ago, was a visitor at the two camps Sunday and was very much impressed by the way Willard went through his training. Barry said:

"Bat, I think the champion has too much weight and punch for the smaller Dempsey to overcome. Besides that he is rather clever and knows how to use both hands and is brainy at the same time. Something very unusual in a man of his size."

Another very interested spectator at the camp was Tex O'Rourke, Willard's old time sparring partner, who was with him when he won the championship from Jack Johnson. Tex says:

"Willard is not in as good shape now as he was when he licked Johnson, but before the 4th he will be as good as a racehorse."

Metal Workers To Return To Work

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Vancouver, June 27.—Independent of whatever action may be taken at the mass meeting of strikers the sheet metal workers will return to work at noon, according to a vote taken at a late hour last night.

PUBLIC GAMBLING PROHIBITED

Brussels, June 27.—No public gambling will be allowed at Ostend or at Spa this season. The Chamber of Deputies, by a vote of 81 to 41, has decided against abrogating the law which forbade the exploitation of games of chance.

CANADA WANTS MORE

Ottawa, June 27.—Formal notice of the bill to authorize further borrowing by the Dominion Government was given today by Sir Thomas White. It authorizes borrowing to an amount not exceeding one hundred millions, in addition to the sums now authorized but unborrowed, by the issue and sale or pledge of the securities of Canada. The purposes for which the money will be borrowed are set forth as follows: Paying maturing loans and obligations of Canada; carrying on of public works authorized by Parliament; meeting expenditures for general purposes authorized by Parliament.

JAPANESE OFFICIALS ARRIVE

Following wholesalers' increase from $6 to $8 a ton, Newark, N.J. retail ice dealers advanced prices to 90 cents a hundred.

HAS EVERYONE A CRAZY STREAK?

Blame it on the heat. Anyway—

"Who's looney now?" as a torrid controversy has nothing on the arguments that whizzed about Chicago when it became known that Dr. E. S. Southard, Boston Psychiatrist and president of the American Medical-Psychological association, in an address at the Philadelphia convention of that organization, said everybody is crazy and temperamental.

"Certainly," exclaimed Judge John Stelk when interrupted during a trial in the Speeders' court in that city. "Everybody has a crazy streak. These young loop hounds, who plunge through traffic in their machines at forty miles an hour, imperilling the lives of women and children—they're plain loco. Most people only show their crazy streaks under sudden stress of excitement or at emergencies."

"All wrong," snorted Dr. William J. Hickson, head of the city's psychopathic laboratory "To be crazy, you have to be born with 'bats in the belfry.' If you don't inherit nervous disorders there's no danger of your going insane. That Boston man would have everybody be oysters. Just because we're interested in some hobby is no sign we're crazy. 'Going crazy with the heat' is a silly and impossible situation. Pish and tush!"

"Sure, everybody's looney," cried Jack Jones, high factotum at the Dill Pickle club, where Chicago's long haired sculptor's short waisted poetesses and frenzied philosophers effervesce. His voice dropped to a whisper. "And while folks may rave about soulful women or soviet rule in the bridewell or hamburger steaks—it's themselves they're 'nutty' about, down deep inside."

Yacc Gershon, one time member of the Russian symphony orchestra shrugged his shoulders. He was plainly indignant.

"Just because one has the cleverness to be different—one's crazy," said he. "No, I don't think a temperamental man or woman is insane."

Here's Expert Opinion

"It's no sign people are crazy just because some are more warped than others and their families are different," snapped Stanislaw Szukalski, artist. Maybe you can get Stan's idea better when you're told he wears his chestnut brown hair in a floppity pompadour down to his shoulders, and girds his waist with a leather belt two feet wide.

So, don't let the heat bother you Dr. Hickson says you can't go crazy with the heat, and Judge Stelk says we've all got a crazy streak, and some of our village's best bohemians say we're loony and some say we ain't and—

Quick- The electric fan, boy.

QUAKER OATS EMPLOYES AT REVIVAL SERVICES

Excellent Musical Selections by a Double Quartette and by Choir of Over Fifty Voices —Mr Kennedy's Inspiring Address

In the report of the evangelistic campaign published in last night's Daily Review, it was stated that Mr. Kennedy divided his audiences by asking the Christians to stand. Unfortunately the word "never" was omitted. The statement should have read that Mr. Kennedy never divides his audiences in that way as he has no desire to make those who are not Christians and who attend the meetings, feel uncomfortable.

Evangelist H. D. Kennedy has little sympathy with those higher critics who deny the inspiration of the Scriptures and who do not believe in the doctrine of the atonement. This he made very clear in the course of his address last evening in the big tent on Hunter street, taking as his text a verse in Genisus, "If thou doest not well sin liest at thy door." He went through the Old Testament into the New and showed that the Old Testament sacrifices foretold the perfect sacrifice that was to come in Christ.

Some people claim today to be above believe in the "bloody" methods of salvation outlined in the Scriptures. Such people are not new in the world's history. In the time of Cain and Abel, Cain refused to bring a blood sacrifice, but brought the products of the earth, instead. Abel by faith offered a more excellent sacrifice in a lamb, which necessitated the shedding of blood. In doing this he conformed with the teaching of Scripture which state that without the shedding of blood there is no remission for sins. Therefore, his sacrifice was acceptable to God, while Cain's was refused.

All through the centuries men like Cain have been trying to devise other methods of salvation than that ordained by God. When men sin, and all have sinned and come short of the glory of God, they cut themselves off from God. God, therefore, has the right to state the conditions upon which they may be reinstalled in His favor. This He has done. We are told that only through faith in Christ's perfect atonement can any one find God. The trouble with Christian science, unitarianism, spiritualism and other similar teachings is that they set aside the atonement, deny the efficacy of Christ's blood and therefore refuse to approach God in the ordained way. Those, therefore, who accept these teachings are deceived by satan who disguises himself as an "angel of light" and they cannot find salvation in such ways.

Mr. Kennedy made a plea at the close for those present who had not found the Saviour to accept His sacrifice on their behalf and made the way of salvation very clear and simple. Several conversions were recorded, including those of a young girl of about sixteen and that of a man nd woman apparently in the sixties.

Musical Features.

A delegation of the employees of the Quaker Oats Company were present and occupied special seats. A special features of the service was the singing of the Quaker Oats double quartette, composed of Messrs. H. F. McKeown, James Spencer, C. Carruthers, O. Callender, A. Gillespie, G. W. Mulligan and C. McKee. Another selection that was much enjoyed was a quartette composed of Messrs. G. W. Mulligan and H. F. McKeown, and Misses D. Hartshorn and D. Rathbone. A third number that was very effectively rendered was a solo by Mr. Mulligan, entitled "The Sinner and the Song," with the choir taking part in a manner that represented the song that the sinner was supposed to hear. The musical features are a telling part of the services. The members of the Park St. Church choir lead the singing last evening. This evening the singing will be lead by the Salvation Army Songsters.

The subject of Mr. Kennedy's address to-night will be "Judas." This is to be one of his most effective addresses and always when he delivers it large crowds are attracted. The Daily Advertiser of Perry, Iowa, where Mr. Kennedy delivered this address, speaks of it as follows: "Mr. Kennedy has the faculty of clothing Scripture character in the language of the present, applying them to local conditions, the details of which are often startling, but the audiences always see the point. His sermon on 'Judas' was a master-piece. It might be termed a high-class sermon-lecture, that might come on a Chautauqua platform with a gospel application that grips the audiences profoundly."

The following are nuggets from some of Mr. Kennedy's sermons

FIVE DOCTORS ARE CAST OUT OF THE PROFESSION

Were Found Guilty by Medical Council of Violence of Ontario Temperance Act

The Council sustained the recommendation of the Disciplinary Committee in the case of seven doctors, at its sitting today. In all seven cases the charges were violations of the Ontario Temperance Act, and in each case the doctor was directed to pay the costs of the sitting of the committee. Following is the action taken by the council: Dr. Percy N. Gardner, of Windsor; Dr. Cherniak, of Windsor; Dr. R. Rheaume, of Windsor; Dr. A. Rupert, of Toronto and Dr. H. H. Moorehouse, of Toronto, erased from the register; Dr. D. McEdwards, of Hamilton, and Dr. Edmund D. Kelly, of Toronto, three months' suspension. A notice of motion by Dr. Stewart, of Fort William, expresses disapproval of the Ontario Temperance Act whereby, he says, the medical profession is made the medium through which liquor is conveyed to the public.

Toronto, June 27. — Disciplinary Committees of the Ontario Medical Council heard the cases of seventeen doctors, sixteen of whom were accused of breaches of the Ontario Temperance Act. Nine of these doctors were exonerated, while seven other cases were hld ovr until today. The doctors who were exonerated were Dr. James Anderson; Hamilton; Dr. A. V. Mitchell, Toronto; Dr. J. P. Rankin, Stratford; Dr. J. A. Bedford, North Bay; Dr. G. A. Elliott, Toronto; Dr. W. B. Hopkins, Hamilton; Dr. J. A. Langrill and Dr. A. S., Langrill, Hamilton; and Dr. A. B. Welford, Woodstock. Dr. E. Brunet, of Ottawa, was also exonerated on a charge of unprofessional conduct. The cases held over until today are those of Dr. E. P. Kelly, Toronto; Dr. Raymond Rheaume, Windsor; Dr. I. N. Cherniak, Windsor; Dr. A. Rupert, Toronto; Dr. H. H. Moorehouse, Toronto; Dr. P. N. Gardner, Windsor; Dr. D. McEdwards, Hamilton.

"Unsurpassed for crookedness and injustice" and "one of the most outrageous and vicious measures ever enacted in a civilized land," were phrases which Dr. A. Rupert of Toronto, used in referring to the O.T.A. during his defence of himself against a charge of unprofessional conduct. He claimed that 95 per cent. of medical men had transgressed the letter of the O. T. A. Dr. Rupert said that he lived in a section of the city in which there were 35,000 people. During the influenza epidemic, he was deluged with patients seeking whiskey and brandy, which had always been the standby in pneumonia and bronchial trouble.

"I believe that 90 per cent. of the people who were victims of the epidemic contracted it through the air," he said, "and if the old standby of the past had been whiskey and brandy, why should temperance cranks pass legislation which, for crookedness and injustice is unsurpassed, preventing people from securing these. There are men in the medical profession who have no heart. I claim that the ban should have been lifted during the epidemic, drunkedness fined heavily, and then after the need was over the restrictions could have been replaced. I believe 95 per cent. of the medical men transgressed the letter of the Act. Why should we, a respected and respectable body, be put in the position of having to defend ourselves in this way? I am a victim of circumstances, and I think men who have suffered under that Act should be treated with leniency. There is no more conscientious man in the dispensing of liquor than myself. I don't mind if you deprive me of the authority to issue prescriptions. It would be a Godsend and would relieve me greatly."

May Erase Names.

Dr. Rupert went on to claim that the Act was outrageous and vicious, and that if his, with other names, was erased from the register, others would take their places who could not resist the appeals made to them.

FURTHER EVIDENCE

could do so, and Coroner Holdcroft volunteered to furnish this evidence. However, as Mr. G. N. Gordon pointed out, he could not give evidence at an inquest over which he was presiding. The adjournment to Havelock in order to secure the evidence of Mr. Curtiss was the only way out of the difficulty.

The nine members of the jury are Messrs. George Hartin, Peter McMullen, Alfred Ferman, Jas. Clark, Wm. Daniels, Henry Riley, William Clark, Almon Deline and Everen Deline.

Crown Attorney Hatton appeared for the Crown and Mr. G. N. Gordon, who represents two of the prisoners, watched the proceedings on behalf of his clients.

The Jury's Verdict.

That Philip Yanoff came to his death as the result of a bullet wound fired by one of the five men who robbed the bunkhouse at the Rock works near Havelock on Sunday, June 22, was the verdict of the jury empanelled by Coroner J. Holdcroft. After adjourning to Havelock last night they met as prearranged, and heard the evidence of an additional witness, Charles Johnson. He saw the dead man at the Rock works between 4 and 4.30, Sunday morning, and identified the remaines as those on which the post-mortem was made the following morning. Mr. W. T. Curtiss was not called on to give evidence.

Twentyper cent of the Gross Receipts of Saturday goes Direct to our Co-Workers

Employees Day---Saturday, June 28th

The Distribution of Twenty Per Cent of our Gross Sales on Saturday to those connected with us in the building up and expanding the Cressman's Company's business is an incidental feature of the co-partnership idea being worked out by the Company. The sum distributed last year exceeded everyone's expectations. This year's we have no doubt will be very much larger
The Company is co-operating to an unusual extent. A special week's buying trip to American markets by our buyers, with instructions to plunge very heavily on bargain lots of seasonable goods, will give us selling numbers for this year much in excess of last year
Twenty Cents of every dollar spent with the Cressman Company Limited, Saturday goes direct to the Co-workers on Monday morning
Will you lend your assistance to good service by shopping early and carrying small parcels if convenient ?
An extra staff of sales people have been engaged and every effort will be exerted to make your shopping on this day, pleasant, as well as profitable . . . .

ANNUAL OUTING OF ST. JOHN'S CHOIR

USUAL PLEASANT EVENT HELD YESTERDAY TO BURLEIGH FALLS.

St. John's choristers and their friends to the number of over ninety spent a pleasant day yesterday sailing to Burleigh Falls by steamer Stoney Lake. Mine Host Mr. Dorcy prepared a fine meal, which met the approval of the party, which they voiced to both Mr. and Mrs. Darcey. Equally nice was the supper served on the boat by Coleman Bros., who. if possible, excelled themselves yesterday. Mr. Harry Long brought along with his genial self, some fine large water melons—both presence were enjoyable.

The Rev. Canon Davidson and many members of the congregation were among the invited guests who helyed to make a happy day.

Splendid arrangements for the day were made by Mr. H. W. Morphet and Mr. R. J. Devey. Boating, bathing and fishing brought the time for leaving Burleigh all too soon. Lovely weather prevailed until the return journey was well under way, but the rain in no way upset the arrangements.

Pleasant Function At Conservatory

One of the most pleasing musical events of the season took place at the Conservatory, last night, when Mr. Rupert Gliddon and teachers of the staff entertained the pupils and their parents at a garden party. A large number were present to enjoy the interesting program, which, owing to the wet weather, was given in the hall. The decorations, which consisted of pink and white roses, daisies and flags, were very artistic. The orchestral numbers were rendered with a spirit of stirr and rythm which bespoke excellent training. Miss Florence Scott. Miss Helen MacLaren and Mr. Asa Huycke contributed vocal solos, which added to the pleasure of the evening. Little Miss Agnes Logan, the conservatory's talented pupil whose playing is always an inspiration to other pupils, contributed two piano selections. There was a sun-bean dance by ten little girls dressed in pale gold chiffon, which was well received by the guests but worthy of special mention was the rainbow dance by the pupils of Miss Littlefield. This number was a marvel of grace and artistry, and delighted the guests so that they called for an encore of the unique performance. After this, a treat of ice cream and cake closed what all will remember as a very pleasant evening.

To The Music Lovers Of Peterboro

Editor Review:—Permit me through the space of your valuable paper to heartily recommend every music loving citizen to remain in Peterborough on July 1st, and attend the fair grounds, if only to hear the magnificent Huntsville Band. We should, as citizens, feel very grateful to the Exhibition Board for their enterprise in bringing to this City such a splendid musical organization, and I trust the music loving element of Peterborough will not be found wanting... let us show our appreciation by our presence at the fair grounds on July 1st, and eliminate the idea that Peterborough is not a musical city. Give our Exhibition Board the encouragement they deserve and I feel sure they will give us further opportunities of hearing such splendid musical organizations.

Thanking you,
Allow me to remain,
Yours faithfully
FRANK WHITEHOUSE.

GOLD WATCH CHAIN FOR MR. TRENEER

ST. ANDREW'S CHOIR TENDER BANQUET TO THEIR POPULAR LEADER.

Yesterday evening St. Andrew's choir held a banquet in honor of Mr H. C. Treneer, the organist, who leaves this summer to take further studies. After all had enjoyed the bounties provided, speeches were given eulogizing Mr. Trenee for his long and efficient service and the pleasure the choir and congregation had always had in hearing him play. Mr. Treneer was then presented with a solid gold watch chain as a token of esteem from the choir. Mr. Treneer made a most suitable reply in which he expressed his regrets at severing his connections with the choir. the kindness and friendship of whose members he had always appreciated and he hoped that St. Andrew's choir would go forward to greater things than had ever been accomplished in the past.

It is easier to float a rumor than it is to sink the truth.

OBITUARY

FATHER C. J. DUFFUS

There passed away in the city of Kingston, on Saturday, June 15th, after an illness of long duration, Rev. Father C. J. Duffus, highly respected and beloved by many. owing to having served in several parishes in the diocese.

Deceased was born in Otonabee Township March 8th, 1850, on the old Duffus homestead, 4 miles from Peterborough, on the Keene road, and received his public school education at what is now known as school section No. 8 Otonabee. He attended Collegiate Institute in Peterborough, and after finishing there went to the Seminary, and at the age of 23 was ordained priest in Kingston where he assisted the late Bishop Horan for some time. Subsequently, he was removed to Lindsay, where he officiated as curate to the late Father Stafford for some years. He also was parish priest of Kemptville. Merrickville, St. Raphalls, Perth and Kingston Mills, and some twenty years ago he took up the work of chaplain of the House of Providence in Kingston and remained so up to the time of his death.

The funeral took place on Tuesday morning, June 17th, to St. Mary's Cathedral, Kingston, where Pontifical High Mass was sung by his Grace Archbishop Spratt, assisted by about forty priests of the Kingston and Peterborough diocese. A very eloquent sermon was preached by Father Kelly, of Smiths Falls, a life long associate of the deceased. The remains were then removed to Peterborough. arriving here on Wednesday morning, and were taken to St. Peter's Cathedral, where Pontifical High Mass was celebrated by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien. assisted by Rev. J. J O'Brien, Sacred Heart parish; Rev Father Casey, Lindsay; Rev. Dean McColl, of the Immaculate Conception Church, and Father Phelan, of St. Peter's; Rev. Father Scott, of Kingston, and many others. The remains were taken to the family plot in St. Peter's cemetery.

The pall-bearers were eight nephews of the deceased.

The late Father Duffus leaves behind to mourn his loss. one brother, James, residing at 269 Romaine street, Peterborough; one sister, Mrs. James Woods, Tacoma, Wash.

He: "Do you think your father would consent to our marriage?"

She: "He might. Father's very eccentric."

CHUNG WOKI TUK KAAU OOI CHURCH UNION IN CHINA

An Object Lesson From the Far East—Swift and Decisive Action Taken by the Chinese Churches

The following story of the prompt and definite proceedings in China toward a union of various churches will be found interesting reading, and should encourage advocates of church union in Canada:

A conference at Nanking had last year agreed to a provisional basis of union between the Presbyterian and Congregationalist Churches throughout China, whether the missions from which they had sprung were American or British. The idea was to complete the union in 1920. On April 8 of this year the representatives of the Presbyterian Churches, those under the London Missionary Society, and those under the American Board, met for a Union Conference. By the time the delegates came together they found that another mission—the Unit of Brethren—wanted to join in. Mr. S. C. Leung, a Chinese connected with the L.M.S., was elected secretary.

The proposition that the churches of the American, Canadian and New Zealand Presbyterian Missions, the London Missionary Society, American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, and United Brethren Churches, should unite to form one church was carried with acclamation.

"It was decided" (writes the Rev. W. W. Clayson, of the L.M.S., Canton) "that the name should be Chung Wa Ki Tuk Kaau Ooi, or The Church of Christ in China.

"The decisions of the Nanking Conference were then discussed and in the main agreed upon. The only point on which there was any lengthy discussion was a most interesting one. These proposals left the position and privileges of the local church undefined and seemed to give undue importance to the District Association. The sturdy Congregationalists of the L.M.S. and A.B.C.F.M. churches had taken note of this, and wanted some sentence inserted making it clear that in such a union plan the autonomy of the local church was recognized.

"They soon found that on this point the Presbyterians of Kwantung were just as good Congregationalists as themselves, and it was left to the three officers to draw up a short statement making the point clear, and report at a later session. There seemed no need to wait till 1920 to consummate the Union, as all were of one heart and mind, so it voted 'to consider the present meeting a provisional Provincial Assembly, and to appoint a provisional executive to arrange for the formation of the district associations, with a view to holding a proper Provincial Assembly in July next, when the United Church should be formally constituted.' This executive consists of eight—one missionary, and one Chinese from each of the uniting churches.

"At the evening session the proposals to safeguard the autonomy of the local church were reported, and in everything it was agreed to leave the individual church to manage its internal affairs, save and except that in the calling of a pastor, after making their choice, they should submit the choice to the District Association and ask them to arrange for ordination.

"The meeting was fittingly held in the Morrison Memorial Hall of the Y.M.C.A. His spirit must have been there and gladdened at the sight. It is our hope" (Mr. Clayson concludes) "that as soon as this church is constituted a Home Missionary Society will be formed, which will take up vigorously the question of evangelistic efforts in the districts for which the United Church will be responsible."

TORONTO BREAD MEN TALK STRIKE

ARE ASKING SALARY OF $26 A WEEK—TROUBLE COMING MONDAY.

Toronto, June 28.—Housewives will have another worry added to their load on Monday. The latest reports are that the bread drivers will go on strike Monday following their employers' refusal to accede to their wage demands. The men ask for a straight salary of $26 per week and a discontinuance of the existing wage commission system. The wages now being paid run from $20 to $23 per week plus a small commission on sales.

The Usual Reply From Hydro Com.

IS GIVING THE MATTER OF FURTHER STREET RAILWAY EXTENSIONS CONSIDERATION.

Alderman Edgar, received this morning, a reply to a letter of his, to Chief Engineer Gaby, of the Hydro Electric Commission, of Ontario, enquiring as to what hope exists for an extension of the street railway, down the boundary, to Byersville, and from Albert street to the De Laval. Mr. Gaby, as usual, said the commission were giving this matter their earnest consideration, and he would advise Ald. Edgar, of any decision reached.

KAISER SHOCKED BUT SAWS WOOD

ATTENDANTS BITTER THAT WAY FOR EMPEROR'S RETURN HOME IS BLOCKED.

Amerongen, Holland, June 27.—News of Germany's decision to accept the peace terms, including the clause providing for the delivery of the former German emperor to the allies, reached the castle. Exactly how the former emperor was affected by the tidings cannot be ascertained, but the attitude of members of his party gives rise to the belief that the news was a considerable shock.

To correspondents attendants made the most scathing criticisms of the German national assembly for its action. Evidently, they had held to the hope that some way would be found for the former emperor to return to Germany. Now, however, it apparently is realized that he is exiled forever from his country.

The former monarch took up his customary log sawing at the usual hour.

MARKET NOT AFFECTED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, June 28.—Announcement of the signing of the peace treaty had little effect on trading in the stock market here today, except a manifestation of increased strength. Prices among leaders, especially so-called Peace industrials, had already scored gains of 1 to 4 points, in anticipation of the news. In financial circles generally, the announcement was received with quiet satisfaction, but without comment

DRS. MUELLER AND BELL, HUN PEACE DELEGATES REACH VERSAILLES

Dense Crowds Line Route Along Which Peace Delegates and Guests of Honor Passed to the Chateau of France's Greatest Monarch, Louis 14th—No Guard to Render Military Honors to Germans—Scene of Splendor Unexampled in the World's History—Seventy-Two Plenipotentiaries Present

HUNS SIGN TREATY AT LAST

VERSAILLES, JUNE 28.—THE WORLD WAR WAS FORMALLY ENDED TODAY BY THE SIGNING OF THE PEACE TREATY WITH GERMANY. THE EPOCHAL MEETING IN THE HALL OF MIRRORS BEGAN AT 3:10 O'CLOCK, AND THE GERMAN DELEGATES, FIRST TO SIGN, AFFIXED THEIR SIGNATURES AT 3:13. THEY WERE FOLLOWED BY THE AMERICAN DELEGATES, HEADED BY PRESIDENT WILSON, AND THEN BY THE PLENIPOTENTIARIES OF GREAT BRITAIN AND OTHER NATIONS IN ALPHABETICAL ORDER.

FORMALITIES BEGAN AT 10:30.

Washington, June 28.—The signing of the peace treaty was begun at 10:30 o'clock, Washington time. The official report of the State Department said that President Wilson signed at 3:14 o'clock, Paris time. Dr. Mueller and Dr. Johannes Bell signed at 3:13.

HUNS DID NOT DEMUR.

Versailles, June 28.—Premier Clemenceau put the direct question to the Germans whether they were willing to sign and execute loyally all the terms, and they answered in the affirmative. The other delegates did not arise when the Germans came into the hall.

ALLIED SOLDIERS CHEERED.

Versailles, June 28.—A few minutes before 3 o'clock fifteen enlisted men from British, French and American armies entered the hall amid decorous cheers. The Chinese delegates, shortly before the hour set for signing the treaty, reiterated their intention not to sign.

At 2:30 o'clock all the delegates were seated except the Chinese, who did not attend. The Germans entered the hall at exactly 3 o'clock. Premier Clemenceau called the session to order at 3:10 o'clock.

GEN. SMUTS WAS THERE.

Gen. Jan Christian Smuts, one of the delegates representing the Union of South Africa, signed the treaty under protest. He objected to certain territorial settlements, making a lengthy statement.

GREAT EPOCH-MAKING EVENT

Versailles, June 28.—The credentials of Dr. Hermann Mueller and Dr. Joannes Bell, German plenipotentiaries sent there to sign treaty of peace, were approved this morning.

Versailles, June 28.—The signature of "The Second Peace of Versailles," in the Long Hall of Mirrors in the Chateau of France's great monarch, Louis XIV., today, restores to Versailles it's old place as thea stage of all the glories of France, dimmed in more recent days by memories of mob excesses during the French Revolution the military downfall of France in 1870, and proclamation of the German Empire in the same hall. The ceremony was set for three o'clock in the afternoon, but hours before that time an uninterrupted stream of automobiles began moving up the cannon-lined hill, Champs Elysees, past Arch of Triumph and out through the shady Bois de Boulogne and Park of St. Cloud, carrying plenipotentiary officials and guests to the ceremony. They reached Versailles over a thoroughfare kept clear by pickets, dragoons and mounted gendarmes, and were cheered by throngs gathered in the flag-decked suburban towns of Boulogne, St Cloud and Sevres-Ville Davray for a passing glimpse of the world's celebrities of the conference.

BRILLIANT UNIFORMS.

A company of republic guards, in brilliant full-dress uniforms, drawn up at the end of the court as a guard of honor, presented arms as leading plenipotentiaries passed. On entering the building by a portal, through which a Paris mob burst in the early days of the French Revolution, the delegates mounted by the marble or queens, stairway to a suit of queen's apartments and the hall of peace, through which they gained access to the Hall of Mirrors.

NO GUARD OF HONOR.

There was no guard of honor to render the Germans the military honors, which were reserved for Allied representatives. Dismounted guardsmen, with drawn sabres who lined the marble staircase and the queen's apartments, when the Allied delegates passed, remained in their places, however, for the entry of the Germans.

The Five Suspects Are Photographed

ONE OF THE PRISONERS SPORTS A VERY NOTICEABLE BLACK EYE.

The five men awaiting trial on the charge of murdering Philip Yanoff were taken to the photographing establishment of Mr. Fred L. Roy this morning at 10:05. They were well escorted, County Constable Archie Moore, Provincial Constable Joseph Stewart, Turnkey Robert Ray, and Gaoler Henderson Nesbitt being in charge. Each man faced the camera in turn, and the impression of their features was duly registered on the sensitive plate. One of the prisoners had a very noticeable black eye, which, according to the photographer, will appear as large as life in the picture. Even if Nature should succeed in abating the swelling before Monday morning, when the trial takes place at the County Court there will be the photograph to submit as indisputable proof that such an ornament did exist upon his face.

NO USE FOR REDS

FRENCH SOCIALISTS NOT PERMITTED TO ENTER ENGLAND.

Paris, France, Tuesday, June 27.—Deputy Jean Longuet leader of the minority socialists and M. Frossard, general secretary of the French socialist party, who were on their way to the conference of the British labor party to be held in Southport, England, were stopped at Folkestone, England, by the authorities. Other French and Italian socialist and laborite delegates and Hjalmar Branting, the Swedish socialist leader, who crossed on the same boat, were permitted to proceed.

M. Longuet telegraphed to Premier Lloyd George in Paris and Andrew Bonar Law, chancellor of the exchequer, in London, but having received no reply from them, returned to France.

U. S. NAVY BILL, $297,000,000

20,000,000 ADDED TO AVIATION FUND, EVEN WITHOUT DEBATE.

Washington, D. C., June 28.—Without debate the senate today approved a committee amendment to the naval appropriation bill, increasing the fund for aviation from the $15,000,000, voted by the house, to $35,000,000.

The bill carries about $782,000,000, as compared with $185,000,000 provided by the house.

The army bill was adopted yesterday without a roll call with committee amendments included. It now goes to conference, where numerous items have to be agreed upon. Chief among these is the provision for an army during 1920 of 400,000 men as compared to 300,000 provided in the house bill

WEST PETERBORO FARMERS MEET IN ANNUAL SESSION

Board of Agriculture Elect Joseph Mann President For Current Year—Allan B. Mann is Elected Secretary-Treasurer For Sixth Term

The farmers of West Peterborough are progressive. In this day, when organization is the order among all classes, they are organising for social, economic and political purposes. Their aim is to better the living conditions in the country districts as the best means for staying the trend of migration of the young people to the cities. In all respects they are up to date. They are coming more and more to believe in better rural education, even if the improvement means the consolidation of the township schools. They are in favor of improved highways, even if a majority of them are not in accord as to the ways and means to be employed to attain the best results.

Another of those reunions of the farmers of West Peterborough, the annual meeting of the Board of Agriculture, the successor of the Farmers' Institute, was held yesterday afternoon, the place selected this year being the spacious pavilion at Chemong Park, than which no better selection could be made. Among the visitors from the city were Messrs. E. M. Elliott, A. H. Stratton, G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., and John Riddell. Notable visitors from other sections were Rev. Fr. McAuley of Ennismore and Warden McIntosh. The Sky orchestra from Toronto, consisting of a violinist, a harper and a guitar player, rendered an excellent program of music, which Rev. Fr. McAuley, who is a competent judge of the art, in the course of his address, declared was the best performance of the kind he had ever heard.

Mr. Gillespie's Address.

The meeting was called to order by Mr. Clayton Telford, the president, who, after a few words of welcome, called on Mr. G. A. Gellespie for an address, and the local representative spoke as one farmer to others of the same calling. Mr. Gillespie has an exalted idea of farming as a profession, maintaining that it calls for more brain power than any other vocation. He is entirely optimistic as to the agricultural future. Prices, he says, will remain high for some years to come, owing to the dearth in Europe, and the Canadian farmer will not lack a market for his produce. The help problem may be acute, but this matter will right itself once all the soldiers are back from Europe. The farmer of the future will build a residence for his hired man and so make certain of permanent service, as experience has proved that it is almost impossible to keep a single man in the country.

Secretary Mann's Report.

Secretary-Treasurer Allan B. Mann's report showed a balance on hand of $35.73, the best ever, the surplus a year ago being $13.75. The total receipts were $73.35 and the expenditure $37.50 since the last annual meeting. Three meetings were held during the year, at Ennismore, at the Orange Hall near Buckhorn, and at Bridgenorth, at which instructive addresses were given. Ex-Warden R. N. Scott, on behalf of the auditors, reported all accounts correct.

For the past five years Mr. Mann has been the secretary, the life and inspiration of the society. He asked to be relieved of the office, but the members, with a businesslike appreciation of the value of his services, refused to listen to the suggestion, and for the sixth consecutive time he was elected by acclamation. He is a busy man, but never too busy to devote time to the interests of the society, and his accounts and records are models of their kind. The other officers, all of whom were elected by acclamation, were as follows:

President—Joseph Mann, nominated by R. N. Scott, seconded by G. B. Telford.

Vice-President — Sherman Garbutt, nominated by J. L. Telford seconded by Gordon Mann.

Auditors—Ex-Warden Scott and Sidney Blewett.

E. M. Elliott and Good Roads.

The outstanding speech of the afternoon was made by Mr. E. M. Elliott, who finally found himself discussing the topic of which he is an undaunted master, the question of good roads. Mr. Elliott still stands to his guns. He maintains that the provincial road system is not fair to the farmers, and says as much of the majority of the legislative acts which interest that class in the community. He lamented the slow growth of the population of Canada and vigorously declared that the farmers of West Peterborough are entitled to provincial and federal representation. Mr. Elliott contends that it is simple justice to have the price of wheat fixed by the Government, as the rates to be charged by railway owners and members of the professions are regulated by law. He cited the case of farmers on the jury at the recent session of the county court attending night sessions, for which they received no extra compensation, while this was granted to all the court officials from stenographer to doormen. Mr. Elliott believes, too, that the regular allowance paid to jurors is too low.

JOHN NORTHCOTE DROWNED TODAY

CANOE UPSET WHILE VICTIM AND SON WERE FISHING.

While out with his son in a canoe this morning at Lakefield, John Northcote was drowned as a result of being upset. The canoe in which they were fishing, was held by means of an anchor and when they went to pull it up the canoe was unbalanced and both he and his son were thrown into the water. Messrs. Frank Fairen and Joseph Knox, who were passing in an automobile, heard a shout and rushed to the scene, but were unable to do anything without securing more assistance. In about three minutes they returned with Mr. Jos. Watson, Mr. Moore and some others and threw out planks to the pair in the water. Mr. John Northcote, Jr., was meanwhile able to hold his father's head above water, and by the help of the planks and a ledge of rock, the two were soon landed. Drs. Fraser and Smith were by this time on the scene and worked for some time on the body of the old gentleman to bring him to but life was already extinct. Death, in the opinion of the doctors, was due to heart trouble. His watch had stopped at 10.20. The deceased man was 74 years old, and leaves a wife, and family behind, of whom two, the son, John, and a daughter, a graduate nurse, were at home at the time. The body was taken to the undertaking parlors of Geo. Hendry in Mr. Fairen's automobile.

THE EXAMINER AND THE LEADER.

THE EXAMINER, too, damns the new leader of the Liberal party, but it is with the very faintness of the praise which it extends to him. All of its recommendations are entirely superficial. They include the following points:

Mr. Dewart is the son of a distinguished father.

He spent a few of the early years of his life as a resident near Warsaw, in this county.

He is a good speaker.

He carried Southwest Toronto against his opponent, converting a Conservative majority of four thousand into a Liberal lead of six hundred.

He has been a thorn in the side of the Government.

All of the claims of the Examiner for consideration for its new leader may be conceded without prejudice. Even if Mr. Dewart did make such a complete turnover in his own constituency, the Examiner cannot be expected to get under the surface or to look behind the woodpile for the concealed Ethiopian.

But "the thorn in the side of the Government" idea is certainly rich. Mr. Dewart has played that role to perfection, not only with the Government but with the entire Province, his own party included, as the victim. He stood alone in the Legislature one year ago when every other member of the Opposition united with the Government in tightening the provisions of the Ontario Temperance Act. He was a thorn in the side of his own party when he brought that party into disrepute and made a laughing stock of himself when, during the last session, he brought against prominent officials who held places of trust charges that upon investigation fell to pieces. In that case the thorn must have developed the properties of a boomerang.

But notoriously retroactive as it is, it was only to be expected that the Examiner would approve of the selection of Mr. Dewart. If his choice, as is claimed, has set the party back a quarter of a century, then he will have the questionable honor of finding himself in the same political age as our George street neighbor.

THE WASTAGE OF HUMAN LIFE.

THERE WERE forty thousand lives of Canadians sacrificed during the four ghastly years of war. Horrible as this sacrifice was, the percentage of mortality was at least no higher than that among the civilians at home. In Ontario alone an average of ten thousand children under the age of one year die annually. In four years at home the infant death roll is equal to that of the same period of war where the grim monster lurked in every shot or was hidden in the deadly cloud of floating gas.

Medical and surgical science have reached a higher standard today than ever before in the history of the world. Surgery as practised in the wards of the military hospitals showed a marvel of efficiency in the percentage of recoveries from what a few years ago would have been fatal injuries. There are diseases, however, with which science is still unable to cope with anything but a measure of success, although new progress in treatment is reported year after year.

It is the infant mortality, however, that is most deplorable of all. The loss of life in warfare was unavoidable, the penalty for one of the greatest of all human virtues. The aged must die sooner or later, but surely there must be some means of staying this terrible loss of life among the babies of Canada. The loss is not due to any lack of skill on the part of the doctors, but in the majority of cases is due to the ignorance of the parents, even though they may not lack in solicitude for the welfare of their offspring. The average mother may be willing to lay down her life for her child, but this maternal instinct avails little. What is really needed is the instruction of young mothers in their duties and responsibilities. The Council of Women in this city are preparing to establish a baby clinic, and no higher work could be undertaken by any organization. Human life, always precious in the sight of man and God, was never more so than it is today with so many vacancies in the family circles that the war left behind it. Reduced to a mere question of dollars and cents, the loss by such mortality is incalculable, the experts reckoning that the life of every child has a potential financial value of four thousand dollars.

But it is not a financial problem. It is a question of common humanity. There is hardly a death of old or young that is not preceded by a certain amount of suffering. And the helpless infant in its final throes is unable to give tangible expression to its agony.

The number of deaths that are due to actual carelessness is simply appalling when the total is computed. The daily records of accidents prove this. Every day we read of deaths caused by the careless auto driver. There are accounts, too, of men and women suffocated by gas, and of children whose lives have been lost through the carelessness of parents who leave poisonous drugs or other means of destruction within their reach.

The slow increase of the native population in Canada has always been a matter of national regret. It is likely to remain so until the people are educated in the conservation of human life and taught to co-operate with the doctors, whose skill is so often of no avail for the simple reason that they have been called in too late.

EX-CROWN PRINCE AS A PROPHET.

THE EX-CROWN PRINCE is the victim of his own shattered greatness. The news vendors refuse to let him alone. The other day when he dropped out of sight it was flashed all over the world that he had made his escape from the castle in Holland where a courteous nation has interned him, whereas it seems that he was merely enjoying himself in a manner not peculiar to princes, either former or otherwise.

The ex-royalist is credited with the prophecy that in less than ten years there will be another war in Europe. East Prussia and Silesia, he says, will never consent to be governed by Poland. Sooner or later they will rise up and claim their independence.

Evidently the ex-Crown Prince is not as lacking in mental equipment as the cartoonists would have it appear. He is not insensible to the principle of self-determination or to the well-founded truth that there can be no stable government without the consent of the governed. The ex-Crown Prince has not altogether lost the lesson taught by his own personal experience and that of humiliation.

When Germany acquired by force two of the richest provinces in France the natives of that territory writhed constantly under the foreign yoke. They always looked forward hopefully for the day of deliverance, and France never ceased to make ready against the critical period that was to mark an epoch in her career.

For fifty years the volcano of unrest smoldered only to break out at last, and Germany at the point of the sword was compelled to restore what she had really stolen.

The ex-Crown Prince, however, lacks the length of vision without which no man can hope to shine as a forecaster of events. He has failed to make note of the difference in the conditions as between the present day and the stirring times of 1870. If Poland is given anything, it is only something to which she is morally and legally entitled by right of prior possession. The people of Alsace and Lorraine will live in peace and happiness now that their rightful sovereignty has been restored.

There is another consideration which the ex-Crown Prince has overlooked which is likely to make of him a false prophet, and that is the formation of the League of Nations, the one agency that is to prevent just such a future catastrophe as he predicts. Peace treaties have been made before, only to be broken. The armistice terms would have been ignored by the Germans but for the two million allied forces kept conveniently near and ready for action. Germany's word of honor is just as good as her written pledge, both being valueless. The peace treaty that she will sign with a grievance would be classed with other scraps of paper which she held null and void when such a policy suited her convenience.

But the power that held Germany to the terms of the armistice will insist upon her regard for the treaty of peace. The world is growing wiser, more sophisticated. There was a time when the word of kings was regarded as sacred. If Germany is no longer trusted by her neighbors, the lack of confidence is due entirely to her own perfidy.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

IS CANADA to be made the scapegoat to bear the sins that have become too heavy for Quebec and the Americans?

• • • • •

BUT THEN our contemporary never could walk the chalk line of the temperance issue with anything like consistency.

• • • • •

THE LIBERAL PARTY'S record on labor is too negligible to arouse the confidence of the workingman at this late date.

• • • • •

EVERYTHING COMES, even the shock of appointment, to those who quietly stay at home instead of going to the convention.

• • • • •

SO FAR AS THAT outlawed stock of booze is concerned, a good slogan would be "No truck or trade with the Yankees."

• • • • •

NO PARTY LEADER can hope to court the prohibition vote by declaring, even truthfully, that his forebears belonged to that faction.

• • • • •

SOFT HANDS do not make a Labor man nor do professions of sympathy constitute the entire stock in trade for a prospective candidate.

• • • • •

THERE MUST BE a Scotch strain in ex-Ald. Dobbin. When the Orillia Packet asks him a question he answers it with a perfect shower of queries of his own.

• • • • •

IT IS NOT SO LONG AGO since another alleged Liberal convention in Toronto was repudiated by the rank and file, and history has a habit of repeating itself.

• • • • •

A PEACE TREATY is a peace treaty, especially if Germany is one of the contracting parties, just so long as there is force enough behind it to make it stick.

• • • • •

ONLY WAIT until Peterborough's professional accredited champion of the Labor cause goes to the Ottawa convention of Liberals bearing the stamp of approval of the legal fraternity.

• • • • •

IN ONE POINT the Examiner is right. Hartley Dewart was a thorn in the side of the Government when he opposed conscription, for instance, but in this regard he was no worse than our contemporary itself.

PROGRESS OF A NATION

(H. Addington Bruce in Chicago Daily News.)

The true index of a nation's progress is not the magnitude of its industrial growth, or the volume of its trade and commerce. It is not the strength of its financial resources or the vastness of its territorial extent.

Possession of a great merchant marine and a colossal network of railways is possible even to a nation that is not truly progressive. So is the establishing of innumerable centers of production and distribution.

Inventiveness does not of itself measure progress. Neither does the development of intellectual ability among the masses of the people.

The true index of progress is found in none of these things. It is found in the degree to which the sense of social solidarity and social responsibility prevails in the individuals who make up the nation.

A nation lacking this sense or having it developed feebly is foredoomed to eventual disaster no matter how rich it may be in material wealth or how vigorous mentally. For when the sense of social solidarity and responsibility is weak a spirit of selfishness is sure to be dominant. Sharp differences of class interest will then arise, to lead soon or late to deadly class conflicts.

There will not be, as there should be, widespread recognition of the vitally important truth that an injury to one is an injury to all. The weaker members of the community will be left pretty much to shift for themselves. Provision for the sick will not be what it ought to be. Still less will thought be given to the preventing of sickness.

Half-hearted measures will be taken to stamp out infections and contagious diseases. In the struggle for riches the privileged will grossly misuse the less fortunate, perhaps to the extent of endangering their health.

Pursuing pleasure, place and power, a people may form unhygienic habits. This will inevitably mean social loss as well as damage to the unwise habit-former. Little by little the vigor of the nation will decay, all because of imperfect development of the sense of the individual's obligations to society.

It must be added that, judged by this index, no nation is yet progressing as it can and should progress. But also it must be said that, as compared with the past, most nations are better off than they were even a scant century ago.

The trouble is that most nations are now suffering for their past offenses against the social spirit. Fresh figures are continually being published testifying to astonishing declines in the national health level.

To save the situation, to conserve the race, the social sense will have to be fostered as no nation has yet fostered it. Training for altruism, training against selfishness and greed, must be made an integral part of the education given in every home and every school.

Strawberry Crop And It's Culture

There are several important insects which do severe damage to strawberry plants and greatly reduce the crop every year. In Bulletin No. 72 "The Strawberry and Its Cultivation in Canada," prepared by W. T. Macoun, Dominion Horticulturist of the Dominion Experimental Farm, and obtainable from the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, information of these insects is given along with methods for their control. Common strawberry diseases and remedial measures as well as general instructions for the gardener who is interested in growing this fruit are also included in this bulletin. Occasionally the yield of fruit is severely reduced by the strawberry weevil. This is a small dark snout beetle which cuts off the blossom buds. Early varieties of strawberries appear most subject to serious injury. In addition to clean cultivation protection may be obtained by coating the plants with a dust composed of one part (by weight) arsenate of lead and five parts finely ground sulphur.

How Dr. Physick Invented Soda Water

Few persons are aware that soda water, now fast becoming the "national drink," was first produced as a medicine.

Those lovely, luscious, rich, soft clinging fruit syrups were added to make the medicine palatable. They succeeded so well that we're all been drinking up the "medicine" on the slightest provocation ever since.

Soda is 112 Years Old

Soda water was first made at 8 South Second street, Philadelphia, in the year 1807, just about the time Robert Fulton was very busy developing his steam boat.

The druggist may be pardoned for swelling with pride as the money rolls in across the soda fountain, for it was a member of his profession who first made it. Townsend Speakman was the man and it came about this way:

A prominent physician in the Philadelphia of those days was Dr. Philip Syng Physick. That sounds like a fiction name, I admit but it's the honest truth. It's the name the histories and contemporary documents give him. If there was any fiction about that name it was fiction on the doctor's part. But there is nothing to indicate that, so why dig into the doctor's personal affairs.

Well, it seems that the doctor had been reading about an experiment which the famous English Chemist, Priestley had performed. Priestley had succeeded in slightly carbonizing water by the painful process of cutting a hole in the side of a brewer's vat and sticking his hands through, pouring water from one glass to another until it absorbed a portion of the carbon dioxide gas which collected above the liquid in the vat.

Doctor Physick had a notion that fizz water was just what one of his patients needed. He had his own reasons, no doubt, for not prescribing beer.

Townsend Speakman was pretty prominent himself. He was a successful druggist and had achieved quite a little reputation during the revolution by supplying most of the medicines used in the Continental army.

Dr. Physick's Phisic

So Doctor Physick [illegible] that it would be beneath the professional dignity to [illegible] himself with a brewer's vat in the manner the English chemist had, took the matter up with Speakman. But the latter also felt that it would be beneath his professional dignity, too. Besides, he had a notion that the thing could be handled much more scientifically.

So he set to work to build a carbonizer, based upon the action of sulphuric acid on sodium bicarbonate. Only a few experiments were necessary to determine the mechanical features of the apparatus and Speakman employed a coppersmith to make it for him.

It was very simple. It hadn't been done before simply because nobody could conceive what on earth any one would want with soda water after he got it.

Doctor Physick, however, developed a firm faith in its healthful properties and recommended it so strongly that people used to drop in at Speakman's store for it every once in a while.

Speakman was a good merchant as well as an apothecary of note and the new health drink became very popular when he began to add fruit juices and syrups "to make it more palatable." When John Hart, his apprentice, married his daughter, and took over the business the soda water "department" was enlarged and put on a wholesale basis. Before long it was being sold by nearly all the apothecaries in the city. Other manufacturers sprang up and the new industry was placed upon its feet.

Street Test Sells Floor Coverings

A convincing demonstration that the firm believed in the durability and merits of its line of floor coverings was staged recently by H. Leh & Co., of Allentown, Pa., who put out as a sidewalk covering a large section from the regular stock.

Thousands scuffed over it every day, pounded their heels into the material; kiddies roller-skated over it and men loafed and argued, with their No. 9s borin' into the covering. For one solid week the test was made. The covering was then lifted, scrubbed and put in a window. It showed virtually no wear and hardly any marks.

The demonstration made it plain that the material was the long-wearing floor covering that Leh & Co. claimed it to be. Since the stunt was staged the company has received numerous inquiries from theatres, churches, firms and housekeepers as to prices, colors, etc., indicating a big business this summer.

Clothier's Hobby Is Boys' Bank Accounts.

Every businessman should have a hobby, and the hobby of "Daddy" (F. B.) Silverwood, a Los Angeles clothier, is starting boys on the success road by teaching them thrift and self-support. Because it was the foundation of his success Mr. Silverwood knows what it means to other boys.

Each Christmas for ten years Mr. Silverwood has opened savings accounts for between 500 and 300 self-supporting boys. (No wonder the title "Daddy" fits like each suit that leaves the Silverwood store.) The only provision is that the original dollar deposit must remain in the bank for five years. And each succeeding Christmas each boy who has added to his account during the year receives another dollar. (Talk about your endless chain!) Last Christmas Mr Silverwood opened 496 new accounts, and he deposited additional dollars for 588 boys whose accounts had grown through the year.

The latter item would have been more but for the fact that "Daddy" Silverwood's boys were prompt to buy war savings stamps and Liberty Bonds. An eleven-year-old newsie bought $375 worth of the former. This boy is one of the thousands who owe their success to the practical philanthropy of this Los Angeles clothier.

Six Months Long Enough To Sell Out

How long can a merchant continue to "go out of business"?

Offhand the reply would be "just as long as he wants to—it's his business and he can do what he likes with it."

That's what J. D. Musial thought too. But the Two Rivers Chamber of Commerce, with the assistance of the Advertising Clubs of the World, proved to him that he was wrong.

Musial operated a shoe store there and was reported to have conducted several previous "going-out-of-business sales" decidedly to the detriment of trade in the locality and also undermining the belief of local people in the integrity of retail trade as a whole. Accordingly the Chamber of Commerce wrote to the national vigilance committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs in New York, asking what could be done about the matter.

The vigilance committee called attention to the fact that Wisconsin is one of the thirty-six states where advertising men have obtained the passage of truth-in-advertising laws. Under the Wisconsin law it was necessary only to procure a photograph of the Musial store, with the signs, and then to call the merchant's attention to the fact that he was violating the statute if he didn't make good his threat.

As a result Musial decided to go out of business in reality. He sold his stock of shoes and made good on his signs—as did a clothier in Baltimore when informed by a judge that he must either retire or quit stating that he was going to do so. He retired.

FATEFUL YEARS FOR ALL WOMEN

HOW BEST TO OVERCOME THE TROUBLES THAT AFFLICT WOMEN ONLY.

The most fateful years in a woman's life are those between forty-five and fifty. Many women enter this term under depressing conditions through overwork, worry or a neglected condition of the blood, and so they suffer heavily. Still, variations of health at this time can be relieved by home treatment.

Among the commonest symptoms are headaches and pains in the back, and sides, fever-flushes, palpitation, dizziness and depression. Women stand in need of rich, red blood all their life, but never more so than in middle age when the nerves are also weak and over-wrought. Now every woman can prove the prompt help afforded to her health by renewing her blood supply. It is a test that any ailing woman can make by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, for these pills make rich, red blood, which in turn helps the appetite, strengthens the nerves and restores robust health. Thousands of women have found in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the means by which new health and a brighter outlook of life were gained. In proof of this is a voluntary testimoney of Mrs. H. S. Peterson, Milford, Ont., who says:—"I have suffered greatly from those troubles that afflict my sex, and I have found that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in such cases not only do all that is claimed for them, but more. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done so much for me that I urge every weak woman to try them, and they will soon realize the great difference in one's health they make."

If you suffer from any of the ills that particularly afflict womanhood you should avail yourself at once of the health help of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You can get them from any dealer in medicine or by mail post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SCARED AT THUNDER

A runaway team, made frantic by sharp clap of thunder, dragged their river for a considerable distance before he was compelled to let go. The accident, which occurred to Mr. Daniel Murphy, a farmer near Lindsay, happened Thursday evening as he was driving the team home after a day's plowing. He suffers a bruised hip and one arm was slightly torn. The team ran on to the barn, and in attempting to get inside, one of them dashed into the stone foundation with such force as to knock out one of the horses.

DANGER LURKS IN EVERY ONE OF US

We Are As Full of Deadly Poisons As A Germ Laboratory.

AUTO-INTOXICATION OR SELF-POISONING

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Absolutely Prevents This Dangerous Condition.

The chief cause of poor health is our neglect of the bowels. Waste matter, instead of passing from the lower intestine regularly every day, is allowed to remain there, generating poisons which are absorbed by the blood.

In other words, a person who is habitually constipated, is poisoning himself. We know now that Auto-intoxication, due to non-action of the bowels, is directly responsible for serious Kidney and Bladder Troubles; that it upsets the Stomach, causes Indigestion, Loss of Appetite and Sleeplessness; that chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Pain In The Back, are relieved as soon as the bowels become regular; and that Pimples, Rashes, Eczema and other Skin Affections disappear when "Fruit-a-tives" are taken to correct Constipation.

"Fruit-a-tives" will protect you against Auto-intoxication because this wonderful fruit medicine acts directly on all the eliminating organs.

A Promise

It Was Well Kept and Did Great Good

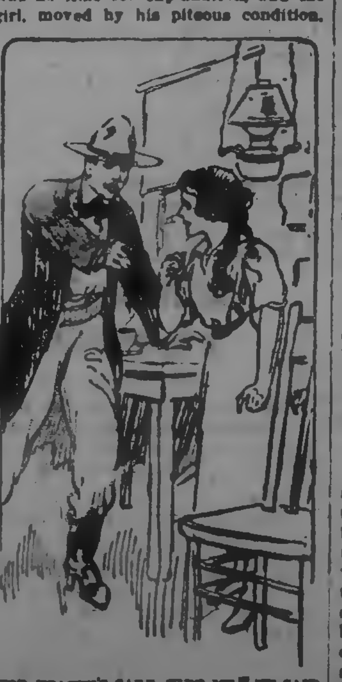
By EVERITT P. CLARKE

I.

About the middle of the nineteenth century, when the wild and woolly west deserved the appellation, a girl in a frontiersman's cabin was getting supper in anticipation of her father's coming home from attending to his daily duties. She was about fifteen years old and seemed to be made up principally of arms and legs. Nevertheless her face was pretty, and she gave promise after passing the filly age of making a comely woman. While she was standing over the cook stove she heard a clattering of horse's hoofs without, which grew rapidly nearer, and in a few moments a horseman galloped up to the door and threw himself from his animal, which he struck on the haunch and sent on its way.

"Hide me! For heaven's sake, hide me!" he said to the girl.

His haste made it plain that there was no time for explanation, and the girl, moved by his piteous condition,



"FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE, HIDE ME!" HE SAID TO THE GIRL.

led him to an upper story of the house and put him in a closet. Then, going below, she waited breathlessly for what might happen. But a few minutes elapsed before half a dozen men broke into the clearing and came toward the house. All passed on but one, who pulled up at the open door and called out to the girl:

"Seen a man go by here just now?"

"Yes."

"Which way did he go?"

"I heard his horse gallopin' into the timber over there," pointing.

The man started off and joined the others. After awhile the fugitive came downstairs. He was not over twenty-five years old and good looking, though his face was ashy pale. He went up to the girl, took her hand in his and said feelingly:

"You've saved my life."

"What did they want with you?" she asked.

"They wanted to hang me."

"What for?"

"Well, I'm the slickest gambler in the territory. I went into the settlement down the creek and cleaned 'em all out. Besides, I've done more shootin' than all the rest of 'em put together. They decided that I am too desperate a character to have around, so they concluded to git rid of me."

The girl listened to this with a sober countenance.

"What makes you look so sorry?" asked the man.

"I don't like to think of you as a gambler."

He seemed touched by her interest in him. "What difference does it make to you whether I'm good or bad?" he asked.

"Reckon I'd rather save a good man from the vigilantes than a bad one. I suppose I should have given you up."

The man looked at her intently for a few moments, then, "But you didn't," he said. "Would you have given me up if you had known I was a gambler?"

"I don't know that I would."

"Would you rather I wouldn't be a gambler?"

"Yes."

"Or a shooter?"

"Yes."

"Little girl, give me some of that supper you're cookin'. I'm hungry and need sustenance."

The girl, who had been frying some bacon and potatoes, put a part of them on a plate and set it on the table. The young man sat down, and she poured him a cupful of coffee. He had somewhat recovered his nerve and ate heartily. When he had finished he rose and, pouring out on the table a heap of money that he had won by gambling, looked at her as much as to say, "Will you take it?"

She shook her head.

A look of disappointment crossed his face.

"What can I do," he asked, "to repay you for saving me from the vigilantes?"

"Stop gamblin' and shootin' and all the other things."

He made no reply to this, but seemed to have been deeply moved. He stood looking out through the open door in the direction the vigilantes had taken and listening. Presently he said:

"I reckon I'd better git out of here while I have a chance. They'll overtake my horse and, seein' no rider on him, will know that they've passed me. They'll come back for me."

He took the girl's hand and looked earnestly into her eyes.

"Say, little gal, if it hadn't been for you I'd be swingin' now. You own the rest of my life. For you I'll stop gamblin' and shootin' and the other things. Goodby."

He bent down, kissed her, then struck out for the timber on that side of the clearing from which he had come.

II.

In a gambling house a man was dealing faro to a motley crowd, few of whom possessed some claims to respectability, while the most of them were roughs. A young clergyman, whose calling was denoted solely by a white necktie, entered and announced that services would be held that evening in the building commonly used for a dance hall and he hoped that all in the room would make it a point to attend. No one paid any attention to him. Presently his attention was arrested by a girl of twenty who entered the room, walked up to an elderly man who sat at one of the tables where a game of poker was being played and, placing her hand on his shoulder, said persuasively:

"Come away, father."

The clergyman watched her, looking into her face inquiringly. When she spoke he started. Memory seemed to be working within him. Then suddenly something was recalled, and his face lighted up.

"You go home with your daughter," he said to the man the girl was trying to get away, "and I'll play your hand for you."

Every one at the table looked at the speaker wonderingly, for a clergyman to gamble, even for another, was remarkable. The man he addressed looked up at him curiously and saw something in the resolute face that led him to obey. He rose from the table and gave the clergyman his seat. The girl, too, looked at the latter curiously, then took her father by the arm and was leading him away when the clergyman asked:

"How much have you lost?"

"All I had—$1,200."

The father and daughter passed out, and the game went on. There were three men at the table besides the one in the white necktie, and every one of the three was a card sharp. There were old tricks and new tricks practiced by the sharpers. The clergyman seemed a bit unfamiliar with the new, but thoroughly versed in the old. However, he had not played long before all schemes were alike familiar to him. The game was simply one of wits against wits. When a player was detected in cheating he returned his winnings. He was not abashed, and no one objected. As the game went on a number of persons stood about the table watching it, especially interested in the clergyman's sleight of hand. Slowly, but surely, the pile of bank bills and gold pieces before him increased. It was not only his skill in card manipulating that attracted attention, but that one of his calling should be so versed in the ways of card sharps. At last he called a halt and counted his winnings. They figured $1,260. Shoving the $60 over to the others, he scooped the rest into his handkerchief and, rising from the table, said:

"Gentlemen, I trust you will all be at the services this evening."

What five years before had been a clearing had now grown into a town. True, there was but one street in it, but the clergyman, leaving the gambling den, pursued that street, stopped before a house and knocked at the door. It was opened by the girl who had led her father from the game.

"I have brought you," said the latter, "the sum you told me you had lost to those card sharps."

And he emptied his handkerchief of its contents on the table.

Both father and daughter looked at him with the same continued astonishment.

"Do you remember some years ago," said the cleryman to the girl, "saving a man's life from a vigilance committee?"

"I do."

"He was to repay you by abjuring his evil ways and trying to be of some use in the world."

"You are that man?"

"I am."

"You are no older looking than then, but you are different looking, else I would have known you."

"I have kept my promise. I find I can do most good among the people with whom I was familiar in those days, now horrible to me, when I was a card sharp and a desperado. It is to you I owe my reformation as well as my life." Then, turning to the father of the girl, he added: "The men with whom you were playing are cheats. You are no match for them. What they took from you dishonestly I got back honestly, for we all knew that it was not cards we were playing, but sleight of hand with cards."

The fame of the clergyman who had beaten card sharps at their own game spread abroad and curiosity to see him brought him a large assemblage at the meeting he had announced for the evening. Many were moved by his eloquence. Before he left the place he had reformed it, and with him as his wife and coworker went the girl who, by reforming him, reformed many others.

How Can I Save---With Profit?

Many wage-earners are asking themselves this question.

They do not want to put a quarter in the bank at a time, and before they know it, it is gone for trifles.

The Government has provided a simple plan to enable you to save that quarter in such a way that it will earn you more money

Twenty-five cents buys a Thrift Stamp. Sixteen Thrift Stamps become a War Savings Stamp, for which the Government will pay you $5.00 in 1924.

If you lend the Government your savings in this way, you can make your money earn over 4½% compound interest as often as you save $4.00 odd.

In June W.-S.S. Cost $4.06

This is not only easy and profitable investment, but patriotic investment, because the Government needs money for the heavy financing of the reconstruction period.

Vet. Bartenders Start Anew

(From Chicago Daily News.)

"The dry winds may blow,
Then liquor must go.
And what will the barkeep do then, poor thing?"

Veteran bartenders of Chicago, whose services behind the dewsy mahogany dates back from thirty years to half a century are viewing the approach of July 1 and all it portends with the philosophical calm which has made them famous. It is not skepticism about the dry law that keeps them cheerful. Perhaps the cloak of optimism is as much their uniform as the white vest.

As for the future—one of the oldest is planning to strike out for South America and begin life anew. Another patriarch of the reign of bourbon is going in to the automobile business as soon as his son returns from France. A third has heard the call of the delicatessen business. Others are wavering before the summons of art, literature and truck farming, but getting down to brass tacks, these latter admit they're "going to stick and see it out," which means they intend to remain as super soda clerks while the saloon proprietors experiment with the restaurant and soft drink business.

Kept Cow at Foot of Madison Street.

Retirement and the simple life have charms for the dean of them all. "Andy" Moynihan of the Majestic bar may see his fiftieth year as a bartender "celebrated" by the abolishment of his chosen profession. But Andy isn't worrying, even if he hasn't a million dollars to retire on.

"I am fifty years at the game and my father was in it before me," said Moynihan, who is known to the theatrical profession from coast to coast. "The old man had a saloon at State and Madison streets. He sold milk across the bar, and we kept the cow at the foot of Madison street at the lake front. Every evening I'd fetch that cow through Madison street to State. No, the traffic cops didn't try to stop me. Perhaps they quit early back in the '60c—I don't know. I've got a good rest coming, and some of the boys tell me I'm getting old enough to be married."

Andy is a bachelor. His father was the predecessor in business of Jim McGarry, the original of Peter F. Dunne's "Mr. Dooley."

Bill Dorgan a Happy Man.

One of the happiest men in Chicago today is Bill Dorgan, who was bartender in "The House of David" when that Clark street place was in its prime. Dorgan is now the doyen of drought destroyers at Dearborn and Randolph. For the reason of his joy, let Bill explain:

"My boy's coming home at last. Got a letter yesterday addressed in red ink, and Bob says he's sure starting on the way back from France. Been over there volunteered when the war opened and he went over with Pershing. Now he's at Chaumont fixing government trucks. When he comes home the boy and I may go into the garage business. Anyhow, he's coming home, so what do we care about July 1."

Bill Dorgan is founder and royal nabob of the Dugan club, an organization which supports the White Sox team through thick and thin. He has accompanied Charles Comiskey on several training trips to the south and to California. He mixed grape juice for the late Hugh E. Keough, greatest of sportsmen poets, during the final and most brilliant years of the writer's life. The motto of the Dugan club is a deathless one.

"Once a Dugan, always a Dugan" says Bill Dorgan.

Used to Serve Gen. Sheridan

In East Monroe street, at Gene Malloy's is the bartender who used to serve Gen. Sheridan. He is Dave Clayton, a mere novice compared to Moynihan, for his experience runs back a bare forty-five years. Clayton used to work as bartender for his brother in "The Drum". In Madison street when it was patronized by nearly all the well known Chicagoans and travellers of the time. The bar and restaurant was the mecca for actors of the period. Among Clayton's acquaintances were McKee Rankin Crane, Robson, Hopper and Henry E. Dixey.

"I've worked in a restaurant before and I can do it again," said Clayton pointing to the changes being made in the saloon. "Folks are kicking about the high cost of drinks, but 50 cent brandy was the standard when I started in the game. I didn't serve a nickel beer until I was twenty-five years in the business."

Ed Pfeffer Would Travel.

"I've travelled around the world and I guess I can stand another trip," observed Ed Pfeffer who presides in his own place in a loop alley.

Ed circled the world with Anson's White Stockings, when he was one of the big league stars of America, back in the '80s. Now he is contemplating a trip to South America, where he says "a young man can grow up with the country."

Al Simmons is not planning to enter the medical profession, in spite of his record for administering "cures." He used to be "surgeon" of the "Army and Navy club" when that militant organization flourished in the late Billy Mangler's saloon, the haunt of politicians. Simmons will start dispensing sundaes to matinee girls if such is the decree of his present employers, Wedell and Benzing, who are considering entering the soft drink business.

Dave Callahan, rounding out his thirty-six years as a barkeeper, was seen at Moran's. Callahan finds attractions in the delicatessen business. Perhaps he was inspired by the defunct glories of the great American free lunch.

Among other old time bartenders who look with curious yet apparently untroubled eyes upon the threatened "dry wave", are George Willard, Jack Walsh, Ed Farrell and Fred Ahlgrin.

Examinations on This Afternoon

Everything is in readiness for the examinations in music, both vocal and instrumental, which commences at the Y.M.C.A. this afternoon. Mr. W. H. Cunningham yesterday afternoon tuned up the piano so that no pupil can place the blame for a false note on the instrument. Eight pupils, trained by Mr. John H. Renwick, commence their examination at 1.30 p.m today in vocal music, as prescribed by the Toronto Conservatory of Music. On Monday and Tuesday, June 30, and July 1 the Toronto Academy of Music holds its examinations in the same building, and on July 2 and 3 the Conservatory of Music complete their examinations.

POLAND IN SAD PLIGHT MUST HAVE HELP FROM THE ALLIES

Seems Like a Country Drained of Natural Life—1000,000 Cases of Typhus—Needs of the People—A War Against Disease

A British Mission, sent to Poland, to enquire into conditions in that distressed land, has recently returned, and Miss Ruth Fry, one of the mission, in an interview with an English press representative the following facts were gleaned:

The Mission has just returned and an account of its experiences was given by Miss Fry, hon. secretary, to a representative of the Westminster Gazette. The Relief Committee had been asked to send a unit, but, said Miss Fry, "we could not do that without seeing the conditions for ourselves. We discussed the matter with Lord Robert Cecil, General Smuts, Mr. Hoover, Sir William Goode, Sir Arthur Stanley, Mme. Paderewski (wife of the Polish premier) and various members of the Polish Economic Delegation in Paris."

The Sad Looks of the People

The result of these representations was that the Mission left Paris on May 9 and passed through Vienna on the way to Warsaw. At Vienna the party was able to get an insight into the conditions which prevail in the once gay capital of Austria.

"The people looked very sad," said Miss Fry. "I do not think I have ever seen such a sad look on children's faces before and, curiously enough, there was a look of sadness even in the faces of the horses, which have, of course, like the people, been underfed. The children looked dreadfully pallid, worn, and uninteresting —and when children are uninteresting they must be in a very bad way. The houses in the districts in Austria through which we passed looked in fairly good repair, but, owing to the scarcity of glass, windows in many houses and in railway trains were boarded up. In Vienna we saw a large number of derelict locomotives. Everyone was extremely courteous and anxious to oblige."

From Vienna the party went on to Warsaw which they found very dreary-looking, and, as Miss Fry put it "like a city out of repair."

"The food," she said "is not so bad as it is in Vienna but it is patchy in a curious way, as the food seems to be everywhere in Central Europe. We gave some of our chocolate to persons we met in Warsaw, and it was really painful to see how even well-to-do people appreciated so small a gift. We could hardly persuade some of the people to take food; they could not believe that we actually had food to give away, or that we really did care about them sufficiently after so many years of war."

The Needs of the Country

While at Warsaw the party consulted Sir Percy Wyndham the new British Minister, Captain Crewdson of the British Food Commission, and others and visited hospitals and other institutions.

"Our visit," said Miss Fry, "strongly confirmed all that had been told us of the sad plight of Poland. It seems like a country drained of its natural life, but living in hope that liberation may in some miraculous manner put an end to its difficulties. In this connection we were told that in some districts 99 per cent of the voters (there is adult suffrage) went to the polls in the belief that all they hoped for would thereby be accomplished, but, as about half the Deputies, so we were told were unable to read or write this hope does not seem likely to be realised. The people, particularly those of our own class with whom we came in contact, are almost pathetically anxious for our help. It seemed as if they have lost hope by reason of their long privations, and the idea that anyone should take the trouble to come from a distant country for the sake of helping them is almost incredible."

There is, according to Miss Fry, who speakers of course, for the other members of the party, a realisation among the public men of Poland of the immense needs of the country and of the inadequate means of coping with them that are available. In particular, the Ministry of Health appears to have a real vision for the improvement of the country which the doctors who form it are most anxious to see carried out.

A War Against Disease

"They are, however, keenly aware," said Miss Fry, "of their inability to do so without foreign aid and seek it eagerly. Happily, too, in Dr. Rajhman, the Ministry has a director who thoroughly understands English ways, and we believe that co-operation with the Ministry would be effected with singularly little friction, as the control indicated appears to be in the nature of coordination rather than of dictation and we made it clear that we must be left free. The proposal submitted to us suggests our taking part in their sanitary campaign, by which it is hoped to stamp out the terrible scourge of typhus. The people are suffering grievously from typhus folowing an epidemic of influenza. The number of cases of typhus was estimated in March last by the Ministry of Health at 100,000 and tuberculosis has increased with terrible rapidity—the mortality from this cause alone amounting today to 91.1 per 10,000 inhabitants. Epidemics of cholera, dysentery, typhoid, and small pox were experienced in the years of war and a recurrence of these is feared."

"A new war is indeed, needed," continued Miss Fry—"a war against disease. The struggle is really one for Europe and is not merely a Polish question. If the disease is not quelled it will almost inevitably advance into Western Europe with increasing magnitude."

During their investigations help of differing importance was received by the Mission. Sir Albert Stanley, when he was president of the Board of Trade, gave an assurance that, if he obtained money from the Economic Council for work in Poland he would detail some of the money to the Society of Friends' Committee. If he did not obtain money and was, in consequence unable to send a unit, he would give the committee medical supplies Sir William Goode promised that when the committe's scheme was passed he would add £1 for every £1 used by them in relief work in Poland, thus doubling the available funds. From the Polish Ministry of Health, a promise of free petrol for cars has been given, as well as assistance for Polish personnel, and free transit on the railways of Poland. An application will be made to the Austrian Government for similar facilities over the Austrian railways. Captain Crewdson, of the Allied Food Council, will give all the help in his power, and will sell the committee food at cost price.

Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast a Splendid Habit

Open sluices of the system each morning and wash away the poisonous, stagnant matter.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, lame back, can, instead, both look and feel as fresh as a daisy always by washing the poisons and toxins from the body with phosphated hot fater each morning.

We should drink, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to flush from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract before putting more food into the stomach.

The action of limestone phosphate and hot water on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast and it is said to be but a little while until the roses begin to appear in the cheeks. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to make anyone who is bothered with biliousness, constipation, stomach trouble or rheumatism a real enthusiast on the subject of internal sanitation. Try it and you are assured that you will look better and feel better in every

PART ONE

"God Save the King."

1—March—Washington Grays—Grafulla.

2—Overture—Mignon—Thomas.

This Overture is the Prelude to Thomas' most popular Opera, first produced in Paris at the Opera-Comique, November 17th, 1866; and in London, at Drury Lane, July 5th, 1870. Thailes Louis Ambroise Thomas succeeded Auber, as Director of the Conservatoire, in 1871. He was made Knight of the Legion of Honor, in 1845; an officer, in 1858, and received the Grand Cross, in 1894; on the occasion of the thousandth performance of Mignon. Born, August 5th, 1811. Died, February 12th, 1896, at Paris.

3.—Clarinet Solo—Puritani—Bassi. Mr. E. C. Wall

4.—Selection from —La Boheme— Puccini.

The scenes of this Opera are laid in the Latin Quarter of Paris, giving a picture of Bohemian Life among the Artists, Students and Musicians. Puccini, the composer of "Madame Butterfly" and other works, is now in his sixty-first year.

5—Flute Solo—Chopiniana—Demersseman. Mr. E. A. Franklin.

6—Two Hungarian Dances—5 & 6 —Brahms.

Transcriptions for the piano, of the wild performances of the Magyar Bands, and the two most notable dances of the many, written by Johanna Brahms, who was born May 7th, 1833, and died April 3rd, 1897.

7—Soprano Solo—Cara Nome, from (Rigoletto)—Verdi.

Leonora James-Kennedy.

INTERMISSION

PART TWO

8—Second Hungarian Rhapsody —Liszt.

There are sixteen Rhapsodies, written by Liszt, for the Piano, but the most popular is the second, which has been transcribed for Orchestra, and later on, for Military Bands. The opening theme is characteristic of real Magyar music, followed by the Vivace, which is made up of short transcriptions of Hungarian Tunes, as they were played by the wandering bands of Gypsies, the National Musicians of Hungary. This Rhapsody was composed in 1852. Franz Liszt was born October 22nd, 1811, and died July 31st, 1886.

9—Saxophone Solo—Helen—Clarke. Mr. Chas. G. Shaw.

10—Concert Waltz—Des Fleurs—Tschaikowski.

One of the six movements of the celebrated "Casse-Noisette" Suite (the nut cracker), written in 1891, and first produced in Petrograd, on March 19th, 1892, arousing immense enthusiasm and receiving such applause that five of the six movements had to be repeated. Peter Ilitsh Tschaikowski was one of the great Russian composers. Born May 7th, 1840 and died November 6th, 1893.

11—Cornet Solo—The Southern Cross—Clarke. Mr Herbert L. Clarke.

12—Finale—William Tell (by request)—Rossini.

"Tell" has become a study for the musician, from the first bar of the Overture, to the storm scene and brilliant finale. The Opera, one of his forty-eight, being undoubtedly, Rossini's masterpiece, first produced at the Academie, Paris, on August 3rd, 1829, and in London, July 11th, 1839, at King's Theatre. Gioacchino Antonio Rossini was born February 29th, 1792 at Pesaro. He died November 13th, 1868, at Paris.

"O Canada."

GARDEN PARTY SUCCESS.

Last night the Sunday school lawn on Reid street was the scene of a very festive event when the Trinity League held their garden party there. The grounds were artistically decorated for the occasion, and the 57th Regiment Band rendered a very pleasing program. Good eats were there in abundance. Quite a number turned out despite the unfavorable weather conditions, and all spent a very pleasant evening.

FORMER MAYOR OF BIRMINGHAM, ALA. ENDORSES TANLAC

"YOU WILL HARDLY KNOW ME WHEN WE MEET AGAIN; FOR I AM GETTING WELL." HE WRITES FRIEND.

One of the latest additions to the list of leaders of thought and action who have come forward with their unqualified endorsement of Tanlac is the name of Hon. Frank V. Evans, former Mayor of Birmingham, Ala., ex-State Examiner of Public Accounts of Alabama, and at one time editor of one of the South's greatest newspapers, The Birmingham Age-Herald. Writing to a personal friend in Atlanta, Mr. Evans says:

Birmingham, Ala., Feb. 2nd.

". . . By the way, you will hardly know me when we meet again, because I am getting so well and strong again. As I told you while in Atlanta last month, I have been suffering a long time with gastritis, as the doctors call it—really a disordered stomach with consequent constipation pains in the shoulders, headache, belching, heartburn, loss of appetite, loss of sleep, and fainting spells. For weeks I could not sleep on my back.

"One week ago, upon recommendation of friends who had tried the medicine, I purchased one bottle of Tanlac and began taking it. Since my second dose I have suffered none of these troubles to which I refer, and really believe I am going to get perfectly will and strong again. Won't that be wonderful at my age? Well certain it is that Tanlac is a wonderful medicine, and you know I am not given to puffing' mere experiments and am rather orthodox as to materia medica.

"I shall continue the treatment with perfect confidence in the final results.

"(Signed) FRANK V. EVANS."

Commenting on this splendid endorsement of Tanlac, G. F. Willis, International Distributor of Tanlac, said:

"Although the list of endorses is a long one I recall a few leading names that lend both dignity and credit to the entire array. Some of them are:

"Hon. C. W. Mangum, of Atlanta Go., for three terms Sheriff of the Fulton County; Hon. Moses R. Glenn, Superintendent of printing for the State of Kentucky; Mr. C. O. Cooper, President of the Georgia Cotton Oil Company; Mr. J. F. Hill, Bank President of South Pittsburg, Tenn.; Mr. F. Corroll, Cotton Mill Superintendent of Chattahoochee, Ga.; Hon. E. Anderson, of Houston, Texas for seven terms Sheriff of Harris County; Hon. S. S Shepard, ex-city councilman of Atlanta, and many others whose names have heretofore been given to the public."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in field by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lake-Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

AT MURRAY ST. TOMORROW

In the event of peace being signed on Saturday, arrangements have been made for a special and appropriate service at Murray Street Baptist Church in the morning. The music and the subject of the sermon will be in keeping with the demands of the hour. It is hoped that every member of the church will plan to be present and a special invitation is extended to returned soldiers.

THANKS-GIVING SERVICE

Tomorrow at St. John's it is intended with the present outlook that the morning service at 11 a.m. shall be a thanks-giving for the end of the war and of a national character. Returned soldiers, war-workers will, it is hoped, be present.

At 7 p.m. Rev. J. Cooper Robinson, of Japan, will give a short address on the outlook in the East.

EVERJET ELASTIC PAINT

Specially adapted for exposed surfaces, metal, wood and roofing. Gives a lustrous black surface which protects against weather, wet and chemicals. Used extensively for farm wagons and implements. It is not worn-out machinery, but machinery rusted and rotted from lack of paint that keeps factories working day and night, and many farmers in every section are playing a losing game. Put up in 1 gal. tins with spring top. Considering the high price of paint at the present time this is exceptional value for outside work at $1.75 per gallon.

WEST PETERBORO

Rev. J. A. Galt, of the Gilmour Memorial Church, made one of those practical and interesting addresses for which he is noted. He took up new topics and spoke on behalf of an improved system of education in the country schools and for community centres, where the young people can enjoy all the social privileges of the cities.

Another Clergyman.

Rev. Fr. McAuley spoke briefly. He believes that the country is the place in which to live, and eclared that he never enjoyed life so well as he has since becoming a resident of the rural community. He complimented the orchestra and Mr. Elliott, whom, he declared, should be in Parliament.

Rev. A. H. Webster.

Rev. A. H. Webster of Bridgenorth, made a short address, in which he referred to the days when dressed pork was four cents, beef two and a half cents a pound, oats 25 cents, and barley 28 cents a bushel, contrasting these rates with those of today. He also drew a picture of what would happen if the farmer followed the almost universal custom and went on strike.

Mr. Joseph Mann, the new president, briefly thanked the members for the honor they had conferred upon him, and asked for united action during the coming year.

At the close of the business session the ladies served a sumptuous repast to the large crowd in attendance.

"LOST BIBLES"

In Trinity Methodist Church, on Sunday night, the pastor, the Rev. F. E. Malott, will preach on "Lost Bibles." The midsummer communion service will be held in the morning. The attendance of all the members is desired. Every one will be welcome at both services. Sunday School at 10 a.m.

QUITE ILLEGITIMATE

Is Bill on Judges, Comments Mr. Lemieux.

Ottawa, June 28.—A Senate bill to restrain judges from acting in an extra-judicial capacity aroused some passing comment in the House today. The bill is on the order paper of the House, but has not sponsor. "It is the third time the bill has been brought down here without a father," commented Mr. Lemieux. "It is an illegitimate son."

Mr Meighen intimated that when the bill came before the House he would have objection to make this some of its features.

MINERAL OIL
For Chronic Constipation

By buying this product from us you can get the highest in quality that can be procured at an ESPECIALLY LOW PRICE. There are many thin oils on the market that are not suitable for internal use; other oils have irritating qualities which render them also unsuitable. The one we are selling is guaranteed thick and entirely pure.

It is recognized that a good grade of Mineral Oil is one of the best remedies for CHRONIC CONSTIPATION that is being used. It acts mechaniacily and does not irritate the intestinal tract, nor does the dose have to be continually increased, as is the case with ordinary purgatives.

It is much better and cheaper than Castor Oil as a laxative for children, since Castor Oil has two effects, the first of which is purgative, and the second or after effect, which is Constipating.

THEATRICAL

AT THE GRAND MONDAY, TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY

The patrons of the Grand Opera House will be delighted to hear that the management have arranged to present on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Mabel Normand in her new, big picture, "Peck's Bad Girl." Miss Normand will be remembered by all who saw her just a few weeks ago in her big success, "Mickey." Critics claim that "Peck's Bad Girl," her new picture, is a worthy rival of "Mickey." As an added feature Viola Dana will be seen in "The Parisian Tigress." The action of this play takes place in the Latin quarter of Paris and is a dramatic romance of the underworld. Miss Dana is seen in the role of Jeanne, a waif of the gutter who lives in daily fear of the young Apache who makes her dance with him in the lowest cafes of the quarter.

Mr. D'Arclay, the son of a wealthy Belgian diamond merchant, served with the Twentieth infantry on the Belgian front and saw some of the severest fighting that his country experienced.

It is the intention of the management of the Grand during the months of July and August to present a special motion picture program every Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with a complete change twice each week. Two double features will be seen at each performance, and a special comedy and travelogue; fifteen reels of the very best in the picture world.

How To Handle A Grafter, Tonight

EVANGELIST KENNEDY'S SUBJECTS FOR THIS EVENING AND TOMORROW.

"How to Handle a Grafter," or, to use the more euphonious expression, "a profiteer," is a much-talked-of subject nowadays. Evangelist Kennedy thinks the subject a little more timely just now than ever before, and it will be his subject at the big tent on Hunter street this evening. "The Devil's Cradles" will be the subject of his Sabbath evening address, "and there are a lot of them in Peterborough," he commented in his announcement. The meetings continue to grow in interest and in power. Last night there was a greater crowd than on any week-night yet. Tonight a still larger attendance is confidently expected. There will be a fine musical program.

SPARKS FROM KENNEDY'S ANVIL

Christ always accepted worship from men when on earth. Peter and Paul refused it.

He did not say "Come to God." He said "Come to Me."

He said: "No man cometh to the Father but by Me."

If He were only a man He robbed God of His throne.

And was therefore a thief and a robber and not a good man.

If He were not God when He said He was, He was a liar.

He was one of two things, either God or a bad man.

He was the "Seed of the woman" nowhere does it say He was the "seed of man."

Christ was the only one that ever chose His own mother.

He was not only divine, He was Diety. The only begotten Son of God.

All other men if sons of God at all are adopted and that, only through the finished work of Christ. "To as many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the children of God."

All the interest in heaven and hell on this earth has been over the human soul.

Christ condemned sin, but He never condemned any man to be lost. If any man is lost it is because he refuses to be saved. God never forces any one to serve Him.

God seemed to have ceased his attention towards heaven, to save this world, when He sent Jesus to save

God has no door marked "private."

A sea shell has in it the voice of the sea, so heaven is ever calling to sinner to return.

BREAD MADE OUT OF POISON NOW

THE WHEAT OF BARBADOS CONTAINS THE ELEMENTS OF DEATH.

The Cassora root, or Manioc, is the wheat of Barbados. Before it comes to be eaten it suffers a strange conversion; for, being an absolute poison when it is gathered, the natives submit it to a process by which it is transsubstantiated into wholesome and nourishing flour. The outside of the root is washed clean and it is then held again a wheel, turned around with the foot, the broad surface of which is made rough like a large grate. The grated root falls down in a large trough, appointed as received for the purpose. The thus obtained powder, or pulp, is a rank poison, but it is now put into a strong piece of canvas and pressed hard until all juice is squeezed out. This dried poultice is then spread upon a cloth to be yet more dried in the sun, until it is ready for use. The dough, for "pone," as the natives call it, is then put in a kind of pan standing on three legs, and about six inches high. The pan is about twenty inches in diameter and slightly hollowed in the middle. It is half an inch thick at the edge, but thicker toward the middle. When the pan is getting hot the dough is spread out on it and the natives keep pushing it down with their hands. This is to make it stick together, it being nearly dry. They then turn it round and round with a kind of battledore until it is done. The cakes, thus produced, are about as thick as pancakes.

CANUCK BOXERS SUFFER DEFEAT

RECORD CROWD AT INTER-ALLIED GAMES—CARPENTIER INJURES HAND.

Paris, June 27.—Better weather, combined with a half-holiday in Paris, brought out a record crowd to the inter-allied games yesterday.

The Belgian soccer team defeated Canada by a score of 5 to 1.

In the lightweight boxing preliminaries, Zoonens, the Belgian champion, beat Martin of Canada, and Al. Norton, Pacific coast champion, won a ten-round decision over Herscovitz, Canada.

Weltherweight class: Hallam, Australia, won a ten-round decision over Cole, Canada; De Outhier, champion of France, won over Bassetti, Italy, in the third round when Bassetti conceded the bout.

Georges Carpentier, the French champion, has withdrawn from the French boxing team entered for the inter-allied games because of an injured hand, which was hurt during a training bout.

MOST UNHAPPY MAN IN HISTORY

INTERESTINGLY HANDLED LAST EVENING IN THE BIG GOSPEL TENT.

"The story of the most unhappy man in History," was the way in which Evangelist Kennedy described his subject, "Judas", in his address, at the big tent last night. Judas was not held up as a devil, but as a man, why by transgression fell. The audience was the largest yet in attendance, at any week night meeting, and had anyone of them been asked before, Mr. Kennedy began his address, as to which they considered the greater sinner, Judas or Peter the decision would prabably have been an unhesitating condemnation of Judas. But the evangelist differed. Judas was elected by the eleven, as their treasurer. Had his besetting sin been greed of money, Jesus would not have tempted him by putting the bag in his hand. He may have been selected also because he had the biggest heart, as well as the most ability. His first recorded offense is toward the close of our Lord's ministry on earth when, "he bought a field, entered a real estate speculation on the side." just as many others do. The money to finance this transaction was borrowed from "the bag." Here it was that Judas became a thief. And it was during this period that Jesus gave h' greatest talks o ncovetousness, evidently, in an endeavor to keep a member of his flock from slipping from him "Idon't think it ever dawned on Judas, that his enemies could take Jesus," Mr. Kennedy declared. "He had seen them try time ond again and fail."

Peter was one of the inner circle. His light was greater than that of Judas. Yet he denied his master with oaths and curses. In the very time when his loyalty would have been appreciated. But he repented and the Master forgave him. Judas went out and hanged himself, "and that was where Judas made his greatest mistake," Mr. Kennedy is sure that the same love that forgave Peter, would have forgiven Judas even as He is still forgiving all transgressors, who come unto Him. And a number in the audience last night followed Peter's example and became followers of the same Master.

BLUEBEARD AND FASHIONS

The barbers of France are busy shaving customers, who once proud of their hirsuite adornments, are now wishing to become clean shaven, says the Family Herald and Weekly Star. No man wishes to be a La Landru.

For Landru is the French "Bluebeard," the man of the villa of mystery at Gambais, in whose shadows lurk the ghosts of a dozen vanished women whom he is suspected of having murdered.

Great criminals are ordinarily credited with being among the vainest of mankind, Landru furnished no exception to this rule. Already while merely suspect and with the guillotine still hovering uncertain of its prey, he has caused an upheaval in fashion.

He is the possessor of a beard and a moustache so ornamental as to have contributed considerably to the sinister fascination he exerted over women.

In this connection one recalls that many notorious criminals have played a prominent part with regard to fashions. I they have not set fashions, they have killed them.

The fascinating Mrs. Maria Manning—who, with her husband, lured an infatuated Customs officer named O'Connor to a villa in Miniver-terrace, Bermondsey, shot him and buried him under the flags of the kitchen floor—wore in the dock at the Old Bailey a dress of black satin which caused black satin to be for a long time unfavourably regarded by women.

Mrs. Manning thus became a rival as regards fashion to Mrs. Turner, the apothecary's widow, who, at the prompting of a wicked Countess of Essex, stealthily administered a fatal dose of vitriol to Sir Thomas Overbury, a prisoner in the Tower in the time of King James I.

Mrs. Turner appeared in court in a charming starched yellow ruff. Possibly she attached considerable importance to looking her best on such an occasion. The act, however, proved too strong for feminine attraction to secure acquittal and the ruff passed from the docks to the scaffold. Yellow starched ruffs at once became unfashionable.

In 1864, Muller, a young German, having murdered and robbed a Mr. Briggs in a carriage on the North London Railway left his own hat behind and carried away the top hat of his victim. Being dissatisfied with its shape he had a piece cut out and the crown lowered—a concession to fashion low-crowned hats being "the style," which helped considerably to push him to the gallows. Low-crowned top hats from this came to be known as "Mullers" and people immediately conceived a violent antipathy to them, driving them out of fashion.

SEVENTY-TWO AROUND PEACE TABLE.

Seventy-two chairs for plenipotentiaries were drawn around three sides of a table, which formed an open rectangle fully eighty feet in length on its longer side. The chair for M. Clemenceau, President of the Peace Conference, was placed in the centre of the long table facing the windows, with those for Premier Lloyd George and President Wilson on the left and right hand, respectively. The Allied delegations were arranged in the same order as when terms were presented to the Germans, but the German delegates this time, instead of facing their accusers, were assigned seats at the side of the table nearest the entrance, which they could take after all others were seated.

SIGNED UNDER WATCHFUL EYES.

The treaty will be signed under the watchful eyes of forty-five stalwart British Tommies, French Poilus and American Doughboys, the real artisans of the peace, which has been slowly taking definite form during the long months of the Paris Conference. Marshals and generals of the Allied armies will take first place on benches provided for privileged guests invited to the ceremony; but fifteen private from each of the principal armies will stand within an enclosure reserved for plenipotentiaries and high officials of the conference, as a visible sign of their role in bringing into being new Europe.

The ceremony of signing the treaty will be shorter than expected, as mosto f the 72 plenipotentiaries will have to write their names only twice. Even the full number of seventy-two may not sign the treaty since the Chinese have indicated that they are opposed to signing the instrument on account of the Shantung settlement. Arrangements were made by French authorities to keep the hour of arrival of the German plenipotentiaries a secret, it being desired to keep it from the public so that possibility of a repitition of unpleasant incidents attending the departure of the old delegation from Versailles might be avoided.

Not To Lead Till The Next Session

WHEN HARTLEY DEWART WILL BE OFFICIALLY RECOGNIZED.

Toronto, June 28.—While the appointment of H. Hartley Dewart, K.C., as leader of the Liberal party in Ontario takes effect immediately the member for Southwest Toronto will not be officially recognized as Opposition leader in the Legislature until the opening of the next session when he will receive due recognition at the hands of the Speaker. This is the custom which is followed in connection with changes in Opposition leadership.

Under the State Law Amendment Act passed at last session of the House, the $5,000 salary which attaches to the post of Opposition leader is defined as an additional sessional indemnity. Mr. Proudfoot is therefore entitled to the whole of the allowance for 1919 and Mr. Dewart will not get his first allowance until next year.

There is a certain brand of charity that will give a man a crust of bread and then steal his coat.

BIBLE CLASS IS ENTERTAINED

AT BEAUTIFUL SUMMER HOME OF MRS. H. P. LINDSAY.

On Thursday, the members of the Co-Workers' Bible Class, of George Street Sunday School, of which, Mrs. Shield is teacher, were entertained at Rock Hoven, the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Lindsay.

After a delightful sail on Stoney Lake, they arrived at the Island, where Mrs. Lindsay, Mrs. Bitaray, and Mrs. Stubbs welcomed them. Admiration of the beautiful scenery, and the ideal island home then became the order of the day, and a number of the members decided that they had come to spend two weeks. This was objected to by others, as no one was eager to display their culinary art, for people with such ravenous appetites.

The tables were set on the verandah, where all enjoyed a splendid dinner, as well as a feast of the beauties of nature.

After dinner was finished, the hostess was asked for something to do and the class was informed that there was a woodpile at the rear of the cottage. The most bashful person present suggested that they repair to the wood-pile, where a contest ensued, in which the oldest member easily carried off the honors, followed by two other members of a more weighty class.

A delightful hour of social intercourse was spent, and when the "Empress" hoved in sight, good byes were said, and a hearty vote of thanks, tendered Mrs. Lindsay, for the delightful outing given the class.

$800,000 FOR LUCKY PAIR

BROTHER AND SISTER DISINHERITED IN WILL BENEFIT BY DEATH.

Waukegan, Ill., June 27.—The will of Robert Dady, Waukegan's eccentric and pioneer resident, who amassed a fortune of $800,000 without being able to read or write, was admitted to probate today in the Lake county court, in which he leaves all but $6,500 to his two children, Mrs. Nellie Conrad of Waukegan, and E. Frank Dady of Milwaukee.

The son comes into half of his father's estate through a freak of fate. He and his father had been estranged for many years and the will gave him only $1,000. The residue of the estate was left to another daughter, Miss Lorena Dady, but she died a few months ago, willing all her estate to her father. Frank Dady and Mrs. Conrad, who also was given only $1,000 in the father's will, through Lorena Dady's death again became direct heirs and will now receive about $400,000 each, which probably would not have been the case had Lorena survived her father.

Present Prince of Wales Faces a Difficult Choice

THE marriage of Princess Patricia of Connaught to a commoner, the Hon. Alexander Ramsay, has awakened once more in England the interest in the marriage prospects of the Prince of Wales. The war having eliminated the two royal families of Russia and Germany from the marriage field, the London Daily Express considers that the prince's choice is narrowed to England and America, and it thinks an American wife for the Prince of Wales would be tremendously popular. The Express says:—

"There are still marriageable princesses in other European countries. The name of Princess Yolanda of Italy has been particularly mentioned during the prince's visits to that country; but Princess Yolanda is a Roman Catholic. Marriage with a Roman Catholic would involve the forfeiture of the right of succession, except by a special act of Parliament.

PRINCE OF WALES.

"Princess Helena of Greece is no longer talked of as a future queen. Princess Marie of Roumania, Princess Elizabeth of Roumania, or Princess Margaret of Denmark might be chosen, but the prospect would arouse little enthusiasm.

"The fact is that there [illegible] desire that the prince shall be allowed to choose for [illegible] wife—if not an American. His marriage with a British bride would be exceedingly popular. If [illegible] choose an American bride [illegible] iasm on both sides of the [illegible] would be unbounded, and [illegible] possibilities would be opened up. The example would be infectious. There is no telling where [illegible] quence would end.

"There is nothing to prevent [illegible] unmarried sovereign of this country marrying whom he or she chooses, providing the [illegible] a Roman Catholic. [illegible] ascendants the consent of the sovereign alone is necessary, though this consent is required to be a formal act, and is conveyed by letters patent under the Great Seal."

France and Russia.

The old regime in Russia, just as in France in the eighteenth century, slowly undermined the government and the administration, teaching the people to despise the law and order, as something created by autocracy, and for the mere purpose of supporting a small, egotistical ruling class, writes Baron S. A. Korff in the Yale Review. Even among enlightened Russians the methods of autocracy engendered a certain pride in not obeying governmental authority. Misgovernment for a whole generation had created among the people such hatred of whatever bore the name of government that it was not astonishing that, when the change came, Tsardom was upset with pleasure and ruthlessness. Indeed, the destruction went much further then was originally intended or even thought possible. Again the similarity in the positions of the royal families in France and Russia at the outbreak of the revolution is quite extraordinary. Marie Antoinette and the Empress Alexandra were both princesses of foreign birth from an enemy country. Both were hated by the people at large and both were accused of having had during the war intercourse with the enemy. Russia also had a Cagliostro in the person of Rasputin—in fact all but the necklace. The characters of the two reigning monarchs, however, differed widely, and the comparison was certainly in favor of Louis.

Military Terms.

Nearly all of our military terms and designations are derived from the Normans. These designations are marshal, general, colonel, major, captain, adjutant, cornet, lieutenant, ensign, officer, sergeant, corporal and soldier. The military terms are siege, manoeuvre, trench, tactics, march, invasion, assault, escalade, encampment, column, battery, fortification, battalion, bombardment, reconnoissance, enfilade, army, regiment, company, military, artillery, militia, cavalry, infantry, volunteer, etc. These are in strong contrast to the sea terms, nearly all of which are pure Anglo-Saxon.

Its Drawback.

Jinks—"You don't mean to say your wife wants to sell that prize toy terrier you bought for her?" Binks—"Yes, she does." "Why, I thought that toy was said to be the smallest dog in the world!" "That's the trouble. It's so small she keeps mistaking it for a mouse!"

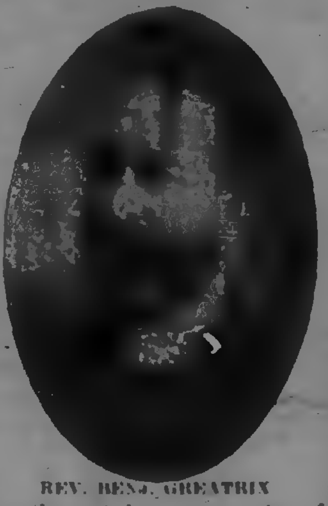
LIFE'S WORK WELL DONE

REV. BENJ. GREATRIX RETIRES FROM ACTIVE MINISTRY, AFTER LONG YEARS OF SERVICE

Rev. Benj. Greatrix, one of the most highly esteemed and successful clergymen in the Bay of Quinte Conference, will retire from the active ministry when he preaches his final sermon as pastor of St. James' Church tomorrow night. While life is left him, however, he will remain a power for good in the church and the community, and at last will leave behind him a record of good works that will endure for all time.

Mr. Greatrix was born in London, nearly sixty years ago, and came to Canada in 1861 with his parents. His first start in life was as a farmer, and he afterward learned the blacksmith trade, these strenuous occupations developing the physical strength that has been one of his best assets through his ministerial career. He spent three and a half years as a student in Victoria College, at that time located in Cobourg, and distinguished himself in class work, winning special honors as an elocutionist. He was ordained into the ministry at the meeting of the Bay of Quinte Conference held in the George Street Methodist Church in this city in 1883. His first charge was at Atherley, a field forty by twenty miles in extent, and containing nine appointments. He traveled from place to place in a buggy over roads that were of primitive construction and at certain seasons almost impassable. Every other Sunday night he was twenty-two miles from home. Two of his superintendents of those days are still living. These are Rev. W. C. Washington of Toronto, and Rev. J. C. Wilson, who at one time was pastor of Mark Street Church, Ashburnham. Among the charges that he held and the time at each was three years at Little Britain, Cannington and Trenton, four years at Campbellford, Port Perry and Oshawa, and three years in Belleville. Tomorrow night he concludes a successful pastorate of four years in St. James'.



REV. BENJ. GREATRIX
For the past four years pastor of St. James', and who now retires from the active ministry.

In every charge which he has held Mr. Greatrix has made good in the three-fold capacity of preacher, pastor and business manager. Year after year in every place where he has officiated the finances of the church have shown an increase, and this always means a corresponding growth in the membership and spiritual life of the congregation. No people will increase their offerings under a pastor who does not enjoy the fullest measure of their confidence and esteem.

When Mr. Greatrix came to St. James' he found a congregation worshipping in a Sunday school hall. He leaves that same congregation in possession of one of the finest church edifices in the city, and the erection of this building was largely due to his energy and excellent management. Even the modest structure in which the people of St. James' were worshipping when he came among them was saddled with a debt of five thousand dollars. The new building was built for $21,000, some of the material being donated by the Trinity congregation from their old church property when Trinity Church was erected. The church property of St. James' is now easily worth $60,000, on which the encumbrance is only $10,000. The total income during the four years of Mr. Greatrix's pastorate has been $35,599, the receipts for the last year being $10,599. The membership has kept pace with this increase, and St. James' congregation is now one of the most prosperous in the city. It has an excellent choir under the able leadership of Mr. A. Nicholls, who also acts as organist.

Mr. and Mrs. Greatrix, who have two children, a daughter, recently married, and a son who has graduated in pharmacy, will continue to reside in Peterborough, their future home being at 438 Park street. They will associate themselves with the George Street Church, carrying with them the best wishes of the entire Conference in so many corners of which they have successfully labored, and the hope that they may be spared many years of usefulness, even though their sphere of service may be limited.

The new pastor of St. James' is Rev. J. F. Chapman, who comes here from Greenbank. He was four years at Cannington, and is regarded as one of the ablest preachers in the Conference.

Among the positions which Mr. Greatrix has filled was that of secretary of the Bay of Quinte Conference. He has been chairman of four district conferences, holding that position here last year, and has been four times a delegate to the General Conference.

MAY'S SCHOOL CHILDREN ENJOY DELIGHTFUL PICNIC

Jackson's Park Scene of Little One's Merry Making--Parents and Teachers Co-operate

Thursday afternoon May's School closed for the summer term and the children hurried gaily home to dream to the picnic on the following day. Friday morning, great preparations were made in many homes, and in the afternoon, a large crowd gathered at Jackson Park to enjoy a pleasant outing. Not only teachers and pupils were present, but also the parents of the children and many other people of the section who have no children in the school but who are interested and have the welfare of the school at heart.

After a few days of rain, the afternoon turned out delightfully—sunny with the air just cool enough to make it enjoyable. About two o'clock, the crowd began to gather at the park and every street car brought fresh loads until a large crowd had assembled. A good program of sports had been arranged and the races were graded so that not only the senior boys and girls were included, but also the little tots under five. Then there was a mothers' race, slow bicycle race and several other special features, after which suitable prizes were distributed to the winners. The sports were supervised by Mrs. Jackson, Miss D. Stocker and Miss V. Watt.

A booth had been arranged where fruit, candy, pop-corn and ice-cream cones were sold and many pennies, dimes and quarters found their way into the money box. The booth was presided over by Miss F. Nicholls and Mrs. Alice Stilson.

About five o'clock, table cloths were spread on the grass, and the large crowd all sat down together to a bounteous repast. The school board had granted $10.00 to give the children a treat of ice-cream so all the children received this special treat, in addition to the other good things. About eight o'clock the party broke up and all declared they had spent a most enjoyable time. A vote of thanks is extended by the teachers to Mr. W. Yale and Mr. J. Davis, who so kindly helped with all the arrangements and also to the ladies, who so willingly came forward to help serve.

The large crowd of adults who attended the picnic and the kindly interest shown, promises well for the future "School and Home" organization, which is to be established in September in connection with this school. There is nothing that will more firmly establish the bond of sympathy, so essential to success between the school and the home than this great "School and Home" forward movement and the community gatherings.

The past year has been a very successful one at May's School and the school board are pleased to announce that the same staff of teachers will take up the work again in September. An increase of $100.00 each per annum has been granted to the teachers for the coming year.

PORT HOPE'S BIG DAY

Lindsay and Port Hope will play a league baseball match. James E. Hardy, the world's most sensational high wire-walker will perform afternoon and evening and the Stewart and Mercer trio in their clever Acrobatic Work will please both young and old. The large display of Fireworks including many war numbers will be given in the evening as well as Acrobatic and Trapeze work. You can view the entire performance from the shade of the hill, the coolest place in Ontario. If you want a real enjoyable outing, go to Port Hope.

OBITUARY

MARY JANE SCOTT

There passed away at Stanwood, Nescosta, Michigan, June 16th, 1919, Mary Jane Scott, widow of the late David Vansickle, aged 68 years.

Before coming to Stanwood some 30 years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Vanisckle lived at Mettineer, Warminister and Havelock, Ont.

Mrs. Vansickle's remains were laid beside her husband's in Morley cemetery, June 18th.

She leaves to mourn her loss one son, Thad, with whom she lived, and two daughters, Mrs. Wendell Wilts, of Morley, and Mrs. Sidney Wilkinson, of Stanwood. Mrs. Vansickle had a large circle of friends who testified to their friendship by the many sprays and wreaths of flowers sent her.

Among those attending the funeral from a distance was a niece Mrs. Emmery Irwin, late of Merrytown, Ont., but now of Battle Creek, Mich.

KAISER AND HUN OFFICERS TO BE PLACED ON TRIAL SOON

This is Declaration of Lloyd George in House of Commons—German Army Quite Inadequate to Disturb Peace of Feeblest Neighbors—No Attempt to Put German People Under Polish Rule.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, July 3.—The former German Emperor will soon be placed on trial. Premier Lloyd George made this announcement in the House of Commons today in his report on peace negotiations. The Premier declared that the tribunal which would try the former emperor would sit in London.

Army Inadequate.

The German army, the Premier said, was at present inadequate to disturb the peace of the feeblest of neighbors of Germany.

Terms of the treaty with Germany in some respects were terrible, the Premier said, but terrible would have been the consequences if Germany had succeeded.

Trial For Hun Officers.

German officers, who had committed appalling infamies, the Premier added, would also be placed on trial.

Mr. Lloyd George also declared that the British delegation has taken the stand of resolutely opposing any attempt to put a predominantly German population under Polish rule.

HOG CHOLERA ON A NEAR-BY FARM

VETERINARY SURGEON WM. MOYNIHAN, OF TORONTO, IS INVESTIGATING.

An outbreak of hog cholera on the farm of Mr. Ben McCoy, who lives about three miles south of the city, was the cause of the visit of Veterinary Surgeon William Moynihan, of Toronto today. Dr. Moynihan, who comes from Toronto, is appointed by the Department of Agriculture to investigate all cases of animal contagious diseases. On Mr. McCoy's farm nine pigs had died, and three more were killed for the purpose of making an examination of their organs. The result was that an order was issued by the inspector, quarantining the remainder of the pigs for a period of six weeks, and they were given an injection of a serum to help kill any germs they might have received from the infected hogs.

STABLES ABLAZE

Fire, which broke out in the new stables at the exhibition grounds, gave the firemen a run last night at 5.36 p.m. It started among the straw in one of the stalls, probably from the pipe or cigarette of some careless smoker. Two small hand extinguishers were sufficient to get the blaze under control, and the damage was not very great.

LABOR COUNCIL AGAINST STRIKE

IN BEHALF OF THOMAS MOONEY CONVICTED OF MURDER.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Seattle, Wash., July 3.—Seattle Central Labor Council announced today that its members voted 76 to 67 against calling a general strike here July 4th, in behalf of Thomas Mooney, now confined in a California prison, following his conviction on the charge of murder, in connection with the Preparedness day parade bomb throwing at the Exposition in San Francisco in 1916.

VAG GOES TO JAIL

George Taylor considered that an hour working for a farmer near Norwood was long enough to suit him and quit. County Constable Wm Dickson considered that he was a vagrant and laid his charge accordingly. In the Police Court this morning the constable's contention was proved to be right, George Taylor going down for three months.

BRITISH AIRSHIP SIGNALS THAT ALL IS WELL ON BOARD

Is More Than Half Way Across Ocean on Flight—Expected to Reach St. Johns, Nfd., Early Friday Morning, and Long Island Saturday—Americans Alert For the Arrival of the Big Dirigible—Searchlights to Reveal Location

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, July 3 (9.56 a.m.).—The Air Minister received a report from the British dirigible R-34, at 6.11 o'clock this morning, giving the position of the craft as approximately half way to Newfoundland.

The British warship Renown, stationed in mid-Atlantic, reported at 6.15 o'clock this morning that the barometer was steady, and the wind blowing about at 4 miles from the northwest. The sky was clear and visibly good, and, the sea smooth.

Arrive Friday.

British Air Ministry announced today that it is expected the dirigible R-34, now in mid-ocean on her trans-Atlantic flight, to reach St. John's, Nfld., on Friday morning and Hazelhurst field, Long Island, early on Saturday morning.

Americans Are Alert.

Mineolany, July 3.—With everything in readiness to receive the giant dirigible R-34, officers of the Royal Air Force, and American aviation units are on the alert for the arrival of the airship. Beginning tonight, scores of searchlights will send up ribbons of light and wig-wag their signals on location. They are placed around the field, on the ground, on trucks, on water tower and on wireless towers.

All Well on Board.

St. John's, Nfld., July 3.—Wireless station here reports having heard signals last night from R-34, indicating that all was well and that the dirigible was continuing her westward journey. The position of the ship was not reported, and consequently station here has no idea how far she has progressed on her voyage.

THREE GREAT POWERS UNITE TO ENFORCE PEACE TERMS

Treaties Between Great Britain, France and the United States Makes Every Provision For Co-operation in Carrying Out Provisions of Versailles Treaty—Overseas Dominions not Affected Except by Vote of Their Parliaments

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, July 3.—The text of the agreements between France and Great Britain and the United States were given out by the Foreign Office last night.

Dominions Not Committed.

The agreement between Great Britain and France, corresponds with that between the United States and France with an additional provision that the treaty imposes no obligation upon any of the Dominions of the British Empire, unless and until it be approved by Parliament of each Dominion interested.

This agreement is signed by M. Clemenceau, M. Pichon, David Lloyd George, British Premier, and A. J. Balfour, British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

Treaty For Peace.

The text of the treaty between France and the United States and a similar one between Great Britain and France makes every provision for the co-operation of these three powers in carrying out provisions of the treaty of Versailles ending the great war

STR. MAURETANIA DOCKS TOMORROW

HAS 3,700 RETURNING TROOPS ON BOARD—THE BALTIC ALSO DUE.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Halifax, N. S., July 3.—The Mauretania, with 3,700 returning Canadian troops, advices by wireless say, will dock at 7:30 tonight.

The Baltic is due to arrive off the harbor early tomorrow morning and will dock at 7 o'clock at the clearing depot, officials stated.

STRUCK BOTTOM IN RIVER DIVE

DISTRESSING ACCIDENT YESTERDAY AT INVERLEA PARK.

Fred. McCormack, 639 Rubidge street, met with a distressing accident about 9 o'clock last night. He took a dive from the springboard at Inverlea Park and struck the bottom with his head, sustaining a very severe scalp wound. The skin was almost torn off the top of his head and his face was badly marked with small pebbles. Dr. F. P. McNulty was immediately summoned by telephone and had the injured man removed to St. Joseph's Hospital. His wife is in the same institution at present undergoing treatment. He is employed as an operator in the power house of the Auburn Woolen Mills.

B.C. VETS DEMAND BIG WAR BONUS

$1,000 FOR SOLDIERS WHO SERVED IN CANADA; $500 EXTRA FOR OVERSEAS MEN.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Vancouver, B.C., July 3.—After an all-day discussion, the Great War Veterans' Association, in Dominion convention have adopted a resolution calling on the Dominion Government to grant a one thousand dollar bonus to all men who served in Canada, with $500 extra for those who went overseas, and still another $500 for men who served in the actual theatre of war. The resolutions adopted was very similar to the famous Calgary resolution.

It was decided that soldiers' widows, children and Canadians who served with the Imperials, should also get this grant. The measure will be known as the soldiers 'establishment bonus scheme, when presented to the Government.

The decision on the matter was made after lengthy debate; it was made practically unanimous, and was given continued cheering. In general, the argument of those advocating it, was that soldiers whose earning powers were affected by their going to war should be put in a fair position in a comparison with those who stayed at home.

MAN IN STOLEN AUTO WOUNDED AFTER ATTEMPT TO SELL CAR.

Chicago, July 2.—As he was attempting to escape arrest in a stolen automobile this morning Louis A. Glyda, 25 years old, 1722 South Ashland avenue, was shot by city detectives, who surprised him as he tried to dispose of the car to Warshowsky Bros., 1950 South State street. Glyda was "speeding" down an alley between South Wabash avenue and South State street when a bullet from Detective Sergeant Frank McDonald felled him. He was taken to St. Luke's hospital with a bullet wound in the shoulder. One of his pals was arrested.

The car was identified as the property of Charles Chow, proprietor of a chop suey restaurant.

Suspicions of the garage owner were aroused at the low price for which the automobile was offered, and he phoned the police. When two detective sergeants arrived neither Glyda nor his four companions paused for argument. One was seen to catch a passing street car and others leaped to the running boards of passing automobiles. McDonald declares that he recognized the other members of the gang.

Second Yearly Employees' Day At Cressmans

An innovation, started last year by the Cressman Company, Limited, was duplicated this year when the Company, co-operating with the Welfare Club, and the heads of the twenty-one departments of the store, took 20 per cent of the gross sales of last Saturday and distributed the amount amongst the staff, according to length of service and salary received.

The appreciation of the idea is quite evident as the day's sales were a record, even going ahead of Christmas Saturdays, which are always considered the banner sales days of the year. The amount distributed was consequently must in excess of a year ago, being approximately twelve hundred dollars.

This distribution is in no way connected with the profit-sharing scheme of the company, which takes place twice a year, in August and February, at the close of each half year and is based on the results of the departments.

Some men always do their best—including their best friends.

Isn't it a fact that the congregation of a wideawake preacher is seldom caught napping?

BETTING LIGHT ON BIG FIGHT

MARQUIS OF QUEENSBERRY RULES WILL GOVERN CHAMPIONSHIP CONTEST.

(Special Correspondence)

Toledo, O., July 3.—Rules governing the heavyweight championship contest between Jack Dempsey and Jess Willard in Tex Rickard's $150,000 arena here tomorrow are to be officially interpreted at the meeting today, attended by Ollie Pecord, the referee, Rickard and Major Biddle, judges of the contest, the boxers themselves, and Jack Kearns, manager of the challenger. It is probable that straight Marquis of Queensbury rules will prevail.

Dempsey is the favorite in the betting, which has proved surprisingly light to date, notwithstanding the gathering of thousands of prospective spectators.

In some quarters the sentiment appeared to be veering toward the champion, for, while Dempsey's backers were offered even money on the challenger a day or two ago, they are now asking that Willard's men lay 10 to 8. At the leading commissioners' quarters the blackboards are filled with various betting propositions which have remained untaken, with the exception of a few freak wagers. In the parimutual betting the heaviest play is being made on the seventh and eighth rounds, while Dempsey is almost a two to one favorite, according to the tickets sold.

He Asks $100 To Inspect Plumbing

EDITOR NEWSOME HAS WRONG IDEA OF COUNCIL'S INTENTIONS.

Editor Newsome, of the Plumbing Trade Journal, has written Ald. Hamilton, that he would come to Peterborough and report on defective plumbing work in this city, in a few buildings, where such exists. He would, however, expect to be paid $100 for expenses.

A short time ago, this gentleman reported to the press that Peterboro plumbing did not measure up to the standard. Council immediately invited him to definitely specify such work, and decided to secure an independent enquiry into the same.

Mr. Newsome's offer was reported to the Council last night, but the Aldermen agreed that he had the wrong idea. What Council required is, for him to simply name where the poor plumbing is as referred to by him in the press, when the city would procure an independent report.

HIGH COST LIVING PROTEST STRIKE

MANY SHOPS DESTROYED IN FORELI, ITALY—MILITARY MEASURES TAKEN.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Rome, July 3.—A general strike to protest against the high cost of living has been declared at Faenza, Anacona, and other towns in Romanga districts of Central Italy. This strike is connected with a movement at Foreli, where many shops were destroyed.

Military measures have been taken to insure order in Anacona, which is considered the centre of the anarchist movement in Italy.

WILL RATIFY TREATY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Copenhagen, July 3.—The German National Assembly will deal with the treaty on peace between the Allies and Germany on Saturday and a majority for ratification of the instrument has been secured, according to a Weimar despatch.

LABOR DAY WILL BE FITTINGLY CELEBRATED HERE THIS YEAR

Trades and Labor Council Intends Making Demonstration Banner Event in Peterborough's History—Trades Councillors Characterize the One-Man Street Cars as a Menace to Citizens—One Woman Has Narrow Escape.

At the regular meeting of the Trades and Labor Council, held in the Labor Hall, last night, it was decided to have the Labor Day Committee wait on the Board of Trade, and inform them that Labor was putting on a big program of events for Labor's big annual holiday, and to request them to give way to the Trades Council on this day. This was the outcome of a short discussion on an article which appeared in the local press recently to the effect that the Board of Trade intended staging a demonstration at the Fair Grounds on Labor Day. It was felt by all delegates present last night that as this is Labor's holiday they should be given a clear field. It is the intention of the Trades Council to make Labor Day, 1919, (Monday, September 1,) the banner one in the history of Peterborough. Union Labor is going to make it well worth while for the citizens to remain in their own city on the big holiday. There will be baseball morning and afternoon, with other interesting sports. A band will be engaged to head what is expected and hoped to be the largest turnout of union men in the history of Peterborough, and in the evening it is planned to stage a dance.

Echoes of Present Strikes

One of the delegates from the Laborers' Union stated that the outcome of the recent strike, was not quite satisfactory, and that a few of the men who had returned to work were not receiving the rate of pay the Council had agreed on. This question was left to the Laborers' Union to take up with the City Council.

Light Up the Parks

A suggestion made by one of the delegates to ask the city council to improve the city by installing lights in Central Park, resulted in a motion being adopted instructing the secretary to write the Council requesting that body to take up the matter of having the city parks properly illuminated. Emphasis was laid on Central Park, but it was the unanimous opinion that it would not be detrimental to either the appearance of the city, or its morals to "turn on the light."

One-Man Street Cars

The one-man street car idea came in for a full measure of criticism from the delegates. It was felt that they are a menace to public safety. The doors close by the air route and once set in motion there is no stopping them. One member had noticed at Charlotte Street, a woman attempting to board one of these wage-saving devices. The motorman-conductor did not see her and the door was slammed in her face. Another delegate stated that a heavy fine had been chalked up to a company not far from Peterborough for operating a one-man car. The secretary will send in the Council's protest to the proper authorities.

SENATE AGAIN REJECTS PROHIBITION--VOTE 30-22

Order-in-Council Prohibiting the Sale of Liquor During the War Terminated With Signing of Peace—Senate Flouts the House of Commons, Which Voted For Another Bone-Dry Year.

Ottawa, July 3.—By a vote of 30 to 22 the Senate affirmed its former decision that order-in-Council regarding prohibition terminated with the signing of peace, and not twelve months after.

The Leader in the Upper House, Sir James Lougheed, asked that a law be passed making Canada "bone dry" for one year following the proclamation of peace by the King. A motion to that effect was introduced by the Government leader in the Senate, and defeated largely by the votes of the Government's adherents in the Red Chamber. The House of Commons favored continuation of prohibition for another year by a vote of 105 to 34. There were loud "Hear, hears" when Sir James Lougheed said in opening the discussion that the House of Commons "does not control the Senate." He moved "that the Senate does not insist upon its amendment" rejecting prohibition.

The Division.

The vote resulted as follows:

"Drys" — Senators Sir James Lougheed, Daniel, McLennan, Robertson, Sharp, McCall, Laird, Curry, Foster, Turiff, Blain Tanner Harmer McMeans, Webster, Michener, Thompson, Farrell, King, Yeo, Smith and Ratz.—22.

"Wets"—Senators Bolduc, Ross (Nova Scotia), Milne, Pope, Fowler, Montplaisir, Murphy, Crosby, Donnelley, Bourque, Girroir, Shatford, White, Pringle, Barnard, Taylor, Mulholland, Casgrain, Bostock, Power, Tessier, Thibaudeau, De Veber, Boyer, Cloran, Godbout, [illegible], Dessaulles, Lavergne and Forget.—30.

WHAT WAR-TIME DRY LAW PROHIBITS AND PERMITS

The war time prohibition now in effect in the United States, both permits and prohibits the use of liquor as follows:

PROHIBITS

Sale of distilled liquor for beverage purposes unless for export.

Removal for beverage purposes of distilled liquors held in bond, unless for export.

Use of food products in the manufacture or production of beer, wine or other intoxicating malt or vinous liquor for beverage purposes.

Sale for beverage purposes of beer, wine or other intoxicating malt or vinous liquor, unless for export.

Importation of distilled malt, vinous or other intoxicating liquors, except of shipments now on route.

THE LAW PERMITS

Use of wine for sacramental purposes.

Prescription by physicians of wines and liquors for internal use and alcohol for external use, when the patient is under constant supervision of the physician. Quantity prescribed at one time must not exceed one quart.

THE BRIDGE MUDDLE.

IT SEEMS TO US that one big mistake in handling the Hunter street bridge proposition was in referring it to the Board of Works, as constituted. What is the Special Bridge Committee for, if not to inquire thoroughly into questions connected with the object of its creation, and then report to the Council, like all other committees? Why a Bridge Committee at all if the Board of Works is to be the deciding factor so far as committees are concerned? The Board of Works is composed of the whole City Council, 'tis true, and one would think its decisions would be final—that was the real object of creating a Board of Works out of a committee of the whole Council; but in the case of the bridge project, this abnormally large committee has proven the undoing of every effort to let a contract for the work.

In the good old days, when Peterborough had a City Council capable of handling a business proposition in a businesslike way, much trouble was caused in Council because the Board of Works' recommendations didn't go far enough to suit each member of the Council. Almost every alderman not a member of the Board wanted street work done not included in the Board's report, and consequently a considerable portion of the Council's session was taken up in additions and amendments to and criticism of the Board's recommendations. At last, however, every member of the Council was enrolled on the Board of Works with a view to assuring its recommendations for street improvements being endorsed by the aldermen, individually and collectively, before their routine appearance in Council, thus avoiding waste of time that might be devoted to other matters. And this plan has worked admirably until the saddling upon this year's Board of the Hunter street bridge proposition, in regard to which the same rule evidently does not apply. The Board of ten aldermen and his Worship the Mayor is split on the bridge question into three factions—one for a lump sum contract, one for a cost-plus agreement (in the absence to them of a satisfactory lump sum tender), the other for a cost-plus guaranteed maximum cost proposition. These factions tenaciously adhere to their opinions, with the exception of perhaps a couple of aldermen, who will switch from their position in an attempt to reach a decisive conclusion. But knowing that no action of the Board is final certain mebers attend the following Council meeting armed for assault on the Board's recommendations re the bridge, and so far have always been successful in undoing whatever had been accomplished. And why? Because there is one element in the Council of "changing minds" and another of "obstinacy," which does not make for the welfare of the city, let it be on the bridge or other matters. Had the bridge question been sent to a small committee composed of capable business men and left in the hands of that body until a concrete recommendation to Council had been unanimously reached in all likelihood that recommendation would, even if only carried by a majority of six to four—as were the decisions of the Board of Works, composed of all the aldermen—have been put into effect, a contract for the bridge let, signed and sealed, and the work under way long ago. At all events, a "double" opportunity for the whole Council, first in committee and then in Council, to play at battledore and shuttlecocks with the Hunter street bridge would not have been offered.

After three tenders for this bridge have been accepted by the Board (and one also endorsed by the Council) only to no purpose—first, because of injunction fright; secondly, owing to the endorsation of union wages having augmented the "accepted" tender by $10,000; and, thirdly, because the guarantee of the Russell-Townsend Company that individual aldermen should not be held liable for the bridge's cost exceeding its appropriation was characterized by City Solicitor Widdifield as equivalent to a bribe and illegal the Board now awaits another bid, this time from the Leonard Construction Co. And after this latter tender is to hand the aldermen would do well to abandon their vacillating policy, and either definitely award the contract or abandon the whole project for the time being. The people have voted $260,000 for this bridge, and do not take kindly to its erection being blockeb by friction between individual opinion and purpose on the Council Board. On the contrary, they expect a giving way of personal judgment to effect a majority conclusion, especially where big interests are at stake. And above all, the electorate look to their representatives to act without fear or favor in carrying out their instructions as expressed at the polls.

Without going into the merits or demerits of a steel span over the river (and in that regard it would have been good business had Council procured plans for both steel and concrete in the first place, as advised by Ald. Phelan), let us look at the city's position in regard to the Russell-Townsend tender of some $228,600 cost-plus without a guaranteed maximum cost. This company is a reliable one, and have never been known to exceed their estimates but once, and they could not afford in Peterborough's case to impair their reputation by giving an estimate abnormally astray from what the actual cost would reach. This estimate in question was based on a nine-hour work day at 40 cents for laborers and 60 cents for carpenters, and the increase in wages to 45 cents and 67½ cents for an eight-hour day, endorsed by Council, will add another $10,000 to the original estimate of $228,600, making a total $238,600 cost-plus estimate. The city has been voted $260,000 for the bridge, which amount has been augmented by a Government grant of $50,000 and a Railway Board grant of $5000, thus giving the Council $315,000 to work on. To Russell-Townsend's estimate, with increase for labor, of $237,000, Council adds $50,000 for engineering and property damages, making a grand total bridge cost of $288,600, leaving a margin of $26,400 to play on before Russell-Townsend could reach the cost limit of Council's appropriation of $315,000. Then what on earth can Council find in this tender to justify timidity, especially when Engineer Frank Barber undertakes to put in writing an agreemnt with the city that Council has enough money to build the bridge as designed by him?

Some time this week the Board of Works will have a lump sum tender for the bridge from the Leonard Construction Co. on Mr. Barber's plans—at least so it is understood—and surely it will be up to them to act definitely in one direction or the other. This city and its proposed bridge have too long been subjects for jest and ridicule, and the axiom, "Contractors, abandon hope all ye who enter here," might fittingly be inscribed over the city hall's entrance doors, and the Board of Works devote a little time to repairing the pavement on George street and get busy on the sewage disposal plant.

As to union labor on the bridge, that is not a question with the workingmen, a big majority of whom have no labor at all just now. They want to see the bridge started. And in this connection, one fact stands out quite clearly, and that is, the less work the city provides workingmen this summer, the bigger will be the charity bill next winter. As to union wages, either the Russell-Townsend Company or the Canadian Engineering and Contracting Company, in fact any successful tenderer, must pay them, according to resolution of Council. As to the bridge itself, a few of our aldermen have only themselves to blame that the whole City Council today is characterized by ratepayers as quite incompetent to handle so big a project, and the bridge sessions are accepted generally as a huge joke. As to Mr. Rudkins' threatened injunction, we quote one of our esteemed aldermen as saying that he had been assured by Mr. R. R. Hall that Mr. Rudkins now had no intention of moving in the matter.

Let us hope that the Board of Works at its next meeting will unify on some definite plan of action at last, which will pass themselves when in session under the name of Council, and thus advise the community whether the new high level bridge is, so far as this year's Council is concerned, to be or not to be!

ADOLESCENT DEMOCRACIES.

LIVES OF GREAT MEN and of lesser men remind us that there comes into most thoughtful young lives an epoch of revolutionism, says the Dearborn Independent.

Lincoln, whose riper years had the grand stability of the Capitol, was an insurgent in religious thought while verging toward manhood. Wordsworth, whose life's long afternoon had the fruitful serenity of Grasmere vale, could recall a period when he hailed the ruddy dawn of the French Revolution.

Democracies are like men, and they have their infantile periods and their adolescent eras. When the Thirteen Colonies had achieved victory in the surrender of Cornwallis, there was much that was raw and callow in the immature republic. Some thoughtful men feared the only avenue to security lay in the setting up of a throne in Philadelphia within sound of the Liberty Bell, and calling George Washington to establish a dynasty of kings.

This nation is now in a riper stage of young maturity, and can therefore be patient with the dashing madness of some very young democracies beyond the troubled sea. Hungary and Russia, as lands and nations, are older than we, but as democracies they are young, immature, sanguine, charged with the ruthless radicalism and uncalculating revolutionism of adolescence.

When the period of radicalism comes to a youth, manhood is near. When it comes to a nation, true liberty is at hand. Budapest and Moscow have been scouting the grey heroes and heroines of humanity, they have been hailing the rash and destructive leaders whose spirit is the spirit of wild colts, wild youths, wild young radicalism.

Great good to humanity came out of the stirred blood and dynamic brains of the young Lincoln and the young Wordsworth. France in the younger days of her democracy made sad blunders of youth, but in time she attained a serene vitality of liberty which gave her a place among the Great Free Peoples.

Today we recognize errors and wildnesses in the callow democracies. Some of them, like our own young people, are calling men heroes and leaders, who are not heroes and should not be leaders. But youth in men and nations has so often vindicated its vigor, that we can believe and hope in all these young democracies, just as in 1776 we besought the world to believe and hope in us.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

CHARLOTTE STREET is the favorite speedway for motorists. The police will please take notice.

• • • • •

MANY PETERBOROUGH old boys—and old girls, too, for that matter—spent the holiday in the city.

• • • • •

MANY TENANTS took advantage of the holiday on Monday to pick up their sticks and move to a more desirable residence.

ON FRIDAY NIGHT the Board of Works will meet again to consider a tender for constructing the new Hunter street bridge, this time from the Leonard Construction Company. Oh, what's the use? The Council finds it more difficult to sign a bridge contract than Germany found it to sign the peace treaty.

JUST THINK OF IT! Prior to August, 1914, the civilized world sent its children to Germany to complete their education in culture. We are constrained from experience of the past five years to wonder where in Hunland they found it. Perhaps there are two kinds of culture in Germany—one spelled with a K, the other with a C.

CULTURE'S TRUE VALUE

(By Arthur L. Salmon in The Chicago Daily News.)

The world has seen that culture of the intellect alone is not enough to save a nation or an individual from committing the grossest wrong. Culture is undoubtedly power; but, like power, it may be good or evil, according to its spirit and its application.

Some people, seeing its sore abuse, its degradation to the vilest ends, may have asked: "What is the use of education, of mental cultivation and acquirement? We see its result—how it has led only to aggression and destructiveness. Is it not better to limit our culture, to be content with a more modest attainment?"

And, if culture of the intellect really meant the neglect or debasing of the spiritual and the moral we would assuredly answer: "Yes, it is better. Beter by far be ignorant, if ignorance innocence and virtue."

But ignorance does not mean this. Ignorance generally induces weakness, not strength or, necessarily, innocence. Where a certain class of culture has failed it is because it was so terribly onesided—in fact, because on one side it has been disgracefully ignorant. It has not known, or it has despised, the things that alone could dignify and render it beneficent. In mental matters as in material, wealth may be a good or an evil, a gain or a loss. There should be no limit to our culture of the better things within us, our faculty of seeing and knowing and judging our power of hearing and feeling. "A higher nature within implies a higher world without," says Moncure Conway.

Everything appears little to one whose vision is small, and ignorance itself is usually narrow, dogmatic, prejudiced, intolerant. We do not need less, we need more of true knowledge and enlightening culture. It is not knowledge and culture that have come to grief; rather has it been their deficiency, their development on a single side, their peril and poison under a wrongful use.

In the old days a man often sought for physical strength that by means of it he might dominate and rule; the welfare of those dominated depended entirely on his disposition, on the accident of his mood and fancy. We have seen a great many people seek strength for the same purpose, with a view to domination and aggradizement. It does not follow that the strength thus attained must be evil in itself; it was its aim and use that degraded and corrupted it. The corruption of the best becomes the worst, said the ancients, and we have noted the deep truth of this in the corruption and corroding of what might have been a benevolent and desirable culture. We must learn to distinguish between the weapon and its employment. If this lesson is not learned, the world will go on blundering on the old paths that led to wrongdoing and misery and bloodshed. It is possible to pay a huge price for lessons and still not learn them. This is the saddest form of human wastefulness.

We are brought back to the old truth that the motive is everything. The cultivation and enrichment of our intellects, like money itself, is what we may call neutral or negative; its value lies entirely in the purpose and the application. What are we going to do with it? That is the really important question. It is not likely to remain negative; it will become a good or an evil according to our using. What we need above all things is that such culture shall be large and generous in its purposes; that it shall foster our power of seeing beauty; that we may teach others to see it. An acquirement selfishly nursed, kept to ourselves, remains dead and unproductive.

That wealth may increase it must be used, and this applies equally to riches of the mind. We must take them forth and trade with them, giving to others and receiving from them a fair exchange. As it was once expressed in the old epitaph, that which we save we lose, that which we give we have. The more we have the more we can give and therefore, the greater our own blessedness.

EDITOR'S MAIL

WILLIAM HAMILTON CO., LTD.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir: For some time I have quietly ignored the rumors that have been circulated regarding the William Hamilton Co., Ltd., preferring the policy of the stalwart miner, who, when asked why he allowed his little wife to beat him with the broomstick, replied "it pleases she and it don't hurt I."

But, I really think that the time has now arrived when forbearance ceases to be a virtue, and as the largest shareholder in the company and vitally interested in its success, I cannot allow the present rumor to go uncontradicted. It is to the effect that the Company was going down, in fact, was actually, "on the rocks," and that the leading drastic changes in the personnel of the executive and in the leading employers of the works were necessary in the interests of the Company. To those who are familiar with the inside history of the Company, and who know exactly what changes have taken place this statement is very ludicrous. Will you kindly permit me to state the following:

(a) On the 18th of February last, the very day of our annual meeting, I received a letter from the Bradstreet Co., advising me that they had increased the rating of the Company by $50,000, over the amount of our rating for the previous year, and congratulating me, as President of the Company, upon the good progress we were making.

(b) The very same day, the Manager of the Bank of Ottawa, warmly congratulated us upon the very satisfactory position of our Bank account, and the good progress we were making and the bright prospects for this year.

(c) After great trouble and many experiments we had succeeded in getting an able and thoroughly competent superintendent, who was an expert in getting production, and who, at the same time, commanded the respect and good will of the men, and whose skill in handling the whole labor question made it reasonably certain that the company would not have to encounter any strikes this year. In consequence the works were "lined up" so much better than formerly that we were complimented by engineers and other practical mechanical men upon the marked improvement in the works, our shipments had increased by about $5,000 per month, with a corresponding increase in profits.

(d) If we had continued as we were there was every reason to believe that we would have earned very handsome profits this year.

These facts prove that the individuals who originated, and have circulated the above rumor, do not possess that beautiful trait of character that was such a distinguishing mark of the late lamented George Washington.

Apsley, July 3.—Pte. A. McIlvena, who has just returned from overseas, was renewing acquaintances here last week.

Mr. Michael Kennedy, V. S., passed through the village en route to Loon Lake last week.

Miss Ella Brown, who has been teaching in Belmont, is home for the vacation.

Miss Ruby Windsor, who has been teaching at Owenbrook, has returned to her home.

Mr. George and Miss Grace Carr, formerly of this village, are spending a few days among friends here.

Mr. H. Moloney, formerly a teacher of the Clydesdale school, was in the village last week.

A monster all day picnic was held in Beck's Grove on Dominion Day. A most enjoyable day is reported.

The junior High school Entrance examinations are being held in the school here this week.

Presentation to Teacher.

The village school closed on Friday last for the summer vacation. In the afternoon the pupils presented their teacher, Mrs. W. Staples, who has been teaching the school for over a year, with a handsome china fruit bowl and two boxes of dainty chocolates. Inside the bowl was a card signed by the following children on behalf of the school: Alma Jones, Stella Jones, Wilbert Johnston, Cecil Wilson, Hazel Wilson, Marjory Wilson, Amy Lean, Gordon Lean, Ruth Johnston, Herbert Lean and Lloyd Lean. The presentation was made by Master Gordon Lean.

Mrs. Staples was taken completely by surprise, but made a very suitable reply thanking the children for their beautiful gifts and kindly remembrance.

HASTINGS

(Special Correspondence.)

Tuesday, July 1st, was duly observed as a general holiday, and numbers of our citizens spent the day in Peterborough and Campbellford.

On Saturday the flags of the town were hoisted in honor of the signing of the peace treaty by the Germans.

The Ladies' Aid Excursion to Peterborough during the week was, as usual, a grand success, notwithstanding the fact that the weather during the afternoon was rather wet. The steamer "Stoney Lake" left the wharf at 7.30 o'clock, reaching the city about 12.30, where the party enjoyed themselves until 4.30. Then they embarked for the homeward trip, reaching Hastings about 9.30 o'clock, everybody being well pleased with the day's outing.

Farewell Address

Following is the address tendered to Nursing Sister Helen Fowlds on the eve of her departure for Toronto.

It is indeed a great pleasure for us to welcome you once more to your native land and your native town. We are deeply grateful to Almighty God, who has spared you to set foot on Canada's shore again. For four years of war you have been a constant attendant upon the sick, the wounded and the the dying. During that time you, in co-operation with you sister nurses, have done valiant deeds for the cause of freedom and justice. Many a brave soldiers' head has rested more easily because of your efforts, and many a noble hero has been drawn back from the Valley of the Shadows by your ministrations. Indeed, we realize that the nurse, in conjunction with the physician, has won battles over disease and death, which are the counter part of those victores won by the soldiers, in the line of war.

Among the great train of nurses who have rendered enduring service, to the nation, you were singled out for an especial honor, when our gracious sovereign, the King, decorated you with the insignia of the Royal Red Cross. This badge stands as the emblem of that service through which you so nobly persevered. It will be a witness for all time to purity of motive, constancy of endeavor, and heroic accomplishment.

Now, in conclusion, we tender you the sincere good wishes of your friends of Hastings Chapter, Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire. Our prayer to God is that you may be spared for many years of usefulness in that profession which has received the blessing of Him, who came "Not to be ministered unto, but to Minister." In token of our kindly feelings we beg you to accept this expression of our regard.

In the name and on behalf of the Hastings Chapter, I. O. D. E.

The local Orange Lodge attended service in the Presbyterian Church, on Sunday evening, and were addressed by Rev. D. A. Thomson, pastor of the church.

Miss Alice Johnston, of the Royal Bank staff, Peterborough, spent the past week with her cousin, Mrs. L. W. Hess.

Miss Gertie Huycke, Peterborough was a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas Huycke, last week.

Mr. Bruce Richardson has accepted a position on the Union Bank staff here.

Mrs. J. Stinson returned last week from a visit with friends in Peterboro. She was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Rogers.

Miss Flo German, of Peterborough is holidaying under the parental roof.

Mr. and Mrs. Steele and child of Toronto, have been visiting at the home of Mrs. S. Carter.

Mrs. W. Dermo, of Toronto, visited last week at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Geo. Lynch.

Mrs. M. Foley of Havelock, has been with her mother, Mrs. G. Lynch.

Mr. Smith, who has been stationed for some time with the Union Bank, here, has been removed to Hepworth.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan, Mr. and Mrs. Moir, of Campbellford, were in town on Sunday.

Mr. Gilbert Herrington and Mr. E. Hoskum of Havelock, visited Mrs. G. Lynch.

Miss Donna Seeper of Morganston, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. M. Baker.

Mr. Clifford Herrington of Toronto, visited last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Lynch.

Mrs. J. Carter, of Havelock, spent Sunday with Mrs. S. Carter, town.

Mr. and Mrs. C. McKelvie and Mrs. McDonald of Campbellford, spent Sunday with Miss Agnes Hermiston, Albert street.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Tate, Miss Ella Tate and Mr. and Mrs. W. Tate spent Sunday with friends near Brighton.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Gould, spent Sunday with friends in Colborne.

Mr. Reg. Runnels of Montreal, is holidaying with his parents here.

A mass meeting was held in the Town Hall, on Monday evening to celebrate the signing of the peace treaty and also to do honor to some of our returned heroes. Reeve Hess occupied the chair and after a few introductory remarks, called on the local clergy to address the meeting. The addresses were interspersed with solos given by Miss Mae Huycke and Mrs. (Rev.) McKim. At the close of the program each of the boys were presented with an address and a beautifull engraved locket as a slight recognition of their services. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Pte. Robert Dainard returned on Monday from overseas and is being welcomed by his many friends.

On Sunday evening as Mr. Lambert and family were coming home in their car they were met by two men who made an attempt to stop them. They however increased their speed and left them behind. Two suspicious characters were observed around town on Sunday and it is thought they were the same.

Contribution To City Playgrounds

TEACHERS' GUILD DONATES $35 TO THIS WORTHY CAUSE.

The following letter has been received by Mrs. Mowat, Convener of the Committee on Supervised Playgrounds and Social Centres, of the L. C. U. of Peterborough.

Dear Mrs. Mowat.

At the meeting of the Women Teachers' Guild, it was decided to give this as our contribution to the worthy cause of Supervised Playgrounds. We understand you are the convener of the Committee.

Sincerely,
MADELIN RUTHERFORD,
Secretary

The "contribution" was a check for thirty-five dollars for which the "playground" workers are very grateful.

THANKS FOR SYMPATHY IN DEATH OF SON

Mrs. A. W. Jones and family wish to express, publicly, their deep sense of appreciation, for the many expressions of sympathy and kindness, they have received in their great sorrow and bereavement, especially to the employes of the Wm. Hamilton Company, the Dressing Department o fthe Auburn Woollen Mills, and also the Swastika Club, each of whose beautiful wreaths is truly emblematic of the unfading beauty of that friendship and love that knows no sunset.

To the Trustee Board of the Mark street Methodist Church, and also to the Auburn Union Sunday School, for their beautiful floral anchors, expressive as they were of that anchor of the good that holds in the storm of life.

The language, love and sympathy has not been quite so effectively expressed as in the many other floral offerings of both friends and relations.

Flight-Lt. H. E. Foster, R.A.F., flew from Toronto to North Bay in two hours and forty minutes to take part in the Dominion Day celebration there.

DELMORE'S BUBBLE

"All's Well That Ends Well"

By CLARISSA MACKIE

"I don't believe in bubbles!" cried Pauline Fane pettishly.

"You would believe in this one if you had heard Jim Hard tell the story," protested Delmore earnestly. "Of course I don't want to undertake such an expedition without your approval, but, dear, it would make our future very happy and care free if I could discover that great diamond called 'the Bubble.'"

Pauline laughed at her lover's earnestness.

"Nonsense, Dick," she replied scornfully. "If you must go you must. But you will take with you my utter disbelief in the project and my disapproval of your risking what little money you have in such a hazardous undertaking. So there!"

Dick flushed painfully. He was looking thin and careworn as the result of a long illness, from which he had recovered to find that he had lost his position as sales manager for a man with some influence and considerable money with which to invest in the company's stock.

"The voyage down there will brace me up again," argued Dick for the twentieth time.

"Oh, you can take the voyage just the same, only don't risk your money on that insane venture," said Pauline.

"And if I decide to do that?" asked Dick quietly.

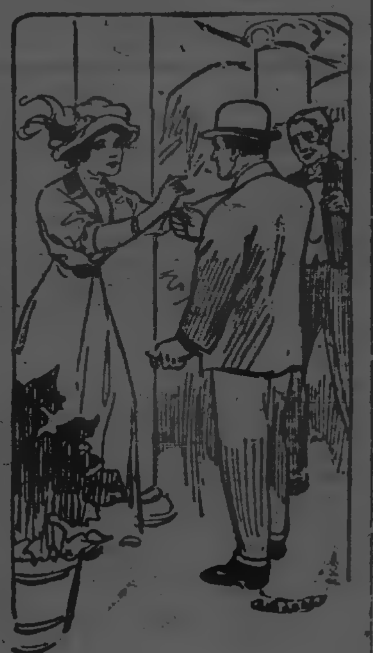
Pauline slowly drew Dick's ring from her finger.

"You will have this for a reminder of me," she said cruelly.

Dick slipped the ring into his pocket and turned away.

"And if I really discover the Bubble?" he asked dryly.

"Then I'll believe your story," smiled Pauline, rather uneasily. "If you bring the Bubble—and I really believe the story to be a bubble of imagination on the part of a dying sailor—then you can replace the ring on my finger."



"DICK, OH, DICK! YOU ARE SAFE!"

"In the meantime our engagement is broken because you do not approve of my going?" asked Dick wonderingly.

"Yes," she replied in a bored manner.

Dick bade her a very formal farewell and went away. He did not offer to replace the ring on her finger, and after he had departed Pauline cried a little in her lace handkerchief, and then, because she was rather a spoiled child, she decided to forget about Dick.

Dick felt a strange sense of freedom as he sailed toward the southland where Jim Hard had told him the diamond was buried.

"You go to Porto Rico, sir," the man had whispered feebly. "In the city of San Juan you will hunt up a black named Maturin. Give him this bit of paper and he will take you in his boat to one of the outlying islands of the Virgin group. There you will land in a tiny cove. The island is only a few hundred feet in extent and is almost entirely covered at high tide, when nothing save a group of cocoanut palms is visible. You must land at high tide. Wait among the trees until the tide falls and the cove is only a bed of mud.

"Then you will follow directions on this little chart. A hundred and fifty feet due south from the big palm tree will take you to the middle of the cove. Dig there until you uncover a bit of rusty chain. Attached to the chain is a small iron box. If you can get it up you will find inside of it the diamond. It is yours. I hoped to get it, but I couldn't make out. If you find it send something to my old mother in Kansas. Thank you, sir. There is nothing else."

So Jim Hard passed away with his horny hand in Dick's, and it was characteristic of Dick Delmore that he wrote a sympathetic letter to Hard's mother and shipped the body to his western home and sent money to give the man decent burial and leave a sum over for the lonely old woman. Of course this dipped into his meager savings, but Pauline never knew of that.

One may morning Dick found himself in San Juan, Porto Rico, conferring with the black man named Maturin. He did not tell Maturin about the diamond. He merely told him that he was going to the cocoanut island to search for "hidden treasure" and Maturin had laughed good naturedly and told him that "plenty white mans like fun that a-way, suh!"

But Maturin was ready to set out in his sturdy little boat, and, with a plentiful supply of provisions and water, they sailed among the green islands, set like jewels in the deep blue waters, until on the second morning after their departure they came upon the group of cocoanut palms, apparently rising out of the sea.

There was no other island in sight. On every side stretched the limitless ocean.

"This must be the island, boss," said Maturin as he beached the boat upon the scrap of sand under the trees of the island.

"We can soon find out, Maturin," said Dick as he threw himself down under the shade of the palms and waited while the man prepared an appetizing meal.

By the time they had concluded their dinner the tide had begun to fall. Little by little a shelving, pebbly beach was uncovered until at last the receding waters bared the sandy bottom of the cove. Finally the tide went out beyond the entrance and at ebb lapped the teeth of the coral reef.

"Now!" exclaimed Dick, who had been impatiently waiting for this moment to arrive.

He drew on a pair of hip boots of rubber, provided himself with pick and shovel, and, under the wondering, half amused gaze of the black, Dick Delmore went to seek the Bubble of which he had come in search.

He carefully made the required measurements, and when he believed he had located the exact spot indicated on the little map which Jim Hard had placed in his hand at the last moment Dick thrust his shovel in the wet sand and worked steadily.

Suddenly the blade of the shovel clinked against metal.

In a few seconds he had uncovered the rusty link of a ship's anchor chain. It gave him a clew, and he changed the direction of his delving. In half an hour he had exposed three feet of chain, the shank and one fluke of a small anchor. In the mass of links where the chain caught the shank was embedded a large quantity of shellfish—that was all.

Or was it all?

Dick tore at the incrusted mass and finally dislodged a small iron box, which he promptly dropped into his pocket. Then he flung aside the chain and anchor, picked up his pick and shovel and left the cove.

Maturin was nodding drowsily, and he smiled commiseratingly upon his employer as he threw himself down on the island to rest.

"Massa Boss no find treasure?" he asked pityingly.

"Go and see!" replied Dick tersely, for he wanted a moment alone with the iron box.

Dick Delmore returned to the shade of the palms, pulled the iron box from his pocket, broke its rusty lock with a blow from his shovel and found within it a smaller box of coral. This coral box when opened disclosed something hard and round wrapped in oiled silk.

For a long time Dick sat there gazing at the treasure which lay in his palm.

The Bubble was indeed a fact. It was his! Jim Hard had spoken truly—and Jim's mother would live in luxury the rest of her days. Dick hid the great round diamond, which gave back a myriad colored lights, and fell to thinking of Pauline. When she had so distrusted him how could he go back and offer her his riches? If she had only proved herself to be the pure gold he had believed her to be, for he still loved her!

So Dick Delmore was not entirely happy as Maturin sailed him back to Porto Rico and the city of San Juan. When they reached the city he dismissed Maturin with a substantial sum of money and went to the best hotel.

He was passing through the lobby, which was quite deserted at this hour of the day, when he heard a sudden rush of light feet and the sound of a sweet voice calling his name.

"Dick, oh, Dick! You are safe!"

It was Pauline, and behind came her father, looking anxious and then relieved as he caught Dick's hand in his own and wrung it.

"My dear boy," said Mr. Fane hastily, "this girl fell to worrying about you and your harebrained expedition, and she gave me no peace until I brought her down here to try to dissuade you from carrying it out. I—I believe she has something to say to you. I'll wait outside here for you!" So he pushed them into a deserted little parlor.

Inside the room Dick faced his sweetheart. Tears were in Pauline's lovely eyes.

"Oh, Dick, can you forgive me?" she whispered. "I don't care how poor you are so long as you are safe. And I want my ring back!"

Dick smiled happily and took her into his arms. When the ring was on her finger once more he asked her amusedly:

"You haven't inquired concerning the success of my expedition, sweetheart."

"But you haven't been!" she cried in amazement.

For answer he brought out the Bubble and put it in her pink palm.

But Dick was happier in the knowledge that his love was true after all, than he possibly could have been merely as the owner of the great Bubble diamond.

A memorial stone to members who made the supreme sacrifice in the war was unveiled at the Broadview Y.M.C.A., Toronto.

One blow starts the trouble—and occasionally ends it.

Camping in Canada's New National Park.

Jasper Park Camp on LAC BEAUVERT.
Horseback Riding over Mountain Trails
On Mount Edith Cavell Glacier

THE Dominion Government in creating the Jasper National Park has set aside for the enjoyment of the people one of the loveliest regions in the Canadian Rockies—a territory starred with beautiful lakes, snow capped mountain peaks and gigantic glaciers. The area of the park is approximately 4,400 square miles. The desire of the many travellers along the Grand Trunk Pacific line to stay over and inspect the beauties of the Park has led to the establishment of a novel enterprise in the form of a camp hotel on the shores of Lac Beauvert. The official count of the mountain peaks to be seen from the Jasper Park Camp is one hundred and fifty. From the Camp, with its floored tents and big canvas dining hall, trips are made to the famous Maligne Canyon, to Pyramid Lake and to the top of Fitzhugh Mountain. One of the more distant trips to be taken is to the foot of Mount Edith Cavell. This trip is made by saddle horse and is one of about sixteen miles. At the foot of this mountain nestles a beautiful lake, with a hanging glacier which has slowly moved down and filled the valley at the head of the lake.

Dorothy and Alfred were remembered, too, and Mary made a brief, but suitable reply. After an hour spent in games, contests, etc., refreshments were served. God Save the King was sung, and the gathering closed with the usual benediction.

About forty were in attendance, and every one voted this one of the best social evenings ever enjoyed by the memers of the Mission Band and Junior League.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre To Hair

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few

Havelock lacrosse team came over to Norwood on Monday evening of this week accompanied by a good number of enthusiastic fans and defeated the Norwood boys by a score of 5-3. The Havelock boys have been defeated twice this season by Norwood, once in each town, and a good deal of interest was taken in the match Monday evening. Both teams put up a very good game. The play was characterized by a good deal of roughness which prevented a good exhibition of the game. The Havelock team had a considerable advantage over the locals in weight, and this in some measure account for the score. In the first quarter the locals found the nets for the third and last time during the entire game. Havelock failed to score until after the first period, and succeeded in bulging the nets five times before time was called. Referee Lancaster of Havelock had difficulty in keeping some of the players from slugging, but his rulings generally gave satisfaction to both sides

Norwood, July 3. — Miss Helen Pearce, of Norwood, visited her sister, Mrs. W. A. Campbell, of Port Hope, over the week-end and holidays.

Mrs. M. P. Gould is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Pearce, Norwood.

Miss Scott, of the public school staff, Toronto, is visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. E. C. Squire, and will leave shortly for Prince Edward Island.

Five pupils of Miss Blanch Pearce are taking piano examinations at the Conservatory of Music, Peterborough.

A committee from each of the local churches and also from the various organizations of the community will hold a meeting in the town hall here to consider suggestions for a war memorial.

Mr. Edmund Williams of the Peterborough Review staff spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. John H. Brown, Dummer.

TRAVELING MAN GAINS 15 POUNDS

M. H. MILLER WORKS EVERY DAY SINCE TANLAC BUILT HIM UP

"I have gained fifteen pounds since I commenced taking Tanlac and since my health failed five years ago, it is the only medicine that has done me a particle of good," said M. H. Miller, a well known and popular travelling salesman for the Northwestern Manufacturing and Milling Co., who lives at 302 North State Street, Aberdeen, S-Dak.

"I don't believe any man on earth ever had a worse case of stomach trouble than I did," continued Mr. Miller, "and I know I took enough medicine during that five years to cure a dozen people, but I never got any relief until I got hold of this Tanlac. Everything I ate would sour on my stomach, and this would almost kill me. I was in so much misery that I couldn't sleep at night and would have to walk the floor for hours at a time. I lost in weight from two hundred and forty-five pounds to one hundred and seventy, and finally got so weak and run down that I was not able to work more than two days out of each week.

"Several of my friends spoke to me about Tanlac and recommended it so highly that I decided to give it a trial, and I am here to tell you that you will have to go a mighty long ways to find a medicine to equal Tanlac. Why, I can eat anything I want now, and I never have a sign of indigestion or stomach trouble of any kind. My strength has come back to me, and I am getting my weight back in a hurry. I feel as well in every way as I ever did, in my life, and I never lose any time from my work at all. Yes, sir, I certainly can recommend Tanlac, for I know from my own experience with it that it is one medicine that will do all they say it will."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in field by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lake-Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Said:

"After all what a man does with his money is to invest, and there is no better way to in it than in Life Insurance. As an ESTATE BUILDER there is nothing to equal Life Insurance.

TAKE THE FOLLOWING ACTUAL RESULT

A young man sixteen years of age took out a 15 years Endowment (No. 210380) in the Sun Life of Canada, which matured on the first of April. This young man paid annually $66.30 for fifteen years and he now has, through that investment, an immediate estate of $3495.00 in case of death.

DO YOU KNOW THAT THIS AMOUNTS TO ALMOST 15 PER CENT COMPOUND INTEREST ON EVERY DOLLAR PAID?

No wonder Sir Wilfrid said—and he might have added (no better place than the Sun Life of Canada)—"there is no better way to invest it than in LIFE INSURANCE."

THEATRICAL

LOUISE HUFF
"The Little Intruder"

At the Grand Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

VIOLA DANA PLAYS ROLE OF PARISIAN WAIF.

Viola Dana, the clever little Metro star, who will be seen at the Grand Theatre in "The Parisian Tigress," the gripping romance of the Parisian underworld, to be shown today, Friday and Saturday, plays the role of a gutter waif, a character that shows the young actress in her best vein. The part is utterly different from anything Miss Dana has hitherto played and brings out her powerful dramatic abilities, at the same time giving her ample opportunity to display her winsome and charming personality. It is a play of decided originality and power.

LOCKWOOD PLAY HAS ARTISTIC SETTINGS.

Artistic settings are a characteristic incidental feature of all Metro pictures starring Harold Lockwood, but all past efforts in this direction are said to have been excelled in "Lend Me Your Name," the star's latest All-Star Series production, which will be shown at the Grand Theatre tonight, Friday and Saturday. Elaborate representations have been made for the town and country homes of the Earl of Gilleigh, wherein all the interior scenes transpire, and one of California's most famous show places was used for the making of the exterior scenes. The combination of the two provides a background that is artistically delightful.

A NOTABLE CAST.

Famous Film Favorites Appear in Support of Charming Louise Huff in New World Picture, "The Little Intruder."

There is a truly notable cast in "The Little Intruder," the new World picture, starring Louise Huff, which is scheduled for showing today, Friday and Saturday at the Grand Theatre. Supporting Miss Huff in this production are such famous film favorites as George MacQuarrie, Albert Hart, Stuart Holmes and Johnny Hines. Mr. Hines, by the way, appears as leading man for Miss Huff in a role where his remarkable talents as a light comedian are given to particularly good advantage. All the other people in the cast are also well fitted for their roles, and from every standpoint this is one of the best cast plays that has been seen on the screen this year.

It is interesting to note that the story was written by H. S. Sheldon, who has penned some of the screen's biggest successes. In writing "The Little Intruder" he certainly wrote a production that is particularly fitted to Miss Huff.

HAROLD LOCKWOOD in "Lend Me Your Name," at the Grand Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

DOMINION DAY AT HIAWATHA

CHEMONG INDIANS CELEBRATE —MR. A. A. FOWLER GIVES SILVER CUP.

The Indians of the Chemong, Aldridge and Hiawatha Reserves celebrated Dominion Day in a royal manner at Hiawatha Park. There were the usual sports of all kinds and a football match between the Chemong and Hiawatha Reserves, which the former won by two to zero.

The special feature of the occasion was a single canoe race for a silver cup, donated by Mr. A. A. Fowler. The conditions were that all contestants must use canoes of the hunting type, the winner of the cup for three years to retain it. It was an exceedingly close race all the way, Alfred Crowe of Hiawatha, leading at the end of the mile by only a foot. Albert Taylor and Hiram Taylor, of Chemong came second. This is the first year that this cup race has been held.

The Chemong band of Indians was in attendance and rendered music not only throughout the day, but also during the evening, when a big dance was held.

The new officers for the Hiawatha Reserve are: Chief George Paudash, who has recently returned from overseas, Secretary, Hanlon Howard and Constable, Dan Muskrat. The last named officer was in charge of the sports. All the money received at the gate was given to the prize-winners.

BARBERRY CAUSES RUST

Provincial Campaign Advocated to Destroy This Shrub.

Currant and Gooseberry Worms Causes Great Losses — How to Identify It—Simple Measures of Control—Spraying With Arsenate of Lead Solution Most Effective.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

THE Barberry should not be tolerated by the farmers of Ontario. It is a thief in their midst, which every year takes money from their pockets, by increasing the amount of rust upon their grain, and thus reducing their crops.

The Barberry Increases the Amount and Severity of Rust.

It is not necessary to go into the complicated life-history of the fungus which causes stem rust of grain. Scientists have known for many years that one phase of its life-cycle is passed on the Barberry, and all who have made a study of this matter agree that the amount and severity of stem rust is very much increased by the presence of the Barberry in the neighborhood of grain fields. While scientists do not expect to see rust entirely disappear if the Barberry is destroyed, the general consensus of opinion is that if it were completely exterminated the chances of severe epidemics of stem rust occurring would be greatly reduced.

Enforce the Law Regarding the Barberry.

In Ontario legislation has been passed regarding the destruction of this shrub. Let all concerned realize that the Barberry does increase the amount and severity of stem rust and a sentiment will be created for the enforcement of the present act. This act should be enforced. The Barberry in Ontario should be destroyed. There is strong evidence to show that Barberry bushes are centres of infection which in wet seasons may give rise to severe epidemics of rust.

The Common Barberry and Its Purple-leaved Variety the Culprit.

The Common Barberry and its purple-leaved variety harbor grain rust. The average man does not know this shrub when he sees it. It is a spiny shrub from six to nine feet high, with yellow wood, arching branches and gray twigs. The leaves are bright green, smooth, somewhat oval, from one to three inches long, the margins with bristly teeth. The flowers are small, yellow and borne in long, drooping clusters. The berries are oblong, red and sour. The purple-leaved variety is similar except for the color of the leaves, which are purple. Unfortunately, the Barberry has been much planted in some sections of Ontario for ornamental purposes and has become wild in many localities.

The Japanese Barberry Harmless.

If Barberries are required for ornamental shrubs the low growing, small leaved Japanese Barberry (Berberis thumbergii, D.C.) may be planted, as this species does not harbor the rust.—Prof. J. E. Howitt, O. A. College, Guelph.

Currant and Gooseberry Worm.

The most common insect enemy of currants and gooseberries is the Currant and Gooseberry Worm. The larva is a greenish caterpillar, about three-quarters of an inch long when full grown, with a black head and numerous black spots over the body. The larvae attack the foliage of gooseberries and of red and white currants but seldom injure that of black currants. At first they work chiefly in the central part of the bush, stripping the leaves nearly all off there, and doing much damage before they are observed. Later they may devour the foliage any place. It is common to see nearly all the leaves eaten off numerous bushes.

The life history of the insect is as follows:—The adults,—which are known as Sawflies—are small four-winged flies, about a quarter of an inch in length. The female has the abdomen yellowish and the rest of the body blackish in color. The male is for the most part blackish or black. The flies appear in spring very soon after the leaves have expanded. Eggs are laid on the under surface of the leaves in chains along the main veins. The young larvae on hatching feed upon the foliage and become full grown in two or three weeks. Then they drop to the ground and form little cases in which they pupate. A new brood of flies emerge, lay their eggs and from these there comes a second brood of larvae, which may be seen on the plants at the time when the currants are ripe. When these larvae are full grown they enter the soil, form little cases or cocoons, and remain there till the next year, when they pupate and emerge as adults.

Method of Control. — These are easy insects to kill. All currant bushes and gooseberries should be sprayed with from two to three pounds arsenate of lead paste or half that amount of the powder form in forty gallons of water as soon as the leaves have become well expanded. Particular care should be taken to spray thoroughly the inner parts of the bush. This will kill all the first brood. If a second brood appears hellebore should be used instead of arsenate of lead, in the proportion of one ounce to one gallon of water. Arsenate of lead would be dangerous on the ripe fruit. The insect occurs everywhere in the province, and everyone should prevent his plants being weakened and seriously injured by it, especially as it is so easy to control.

Note.—Hellebore loses its insecticidal properties unless kept in airtight packages. — Prof. L. Caesar, O. A. College, Guelph.

It is easier to avoid debt than it is to dodge a creditor.

Leagues and other organizations are being formed in Germany to prevent the handing over of the war criminals demanded by the Allies.

Hindenburg signifies his willingness to be given up to the Entente and to be placed against a wall to be shot if the Allies are insistent.

Central Ontario League Results

Four games have been played in the Central Ontario League since the last issue of the paper. On Saturday Oshawa won from Lindsay by 9 to 2. Belleville won from Cobourg on the former's grounds by 20 to 9. Port Hope won from Lindsay at Port Hope by 16 to 8 and Peterborough won from Oshawa at Peterborough by 15 to 0. The last three games were Dominion Day events. The standing of the teams at present is:

	Won	Lost	P.C.
Peterborough	4	1	.800
Belleville	4	1	.800
Port Hope	4	2	.667
Oshawa	4	2	.571
Lindsay	2	5	.286
Cobourg	0	6	.000

On July 4 at 6 p.m. the two leaders met at Port Hope to replay the game which was disallowed by the executive owing to the interference of the crowds. This will probably be one of the most exciting games of the season as both teams need the game in order to secure a firm grip on first place.

All players in the Central Ontario League team are requested to turn out tonight to practise with the Orientals. The workout tonight will be chiefly confined to practise in batting.

ANOTHER WRESTLING MATCH.

E. Hurtubise, who stayed ten minutes last night with Joe Shimkus, the midleweight wrestler with the Beacon Shows, will try a fifteen-minute go tonight. Though Shimkus is much the smaller man, he claims the local wrestler has nothing on him and declares that tonight's match will be just about the best ever seen in Peterborough.

S. S. PICNIC WAS RECORD-BREAKER

CLOSES MOST SUCCESSFUL YEAR IN ST. JOHN'S S. S. HISTORY.

St. John's Sunday School Picnic to South Beach, yesterday, was a record-breaker in every way. The trip on the toney Lake, up the canal an donward to the Beach was truly ideal, and the attendance of both chilrden and scholars in excess of that on any previous occasion.

At the picnic grounds a splendid program of sports and games, prepared by the superintendent, Mr R. J. Devey, and his teaching staff, was run off in a style gratifying to all, and bathing in the cooling waters of Clear Lake was fully indulged in by the little folk under watchful eyes.

This event closes the most successful year in the history of St. John's Sunday School, both in point of attendance, financially, and in the quality of the good work effected.

GEN. DENEKIN WINS.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, July 3.—The Russian forces of Gen. Denekin, the anti-bolshevik leader in Southern Russia, have occupied the city of Tzaritzin on the Volga River, south of Saratov, according to a Russian wireless report today. The city previously had been abandoned by the bolsheviki.

TAX COLLECTOR GREEN ASKS COUNCIL FOR LADY ASSISTANT

Tax Collecting is Costing Peterboro Less Than Any Other City of Similar Rating.

The City Council met last evening to receive Tax Collector Greens' explanation as to why the tax roll for 1918 had not yet been returned.

This roll should be in the hands of Council by May 1st, and last year Council passed a resolution that the collector be not handed the roll for the current year until that of the past year had been returned to the Council.

Delay in this matter causes considerable inconvenience both in the treasurer's office and to the tax collector himself.

The tax collector explained that he had had considerable trouble with three or four accounts now in the city solicitors' hands, while a couple of good accounts are delayed in payment owing to unfortunate circumstances. These latter will be settled in a few days.

Wants an Assistant.

Mr. Green said he really should have a permanent lady assistant capable of handling money. The business and poll taxes call for considerable attention, and the office work naturally suffers while he is out after belated tax payments. There should be someone in the office to receive payments in his unaviodable absence.

Collecting taxes, Mr. Green contended, is not costing Peterborough nearly as much as other cities in its class, and he submitted the following comparative statement in support of this:

	Amount	Cost to City
Brantford	$643,743.00	$2900
Kingston	438,012.25	2400
Belleville	243,843.04	1800
Sherbrooke	333,167.70	2800
St. Thomas	345,018.00	1900
Chatham	336,624.32	2100
Peterborough	500,086.24	1550
	(1918	1490

It will be seen from the above that Peterborough stands second on the list in the matter of the amount of taxes collected yearly, while the cost to Peterborough for collection is less than paid for the smallest sum quoted.

Ald. Phelan remarked that from personal observation he really was of the opinion that Mr. Green needed an assistant.

On motion of Ald. Phelan and Crowe this matter went to the Finance Committee who would have to find the salary for an assistant.

On motion of Ald. Turner, the collector will be allowed till July 15 in which to return the tax roll for roll for 1918, and the roll for 1919 will be given him forthwith.

Advance on Salary.

On motion of Ald. Edgar and Crowe, Caretaker Greenwood of the Victoria and Central Parks will be allowed an advance of $50 on his regular monthly payment, said advance to be deducted from his July payment. He has some heavy bills to meet for bedding plants, hence the request.

RIPE GARDEN GROWN TOMATOES JUNE 24

We read and hear a lot about the retarded growth conditions this spring but Mr John Riddell of 550 Homewood Ave., has reason to doubt. This gentleman put out his tomato plants about the last week in May, and had a large ripe tomato on the 24th of June. Mr. Riddell has had ripe tomatoes quite regularly since that date, and invites anyone who may be interested to call at 550 Homewood Ave., and see his garden.

GOULD GOES UP FOR TRIAL

CHARGED WITH THEFT OF AN ENGINE FROM HULL OF STEAMER.

The case of Carman Gould, charged with the theft of an engine bed, was heard before Police Magistrate Dumble this morning. Crown Attorney Hatton was the first witness. He stated that in November, 1918, he sold Carman Gould the hull of the steamer Esturian for $75.

"Where was the engine bed?" inquired the magistrate.

"It was about forty feet away from the ship," replied witness.

"Could there have been any misunderstanding about the sale?"

"No, neither in his mind nor in mine."

To this Mr. Kerr, defendant's counsel, objected on the ground that witness could not speak for another man.

"Who took the engine bed out of the ship?" asked the Magistrate.

"My men," replied the Crown Attorney.

"After the sale or before it?"

"Oh, long before it."

"What became of the engine bed?"

"I saw it over in the yard of Florence, a junk man."

"Does he claim the title to it?"

"No, he knows it is stolen."

"Have you any witnesses to your bargain?"

"No; I gave him a receipt which I would like him to produce."

"When did you take the engine and engine bed out of the ship?" asked Mr. Kerr.

"About two years before the sale of the hull."

"Was any mention made of the engine bed at the time of the sale?"

"No."

Wm. H. Lytle was the next witness called. He had drawn the attention of the owner to the fact that the engine bed had been removed about the latter part of March this year.

"Were you talking to Carman Gould at any time about the hull?" asked the Magistrate.

"Yes; he told me that he had bought both the hull and the engine bed. I felt sore, because Mr. Hatton had sold the hull for half what he had asked me, and given the engine bed in."

Isidore Goldman, a junk dealer, was next on the stand.

"Did you have any dealings with the accused?" asked the Crown Attorney.

"Yes; I bought an engine bed from him."

"What did you pay?"

"Twenty-five dollars, of which ten was cash."

"What did he say at the first interview?"

"He said he had to see Mr. Hatton before selling."

"Did he mention him in the second interview?"

"No."

"What shape is the engine bed in now?"

"The rivets are cut."

"On the evidence I do not see how the accused could be misled. However, can you not think the matter over?" the magistrate continued, addressing himself to the Crown Attorney. The latter, however, refused to discuss the matter further. The prisoner was then committed for trial at the next session of the County Court in December, with the provision that at any time he can be tried before the Judge without a jury if he so elects. Bail was granted in two sureties of $200 each.

Separating Photograph From Mount.

When a photograph is pulled away from its mount, after being sufficiently soaked in water, the surface of the print may be injured by the bending. This can be avoided by laying the print flat on its face and pulling away the mount, stripping it away in several layers if necessary.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Keeping Cut Flowers.

Most kinds of cut flowers will keep for a long time if they are completely immersed in water. Place the blossoms in bowls of water every night, and take them out and rearrange them in the morning. The flowers will often appear as fresh as if they had been newly gathered.—Popular Mechanics

Singleness of Purpose.

Charles Carroll.

Charles Carroll was the last to survive of the 57 men who signed our Declaration of Independence. He lived until 1832, having reached his ninety-fifth year. He was the most eminent of the four men from Maryland, and was of Irish descent, the first member of the family to come to this country being also named Charles Carroll, who left England in 1680.

Burma's Sassamum Crop.

Over 580 different types of husked rice or paddy were under examination last year at one of the government agricultural farms in Burma, and over 200 types of sessamum were grown at another. Hitherto much of the sassamum grown in Burma has been exported to Europe, where it is used for the production of the so-called "olive oil," for which France and Italy have long been famed.

Cleanliness Next to Godliness.

The phrase "Cleanliness is next to godliness" is found in John Wesley's Sermon XCII on Dress. The language of the aphorism, however, is taken from the Beraitha, a translation of the Mishna by Rafael M. de Sola. Bacon in one of his essays says: "For cleanness of body was ever esteemed to proceed from a due reverence to God, to society and to ourselves."—Christian Herald.

Temperature at the North Pole.

It is not a matter of record that Peary took the temperature during his short stay at the Pole, hence there is no North pole temperature record that we know about. The probable maximum temperature, however, cannot be much above the freezing point, notwithstanding its 24-hour day, for the Pole is isolated and in an ocean in which it is necessary to melt all the ice and snow before the immediate surface temperature rises much above 32 degrees Fahrenheit.

A "Bull."

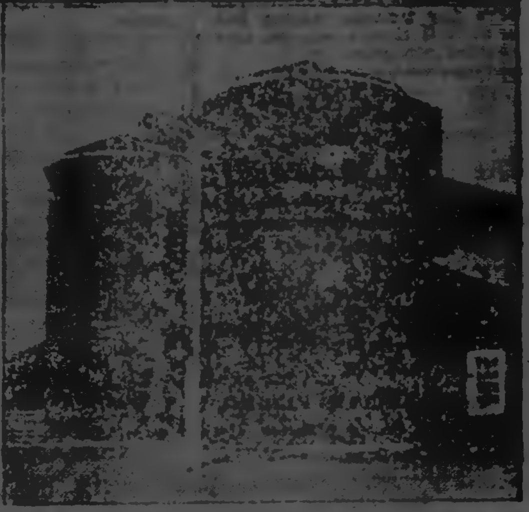
One evening, after the flies had been unusually troublesome, an Irish mistress spread insect powder round the windows and other places in the kitchen where the flies congregated. In the morning she asked the servant girl if there was not a great many dead flies in the kitchen. "Yes, there are, mum," replied the maid. "The room's alive with them!"

In Death Not Divided.

It is true that in several parts of China it is still considered an act of virtue for a woman to commit suicide publicly after the death of her husband. According to the law, the proceeding is actually legal in some provinces, and such is the state of public opinion that in districts where it is officially prohibited the authorities rarely interfere.

The Silo In Western Canada

On a Western Cattle Ranch.



One of the Recently Built Albertan Silos.

To raise two head of cattle where only one could otherwise be raised—that is what thousands of farmers all over the American continent have been able to do with the help of silos. It is no wonder, then, that as the land in Western Canada is becoming more settled silos should be making their appearance in greater and greater numbers there. Already in Manitoba many farmers are beginning to look upon the silo as a necessary part of the farm, and more than a hundred of them are in use in various parts of the province. Saskatchewan and Alberta together have probably about half the number as Manitoba, and the number in all the provinces is being slowly but surely added to every year.

With plenty of unoccupied prairie and growing an abundance of nutritious grasses the cattle feed problem in Western Canada has not been a [illegible] difficult one in the past. During the summer months the stock could forage over a large section of the country and there was no need for the owner to compute how many acres would support a cow. The obtaining of winter feed was just a matter of energy; a man could have as much hay as he could cut, free for the [illegible]. With such conditions as these, and they still prevail in many parts of the country, the need for silos has not been greatly felt up to now.

But the days of free range are drawing to a close. Already there are parts of the country where little or none is to be had. And as the country is getting more and more settled, and, moreover, as a system of mixed farming is becoming the rule throughout every province even in those parts where for many years straight grain growing was practised, the need for some additional means of ensuring a steady supply of feed all the year round is beginning to make itself felt in various parts of Western Canada.

Silos will, therefore, continue to spring up throughout the country. Near Lacombe, Alberta, a ranching company, which has made a great reputation for the quality of beef it produces, is contemplating the erection of four new silos this year. This company has found with the silos it has in use that it can [illegible] double the number of cattle hitherto [illegible] the same area of land. Many smaller farmers are having the same experience. It is, as one farmer [illegible] it, "like getting another farm for nothing." In times not long past it was not difficult to get a farm "for nothing or next to nothing" almost [illegible] in Western Canada and although land is still very cheap compared with its productive capacity it is not always easy for a farmer in older settled districts to [illegible] and the only thing for him to do to increase his production and thus his prosperity is to intensify his methods. That this stage is being reached in some districts is a good sign for the future development of the country.

In the large irrigated area in Southern Alberta east of the growing city of Calgary there is on foot a movement that may eventually lead to the establishment of [illegible] admirably suited [illegible] branches of the livestock industry capable of producing sufficient feed for the support of hundreds of thousands of horses, cattle, sheep and swine. Most of the farms are in Western Canada on the small side, generally from 80 to 320 acres each. But the soil is wonderfully fertile and with an assured supply of moisture made possible by irrigation will grow abundant crops of grain and fodders including wheat, oats, barley, alfalfa, various kinds of grasses and clovers, and also roots and vegetables. For ensilage purposes, corn, sunflowers, alfalfa, peas, oats and many other crops can be grown. In years to come this part of Alberta will be one of the greatest food producing areas in the world.

What crops are used for ensilage purposes in Western Canada? In Manitoba corn is mostly used, but in Alberta [illegible] popular. Other crops used are wheat, oats, millets, rape, buckwheat and alfalfa [illegible] tried, but at present it is only in the experimental stage. The success with which [illegible] are grown, the enormous yields [illegible] of the mixture together with its [illegible] palatability and flavour [illegible] will always maintain a leading place [illegible] of the most westerly of the [illegible] what strides may be made in the growth of suitable varieties of corn.

Silos are evidently to stay in Western Canada. Their appearance [illegible] increasing [illegible] a landmark in the development of the country. As they increase in numbers the prosperity of the country will grow, and as one farsighted man has put it, "Western Canada will then not only be the granary of the world, but a [illegible] as well."

PRESENTATION TO MRS. GREENSLADE

THE GIFT WAS A SILVER TRAY — EFFICIENT SERVICE RECOGNIZED.

Mrs. W. A. Greenslade resigned on Sunday evening the position of organist and choir leader at St. Luke's Church after nine and a half years' faithful and capable service.

After service the choir gathered in the vestry, and on their behalf Mr. R. B. Rogers presented Mrs. Greenslade with a handsome solid silver tray, suitably inscribed, in testimony of the esteem and appreciation in which she is held by them.

The Address.

The presentation was accompanied by the following address read by Warden J. J. Turner:

Dear Mrs. Greenslade:

For the past nine and a half years you have led the music and choir with efficiency and with profit to the members, and as our services are largely musical, the choir, led by you, have contributed very much to the bright, hearty services for which St. Luke's is noted.

Just now you think it advisable to resign your position and take a rest, to which we feel you are richly entitled, for your labors have been conscientiously performed, and with your musical duties throughout the week has not allowed proper time for rest and recreation. We hope the release from Sunday duty will give us the benefit of your splendid voice in the congregation, and we may long be spared to worship together.

We desire to offer some tribute of appreciation for the faithful discharge of duty and ask you to accept this piece of silver with best wishes for the health and happiness of yourself and Mr. Greenslade.

Signed.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

WATT—HUYCKE

A wedding of interest was solemnized on Wednesday last, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Huycke, Sunny-Brae, when their second daughter, Violet Isabel, became the bride of Mr. Peter Cameron Watt, of Winnipeg.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Isaac Snell, pastor of the Methodist Church, in the presence of only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. The bride wore her travelling suit of dust colored burella cloth with blouse of Georgette crepe, trimmed with steel beads and milan hat with ostrich feather trimming, and wore a corsage bouquet of sweet heart roses and sweet peas.

The wedding march was played by Mrs. L. A. Gould, of Toronto, youngest sister of the bride, and during the signing of the register Miss Mae Huycke sang "Because."

After the customary congratulations, the bride led the way to the dining room where a dainty buffet luncheon was served.

The happy couple motored to Campbellford and boarded the afternoon train for Kingston, going from that city by boat to Quebec, to spend their honeymoon.

The gifts were pretty and useful showing the high esteem in which the bride is held by her friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Watt have a host of friends, who extend congratulations and join in wishing them many happy days.

A business meeting of the ratepayers of Asphodel township, was held in Westwood last week, for the purpose of discussing the good roads systems. The result of the vote was a majority in favor of the project.

CONVERSIONS NIGHTLY IN EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN

Christians Also Having New Experiences—"Sins of Christians" Quite Illuminating.

Conversions are being recorded nightly at the meetings of the Union Evangelistic Campaign on Hunter Street. Some of these are very interesting in character. Christians also are having new experiences. Many Christians have seemed surprised by Evagelist Kennedy's emphatic statement that it is possible for people in this life to know that they are absolutely saved and that they will never enter into judgment as far as admission into heaven is concerned. Their impression apparently has been that not until after they die will they know whether or not they will go to heaven. Mr. Kennedy point out that there are various passages in the Scriptures wich show that Christians may know in this life that they are saved. One of these is John 3:18, which states that any person who believes on Christ is not condemned or judged, but those who do not believe are condemned already, because they have not believed in the only begotten Son of God. A second passage is 1st John 5:13, which reads: "These things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God, that ye may have eternal life." In the 10th verse of the same chapter appear the words, "He that believeth on the Son of God hath the witness in himself that he has been born of God. Among others, one man, who has been very active in the services did not know until the other night that he might have these assurances of salvation. A considerable number of other professing Christian have found it out for the first time.

In last night's address Evangelist Kennedy dealt strongly with the sins of Christians, while at the same time holding out to sinners their need for eternal life. He showed that many Christians are weakened in their experience by their lives and they are proving stumbling blocks to others. He spoke of the case of a mother, who won a $20 prize, playing whist but who was horrified to find that her son had won $100 through playing cards. The mother, he said, was as bad a gambler as the son. One woman asked an evangelist to pray for her son, who was becoming addicted to liquor. His reply was that he would do so as soon as she emptied her cellar of wine.

Christians were given three tests to apply to themselves. These were first, do the unconverted who know you think you are a Christian? Second, does you wife or your husband know you to be a Christian? Third, are you the kind of Christian you expect other Christians to be? Finally Mr. Kennedy asked the question, "Ought I to be a Christian?" and showed that every class in the community, even those who are now unconverted, would reply, "Yes," to such a question. At the close of the meeting several conversions were recorded, including a young woman, who previously had persistently refused to accept Christ. A considerable number are attending the meetings regularly who have not yet professed conversion but have expressed a desire to be converted.

Tonight's subject will be "God's Gold Cure," and tomorrow-night's, "Both sides of the Question." Tomorrow-night's service will be one especially for young people. Delegations will be present from the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. Yesterday afternoon a special prayer service was held from 2 to 5 o'clock in the St. Paul's Sunday School Hall. At the close of the meeting a desire was expressed by those present that another service be held. Arrangements have been made therefore, for another service to be held tomorrow afternoon, from 3 to 5, in the Bethany Tabernacle on George Street. These services are held especially for Christians who are praying for the conversion of friends, or for greater power in their own Chistian experiences.

So many of us are anxious to do away with vices—in our neighbors.

It is easier to make a new quarrel than it is to patch an old one.

LIVE SPARKS FROM KENNEDY'S ANVIL

TRUTHS THAT ARE HEARD IN THE BIG EVANGELISTIC TENT.

A chain is only as strong as its weakest link.

A church or an organization is only as strong as its weakest member.

When Ashan took the accursed thing, Joshua's army could do nothing—they were smitten before their enemies.

Some men would never be heard of except for the amount of trouble they cause.

Ashan belonged to the most righteous tribe in Israel, yet with him lay the accursed thing.

A man may belong to the most righteous family in town or the best church in the city and be living in sin.

When God told Joshua that the accursed thing was in their midst He was speaking to the best man living and concerning the best nation then on earth.

No man knows he is sleeping while he is sleeping.

Everyone who is asleep is liable to danger.

Any child might harm the strongest man while he is asleep.

Every unconverted person, whether outside the church or in it, is in the cradle of the devil, and does not realize it—never will till someone wakens him.

The nearer you live to God the more subtle the temptation.

The devil does not bother you when he is sure of you.

Until you can prove there is no hell, there may be one.

Supposing there is one, and you die unsaved, then what?

The rich farmer who pulled down his barns to build greater was counting on living "many years," but God said, "Thou fool, this night thy soul is required of thee."

Tonight the same summons may come to any unsaved one in this city —your coffin may be made.

"Behold now is the accepted time and now is the day of salvation." You are not sure tomorrow will do.

The moralist is as guilty before God as the drunkard. He may not be as degraded, but he is as guilty. God says "There is no difference; all have sinned and come short."

The moralist and drunkard are both sinners. The difference is the same as between typhoid fever and smallpox. One is more offensive to look at, but both are deadly.

Some things are no use at all unless perfect.

If I could find a man who had never sinned I would have something new under the sun and a bigger curiosity than Darwin's missing link he never found.

SUBJECTS AT THE BIG TENT

Tonight, Thursday — "God's Gold Cure."

Tomorrow Night—"Both Sides of the Question."

The attendance at these big evangelistic gatherings is large, and the interest in Evangelist Kennedy's discourses keen. The music also is really worth while. Be there tonight.

3 Worsted Mills Have Combined

Toronto, July 3.—Canadian Woollens, Limited, has been formed for the purpose of combining three prominent Canadian companies engaged in the manufacture of worsteds. It is planned to provide the mills with working capital, improved machinery, and ensure an increased output. These are the Auburn mill at Peterborough, the Standard and the Bonner-Worth mills at Toronto. It is claimed that the imports of woolens from other countries can be much reduced by the further development of the industry here. Mr. Edgar Worth of Peterborough is to be general manager.

DODGE BROTHERS CARS ARE SELLING FAST

TORONTO ST. RY. STRIKE ENDED INTERIM AWARD IS ACCEPTED

Cars Started Running at 5.15 This Morning—Strike Lasted Twelve Days—Street Railway Co. Offers to Sell Out to the City if Power Contract is Lived Up to by City—This May Prove Stumbling Block.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, July 4.—After nearly two weeks of trolley carless streets, Toronto enjoyed regular schedule of street car service today. The employees have all returned to work on a basis of 55 cents an hour for men of more than one year's standing with slightly less for "learners." The previous maximum was 39 cents per hour. At present the service is being operated under the direction of the Ontario Railway Board with R. C. Harris, civic commissioner of works, as general manager. There will be no increase in fares just now. It is expected that negotiation will be opened shortly with view to purchase of Toronto Railway Company's properties by city to Hydro Electric Commission.

Strike Was Serious.

Mr. R. C. Harris announces that the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board had agreed to accept the interim award of the Board of Conciliation to the employees of the Toronto Street Railway granting them a minimum wage of 50 cents an hour and a maximum wage of 55 cents.

The strike, which came near to paralyzing the city's public and business activities lasted twelve days. A serious loss has been sustained by a great majority of the city's business institutions, but the remarkable fact remains that there has been no appreciable diminution of the people's patience. Yesterday, however, there were rumors that the ratepayers of Ward Five were talking about holding a public protest meeting in one of the parks last evening. This general disposition of the people to tolerate such a general and serious inconvenience as the deprivation of a cheap means of getting down-town and up-town has been the subject of wide comment.

Company Would Sell.

Mayor Church last night was in receipt of a short letter from Mr. Fleming stating that the company would be agreeable to immediate purchase by the city if the latter were willing to take until September, 1921, the power required in operating the street railway upon the conditions named in the contract made in 1903 between the Toronto and Niagara Power Co. and the Toronto Railway Co.

A Stumbling Block.

Mayor Church announced late last evening that there would be a special meeting of the Board of Control to consider this new phase of the situation, and that some recommendation would be sent on to the City Council, which meets in special session this afternoon to deal with the Toronto Street Railway situation.

The Mayor also intimated that the stumbling-block in the way of immediate acquisition of the railway by the city might be the stipulation made in Mr. Fleming's letter, namely, that the city take power from the Toronto and Niagara Power Company for a little over two years to come at the rate being paid by the latter company to the street railway. It is understood that according to the terms of the contract made in 1903 the price paid for that power is about $35 per horse power. A clause in the agreement, however, provides that this $35 per horse power may not be paid for power at the absolute peak load. In other words, this price may be considered a flat rate, and not so high at it appears at first consideration.

ST. JOHN'S SOLDIER BOYS TAKE SUPPER AT SOUTH BEACH HOTEL

Guests of the Congregation, They Enjoy One of the Jolliest Times Since Their Return From Overseas.

The Soldiers' Supper given by St. John's Church, in honor of our returned heroes, at South Beach, last night, was a great success from every standpoint.

The committee in charge of the arrangements, consisting of Rev. Canon Davidson, Messrs. A. W. Turner, W. E. Conway, Frank Linton, Chas. Coleman, A. J. Roberts and C. L. Brewer, obtained the loan of a large number of automobiles which carried over 100 guests of the evening to the rendezvous at Brook's Hotel. After enjoying a hearty meal catered in mine host's well known acceptable manner they repaired to the lawn, where a tug-of-war was arranged by Mr. Chris Graham, between married and single men. Each team consisted of eleven men, and after a hard struggle the married men won out.

What the Boys Like

Mr. Chas. Coleman was appointed chairman, of an impromptu program, that followed. No addresses were allowed, and the time was entirely devoted to music, songs and other light entertainment. The chairman started the ball rolling with a vocal number. Mr. Wes. Edwards, one of the returned men told a humorous story, and Mr. John Primeau followed with a monologue. Mr. Daniel Simons gave one of his inimitable variety performances. Mr. Fred Clark contributed a banjo solo, which was highly appreciated, and he responded by singing a song to his own acompaniment.

The chairman, in a few words, expressed the warm feelings of the members of St. John's Church that had prompted them to give this mark of their gratitude to the Church's gallant soldier boys, who had risked life and limb in defence of home, Canada and the Empire at large.

The Canon A Favorite

The jolly, happy party broke up with singing the National Anthem, O Canada, and three cheers for His Majesty the King, and all concerned in making this thoughtful event the huge success it really was.

Canon Davidson excelled himself in making the soldier-guests feel at home, and his efforts in this direction were fully appreciated, was fittingly demonstrated when the atmosphere resounded again and again with cheers and a tiger for the rector of St. John's.

The boys reached home at eleven o'clock.

Absent Through Accident

Owing to the fact that the car in which they were driving met with an accident while they were on the road to South Beach last night, Messrs. A. W. Turner and B. D. Hall were unable to attend the Soldiers' Reception, to the success of which they had contributed largely as members of the Committee. The car which ran off the road, into the fence was repaired at Lakefield.

ENGLAND'S REPUTATION FOR FAIR PLAY IS RECOGNIZED

Allies' Consent to Trial of Kaiser in London Admission of Britain's Honor—Newspapers Generally Express Satisfaction in L'oyd George's Speech on the Peace Treaty—Liberal Daily News Also Endorses Premier in Most of His Arguments.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, July 4.—With one or two exceptions, the morning newspapers express satisfaction with Premier Lloyd George's speech in the House yesterday. Several, including some more friendly to the premier, refer to it as a defence of the peace treaty, but there is a general agreement that he gave good answer to those clamoring for more drastic terms, as well as to those objecting to the oppressive features of the peace treaty.

Labor Condemns

The Laborite Herald alone sweepingly condemns the speech, asserting it to be unsatisfactory, to labor and Liberal members of the House of Commons. The Liberal Daily News, however, while continuing to criticize certain terms in the treaty, says the validity of many of the Premier's arguments are incontestable and warmly praises his declaration of faith in the League of Nations. Only a few comment on the announcement of the trial in London of the former German Emperor, saying that the Allies are honoring England's reputation for fair play, which must be lived up to.

BIG DIRIGIBLE FLYING 1,000 FEET HIGH REPORTS ALL WELL

Will Reach New York Some Time Today---Weather Bureau at Washington Furnishes Airship With Complete Meteorological Reports---Weather Excellent For Flying.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, July 4.—The position of the British dirigible R-34, according to a report received by the Air Ministry at 3 o'clock this morning, was 51.20 north latitude and 48.40 west longitude. This gives the position of the craft as just west of Newfoundland.

A message received by the Air Ministry last night said: "We are flying at 1,000 feet, all well on board, we expect to reach New York on Friday."

North of St. John's.

St. John's, Nfld., July 4.—A British wireless has received a report from the R-34, saying the dirigible expected to cross Newfoundland far north of St. John's, passing over the southern extremity on Notre Dame Bay, thence proceeding to Bonne Bay on the west coast, going down the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and reaching the Canadian mainland from the direction of Cape Breton, Prince Edward Island.

Weather Bureau in Touch.

Washington, July 24.—In response to a wireless from the R-34, the U. S. weather bureau today furnished the airship with complete meteorlogical reports for the Atlantic coast, and for east of wind and weather. The weather bureau message indicated excellent flying conditions for the next 24 hours.

JUDGEMENT FOR WORK AND LABOR

$443.43 INVOLVED IN ACTION WHICH GOES AGAINST DEFENDANTS.

In the County Court His Honor Judge Huycke gave judgment today for McPherson and Deforge against M. Pappas, the Chamberlain estate and the J. R. Stratton estate, for $443.43 for work and labor done and materials furnished to the Royal Theatre.

This was a judgment in a mechanics' lien action brought by McPherson and Deforge against M. Pappas as owner of the Royal Theatre and as again the Chamberlain estate and the J. R. Stratton estate as mortgagees. The plaintiff claimed that they were entitled to a mechanics' lien in priority to the mortgages held by the Chamberlain estate and the Stratton estate, and His Honor Judge Huycke finds in favor of the plaintiffs against both the owner, Mr. Pappas, and the two mortgagees and gave judgment for $443.43 with costs.

Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for McPherson and Deforge, Mr. Daniel O'Connell appeared for Mr. Pappas, Mr. R. R. Hall appeared for the J. R. Stratton estate, and Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared for the Chamberlain estate.

LOCAL SOLDIERS HOME THIS A.M.

CAME UNEXPECTEDLY VIA GRAND TRUNK FROM PORT HOPE AND BELLEVILLE.

A large number of soldiers reached here this morning on the trains from Belleville and Port Hope.

Unfortunately, the notice of their arrival did not reach Mayor Duncan till about 8 o'clock this morning so there was no time to arrange a public reception. The Salvation Army band turned out in force to meet their comrades last night, but were unable to be present this morning. Seven former members of the Salvation Army band were among the number that arrived. They were Bandmaster William Perrier, Sergt. Frank Robinson, Bandsmen Albert Moines, Charles Gadd, Ernest Sergeant, Harry Parnell and Henry Hedge.

Other local men who accompanied them were Pte. J. Brown, Corp. J. Copperthwaite, Ptes. J. P. Cullen, R. R. No. 4, Peterborough; Robert Fowler, Alex. Grahm, Lakefield; Pte. G. M. Goodfellow; Lance-Corp. C. S. Jarrett, Ptes. L. Kirk, Indian River; M. T. Mather, A. J. North, Wellington Northey, Theodore Nicholls, Eric Pearson, T. M. Powers, Wm. Pavy, Harry Taylor, Curve Lake; Harold M. Telford, R. R. No. 4, Peterborough; Wm. Trude, Lakefield; Ray Hetherington, R. R. No. 1, Peterborough.

On the recommendation of Premier Hearst, the Lieutenant Governor will issue a proclamation naming Sunday, July 6th, as a day of general thanksgiving, to be observed throughout the Province to commemorate the end of the war.

Welcome Home For Soldier Bandsman

There was a hearty welcome waiting for Bandsman William Jones when he returned home yesterday at noon, with his bride. He has been overseas for four years with the 59th band, and has seen considerable service on the firing line. The Salvation Army band turned out in force last night and serenaded him and his bride at their home on Patterson street. After rendering a number of appropriate selections, a dainty supper was served on the lawn.

Crowds Were There Boys Did Not Come

PETERBORO SOLDIERS EXPECTED HOME LAST NIGHT FAILED WELCOMING CROWD.

The Grand Trunk Station was the scene of much expectancy last evening, when the people thronged there in numbers to welcome home some Peterborough boys who were expected to arrive on the evening train.

Twice did the bandsmen of the Temple band, and the crowd, turn out and twice were they disappointed. It speaks well for the citizens of Peterborough to see them so eager to extend the hand of welcome to our returning heroes.

FOURTH OF JULY IN PARIS CITY

PEACE CONFERENCE MEMBERS CELEBRATE AMERICA'S NATIONAL DAY.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, July 4.—Contrary to expectations, the Council of Five, of the peace conference held a meeting today.

The session, however, was a brief one, early in the forenoon, giving the members opportunity afterwards to attend the various functions, celebrative of the Fourth of July, during the afternoon and evening.

The Council discussed only administrative matters and arranged for various address which members had requested.

MAN CUT TO PIECES BY G.T.R. EXPRESS

SAD DEATH OF WELL-KNOWN EASTWOOD DAIRYMAN EARLY THIS MORNING.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Ont., July 4.—William Merkle, 74, a well-known dairyman living near Eastwood, Ont., was cut to pieces by a fast eastbound Grand Trunk express early this morning while crossing the tracks.

Result of Mistake.

It is thought Merkle mistook the express for a milk train. The train did not stop and the engineer knew nothing of the accident till he found indications on the cow catcher when this train reached Brantford.

Heavy rains during the last week end may save considerable of the wheat crop in Saskatchewan.

WOMEN AND MEN CROWD ARENA TO SEE THE CHAMPIONSHIP FIGHT

Spectators Sizzle Under a Burning Sun—Thermometer Registers 112 Degrees—Too Hot Even For Brass Band to Play—Blind Enthusiast Pays Sixty Dollars For an Event He Can Only See in Memory of Happier Days.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toledo, July 4.—At 4.30 o'clock this afternoon Jess Willard, of Lawrence, Kansas and Jack Dempsey, of Salt Lake City, will meet in a 12 round boxing match here for the heavy-weight championship of the world. At their respective quarters this morning it was stated that both had slept well and were ready for the contest.

The Usual Confidence

From Managers and Principals come renewed expressions of confidence.

The road to the park was alive and bustling at dawn. Policemen and soldiers were early at their stations. In the arena, carpenters were still busy putting on final touches to the vast amphitheatre with its eighty thousand seats. Thousands of these were still on sale this morning. Every road leading into the city saw automobiles bringing their load of fight enthusiasts from nearby cities and some from a distance. Detectives from all the principle cities on the land were mingling in the crowds, while five hundred Toledo citizens were sworn in to aid the regular city police force in maintaining order. Willard was the favorite in betting this morning.

Hot, Tremendously Hot

Ringside, (Toledo), July 4.—At 2.45 p.m. the thermometer at the Ringside showed 112 degrees. By noon a vertical sun was shining up the attendance en casserole. The breeze continued, but confined its efforts to fluttering flags; it did not dip into the bowl of the amphitheatre. A small blaze was started at the ringside by a cigarette stump. It was extinguished with a pail of drinking water, which happened to be at hand.

A member of a big party from Ontario is reported as the word in fight enthusiasm. This man was totally blind, but paid sixty dollars for a seat, under 112 degrees sun, for a show, which he could only imagine from what his friends told him and from memories of fights of earlier days before he was imprisoned in darkness. It was so hot inside the arena that a brass band had to give up all attempts to play as they could not hold the instruments in their hands.

Crowds began gathering in the great arena early this afternoon, to witness the Willard-Dempsey fight for the championship of the world.

Comparatively little interest appeared to be taken in the several preliminary bouts staged this morning. At noon the crowd was rapidly gathering, the arena being about one third filled. Among the thousands of coatless and collarless spectators, was a good sprinkling of women.

LEG BROKEN AT EXHIBIT. GROUNDS

LILLIAN FARTHING THROWN OFF ONE OF THE MERRY-GO ROUND HORSES.

Lillian Farthing, 52 Lansdowne street, age 14, was thrown from one of the horses while riding on the merry go round at the Exhibition Park last night, and had her right leg broken besides suffering injuries to her head. She was removed as quickly as possible to her own home and Dr. Mann was called. He advised that she should be taken to Nicholls Hospital in order to make an x-ray examination.

The manager of the show asked for the name and address of her parents and on finding that her mother was a widow he generously gave her $25, besides the best doll he could get in the show for the injured girl.

ALL CANADIANS HOME END OF AUG.

THERE ARE STILL ABOUT 43,000 IN ENGLAND—STRIKES INTERFERE.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, July 4.—In Commons this morning Major General Newburn announced that from the armistice to the end of June 289,625 men had been demobilized. There were still in England about 4,300 Candian soldiers, of whom twenty thousand would have been home now but for strikes. He expected all demoblized by end of August.

Civil Service Is Much Overmanned

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, July 4.—The special committee of Commons, which investigated civil service, has reported that over-manning of inside civil service exists to a considerable degree in many departments, and leave of absence is permitted and practiced to unreasonable degree. Investigation will be continued next session.

NATIONAL HOLIDAY SAT'DAY, JULY 19

HIS MAJESTY NAMES DAY FOR EMPIRE PEACE CELEBRATION.

Ottawa, July 4.—The Government has received from the Colonial Secretary two despatches dated July 1, which are now made public.

His Majesty has issued a proclamation appointing Sunday, the sixth day of July as a day of general thanksgiving for the blessing of the peace, and it is his desire that this day shall be observed not only in the United Kingdom, but in all quarters of the Empire. The king has also given his sanction to a peace celebration in the United Kingdom on Saturday, July 19, and the hope is expressed that all parts of the Empire will join as far as possible in celebrating peace on that day.

In view of his Majesty's proclamation and having regard to the desire expressed as to a general celebration of peace throughout the Empire, the Government have appointed Sunday, the sixth day of July as a day of general thanksgiving, and they have also concurred in appointing Saturday, the 19th day of July for peace celebrations in all parts of the Dominion.

FRENCH DEAD NOW TOTAL 1,336,000

BIG PERCENTAGE OF 8,410,000 KILLED OR MISSING THROUGH WAR.

Paris, July 4.—The total French losses in killed and missing on land and sea, as officially established up to the day of the armistice, November 11, 1918, amounted to 1,366,000.

The losses of the French army were 1,089,700 killed and 265,800 missing or 16.2 per cent. of the total mobilized force of 8,410,000. The losses of the navy totalled 10,735, of which 5,521 were killed and 5,214 are missing. The losses in the navy were 4.19 per cent of the complement.

SEWAGE DISPOSAL.

ONCE THE CITY'S Board of Works gets through with the high level bridge muddle they will have to tackle in earnest the sewage disposal problem. A site for the disposal plant has to be decided upon, and the work placed under way before many weeks elapse, for, according to indications, the long-suffering Monaghan township will not brook much further delay. An injunction to restrain the city from discharging its sewage into the Otonabee has been threatened by these townships more than once, and a climax to their patience is due at any time.

But, apart from the plaint of these townships, Peterborough citizens themselves are weary of waiting for a cessation of polluting the waters of our beautiful river with disease-dealing sewage. It is a beautiful stream on which to camp and in the waters of which to bathe, but its utility as such is marred by the impurities carried down by its current. And just as soon as the sewage disposal plant is in operation, the use of the river's advantages as a desirable summer resort close at home will be exploited to the utmost.

There is, however, more than the outfall sewer to be muzzled. On the east side of the river, north of the C. P. R. bridge, more than one cesspool empties into the river, and in order to complete the task of stopping contamination of the Otonabee with sewage, those cesspools will have to be taken into account. But no doubt when Council gets busy on this sewage task an attempt will be made to do it thoroughly—let us hope so!

WHERE IS THE MONEY TO COME FROM!

OF COURSE, a soldier who served the Dominion over-seas—in the battle areas—and even in England and at home, is worthy of all the British Columbia G. W. V. A. would have him get from the Government. But $1000 for service in Canada, $1500 for duty in England, and $2000 for service in France! Can the country afford it? Say 400,000 men, or their dependents, at even $1000 each—$400,000,000—where is the money to come from? If from those who profited by the war, and those who evaded their duty, well and good. But to saddle a portion of that heavy burden on to the great salaried class whose incomes did not raise during the war, although the costs of living more than doubled, and many of whom spent no inconsiderable sums in comforts and pocket money for their boys at the front, would be an injustice. There are more classes than one to be considered when a country is to be specially taxed for a specific purpose, and we hope the G.W.V.A. of British Columbia will, when demanding the proposed war bonus from the Government, make some suggestion as to how to provide the grants without making those pay who have been already impoverished by the war. It is understood that this bonus suggested is an addition to the gratuity already allowed returned men.

HELPING THE SOLDIER'S WIFE.

SOME LITTLE TIME AGO the Soldier Settlement Board established a branch known as the Home Branch, or domestic science branch, the purpose of which is to assist the soldier's wife. The head of that branch is Mrs. Muldrew, who for many years has qualified herself for this work. Indeed, she was previously engaged in work of a similar character, and is the best person that could possibly be secured to assume the responsibility of this branch of the work. The Home Branch endeavors, by a system of circulars and correspondence, to help the soldier's wife in her domestic work and in the management of the home, and prevent as far as possible waste and extravagance there. One assistant in each province undertakes the responsibility of the work for that province, and supplements the correspondence by actual visits to the homes of the soldier settlers. That is as far as the organization as yet has gone. In the United States this branch of the agricultural work has reached a considerable degree of efficiency; indeed, it is looked upon there as, perhaps, the most useful phase of the work of the Department of Agriculture, the department trying it in the soldier-settlement work, and so far there is every reason to believe that it is meeting with considerable success.

This work deserves the highest commendation, for unless farm born and educated, the wife of a soldier farmer requires as much advice in her newly-acquired duties as the soldier himself. It is no light task a woman assumes in undertaking the domestic management of a farm home at the best, and to one not brought up on a farm, opportunities for waste and losses for want of knowledge of ways and means are manifold. In farm life, half the battle for success rests with the wife's skilful management of the dairy, poultry, and the household in general, without which the farmer himself is indeed handicapped. Therefore, to the young inexperienced couple taking up farm work, the Government's provision for expert supervision of and aid for the woman in her domestic duties is timely at this stage in Canada's history, when so many soldiers, inexperienced in farming, are nevertheless going back to the land.

CHINA AND JAPAN.

SO CHINA has refused to sign the Allies' peace treaty with Germany, and rumor has it that she contemplates a treaty with Germany alone. We are not surprised, for Germany has proven herself yellow, anyway, in the character acceptance of the term, and will adopt any color that suits her purpose—not long ago it was "Turkey red." China is jealous of Japan, to whose further domination she declines to submit. She has watched Japan's progress and prosperity by adopting European and Western methods, and now she is, according to reports, contemplating following Japan's lead. China is a wealthy nation, a land teeming with millions of sons and daughters, and once she emerges from her pre-medieval lethargy, Japan's dreams of Far East domination will vanish. China is, so to speak, about to abandon her ancestor-worship and bend the knee to the god of material wealth and national advancement. In doing so she may attempt the domination of Japan by force of arms, in which, unless the Allies remain in a state of preparedness against such an eventuality, Germany may lend her aid. Unless China subsequently comes into the League of Nations, Western Europe and the American West will need to keep a watchful eye on the Yellow East.

GERMAN LOSS, BRITISH GAIN.

GERMANY, in making an attempt to rob the British of South Africa, has been righteously punished in the loss to herself of German East Africa, a land of promise and teeming with a wealth of valuable game, to say nothing of as yet unexploited prospects. Game, the biggest and most profitable, is to be found in this, Britain's, newly acquired territory, a veritable Eldorado for intrepid sportsmen. And if the sportsman lands at Tanga and goes up by train to Moshi to start his hunting, he will find that Dawson, the professional big-game hunter, has established a "Safari Base" there, where expeditions may be fitted out. A party of six sportsmen will want a white hunter, two white assistants, six gun-bearers, and one hundred porters. The trip will last about three months and will cost about five hundred dollars per head per month. The cost of the Safari—the hunting expedition—looks large, on the face of it, but in reality the ivory and other trophies collected will go a long way towards covering the expenses. In the ex-German territory elephants and lions are very plentiful, sable and gerenuk not so rare as in British East Africa, and in certain places the rhinoceros is a positive nuisance to the hunter who is out after valuable game.

BELGIAN RELIEF.

THE WORK of the National Committee for Relief in Belgium is concluded, and no further contributions or gifts of clothing should be asked under its name. This committee was founded on April 27, 1915, and up to May 31, 1917, collected solely from the British Empire £2,411,222 18s. 2d., or an average of £100,000 per month, which was expended through Mr. Hoover's organization. On that date the announcement was made that in view of the American loan to Belgium the National Committee temporarily suspended its efforts. The sum of £18,372 19s. 11d. has since been received as a result of the original appeal. However, in October, 1918, to meet the urgent distress which immediately followed in the wake of the retreating Germans, the National Committee issued an appeal which up to date has resulted in gifts of clothing to the value of £57,000. In addition it received cash subscriptions from Great Britain and the overseas dominions to the amount of £74,280 1s. 11d., thus bringing the National Committee into third place in the list of British war charities, with total receipts from donations of cash and clothing amounting to £2,560,876.

Any branch committee holding contributions previously collected by not yet forwarded, should send them to 3 London Wall Buildings, E. C. 2. They will be distributed among various approved charities in Belgium, most of which are concerned with child welfare.

WAITING IN VAIN.

(Vancouver Sun.)

Many people have been waiting around since last November for prices to drop before building a house or going into business. But prices have not dropped, nor, generaly speaking, they do not show any indication of doing so. The probabilities seem that they will go higher rather than lower. We doubt, indeed, if prices generally will be lower in this generation. And we don't care if you mean the price of a house, of a watch, of a pork chop or of a summer suit. Therefore, we have about concluded that what we need, and have the money to pay for, we will buy; as we did before the war.

LONDON TO CAPETOWN BY RAIL.

(Natal Advertiser.)

So far as South Africa is concerned, the chief value of the Channel tunnel will be its enabling effect on the ambitious electric railway project for linking up London and South Africa. With the tunnel constructed, only the Straits of Gibraltar will remain to be burrowed before an overland route from England to Africa is assured. Yesterday, speaking figuratively, the idea might have seemed the chimerical dream of the romancist. Tomorrow it will be an accomplished fact.

BRITAIN'S UNPREPAREDNESS

(By an Old British Territorial.)

Since it is now the fashion for soldiers when they make public speeches to reproach politicians for having neglected Lord Robert's warning before the war and having failed to carry out his schemes for compulsory service, it will be interesting to know what were the considered opinions of the military advisers of the then government upon these schemes. It is impossible to believe that so thorough and painstaking a Secretary for War as Lord Haldane omitted to have them examined, or that there is not somewhere in the archives of the War Office a report about their military value. There was, it is true, some difficulty in ascertaining what exactly Lord Robert's plan was, for it took different forms in the mouths of different exponents. But the typical form was the raising of a home-defence army by four months' compulsory training at the age of eighteen, followed by a fortnight in camp for the three or four succeeding years, and the point to ascertain is whether, on purely military grounds, this was considered by the experts to be superior to the voluntary organization which Lord Haldane was preparing for the purpose of any likely war.

I shall be greatly surprised if this question can be answered in the affirmative. So far as my own experience goes, there were professional soldiers who thought that the Roberts scheme, and still more the Roberts propaganda, was a useful thin end of the wedge for more ambitious projects and supported it on that ground, while deriding it as a solution of the military problem, but there were very few of any competent authority who took it seriously on its own merits. Unless I am greatly mistaken, the prevailing expert opinion was that, if compulsory service was to be adopted in preparation for a continental war nothing would serve but a conscript army on the continental model with full liability for foreign service, and that a four-months' trained compulsory home defensive army would be far inferior in quality to the voluntary Territorial army, and very likely to prejudice recruiting for the overseas Expeditionary Force. It was further held even by many who were strong conscriptionists in theory that the conversion of the British voluntary system into the continental conscript system, even if sanctioned by Parliament, would leave us dangerously exposed at a time when European politics were paticular difficult.

It is commonly forgotten in this controversy that, in spite of many efforts, Lord Roberts failed to secure the support of the Unionist Party for his schemes, and I imagine that these considerations weighed with the Unionist leaders as well as political caution about pinning themselves to the compulsory principle. Lord Roberts, it should be added, had been Commander-in-Chief under a Unionist Government for the four years subsequent to the Boer War, and he had not in that period made any proposal for compulsory service or inaugurated any other scheme for Army reform. Various schemes such as Mr. Brodrick's and Mr. Arnold-Forster's, for changing the method of recruitment proved abortive, and when Mr. Haldane, as he then was, became Secretary for War, the British Army was no better organized for war than at the begining of the Boer war.

Thanks to Lord Haldane all this was changed in the subsequent five years, and never in the history of the country was there such a rapid and systematic effort in military preparation as that which, under his leadership, produced the Expeditionary Force and the Territorial Army. It was not the least of Lord Haldane's difficulties that the Roberts propaganda became, in the hands of zealots for compulsion, a positive hindrance to the Territorial Army. They declared openly that it was a failure, and many of them said and sincerely believed that it had to be swept out of the way to clear the road for Lord Roberts' scheme. This undoubtedly damped down recruiting, and divided opinion at a time when all influences should have been used to bring men into the ranks of the Territorials. "Crabbing the Territorials" became in those days a fashionable pursuit, with the result that, when the war broke out, it was in some quarters an article of faith that they should not be used in serious fighting. Lord French's warm tribute to the Territorials is one of the few bright spots in his book, but the prevailing opinion had so much influence with Lord Kitchener, who was new to war administration in this country, that he undoubtedly made far less use of this splendid force in the early days of stress than he might have done, and failed to see how great an assistance the Territorial Associations might have been to him in raising and equipping the new armies.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

WE EAT TOO MUCH MEAT WHICH CLOGS KIDNEYS, THEN THE BACK HURTS

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

Anthracite Increased 63,000 Tons —Bituminous Up Also

Washington, July 4.—The weekly report issued by the Geological Survey, Department of the Interior, shows that there was a slight increase in the production of bituminous coal in the week ended June 21, but a decrease compared with the week ended, June 7, is indicated by the latest estimates. The production in the week ended June 21, was 8,689,000 tons, compared with 8,489,000 tons in the week ended June 14, and 8,927,000 in the week ended June 7.

The production of anthracite for the week ended June 21, is estimated at 1,748,000 tons, a gain of 63,000 tons over the week ended June 14, but a decrease compared with 2,034,000 tons for the corresponding week of last year.

OIL AND HELIUM IN CANADA

Canadian commercial enterprise is again before the British public in the form of two announcements, the first being that exploitation of the oil fields of Canada on a large scale is in contemplation.

The second announcement refers to the discovery in large quantities in western Canada of helium, the lightest known gas after hydrogen, which is more suitable than the latter for filling airship envelopes, as it is noninflammable and non-explosive.

A Little Tragedy of the Plains

The Woman Whose Day Had Passed

By MARJORIE BODLE

Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

They called it twenty miles from the Potter place to town—twenty miles of crisp, sun baked buffalo grass and monotonous, blinding sky.

The hot wind from the south had come with the Potters today on their drive to town, but it went faster than the two hopeless bays could pull the old wagon, and so the dust whirled up from the wheels and the horses' feet and settled grimly all over the Potters.

It made the two Potter boys and the two little Potter girls, sitting down in the wagon bed, half heartedly quarrelsome and Mr. Potter, on the high seat, the lines hanging limply in his hand, silent and glum.

Mrs. Potter stopped jogging the fretful baby and tried to shade its red little face with her dusty handkerchief.

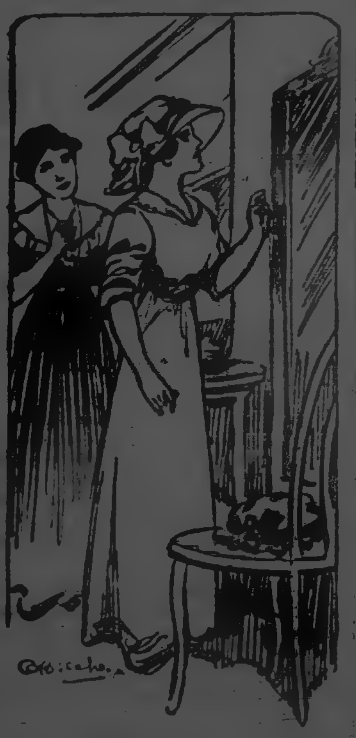
A hot gust of wind caught at her black hat and jerked it unceremoniously on one side. With the baby hanging over one arm she set her hat back again.

She glanced at her husband, with the usual feminine question, "Is it on straight?" on her lips, but with a look at him, staring moodily ahead, his mouth set unencouragingly, she forbore.

The baby had almost cried its poor, hot, little self to sleep, and Mrs. Potter sat with her arms cramped and aching, her forehead puckered in a tired frown.

But at last the sight of a little, unpainted shack at the side of the road and a bright, salmon colored cottage a little farther on made the boys stop the systematic teasing of their sisters and crane their necks eagerly toward Edenville.

Mr. Potter swung the rawhide whip over the backs of the two horses. They lunged suddenly forward, jerking the baby fretfully awake, and trotted briskly on, spreading panic among the chickens scratching in the dusty road.



"I BELIEVE I'LL TAKE IT IF IT'S NOT TOO HIGH."

At the livery barn Mr. Potter pulled up.

"You'd better get out here, ma," he said, reaching for the much crumpled youngest.

Mrs. Potter climbed stiffly out over the wagon wheel and held up her arms. The little Potters clambered out, and the girls stood silent and close to their mother.

"Me and the boys 'll go over and get their things now. You go get you and the girls fixed up, ma, and then come over to Martin's. [illegible] load up the groceries there."

"All right, pa," his wife answered, tucking a hanging lock of hair behind her ear. "But I—I guess I'll have to have a little money."

"Will that do you, d'you think?"

Mr. Potter leisurely took a bill from his worn, reddish pocketbook and handed it to her, generously beneficent in his capacity as dispenser of funds.

"Yes, that'll be plenty, Will." And nervously: "Now, you hurry, pa. We don't want to be late getting started home."

"Oh, I guess we'll be ready by the time you women folks get fixed up with hats," and pa chuckled in high good humor, now that the long drive was over.

Mrs. Potter smoothed the baby out as well as she could. The baby, worn out by the long ride, protested only feebly.

With her free hand their mother straightened Mary's sunbonnet and Lucy's sprigged percale apron and shook out the streaks of dust from her own cheap black serge.

With the little girls close at her heels, she walked down the one sided Main street to a store where "Miss Ellis, Millinery, Dry Goods and Notions," was painted in yellow and black on the false front.

Inside it was cooler and shaded. The counters and shelves, with the piles of lawns and calicoes, seeming to run largely to grays and blues, and the notions, among which were displayed attractive side combs and irresistible ribbon bows, were all arranged in careful order. And the hats—such creations!

Mrs. Potter gazed at them with admiring eyes. She stood for a moment uncertainly. Then Miss Ellis herself came forward, large and complacent, in cool gray chambray, with smoothly combed black hair and a dark down upon her upper lip which rivaled the notion counter in the attention of the children.

"Why, how d'you do, Mrs. Potter?" Miss Ellis was most cordial. "When did you get in town? The darlin' baby! And both the little girls too. My! Aren't you tired out this hot afternoon? Just set down here, Mrs. Potter. You came in to do some buyin', I suppose?"

"Yes'm. I thought I'd get me and the girls fitted out with hats, though it's pretty late to be gettin' them."

Her sunburnt face flushed a little.

"Oh, we have some nice hats left, Mrs. Potter, though, of course, the stock's a little picked over. Shall we take you first? Oh, the little girls? Let's see. What are their names? Oh, yes; Mary and Lucy. All right. We have the very things"—

Miss Ellis helped their mother untie their bonnets in preparation for the ceremony of trying on. The little girls were frightened at first, but they grew dazed with joy when they found themselves radiantly hatted, one with blue flowers and ribbons, the other with pink.

At last they knew them for their very own. The rubbers were slipped under their proudly lifted chins, and it was Mrs. Potter's turn.

"You can put the baby here." Miss Ellis offered a cushioned armchair. "Poor little thing—it's all tired out," and "it," who was, in truth, of feminine gender and labeled "Alva Jane," was gently deposited, warm and red and sound asleep, on the calico cushion.

Mrs. Potter brushed at her black dress and felt nervously at her black hat. It was very old, and the felt and the ribbons were dusty and limp.

She put it on a chair beside her and smoothed vainly at her roughened, faded hair. Her face was lined and weary, and her eyes, which were blue and should have been pretty, were reddened from the sun and wind.

She stood passively while Miss Ellis selected a hat and placed it on her head. It was a large hat, with a softly drooping brim, with mounds of chiffon and big pink roses.

Mrs. Potter looked almost timidly into the glass, and then she forgot that she was stiff and tired from her ride and that her face was dusty and her hair stringy. She was gazing at the mirrored reflection of the hat.

"That certainly does look good on you, Mrs. Potter," said Miss Ellis, who was a milliner of business rather than aesthetic principles.

"Oh, do you think so?" Mrs. Potter hesitated.

She reached up and felt nervously of a pink rose with her brown hand, awkward in the black cotton mitt.

"Well, I certainly do. Just look at them roses. And the amount of pink chiffon that's on that hat—it's sure the hat for you, Mrs. Potter," Miss Ellis went on encouragingly, but her customer was not listening to her at all. She was looking into the mirror at something for which Miss Ellis had not the gift of sight.

She saw a girl's face, sweet and pretty, with pink cheeks, and big blue eyes and golden [illegible] hair [illegible] shading it was the wonderful hat of chiffon and roses.

The reflected face, which Miss Ellis would have said was old looking and very tired, flushed, and the eyes brightened and filled a little. Mrs. Potter, with the glory of her vision upon her, turned to the milliner.

"It's like one I had the summer Will and I was married," she said. "He liked it. He said it just suited me." The flush deepened. "I believe I'll take it if it's not too high and you think"—

Mary and Lucy had recovered from the awe of their new hats and were playing hide and seek among the counters.

Mary ran around to where her mother stood. Mary was used to her mother in a chronically old blue calico sunbonnet or the black felt with the rusty, crumpled ribbon, but this! Mary had not known her mother fifteen years ago, and she did not understand.

She looked a moment, puzzled and dismayed.

"Why, mamma!" she said slowly and then gurgled in delighted appreciation of the joke.

"Oh, Lucy!" she cried gleefully and dragged her sister around where she could see. "Come and look at mamma. Ain't she funny in that pretty hat?"

Mrs. Potter turned suddenly again to the glass.

The light from a back window fell glaringly across her. She saw the pink billows of chiffon and the roses and the soft white brim drooping over her tanned face. The glass blurred before her. She could hardly think or move for a minute.

Then she roused herself and lifted the hat from her head. Her rough fingers caught in the soft chiffon as she set it down.

"I guess I won't get my hat today, after all, Miss Ellis," she said dully. "Come on, children; your pa'll be waiting for us."

And she pinned on the old black felt.

THE PLACE OF HUMMING IN CHORAL PRACTICE

Do Not Sing Loudly all Through Practice—It is Not Necessary to Start in at Page 1, on a New Anthem.

Those scores of singers in volunteer choirs all over Canada whose Friday evenings are given up to the weekly practices and who are complimented, coaxed, scolded, and shamed in turn into avoiding the gross mistakes that the leader uncovers, will be interested in the following talk on rehearsal methods. These ideas, expressed by Dr. P. C. Lutkin, Dean of music in the Northwestern University, formed part of a paper read recently by the Doctor on Routine in the Preparation of a Choral Work. "Many pursue the antiquated plan of beginning on page one and hammering the work into the singers page by page until we reach the end with a sigh of relief," he said. "This hammering process usually results in a metallic, angular performance, devoid of charm and well-considered contrasts. It is a strategic blunder, for we injure voices by singing loudly all the time, and our singers grow restive under such a mechanical and ill-considered plan of procedure. We must remember that we are dealing with the human voice, and with the human temperament, which demands psychological treatment.

"The crucial points are to avoid fatiguing either the voice or the attention. If you are undertaking a work that is stiff going for your singers and beyond their experience or understanding, be sure and start with the most attractive portion, so as to engage their interest and enthusiasm as early in the game as possible. When you have planned out the work for a given rehearsal attack the most difficult parts first, while the attention is fresh. These are apt to be the climatic points."

The habit of practicing backwards is invaluable. It is discouraging to be constantly headed for the unknown and to see pages of uncharted music looming up in the distance. Get the climax first and then back up and lead into it and note the joy and satisfaction of the singers when they get their feet upon comparatively solid ground. The pedagogical principle of moving from the known to the unknown is reversed. As intimated above, a foolish and short-sighted procedure is to allow the choristers to sing full voice throughout the entire rehearsal. This strains the muscles of the throat and the loud singing tires the ear and gets onto the nerves. Much fatigue and unnecessary tension may be spared by humming while notes and expression marks are in progress of assimilation.

Humming not only saves the voice [illegible] improves its quality by cultivating relaxation, which is so [illegible] intonation and correct voice production. If the words are eliminated the entire attention can be focused upon the music. Without being conscious of it, most singers obtain their pitch more from chordal suggestion than from stiff relationship. The soft singing permits the singers to hear the harmonies of the accompaniment distinctly, and this helps them amazingly in getting their parts. They can also hear the guiding and warning remarks of the conductor. Lastly, singers rarely hum out of tune. Of all the time-saving and nerve-shielding devices in chorus rehearsing humming easily comes first.

"A given key, a given mood or a given rhythm becomes tedious if persisted in too long. If you have been practising loud, aggressive and high-pitched music for a time, shift to the quiet and sustained parts for a while.

"If stern necessity keeps you at the discouraging parts, have an occasional good story to tell or humorous comparison to make. A good laugh is priceless. Send your singers home in good humor. If you have good reason for satire and invective, forget it as the rehearsal draws to a close."

PHONOGRAPH RECITALS INVALUABLE TO VIOLIN TEACHERS

The violin teacher who would keep his class and add to it cannot afford to neglect the social side of the business of violin teaching. Too many teachers give their patrons only a certain number of hours of instruction for a certain number of dollars, and let it go at that. They give no pupil's recitals, have no pupil's orchestra, never gather their pupils together for a social hour of music, and, in fact, never see their pupils except during the lesson hour. Such a course is a great mistake from a business point of view and is also a loss of opportunity of building up the interest and enthusiasm of the pupils of the class for their work. Arousing interest in violin playing is one sure way of holding pupils and getting more. Pupils and their parents and friends appreciate advantages which are offered to them to hear violin music, or to hear lectures or papers about violinists and violin playing. Social hours of this kind establish a class on a friendly basis and convey the idea that the teacher is alive to the interests of his pupils and their progress.

If the teacher is accustomed to play in public himself he would find it wise to give an informal recital of violin music every month or so at his studio, to which he could invite his pupils and their friends. Two or three phonograph recitals at the studio in the course of a season would also prove enjoyable to the students. The leading phonograph companies now offer a vast number of violin records, played by the world's greatest violinists. If the violin teacher has no phonograph of his own, he could easily borrow one, and also many interesting records.

POLITICS AND MUSIC

The time is coming when city governments throughout the land will lose no opportunity to show a friendly interest in the musical activities of their cities, for they will realize that beyond the tremendous vote getting possibilities of such interests the municipal authorities owe a great debt to the men and women who are making and enjoying the music of the day.

ENCOURAGING THE NOBLEST

A mutually sympathetic performance of Frank's Violin Sonata by two eminent musicians, involves no compromise in elasticity, or phrasing, but rather inspiration in the joint interpretation of a beloved masterpiece. It encourages the best and the noblest, albeit the humblest, in a musician, and discourages competitive pride, chicanery and ostentation of skill. And to have heard such a performance is to cherish in the memory a supreme rendering of supreme music and closely to associate one's conception of the work with its finest interpreters.

UTILITARIAN SIDE OF MUSIC

That music has a utilitarian as well as an esthletic side has been proved daily since the beginning of the great war, and authorities have sufficiently recognized this fact to put it to practical application. America particularly, has shown what good work can be done, by organizing recently, a Music Service league, for the purpose of fostering the growth of music amongst her soldiers and sailors.

This organization has pledged itself to supply player pianos, phonographs and music, to those who so nobly assisted in defending their country, and who, in many cases are sufferers, being detained in asylums and hospitals. Leading Americans have taken a great interest in the work of this organization, prominent amongst whom is Chas. M. Schwab. He has clearly seen that if people are to "carry on" in civil life they must have more and more music to sweeten their lives and lighten their labor. And the truth of this fact is nowhere more apparent than in Canada. Why should not some public spirited Canadian with wealth to spare (and there are such) come forward and promote some similar organization. He cannot but be aware that the utilitarian part of music is very plain in hospitals, where it has been employed for some time to alleviate pain, to soothe troubled minds and to help generally in the healing process. Doctors have everywhere discovered during the past four years or so, that music can be used to calm excitable patients sufficiently, previous to an operation, to allow of their work being carried out with greater ease, and with benefit to the patient. And it is not necessary to have a brilliant musician present in person to secure good music just where it is wanted. All that is required is a sympathetic pianist with a properly tuned instrument or a good phonograph with well chosen records, an operator who is something of a musician, and shortly the use value of music becomes apparent.

It is just through such means that many a weary day in the sickroom may be passed; many a lonely vigil lightened. Music is helping to cure shell-shock and nervousness, and is restoring lost memories. It is refreshment to a tired and war-worn world. It is the universal language understood by all, the one great art that is loved by rich and poor alike, the art that is deserving of most whole-hearted support.

The "Hard-Up" Merchants.

The "hard-up" merchant is back again to the London streets. Any day now you may see him gleaning from the gutter the cigar and cigarette ends that smokers toss there.

What he gleans may be judged from a statement set forth on a bill which used to be displayed in the window of a house at Clapton. The occupant of the house, with a view to showing smokers how much tobacco they waste, set himself the task of picking up all the cigar-ends he could find in seven years between Clapton and the London Docks, where he worked. Now the number, he said, was 600,000, and the average length of the pieces 1½ inches.

Lest this seem incredible, it must be added that the man was an indefatigable snapper-up of unconsidered trifles. By collecting stones, bits of brick, etc., while walking to and from work, for instance, he raised his garden three feet to the level of the road—an operation which absorbed about 100 tons of material. When the job was done he proudly sent for the landlord, who was so impressed by the improvement that he clapped 1s. a week on his industrious tenant's rent!

But who — knowingly — buys "hard up"? Inmates of shelters, paupers, casual workers, etc. There is a regular trade in the commodity in night shelters, and much of it is sold, generally, in penn'orths in open-air markets on Sunday morning. Not infrequently, too, little bundles of gutter gleanings are "swopped" for food.—Tit-Bits.

Splendors of Nature.

Nature has bestowed her charms upon Queensland with a lavish hand. From Cape York in the Far North to Coolangatta in the Far South the coast line is one continuous series of charming bays and inlets, while the Pacific Ocean, inside and outside the Great Barrier Reef, is studded with islands, on which there are for the most part a profusion of beautiful tropical foliage and a veritable jungle of verdant vegetation. In the voyage through the Whitsunday Passage and the Hinchinbrook Channel travelers are enabled to feast their eyes upon some of the most glorious splendors of nature. The innumerable waterfalls — Barron Falls in particular — and other picturesque spots attract thousands of tourists annually. The coastline is over 3,000 miles in length, and there are a large number of seaports, with natural harbors, which afford safe anchorage for all shipping.—Family Herald.

It matters not how smart a man is. Some day he will bump up against another who is just a little smarter.

This May Help a Little.

If you live in a place where the landlord was looking the other way when they were handing out closets, you need not permanently despair. Take down the old piano box, turn it on its side, doll it up and there you are. Turn the front of it into a door. Imagination hath no bounds for the decorating possibilities of the well-known piano box when it turns turtle in your bed chamber. You can cover it with burlap, cloth, wall paper or the pictures of your best friends in loving remembrance.—Thrift Magazine.

"Yankee Doodle."

The tune, or jingle, is very old and the author or authors were of the dim long ago. The tune under different names can be found among the peasant dances and nursery rhymes of England long before 1600. In Ireland in those days it was a jig tune; in Spain a sword dance; in Holland a song of labor and nursery rhyme; in Germany a folk song and dance; in Poland a folk song and dance.

Wonderful Automatic Clock.

The dials of the world's largest pedestal clock, erected in the center of the new $10,000,000 wholesale terminal at Los Angeles, can be seen from any part of the 20 acres covered by the market place. The clock, which is 37 feet high, automatically operates its own lighting system, turns it on at sundown and shuts it off at daylight, and winds and sets itself.

Remarkable Armistice.

One of the most remarkable armistices on modern record was concluded between Spain and the western republics of South America, at Washington in 1871. It provided that there should be no renewal of hostilities between the contracting parties, except after a three-years' notice, which was to be given through the United States government.

Notes Instead of Calls.

The note of sympathy for sick persons has taken the place of the call. It is proper and kind to send a note expressing regret for a friend's illness and suggesting one would like to call when the invalid is convalescent. All messages written or sent to the sick should be brief and cheerful.—Biddy [illegible]

A GARDENER'S VIEW

That the proper method of dealing with cabbage worms early in the season is to dose them with arsenate of lead. This is a poison, to be sure, but there is no danger to human beings in applying it because the cabbage grows from the inside out. It will kill the cabbage worm very promptly, however, and is far more effective than road dust, lime, soot, or any other of the remedies commonly offered. You can use the arsenate of lead as a liquid spray or apply it dry in the morning when there is dew on the leaves. If you follow the latter plan, it will be economy to use one part poison with three parts slaked lime or flour.

UMBRELLA COVERS

A novelty in the world of umbrellas is the leather cover that is replacing the old one of silk. There is much to commend the cover of leather. In the first place, it makes the umbrella much smarter, as the covers conform closely to the shape of the umbrella and there is no unusual bulk.

Some of the covers are in pigskin in natural color, while other are in leather that has been dyed.

OMEMEE

Omemee, July 4.—Mr. and Mrs. Clareince Cronk and three small sons motored from Port Rowan last week and are spending a few days with Mrs. Cronk's father, Mr. Thomas Henderson.

Reeves Wilson, of Emily, and Patterson, of Ops, were visitors to Ottawa last week.

Miss Helen Baldwin, of Toronto, is the guest of Mrs. Harry Lamb.

Mr. and Mrs. Horton and daughter, Evelyn, of Cleveland, motored to Omemee on Friday and are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Williamson.

Mr. Macewan, of Kingston, is spending a few days with his sister, Miss Macewan.

The Presbyterian picnic, which was held on Saturday at Pleasant Point, was a huge success.

Mrs. Jessie Rehill and son, Bruce, are spending a few days in the village.

The Methodist Church garden party which was held on the church lawn on Friday evening, was as usual, a huge success. The grounds, which always present an inviting appearance, were made doubly so by the many twinkling lights, Chinese lanterns, bunting, gaily decorated booths where one might procure ice cream, oranges, bananas and home-made candy. The tables in the church basement where tea was served, were a feast to gladden the eye. Roses in profusion made beautiful the long tables, which were laden with all the good things to eat. Many young ladies of the church served, while the young men poured tea.

Sports for the children, under the leadership of Messrs. Bradley and Norcombe caused much merriment.

The program, which was one of the best ever listened to by the music-loving people of Omemee, was as follows:

Piano solo—Mr. Treneer, Peterborough.

Chairman's address—Rev. Mr Lewis.

Violin and piano selection—Messrs. Earl and Hornby.

Solo—Mr. Earnest Bushnell.

Wand drill—Miss Gwendolyn James.

Solo—Mr. Treneer.

Piano and violin selection—Messrs. Hornby and Earl.

Duet—Miss Lila Parsons and Mr. Earnest Bushnell.

Solo—Mr. Treneer.

God Save the King.

Proceeds amounted to $150.

Bells rang out in gladness of the signing of peace on Saturday evening, and a service of prayer and thanksgiving was held on the Post Office corner, led by the Rev. Mr. James The meeting was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Morcombe and Mrs. Morcombe Sr., accompanied by Miss Lila Parsons, motored to Pickering on Monday where they spent the holiday, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Law.

Mr. Melville Stinson, who has been the guest of his sister, Mrs. Graham for the past month, left for Detroit on Thursday morning.

Mrs. Potts was the guest of Mrs. (Dr.) Irwin in Lindsay on Thursday.

Miss Amy Parsons is spending a few days with her brother in Toronto.

Mr. John Palmer left on Monday for Victoria, B.C.

Mr. Albert Graham, of Midland, spent a few days under the parental roof.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Southworth motored to Peterborough for the holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Parsons spent the holiday in Peterborough.

Miss Jennie Smythe is home for the summer vacation.

Mrs. Yelland is spending a few days with her son near Lindsay.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Johnson and daughter, Eilene and Helen, are spending a few days in Gravenhurst.

Mrs. Day and little son, Johnson, are visitors to Gravenhurst this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Matthews and daughter, Bernice, were visitors to Peterborough on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Mahood attended the Lindsay Dominion Day celebration.

The Farmers' Club have arranged a monster picnic to be held in Magee's Grove on Saturday, July 5th. All villagers will be entirely welcome.

Among our war veterans to attend the Peterborough Dominion Day doings were Messrs. Harold Cunningham, Charlie Toole, Walter Mitchell, Hillier Cunningham and many others.

Miss Ada McCaffrey, of Toronto, spent the week-end with her father, Mr. Charles McCaffrey.

Miss Lulu Bushnell, of West Hill, is spending her vacation under the parental roof.

Miss Grace Laidlev, of Belleville, is home for the summer vacation.

Miss Blanche Stinson, of Pickering, is spending her vacation under the parental roof.

Those of the classes in Miss MacEwan's room surprised their teacher on the last school day by presenting her with a camera, a box of chocolates and a snap-shot album, Miss MacEwan having sent in her resignation.

De Leon's Landing in Florida.

On March 27, in 1513, on Easter Sunday, Ponce de Leon discovered land after his voyage of exploration from Porto Rico. De Leon had sailed in search of the mythical island of Bimini, where the "Fountain of Youth" was said to be, when he discovered land on the North American continent. He named the country Florida, on account of the profusion of flowers.

False Diamonds Easily Detected.

In former days even rock-crystal passed for diamond. Only within comparatively recent years has there been accurate knowledge of gem-stones. But the modern expert cannot be deceived. A colorless beryl, for example, yields when well cut a very brilliant and diamond-like stone, but nobody could pass it off on a fairly intelligent pawnbroker for a real diamond.

Packing Hints.

In packing a wardrobe trunk, if plenty of tissue paper is used in the sleeves of and between the garments there is little chance of their being out of shape when the destination is reached. A safe rule in all packing is to have everything tightly packed, so one should not be sparing with tissue paper.

Thoreau's Vision.

If the moon looks larger here than in Europe, probably the sun looks larger also. If the heavens of America appear infinitely higher and the stars brighter, I trust that these facts are symbolical of the height to which the philosophy and poetry and religion of her inhabitants may one day soar.—Thoreau.

Medicinal Plants.

In the Philippines the number of plants used for medicinal purposes is very large. A few are recognised as sources of standard medicines, but the number having commercial value is decidedly small. From one, the St. Ignatius bean (Strychnos ignatii), the strychnine of commerce is extracted.

Timidity a Handicap.

A great deal of talent is lost to the world for want of a little courage. Every day sends to their graves a number of obscure men who have only remained in obscurity because their timidty has prevented them from making the first effort.—Sydney Smith.

Rather Well Put.

John was downtown with his father, who was buying a pair of shoes. He found a pair that were satisfactory and told the clerk he would take them. John looked at his father and said: "Are you sure your feet feel contented in them, daddy?"

One Woman's Deduction.

One Atchison woman who has taken the best care of her hair all her life, only to have it turn gray at an early age, says: "The person who wrote that a woman's hair is her glory was a bald-headed man."—Kansas City Star.

Cork Renewal.

If corks are porous or you wish to prevent them taking the odor from the contents of the bottle, dip them in hot melted paraffin wax and insert in bottle at once. It also seals it airtight if not touched again.

Scholar Must Work Hard.

No way has been found for making heroism easy, even for the scholar. Labor, iron labor, is for him. The world was created as an audience for him; the atoms of which it is made are opportunities.—Emerson.

NO ABATEMENT OF INTEREST IN THE BIG TENT SERVICES

Attendants Increasingly Impressed With Unique Character of the Evangelist's Themes

Notwithstanding the half holiday and the excessive heat of yesterday the attendance at the Kennedy tent services last night was good. Mr. Kennedy spoke with his usual power. Those who are attending the services are being increasingly impressed with the unique character of the evangelist's preaching. The minister of one of our city churches who has heard a number of the leading evangelists of the United States and Canada, remarked recently that Mr. Kennedy is a preacher of greater power and forcefulness than any other evangelist he knows. The most striking thing in his messages is his wonderful knowledge of the word of God and his absolute fidelity to the great doctrines of grace. He does not use some of the methods of other evangelists that are so objectionable to some people. The members of the churches of the city should be giving these services their enthusiastic and loyal support.

Splendid Singing.

Mr. Mulligan, who is leading the singing, has never been heard to better advantage. He and his son sang a most effective duet last evening, and Miss Hartshorn sang a solo. Mr. Kennedy's text was, "Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; and let him return unto the Lord, and He will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon." He said in part: "Repentance is more than being sorry for sin. It is being sorry enough to quit sinning. It is to forsake sin. Jesus is a Saviour from the love and power of sin. Unless a man repents and gives up his sin he could not enjoy heaven even if he were admitted into it. He would want to be taken out. Repentance is more than Godly sorrow. Saul was sorry when he said: 'I have played the fool,' but he did not repent. The Publican said: 'God be merciful to me a sinner,'—and that was true repentance. You cannot be right with God unless you are right with your fellow man. John says if you say you love God and hate your brother you are a liar. Repentance is to forsake your own way and walk in God's way. The Bible says there is a way that seemeth right unto a man. If you are in the way of sin you are on the way to hell. Repentance is a very thorough thing. It involves the giving up of your evil thoughts as well as your evil ways. You cannot grow in grace and cherish your evil thoughts. You must forsake your wrong thoughts of God, and of His word, and of Jesus Christ, and of His church. The church is not perfect, and yet it is doing twenty times more good than any other organization on earth. If the church is not perfect join her and help to make her so. Repentance means also to return. Why do not the sinners of Peterborough return? It is because the Christians of our churches do not help them, do not pray for them, do not invite them. It is possible to hinder sinners returning to the Lord by your indifference as a church member." Mr. Kennedy closed a very powerful message with an earnest appeal to return unto the Lord in which he emphasized God's willingness to receive the returning sinner and to have mercy upon him. The subject for to-night will be "Both Sides of the Question."

SPARKS FROM KENNEDY'S ANVIL

Everybody has an inner life, good or bad, and usually the best is on the outside.

There is no place in the world where you can hide your sin from God.

When a man is right with his conscience there is something like sweet music sounding in his memory.

Most men know better than they do.

Men may rebel with their wills and curse their tongues, yet their conscience is always on the side of the preacher.

If God were to open your heart and take a walk back through the months and years of your life, with His searchlight and tell the rest of us what He thought of you, what would He say?

No man is happy unless his conscience is his friend.

Love exposes guilt in another and ultimately the other will respect the man who exposes it to his eyes.

To be able to look into the mirror and have respect for the one you see, is a great satisfaction.

Don't you know, yourself that you live a life that others know nothing about.

You may fool the world and deceive your friends, but God knows you at your worst.

Experiences are like street improvements, we must pay for them, whether we want to or not.

It would be a good thing, when some people lose their temper, if they would never find it again.

You, yourself, are the only one that you have to eat, sleep, live and die with, so keep on good terms and never do anything that would cause you to lose your self respect.

Most folks appreciate appreciation and society might be made much happier, if we would only, not only appreciate, but express our appreciation to others.

Some look so well in mourning, it's hard to believe they do not enjoy it.

Jesus of Nazareth seems so near to us in His love and so far from us in His character.

No amount of waiting will ever make the sinner more fit for heaven—Jesus wants you just as you are. All the fitness He requires is to feel your need of Him.

The thing that draws you away from Christ is your selling price. If any sin masters you, you are it's slave.

PRUSSIANISM IN SCHOOLS A PERIL

ELABORATE ARRANGEMENTS UNDER WAY TO GREET U. S. PRESIDENT.

Milwaukee, Mis., July 3.—"The Prussianization of the public schools of America appears to be desired by a small but powerful minority of the people of the country, the large manufacturing interests," said C. P. Cary, state superintendent of public instruction of Wisconsin, in an address before the National Education Association today. "Certain people are trying to introduce in this country a system of education which will result in caste, in class distinction and in making it impossible for children of laboring men to obtain the higher education which they may desire.

"Our situation in Wisconsin is an example of the insidious effort that is being made to introduce industrial education for the benefit of the manufacturer."

That the thorough Americanization of the foreign born and of the children of the foreign born is the greatest problem before the nation today, and its solution lies in education, was the theme of the morning session of the convention. Representatives of organized labor, industry and commerce, agriculture, the home and the war education board urged the teaching the lessons of loyalty, thrift and conservation.

A REAL MODERN SERVICE STATION

IS THE NEW FIREPROOF DUFFUS GARAGE — TOURISTS APPRECIATE IT.

Already the new Duffus Garage has well justified its existance. A very large number of tourists avail themselves of the unsurpassed storage and service of this, one of Canada's most up to date and modern Service Stations. They assert that it is a great credit to Peterborough as well as its owner.

Old and new owners of Ford, Gray-Dort and Dodge Brothers cars are delighted with the accomodation afforded them. The building is roomy, exceptionally well lighted and absolutely fire proof, which all car owners highly appreciate.

Dealing in Accessories and repair parts and supplies both wholesale and retail and carrying at all times at least $15,000.00 worth of stock, has proved a great attraction, so much so that four clerks are employed to give the necessary service to customers who have learned by experience that they can obtain anything they require at the Duffus Garage.

The big five-gallon gasolene pumper and no waiting, free air on both floors and also on the street, two excellent washing stations are among the many popular features, and speaking generally, everybody seems delighted.

Mr. Duffus states that the new building and plant is no longer a novelty. We are here for business and to serve to the best of our ability our excellent and appreciated customers.

BUY CARS NOW SAYS GRAY

Motorists who beat the season by buying their cars early are now reaping the benefits in having an automobile for the nice summer weather. Those who want cars for summer use should be guided by the experience of others, for the present indications are that the supply of cars will not equal the demand.

"This season is the biggest I have ever seen," says H. M. Gray, Vice President, Gray-Dort Motors Ltd. "While we have been able to give our customers deliveries within a reasonable time up to the present, the demand for cars is increasing every day and we are kept busy supplying them. And this is the situation all over the country.

"Production is somewhat limited due to the fact that the war ended when it did and factories had to wait to return to a peace basis. Personally, I believe that the end of the season is likely to see a shortage of cars, and if I were going to buy, I'd buy early."

To a great many motorists one of the pleasures of owning an automobile is the care and upkeep of the car. Instead of wanting some one to keep the car in shape to run all the time, the motorist likes to tinker himself and takes a lot of pride in his ability to make all minor adjustments and even to completely overhaul his own car.

"For this type of motorist a particular quality of car is best," says R. A. Webster, Service Manager, Gray-Dort Motors Ltd. "In the first place, such owners generally want a car that is of medium size and that operates at a moderate cost. The larger, more expensive cars generally have too many fine technical points to bother the strictly amateur service man. Moreover, they mostly are owned by men whose time is too valuable to use in doing their own service.

"Secondly, the car for such a motorist must be so designed and built that the ordinary man can do his repairs and adjustments. It must be accessible to a point where most of the work can be done in a private garage with only a limited number of tools and working facilities.

"While the motorist who care for his own car is prone to gather a good lot of tools and materials about him, he is limited to hand machinery in most cases.

"The car must be so built that it is simple throughout. It is perfectly possible for the average motorist to master the theories of motor car design and to handle adjustments in a sensible manner, but it is confusing to have a lot of complicated parties when the worker is not an expert mechanic.

"Gray-Dort owners find it possible to do most of their own work because of the simplicity of Gray-Dort cars. Moreover, they find it most satisfying and also most economical. The present cost of garage work makes overhauls and adjustments a very expensive thing for many motorists. In fact, many of them cannot afford to pay the prices that all service stations have to charge.

"Personally, I am glad to see an owner who wants to look after his own car. I believe that such an owner invariably takes better care of his automobile and the car gives him better service because of it. After, all, seeing that the car he sells gives honest, faithful service, is the biggest reward a dealer can get. It's what counts in the long run."

PLANNING FOR WILSON'S WELCOME

WISCONSIN MAN WARNS TEACHERS AGAINST INDUSTRIAL EDUCATION.

Washington, D. C., July 3.—President Wilson will probably deliver his address to Congress on the work of the Peace Conference on Wednesday of next week if the tentative program of the president's activities is not changed by force of circumstances. Should the president reach New York on Sunday the program may be moved up one day.

Arrangements for the president's reception in New York are now in the hands of William G. McAdoo and Judge Martin T. Manton, who are co-operating with Gov. Smith of New York, Mayor Hylan of New York city and Secretaries Daniels and Baker. It is now planned that the Atlantic battleship fleet shall pass in review as the president enters New York harbor, accompanied by a large aerial patrol.

The president will be taken to a hall in the city, where a formal welcome home will be given him, to which he is expected briefly to reply. Immediately thereafter the president will start for Washington.

It is the present plan of the president to say little of the work of the Peace Conference until he makes his formal address before Congress.

The president has not indicated when he will submit the peace treaty to the Senate, but officials here expect him to do so either next [illegible] or Wednesday. After he has cleared his desk of important business awaiting his attention he will start on his tour over the country, speaking to support of the treaty and the league covenant.

THEATRICAL

FEATURE FILMS IN TOP CLASS

AUDIENCES APPRECIATE COOL CONDITIONS AT THE GRAND THEATRE.

Two big feature films, a most amusing comedy and the ever-popular Screen Magazine make up the programme at the Grand this week.

Although the temperature last night was up around the 90 mark quite a fair sized audience was present and the cooling plant recently installed by the management kept the house quite cool and comfortable. "The Parisian Tigress," with Viola Dana, in the leading role is a story of the underworld of Paris and some of the scenes are quite thrilling. Miss Dana is supported by an unusually strong cast and the photography is extremly good, some of the out-door scenes being very beautiful.

Miss Louise Huff, as the star in the "Little Intruder," scored a distinct success, her representation of the character assigned to her being very pleasing. She is well supported by several leading stars of the film world.

"Mum's the Word" is the title of the comedy and the story is of two married couples whose color scheme got rather badly mixed.

CLEMENCEAU'S NOVELS

PREMIER OF FRANCE HAS WRITTEN STORIES.

Tales Written by French Statesman Were Always Didactic and Frequently Bitter — Brief Account Given of several of the Plots Used by Himself.

THE whole world, declares Roy Temple House, in "The Nation," "now knows Georges Clemenceau as the forceful First Minister who played Lincoln to the Grant of Gen. Foch. A good fraction of the world knew him before as the caustic journalist whose 'Homme Enchaine' became by virtue of the war 'L'Homme Libre.' But our western world, at least, has not known him as a novelist. Perhaps our western world would have managed to exist without such knowledge, for Clemenceau the story-teller bulks much less imposingly than Clemenceau the statesman."

In the opinion of Mr. House, Clemenceau is a born [illegible] and a confirmed cynic. The teachings of the stories are more than discomforting. We have no reason to believe in a God or a Hereafter, which is just as well, because no form of existence could be worth the living. There is no such thing in the world as virtue, wisdom or enduring happiness. We are all poor, miserable sinners—but what of it? It would scarcely pay to be anything else in so random and unjust a universe. We are all futile and ridiculous, with the possible exception of the cynical philosopher who sees through it all and who plucks the day with Horace and Ausonius. All the common canons of virtue and holiness are, by the bulk of mankind, honored in the breach; and it is better for mankind that this is so. Octave de [illegible] is united in a marriage de convenance to Berthe de La Palud; they are sick with disgust of each other before they are half-way up the Nile in the first fortnight of their honeymoon. Rene de Callians, an old acquaintance of Octave's, happens along and cheers them both very successfully for years. Berthe is not unfaithful to Octave, for she owes him nothing. The marriage de convenance is a foolish farce, and it is the part of wisdom to ignore its useless vows. So everybody concerned is really better off (including Octave, who is thus justified in seeking feminine society elsewhere) for the laudable freedom from prejudice shown by Rene and Berthe. When the lady dies, the two men weep in each other's arms and spend their remaining decade or so of life regretting her in a pathetic duo.

"Clemenceau is almost never easy to read or amusing, although many of his stories (it is not quite just to him to cite the above so prominently) have a certain gloomy power, and some are markedly ingenious. 'Union Assortie' is worthy of Maupassant. An honest bourgeois pair of Caen, earning a modest living in the drapery business, rearing a family and marrying them well, and dying on the same day, earn the life-long approval and envy of their neighbors. But the truth of the union was that the marriage de convenance (next to the Roman Catholic Church, Clemenceau's pet aversion) had been brought about by mutual misrepresentation of the two families' financial status, and that the couple spent their lives in impotent hate and small persecutions, such as oversalted meats, slyly opened windows, bits of glass on the floor, traps and tricks of every description, the setting of one child against another, culminating in a touch of something from the apothecary's shop in the old man's sassafras tea, and a paroxysm of fright on the part of the murderess, which carried her off before her husband's body was cold. 'How they loved each other!' sighed the neighbors. 'What a perfect match!'

"Clemenceau always writes with a purpose. He is always didactic—though Heaven help us if we accept the moral of any one of his fables!—and we must be satisfied to find romance and pathos relegated to the parentheses. There are tears and beauty in the story of the young priest who is bulldozed into the church by an ex-Magdalene with nerves, who plays the accompaniment for the beautiful young sister in charge of the little hospital, and who mounts his pulpit one morning to find that slanderous tongues have been at work and have secured the substitution of a hunch-backed termagant for his friend. Not all the bitterness at the church and malicious society can quite kill the charm of the innocent liaison. Clemenceau is a poet, now and then, in spite of himself.

"And he loves a joke and tells it well. Any reader with a desire for fair play must feel inclined to resent his contempt for the Polish Jews of 'Gideon dans sa Tombe,' 'Simon, fils de Simon' and 'Au pied de la [illegible],' but the first two at least are rollickingly well told. Old Gideon, the merchant prince, warns his 'coming' sons that if after his death they allow their craving for social advancement to fire them to Christianity, he will turn over in his grave. Daniel is the first to violate the paternal interdiction and disturb the repose of the deceased; but some months later Nathan restores him to his original position by the simple expedient of repeating Daniel's offence. Simon, son of Simon, plays the lottery and prays to Jehovah for success, promising him a fifth part of the gain, but he wins nothing. Then he invokes the Saviour of the Christians, making the same promise, and is awarded the Grand Prize. But the coffers of the church grow no richer for his good fortune. 'The proof,' he reasons, 'that Jahveh is superior to the Christian God is that he knew that I could never bring myself to part with a hundred thousand florins. He knoweth our hearts. He does not expect the impossible from us. The other was deceived by my good faith, of which I was for a time the dupe myself. Jahvah alone is great, my son.'"

Dyspepsia quickly transforms an optimist into a pessimist.

Grand Fleet Did Its Duty Silently and Efficiently Throughout the Great War

WHEN Admiral Sir David Beatty hauled down his flag as commander-in-chief of the British Grand Fleet, on the dispersal of that great fighting force, he signalized the bringing to an end of one of the most remarkable incidents in the world's history. Those who understand best what the struggle just ended meant and means realize most clearly how entirely futile is any attempt to estimate the share of any of the Allied nations in the war, any attempt to apportion praise and honor. There is one point, however, upon which all are agreed, namely, that if it had not been for the remorseless, dogged stand of the British Grand Fleet from that August morning nearly five years ago, when it suddenly "disappeared into the unknown," until the day that it lined up outside Scapa flow to see the German fleet come in, humanly speaking, the winning of the war by the Allies would have been impossible. And it was done in silence. Save for a sudden hurricane of sound off Heligoland, off Jutland, off Zeebrugge, which for a moment compelled the world's attention, the work of the Grand Fleet was, for the most part, a silent work, and, as Mr Lloyd George put it on a famous occasion, "taken for granted." Day by day, all through the great struggle came the despatches and bulletins from the theatres of war in France, in Italy, in Mesopotamia, in Palestine, and elsewhere. But the story of the doings of the Grand Fleet as it doubled, trebled, quadrupled itself in strength; as it silently drew the cordon over against Germany closer is only now beginning to be told. Night and day, unremittingly, in all weathers, through four and a half years the ships of the Grand Fleet patrolled the grey waters of the North Sea, always on the alert, always with decks cleared for action, and always, and as a matter of course, running the risk of being sent to the bottom by a chance torpedo. For, to quote Mr. Lloyd George again, "There has been no break in the navy's work. No darkness has rested it, no weather and no winter has stopped it. Never has the navy come into winter quarters. The fight has gone on without ceasing."

ADMIRAL BEATTY.

And it was a strangely impersonal fight. In the old days of naval warfare, when one Richard Grenville cheerfully tackled a whole Spanish Armada off Flores, in the Azores, when the Roundhead Blake convinced the Dey of Tunis of the error of his ways, or Nelson chased Villeneuve to the West Indies and back again, there was many a chance for even the youngest midshipman to "distinguish himself." But in the great silent work of the Grand Fleet, during the years of the Great War, only very few officers and very few men were ever heard of by the world outside. "Hero" is a word that is lightly used to-day, so lightly as to be almost meaningless, but if "a very gallant gentleman" be a sound definition of the word, and it seems to be the soundest that can be offered, then there were many such in the British Grand Fleet.

It is, perhaps, because all this is so surely recognized that the British press, in commenting on the dispersal of the Grand Fleet, singles out two men for special tribute as typifying all the others, Admiral Viscount Jellicoe as the organizer and leader, the man who, in those terrible first months, when Great Britain was struggling against fearful odds, stood in the breach and held it, and Admiral Sir David Beatty, the courageous leader and the "great fighter," who finished the work that Lord Jellicoe began. Behind these two men stand 450,000 others, whose aim and achievement was a simple faithfulness to that great tradition of the British Navy that every man should "do his duty."

Skunks.

"Skunks become quite contented when domesticated and the objectionable odor that has made this animal offensive, yet which saves it from its many enemies, is rarely encountered on a fur farm," says the Argonaut.

The odor is noticeable only when the skunk is put on the defensive, and on fur farms it is easy to avoid arousing its anger and excitement to the point where it is obliged to use its only means of defence for its own protection. Skunks are as playful as kittens and always better natured.

It takes a man with sense to make a dollar go a long way.

A Wife's Objection.

A young married woman complained to Mr. d'Eyncourt at Marylebone (London, England) police court that during the four months her husband had been home from the army he had never spoken to her, says the London Times. Occasionally he spoke at her through her children, but that was all, and meanwhile he lived and slept in the kitchen by himself.

The Magistrate—Have you asked him why he behaves in that way?

The Wife—Yes, but he never answers me.

The Magistrate—Is he in his right mind?

The Wife—People think he is not; but then it is awful to live a life like that.

Mr. d'Eyncourt remarked that considerable powers were given to magistrates now, but they could not make a man speak to his wife if he did not want to. He asked the court missionary to see the husband.

Job for a Statistician.

Some day a clever statistician may publish some appalling figures showing how much time is wasted at railroad depots by folks who arrive on time for trains that are late.—Des Moines Register.

The Only Way.

"I understand you began life as a newsboy?" said a friend to a "captain of industry." "No," replied the millionaire; "some one has been making a fool of you. I began life as an infant."

MATTHEWS-BLACKWELL DEFEAT THE DE LAVALS

Score Nine to Zero—The Victors Bunched Their Hits — Eight Errors For Defeated Team.

By a score of nine to zero the Matthew-Blackwell team defeated De Laval at Riverside Park last night. The victory was due principally to the former's ability to bunch their hits, and to the latter's accumulation of eight errors. Neary, though very freely hit at times, struck three men out in succession in the second innings and repeated the trick on the same three batsmen, Holyman, Shaughnessy and Frost in the seventh. Swanston made the circuit in the ninth innings on two wild throws, one by Neary to first, and one by Bergoine to second.

First Innings.

Matthews-Blackwell—Adams reached second when Barrie threw wild to first; Butcher singled and Lowe flied out to Fitzgerald; Swanston singled, scoring Adams; Hagerman flied out to Lipsett and Butcher beat the throw to the plate; Jackson struck out. Two runs, two hits, one error.

De Laval—Dugan and Rose flied out to Adams and Shaughnessy and Bergoine fanned. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Second Innings.

Holyman, Shaughnessy and Frost fanned out in succession. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fitzgerald grounded out to the first baseman; Legon struck out, and Barrie was thrown out at first. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Third Innings.

Singles by Adams and Swanston, and doubles by Butcher and Lowe netted three runs; Hagerman flied out to Fitzgerald and Swanston was caught off first; Jackson made first on Legon's error, but was forced at second by Holyman. Three runs, four hits, one error.

Neary flied out to Hagerman; Campbell singled but was caught stealing second, and Lipsett flied out to Lowe. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Fourth Innings.

Shaughnessy doubled; Frost and Butcher were thrown out at first, and Adams knocked a fly to Barrie. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Dugan and Bergoine struck out and Rose was thrown out at first. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fifth Innings.

Lowe walked; Swanston flied out to Campbell; singles by Hagerman and Jackson scored Lowe; Holyman singled; Hagerman was caught at the plate and Shaughnessy flied to Rose. One run, three hits, no errors.

Fitzgerald singled, but was forced at second by Legon, who was caught off first on Barrie's fly to Adams. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Sixth Innings.

Frost was thrown out at first; Adams flied to Barrie and Butcher struck out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Seventh Innings.

owe was hit by the pitcher; Swan walked; errors by Dugan and ary let one run in and left the ses full. Then Neary saved him- lf by striking out the next three en. One run, no hits, two errors.

Bergoine walked; Rose fanned and Fitzgerald's fly started a double play; Lowe to Jack. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Eighth Innings.

Adams and Butcher walked but were easy outs on the bases, Adams running into the catcher's arms and Butcher being caught off second; Lowe was thrown out at first. No runs, no hits, one error.

Legon was thrown out at first; Barrie singled; Neary fanned; Campbell flied out to Shaughnessy. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Ninth Innings.

Swanston reached second on the pitcher's error and came home on a wild throw by Bergoine. Hagerman was thrown out at first; Jackson singled; Holyman was thrown out at first; an error by Legon let Jackson in and Shaughnessy reached first; Frost struck out. Two runs, one hit, three errors.

Lipsett was thrown out at first; Dugan fanned; Bergoine doubled to right field; Rose struck out. No runs, one hit, no errors.

LOCAL GOLFERS AT OSHAWA

LINKS IN SPLENDID CONDITION—SCORE 10-6 IN OSHAWA'S FAVOR.

Yesterday was a day of very special interest, in the local sporting clique, when the Peterborough Golf and Country Club, 16 strong, journeyed to Oshawa and played the first match of the season with the Oshawa Club. The links were in splendid condition. The men were all in fine fettle and played the game with a sporting spirit that was good to see.

The score stood 10-6 in favor of Oshawa.

The players made the return trip last evening by motor, after a very enjoyable outing.

JAP LAWN-TENNIS CHAMPION COMING

ALSO U. S. CHAMPION AT BIG EVENTS IN TORONTO.

A large entry is assured for the Canadian lawn tennis championship events which commence tomorrow on the sixteen courts, of the Toronto Lawn Tennis Club.

R. L. Murray, national champion of the United States, and Ichiya Kumagae, who played in Toronto last autumn will give an exhibition, on Saturday afternoon next, the opening day weather permitting. Mr. Murray will play in singles against Mr. Kumagae, and both players will also be seen in other events.

The chief outside entries already booked are :From New York, S. Kashio, Harold Taylor Gerald Donaldson and his two sons (Gerald Jr., and Cecil), Frank and Fred Anderson, Frank Rickey, A. Hellwitz; from Buffalo, P. V. Bowen, P. Hendrick and two clubmates; from Detroit—W. K. Westbrook, champion of the New England States and State of Michigan; from Winnipeg—George D. Holmes, Paul Bennett and A. McArthur.

It is also expected that Miss Marion Zinderstein, of Boston, and Mrs. Bourquet, of Winnipeg, will take part.

A military doubles event is on the programme open to all who served in the C.E.F. overseas. The winners of this event will be entitled to have their names engraved on the Lacey Lawn Tennis Cup.

This cup was given by Mr. Lacey, of Godalming Surrey, England, for competition between Canadian units at Witley Camp, England, and was won last year by the 3rd Canadian Reserve Battalion, represented by Lieut. Col. Buell, Capt. Poole, Capt. Innes-Taylor and Capt. Fury.

ENGLISHMAN WON AMERICAN LOSES

IN SCULLING RACE AT HENLEY REGATTA, ENGLAND.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Henley, England, July 4. Lieut T. H. Bussey, of the British army defeated Major Paul Withington, U.S.A., today, for the King's Sculls in the Henley Regatta.

Bussey won easily by three lengths. The time was 9 minutes 16 seconds.

U. S. CREWS WON TWO

Henley-on-the-Thames, Eng., July 3. American viewed with confidence their prospects in the Henley regatta after winning both events in which they were entered yesterday.

In competition for the Leander Cup, the Americans' first crew beat the Coldstream Guards in a trial heat. The time was eight minutes and twenty seconds.

Rowing on the American crew were Lieut. E. H. Cook, Baltimore; Captain Billings Watson, Captain C. D. Wiman and Major Paul Withington, stroke.

Wrestling Bout This Evening

Tonight Joe Shimkus and J. Hertubise will wrestle 20 minutes for a side bet of $25.00 at the Beacon Show, Exhibition Park. This will be the third time these wrestlers have matched up, but tonight the time is extended to twenty minutes. A fall must be made to capture the side bet or at the expiration of the time limit a draw will be declared.

CANUCK RUNNER FOR OLD COUNTRY

IS IN SPLENDID SHAPE—HE LEAVES FOR ENGLAND TOMORROW.

The gamest little cock sparrow that ever trod in championship shoe leather Alfred Shrubb was in Toronto yesterday bidding the boys farewell before he departs for England. He leaves Saturday.

Can you imagine Alfie Shrubb doing a comeback stunt? That is what he is trying to do after four years' absence from the cinder path. This great little running machine, maker of a dozen world's records, is going to the Old Country to stack his 38-year-old legs and lungs and brains up against such a wonder as McRae, the Scottish champion and the best England can produce.

You can't tell Shrubb that Willard cannot come back. He says he has and that Willard can do the same thing. Besides, Shrubb had further to come back than Willard. He was chased out of town by a doctor, who told him that his lungs were going. Now he has a pair of bellows like a village blacksmith and has been rambling five miles in 26.10 and ten miles in 53.30, and says he can improve that. He will have to do so to hold McRae, who ran ten miles recently in 50.57, which is only 17 seconds outside of Shrubb's famous ten-mile record. However, Shrubb is in grand shape. He looks it—and says so himself. Maybe he will surprise the world.

Shrubb, who has been running 18 or 20 years, made his world's records in 1902-3. He went to Australia 11 years ago, and then came to America. He has been in Canada nine years. He is now a resident of Bowmanville.

Little John's Wish.

John's mother objects to quarreling and fighting among her children. One day some one described a friend's house as having such heavy partition walls that noise in one room could not be heard in an adjoining room. John said, "I wish our house was like that; then when mamma is in the sitting room and us kids in the dining room get a scrap started, we could fight in peace."

Protecting Turkeys From Coyotes.

In certain parts of the West flocks of domestic turkeys on frontier farms are protected from attacks by coyotes by tying small bells to the necks of the gobblers. The tinkle of these bells is sufficient, in most cases, to keep the animals away, while not infrequently unprotected flocks which have wandered far from home are annihilated by the beasts.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Easy to Avoid Worry.

Worry may be compared to any deadly disease and its victims are innumerable. And if we don't want to become one of the unhappy throng we must, wherever our lines are cast, adapt ourselves to circumstances. Airing our grievances and literally looking for more will inevitably result in our becoming downright miserable.

Life in the Dead Sea.

In one of the Jericho hotels there was preserved a declaration jointly signed the same year by over a dozen tourists that they saw fish actively swimming in the Dead sea. At many spots along the shore there are places in which acres of reeds and many trees flourish, and at such spots animal life and bird life are abundant.

Famous Taverns.

At the famous Burford Bridge Hotel at Bexhill, near Dorking, in lovely Surrey, England, many a visitor, says the London Answers, has the honor of sleeping in the room, a snug and quiet chamber overlooking a lovely garden, where Keats composed the greater part of "Endymion." Next to the poet's room is the one occupied by Nelson before joining the fleet at Portsmouth on the cruise which ended at Trafalgar.

Washington Irving is said to have taken his ease and mused for hours together in a tiny parlor at the Red Horse at Stratford-on-Avon; Dr. Johnson favored the lonely hostelry curiously called "Chapel House," and the Red Lion, at Henley-on-Thames is inseparably associated with the poet, Shenstone.

The George at Samford, an inn of high repute in coaching days, and one that boasts that Charles I slept there on his way to Newark, is still prouder of the fact that it was the favorite resting place of Walter Scott during his frequent journeys between Edinburgh and London. His room is still shown.

The Cock Tavern in Fleet street is inseparably associated with the late poet laureate, Lord Tennyson, who in his Bohemian days in London used to get his chop and chips there. The head waiter was a great friend of his, and to him was addressed, "Will Waterproof's Lyrical Monologue," beginning:

Oh, plump head waiter at the Cock,
To which I must resort,
How goes the time? 'Tis five o'clock,
Go fetch a pint of port.

Whether or not Ben Johnson ever drank sack and made merry at the Shoe Lane Inn, which has so long been known by his name, it is quite certain "rare Ben" had a very favorite haunt at the Devil's Tavern, close by in Fleet Street. Another of his haunts was the Mermaid Tavern in Cheapside, where he and Shakespeare used to meet.

Cold Kills Fish.

It has been proved that sudden cold sometimes causes the death of thousands of fish in the shallow waters of the tropics and subtropics. Many species are so chilled as to become helpless, and are either killed directly, by drowning or are washed ashore in a comatose state. The phenomenon is known locally as "freezing," although the temperature of the water may be several degrees above the freezing point.

Matter of Mathematics.

A woman whose hobby was the psychology and the esoteric influence of colors, was deeply gratified one morning when her husband admitted that there might be something in her theory after all. "Dawson told me something today, which seemed to go to prove it," he said. "Dawson?" questioned Mrs. Madison, amazed, for Dawson was the manager of her husband's stables. "Yes; he says the bays eat more than the grays." "Really! How does he account for it?" "Why, there are ten more bays than grays."

Fitzgerald grounded out to the first baseman; Legon struck out, and Barrie was thrown out at first. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Third Innings.

Singles by Adams and Swanston, and doubles by Butcher and Lowe netted three runs; Hagerman flied out to Fitzgerald and Swanston was caught off first; Jackson made first on Legon's error, but was forced at second by Holyman. Three runs, four hits, one error.

Neary flied out to Hagerman; Campbell singled, but was caught stealing second, and Lipsett flied out to Lowe. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Fourth Innings.

Shaughnessy doubled; Frost and Butcher were thrown out at first, and Adams knocked a fly to Barrie. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Dugan and Bergoine struck out and Rose was thrown out at first. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fifth Innings.

Lowe walked; Swanston flied out to Campbell; singles by Hagerman and Jackson scored Lowe; Holyman singled; Hagerman was caught at the plate and Shaughnessy flied to Rose. One run, three hits, no errors.

Fitzgerald singled, but was forced at second by Legon, who was caught off first on Barrie's fly to Adams. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Sixth Innings.

Frost was thrown out at first; Adams flied to Barrie and Butcher struck out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

With one down Campbell made second when Shaughnessy muffed his fly, but as Lipsett and Adams flied out to Shaughnessy and Butcher, he got no further. No runs, no hits, one error.

Seventh Innings.

Lowe was hit by the pitcher; Swanston walked; errors by Dugan and Neary let one run in and left the bases full. Then Neary saved himself by striking out the next three men. One run, no hits, two errors.

Bergoine walked; Rose fanned and Fitzgerald's fly started a double play; Lowe to Jack. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Eighth Innings.

Adams and Butcher walked, but were easy outs on the bases, Adams running into the catcher's arms and Butcher being caught off second; Lowe was thrown out at first. No runs, no hits, one error.

Legon was thrown out at first; Barrie singled; Neary fanned; Campbell flied out to Shaughnessy. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Ninth Innings.

Swanston reached second on the pitcher's error and came home on a wild throw by Bergoine. Hagerman was thrown out at first; Jackson singled; Holyman was thrown out at first; an error by Legon let Jackson in and Shaughnessy reached first; Frost struck out. Two runs, one hit, three errors.

Lipsett was thrown out at first; Dugan fanned; Bergoine doubled to right field; Rose struck out. No runs, one hit, no errors.

LOCAL GOLFERS AT OSHAWA

LINKS IN SPLENDID CONDITION —SCORE 10-6 IN OSHAWA'S FAVOR.

Yesterday was a day of very special interest, in the local sporting clique, when the Peterborough Golf and Country Club, 16 strong, journeyed to Oshawa and played the first match of the season with the Oshawa Club. The links were in splendid condition, the men were all in fine fettle and played the game with a sporting spirit that was good to see.

The score stood 10-6 in favor of Oshawa.

The players made the return trip last evening by motor, after a very enjoyable outing.

JAP LAWN TENNIS CHAMPION COMING

ALSO U. S. CHAMPION AT BIG EVENTS IN TORONTO.

A large entry is assured for the Canadian lawn tennis championship events which commence tomorrow on the sixteen courts of the Toronto Lawn Tennis Club.

R. L. Murray, national champion of the United States, and Ichiya Kumagae, who played in Toronto last autumn will give an exhibition, on Saturday afternoon next, the opening day weather permitting. Mr. Murray will play in singles against Mr. Kumagae, and both players will also be seen in other events.

The chief outside entries already booked are: From New York, S. Kashio, Harold Taylor Gerald Donaldson and his two sons (Gerald Jr., and Cecil), Frank and Fred Anderson, Frank Rickey, A. Hellwitz; from Buffalo, P. V. Bowen, P. Hendrick and two clubmates; from Detroit—W. K. Westbrook, champion of the New England States and State of Michigan; from Winnipeg—George D. Holmes, Paul Bennett and A. McArthur.

It is also expected that Miss Marion Zinderstein, of Boston, and Mrs. Bourquet, of Winnipeg, will take part.

A military doubles event is on the program open to all who served in the C.E.F. overseas. The winners of this event will be entitled to have their names engraved on the Lacey Lawn Tennis Cup.

This cup was given by Mr. Lacey, of Godalming Surrey, England, for competition between Canadian units at Witley Camp, England, and was won last year by the 3rd Canadian Reserve Battalion, represented by Lieut. Col. Buell, Capt. Poole, Capt. Innes-Taylor and Capt. Fury.

ENGLISHMAN WON AMERICAN LOSES

IN SCULLING RACE AT HENLEY REGATTA, ENGLAND.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Henley, England, July 4. Lieut. T. H. Bussey, of the British army defeated Major Paul Withington, U.S.A., today, for the King's Sculls in the Henley Regatta.

Bussey won easily by three lengths. The time was 9 minutes 16 seconds.

U. S. CREWS WON TWO

Henley-on-the-Thames, Eng., July 3. American viewed with confidence their prospects in the Henley regatta after winning both events in which they were entered yesterday.

In competition for the Leander Cup, the Americans' first crew beat the Voldstream Guards in a trial heat. The time was eight minutes and twenty seconds.

Rowing on the American crew were Lieut. E. H. Cook, Baltimore Captain Billings Watson, Captain C. D. Wiman and Major Paul Withington, stroke

Wrestling Bout This Evening

Tonight Joe Shimkus and J. Hertubise will wrestle 20 minutes for a side bet of $25.00 at the Beacon Shows. Exhibition Park, This will be the third time these wrestlers have matched up, but tonight the time is extended to twenty minutes. A fall must be made to capture the side bet or at the expiration of the time limit a draw will be declared.

CANUCK RUNNER FOR OLD COUNTRY

IS IN SPLENDID SHAPE—HE LEAVES FOR ENGLAND TOMORROW.

The gamest little cock sparrow that ever trod in championship shoe leather Alfred Shrubb—was in Toronto yesterday bidding the boys farewell before he departs for England. He leaves Saturday

Can you imagine Alfie Shrubb doing a comeback stunt? That is what he is trying to do after four years' absence from the cinder paths. This great little running machine, maker of a dozen world's records, is going to the Old Country to stack his 38-year-old legs and lungs and brains up against such a wonder as McRae, the Scottish champion and the best England can produce.

You can't tell Shrubb that Willard cannot come back He says he has and that Willard can do the same thing. Besides, Shrubb had further to come back than Willard. He was chased out of town by a doctor, who told him that his lungs were going. Now he has a pair of bellows like a village blacksmith and has been rambling five miles in 26 10 and ten miles in 53.30, and says he can improve that. He will have to do so to hold McRae, who ran ten miles recently in 50.57, which is only 17 seconds outside of Shrubb's famous ten-mile record. However, Shrubb is in grand shape He looks it and says so himself Maybe he will surprise the world

Shrubb, who has been running 18 or 20 years, made his world's records in 1902-3. He went to Australia 11 years ago, and then came to America He has been in Canada nine years He is now a resident of Bowmanville.

Little John's Wish.

John's mother objects to quarreling and fighting among her children. One day some one described a friend's house as having such heavy partition walls that noise in one room could not be heard in an adjoining room. John said, "I wish our house was like that; then when mamma is in the sitting room and us kids in the dining room get a scrap started, we could fight in peace."

Protecting Turkeys From Coyotes.

In certain parts of the West flocks of domestic turkeys on frontier farms are protected from attacks by coyotes by tying small bells to the necks of the gobblers. The tinkle of these bells is sufficient, in most cases, to keep the animals away, while not infrequently unprotected flocks which have wandered far from home are annihilated by the beasts.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Easy to Avoid Worry.

Worry may be compared to any deadly disease and its victims are innumerable. And if we don't want to become one of the unhappy throng we must, wherever our lines are cast, adapt ourselves to circumstances. Airing our grievances and literally looking for more will inevitably result in our becoming downright miserable.

Life in the Dead Sea.

In one of the Jericho hotels there was preserved a declaration jointly signed the same year by over a dozen tourists that they saw fish actively swimming in the Dead sea. At many spots along the shore there are places in which acres of reeds and many trees flourish, and at such spots animal life and bird life are abundant.

Famous Taverns.

At the famous Burford Bridge Hotel at Bexhill, near Dorking, in lovely Surrey, England, many a visitor, says the London Answers, has the honor of sleeping in the room, a snug and quiet chamber overlooking a lovely garden, where Keats composed the greater part of "Endymion." Next to the poet's room is the one occupied by Nelson before joining the fleet at Portsmouth on the cruise which ended at Trafalgar.

Washington Irving is said to have taken his ease and mused for hours together in a tiny parlor at the Red Horse at Stratford-on-Avon; Dr. Johnson favored the lonely hostel curiously called "Chapel House," and the Red Lion, at Henley-on-Thames is inseparably associated with the poet, Shenstone.

The George at Samford, an inn of high repute in coaching days, and one that boasts that Charles I slept there on his way to Newark, is still prouder of the fact that it was the favorite resting place of Walter Scott during his frequent journeys between Edinburgh and London. His room is still shown.

The Cock Tavern in Fleet street is inseparably associated with the late poet laureate, Lord Tennyson, who in his Bohemian days in London used to get his chop and chips there. The head waiter was a great friend of his, and to him was addressed, "Will Waterproof's Lyrical Monologue," beginning:

Oh, plump head waiter at the Cock,
To which I must resort,
How goes the time? 'Tis five o'clock,
Go fetch a pint of port.

Whether or not Ben Johnson ever drank sack and made merry at the Shoe Lane Inn, which has so long been known by his name, it is quite certain "rare Ben" had a very favorite haunt at the Devil's Tavern, close by in Fleet Street. Another of his haunts was the Mermaid Tavern in Cheapside, where he and Shakespeare used to meet.

Cold Kills Fish.

It has been proved that sudden cold sometimes causes the death of thousands of fish in the shallow waters of the tropics and subtropics. Many species are so chilled as to become helpless, and are either killed directly by drowning or are washed ashore in a comatose state. The phenomenon is known locally as "freezing," although the temperature of the water may be several degrees above the freezing point.

Matter of Mathematics.

A woman whose hobby was the psychology and the esoteric influence of colors, was deeply gratified one morning when her husband admitted that there might be something in her theory after all. "Dawson told me something today, which seemed to go to prove it," he said. "Dawson?" questioned Mrs. Madison, amazed, for Dawson was the manager of her husband's stables. "Yes; he says the bays eat more than the grays." "Really! How does he account for it?" "Why, there are ten more bays than grays."

FLAVELLE'S VIEWS ON TEMPERANCE

IMPORTATION OF LIQUOR PERMITTED AFTER RATIFICATION OF PEACE TREATY.

Toronto, July 4.—The temperance policy of the Ontario Government is not likely to be radically affected by the Senate's refusal to extend the life of the Dominion Prohibition bill, according to officials at Queen's Park today.

If the Dominion bill expires immediately on the official proclamation of peace, the Province will be in the same position which it occupied before the federal law was passed, in the opinion of the Hon. I. B. Lucas.

The Attorney-General expressed the opinion that when the peace treaty was ratified by the British Parliament, it would become effective for all parts of the Empire, and that all legislation enacted "for the duration of the war," would thus be automatically terminated. In the extremely improbable event of the British Government's neglecting to ratify the treaty, regulations would presumably continue in force.

Importation of liquor, as a result of the Senate's action will be permissible as soon as peace is formally proclaimed, but no sooner, according to J. D. Flavelle, chairman of the License Board.

"What would happen in the event treaty?" was asked.

"We have not taken that up yet," he said, "but will confer with our solicitor before long in order to define when the war is legally at an end."

Premier Hearst made no statement on the subject, but it is recalled that when the Senate took its first action some three weeks ago, he stated that the Ontario Government's prohibition policy would not be affected in the main. Some details may require revision, but it is not expected that there will be any change in the submission of the referendum.

Kennedy, 503 Bolivar street, and Mr. John Kennedy, of Pontypool, are the only other near relatives. The funeral will take place on Monday at Little Lake Cemetery.

Narrow Escape For Jno. Carew Lumber Co'y.

The John Carew Lumber Co., building at Lindsay, had a close call from being destroyed by a fire which broke out yesterday morning about 9.15. It started from a spark in the engine room falling among some shavings and sawdust in the blower.

A bucket line of pails was formed to the river until the arrival of the fire brigade. However, the hydrant was too far distant to be reached with the 1250 feet of hose, carried on the fire wagon, and another length of 1200 feet had to be employed.

The fire which had been confined chiefly to the engine room was then put out; little damage being done to the rest of the building.

GERMANS SEEK MEXICAN TRADE

Expect to Secure Raw Materials From Southern Republic.

Coblenz, July 3.—German merchants expect to do a big trade with Mexico. Plans have been made to secure raw materials from the latter country, as it is believed that Mexicans are sympathetic and will prefer German markets to American markets. As an illustration of the German attitude, the following extracts from a pamphlet issued by the Allgemeiner Anzeiger der Chemischen Industrie are enlightening:

"One of the few countries that will immediately resume commercial relations with us after peace is signed is Mexico."

"Our first duty is to secure from Mexico large imports of raw materials and not regard it as a dumping ground for German goods."

In 1913, 75 per cent. of Mexico's exports found their way to the United States, which regards Mexico as its warehouse. Of course, these exports will now go to Germany.

GEORGE ST. CHOIR AN'L EXCURSION

IDEAL SAIL DOWN THE RIVER AND GOOD TIME GENERALLY.

The annual outing of the choir of the George street Methodist Church, took place on Tuesday, July 1st. Though the weather-man had not promised what he could do, yet he proved to be a true friend of this organization, for the day was ideal for the sail down the river.

At nine o'clock, the boats were in readiness and a large number had gathered with their wraps and lunch-baskets—the latter proving to be much more useful than the former, on that particular day.

When the last of the tardy ones had finally reached the Street Railway Wharf, the party set sail down the river, the destination being Wedlock's beautiful summer home.

Upon arrival there they were accorded a hearty welcome and found themselves free to posses both house and grounds during their stay.

But it was dinner time; and soon the gong sounded out in welcome tone, and the hungry singers found themselves hurriedly wending their way to the cool dining-room, where daintily set tables, laden with good things delighted the eyes of the fortunate ones. A meal fit for a king was partaken of by fifty one guests, after which a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Wedlock and her family, for having so royally entertained the choir.

Most of the party needed a quiet rest, but ere long a few of the more enthusiastic ones were enjoying a swim in the once peaceful waters.

When they emerged from the water, some of them whose hair fell in such wringlets, presented a very picturesque appearance. After the other friends had become accustomed to their looks, a musical program was given, which took the remainder of the time at their disposal before starting the return trip for Wallace's Point, where the evening meal was to be served.

The return sail was enjoyable and by the time the party arrived and the refreshments were ready, they ate with as eager gusto, as if they had fasted for at least forty-eight hours.

Then the sports, many of which had been reserved for the cooler part of the day were arranged for, and provided much amusement, particularly the matrimonial race, in which, some of our young friends were so excited and so anxious to reach the minister, where the ceremony might be performed, that they forgot to procure the license on the way. Others who were not sure of a right choice, hesitated long enough to lose their chances for life.

The Sports

Following is a list of the sports, and the prize winners.

50 yard dash—Miss Doris Rathbone.

Potato race—Miss Aimie McFarlane.

Walking race, Miss Isabel Baird

Relay race—Miss Alberta Curtis

Married Ladies' Race—Mrs. Bush.

Men's 100 yard dash—Mr. Clifton Carruthers.

Matrimonial race—Mr. Hodgins and Miss Marjorie Bridge.

Standing broad jump—Mr. Clifton Carruthers

After the games, the crowd prepared for the homeward trip which was most enjoyable, when the cool silvery moon took the place of the sun and the boats slipped across the smooth waters with the pretty reflections.

All reached home in safety, having had one of the most enjoyable outings.

Fred Alford, who was thrown out of a side-car at the twilight meet at Brantford, Wednesday, died of internal injuries.

Fortunate is the man who is a hero to his wife.

BIG BIPLANE, ON WAY TO ESCORT AIRSHIP, FORCED TO DESCEND

Engine Gave Out at 5.30 This Morning---Giant Airplane Fell in Streets of Parrsboro---Machine Ruined---No Injury to Crew---Dirigible Flying Between Halifax and Canso.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Halifax, July 5.—At 10.30 this morning, Admiralty officials here were informed by wireless from the R34 that the big dirigible was between Halifax and Canso and all was well.

Halifax, July 5—The British dirigible R 34, en route to Mineola, N. Y., from East Fortune, Scotland, was sighted at Parsboro, about fifty miles northwest of Halifax at 4 a.m. local time today. A huge bonfire, built on the beach attracted the attention of the dirigible's crew, who manoeurved the craft over the town and up and down the river as though endeavoring to recognize the place.

Halifax, July 5.— The Handley-Page bomber biplane, under command of Vice Admiral Mark Kerr, which left Harbor Grace Nfld, yesterday, on her flight to Long Island, to acompany the dirigible R 34, was forced to descend at five thirty o'clock this morning, owing to engine trouble. The giant airplane came down in the streets of Parrsboro, a village 100 miles northwest of Halifax and was damaged beyond immediate repairs. No member of the crew was injured. Admiral Kerr stated that he had no immediate plans.

Believed in Thick Fog.

Halifax, N. S., July 5.—Naval officials here believe the R-34 at noon today was picking her way slowly in a thick fog off Nova Scotia. While the weather conditions over Halifax wer perfect for flying, the visibility was reported to be as low as three miles in the immediate vicinity of port. The R-34 was reported to have passed Canso at five o'clock this morning. Canso is approximately 140 miles from Halifax.

LEONARD CONSTRUCTION CO. DID NOT TENDER ON NEW BRIDGE

On Mr. Barber's Plan It Could not Be Built For Less Than $320,000 They Report.

The Leonard Construction Co. have not tendered on the Hunter street bridge on Mr. Barber's plans.

Messrs. Park and Heindel, of the firm, have been here for several days, looking over the ground, and last evening reported to the Board of Works that the company could not tender on a cement bridge as designed by Mr. Barber, and come within the sum Council has at its disposal for this work. Were the piers elimated and the city to lay the sidewalks and make the filling by city labor, these gentlemen figured that some $28.000 might be saved, but even then their guaranteed figure would reach $320,000.

Messrs. Park and Heindel had with them sketches of a bridge designed by their company for Cedar Rapids, and submitted that were similar plans accepted from them the city would have as good a bridge as could be desired for actual requirements, and of acceptable design. which would effect a saving of from $30,000 to $40,000. They would be pleased to work on such a proposition, in the interests of Peterborough, they said, in which event a start could be made on construction some time during August.

The Board promised to notify Messrs. Park and Heindel of their intentions, and these gentlemen left for Chicago th's morning.

SEIZURE OF LIQUOR.

A rich haul of liquor was made at an early hour this morning by License Inspector Stewart of this city. He motored out to Norwood and seized the banned goda which had been sent in to the station by express. Mr. Stewart, who made the seizure unassisted, was loth to make any comments, but it is very probable that the guilty parties will be rounded up and brought to justice in the near future.

FOOD RIOTS IN GERMANY

BERLIN TRUCKS LOADED WITH MACHINE GUNS COMMON SIGHT.

(Special to The Review.)

Berlin, July 5.—Gustav Noske, Minister of Defence, increased the government guards today. In many parts of Berlin trucks loaded with machine guns and barbed wire were frequently seen. Marines and soldiers here have volunteered to aid in the transport of food.

Food riots in Durtmund and Herd, both Prussian cities, were reported today.

Plaintiff Loses in Action for Damages

AUTOMOBILE CASES BECOMING AS FAMOUS AS HORSE TRADING ACTIONS.

Last April, as Mr. Lytle's truck was returnig from the De Laval works, it collided with a bicycle ridden by Mr. O. Laplante. This case was tried yesterday before Judge Huycke. Automobile cases are becoming as famous as horse trading cases for the contradictory evidence they produce.

Mr. Laplante brought an action of damages against the Lytle Cartage Company, and two witnesses made oath and stated in court that the Lytle truck came down Parnell St. at the rate of fifteen miles per hour and in cutting the corner to the north ran over the edge of the sidewalk and the next moment collided with Mr. Laplante's bicycle. On the other hand, evidence was called to prove that Lytle's truck was coming up Park street at the time and was not on Parnell street at all. Of course, if it came off Parnell street he was in the wrong. On the other hand, if he was coming up Park street and (the road being rough) running slowly, on the lookout and on his won side of the road, he would not be to blame.

There seems still to be an idea that there is no need for being careful of what is on one's left-hand side. In this case the action was dismissed as the court finally decided to accept the evidence and contention of the defence. The judge also said that people must keep a lookout and endeavor to avoid accidents or collisions.

O. Laplante for the plaintiff and S. T. Medd for defendant.

BOARD OF WORKS AGAIN LET TENDER FOR NEW BRIDGE

Once More to Canadian Engineering and Contracting Co.—Guaranteed Cost $286,000 Odd—Don't Cheer Yet; Council Has Yet to Ratify Board's Action—Tender Has Been Practically Let Four Times Now, and Still Nothing Doing.

The City Board of Works, in desperation last night, once again let the contract for the Hunter Street Bridge to the Canadian Engineering and Contracting Co., of Hamilton. Their estimate is a cost-plus fixed sum of $28,000 and a guarantee that the bridge shall not cost more than $286,000 odd.

In recommending this tender to the Council for ratification the city reserves the right to later substitute the Centre concrete span by one of steel, if so desired, in which event the contractors' fee shall be reduced in proportion to the saving to them in construction.

It must not, however, be taken for granted, that the placing of this contract is at last settled, for the chances are ten to one, that when the ayes and nays on a resolution to ratify the above are called for in Council, Monday night, some of its supporters last evening, will flunk.

Rapid Fire of Motions

All of the following resolutions went through the ordeal of showing of hands, in about 20 minutes—some of them had a second chance.

Moved by Ald. Edgar, seconded by Ald. Turner, that the estimate of the Russell-Townsend Co., of a fixed cost plus sum of $29,500 on an estimated cost of $228,600; be accepted; the centre arch to be guaranteed, the city to have the option of substituting the proposed concrete span over the river by one of steel, if so desired, and the Company's fee of $29.500 to be reduced in proportion to the amount of cost in construction thereby saved. Also that the former resolution awarding the the contract to them be rescinded, and that their guarantee that Aldermen shall not be held liable for the bridge costing in excess of the city's appropriation be not embodied in this contract.

This was lost on the following division.

For—Ald. Turner, Hamilton, Garside and Phelan.

Against — The remainder of the Aldermen, his Worship not voting, and this made the division a tie.

Moved by Ald. Gainey and Crowe, that the city start the approaches by day labor, advertise for an overseer, and leave the centre arch for later decision.

This went down to defeat on the following show of hands.

For—Ald Gainey, Crowe, Morrison and McIntyre.

Against – The rest of the Board.

Ald. Taylor and Morison moved that the contract go to the Canadian Engineering and Contracting Co., whose terms are a cost-plus fixed sum of $28.000 on a guaranteed cost of $286.240. (The same provision re substitution of steel arch as embodied in the resolution for the Russell-Townsend people to apply.)

This was lost as fololws.

For—Ald. Taylor, Morrison, Hamilton and the Mayor.

Against—The remaining six.

Here, a motion by Ald. McIntyre and Garside that the work be done by day labor, the approaches to be started at once, the centre arch to be considered later, that Russell-Townsend and others be asked what they would charge for supervising the work, was lost on the following vote.

For—Ald. McIntyre, Garside, Crowe and Gainey.

Against —the rest of the Board.

Ald. Gainey and Crowe here again moved their previous resolution, that work on the approaches be started at once by day labor, a superintendent advertised for, etc.

This was again turned down on the same division as before excepting Ald Garside, who changed his mind and voted for the motion instead of against as previously.

Ald Edgar and Turner once more moved their resolution in favor of the Russell Townsend Co., but it met with the same fate as before.

Ald. Taylor and Morrison, at this juncture took their turn at a second trial with their resolution that the Canadian Engineering and Contracting Co., get the contract on the terms outlined above, and it carried in a hurried vote on the following division.

For—Ald Taylor, Morrison, Garside, Hamilton, Crowe and the Mayor.

Against—Aldermen Gainey, McIntyre, Edgar and Turner. Chairman Ald. Phelan did not vote.

Nothing new, worth mentioning was offered in the arguments for and against the tenders voted on.

Another Tender

John O'Toole of Ottawa wrote that his tender still stood as follows: $36,000 to be paid him for overhead charges, such as for engineer, foreman, bookkeeper, timekeeper, etc., use of plant and profit; this estimoted cost is $269.896 for the wide bridge, less $25.725 for the narrow structure making the cost of the latter $244.171.

Engineer Frank Barber wrote that he would guarantee tne bridge could be built for less than $290.000.

Please Take Notice

This maks four times the Board of Works has accepted tenders and recommended them to Council: First, to the Russell-Townsend Co., secondly to the Canadian Engineering and Contracting Co., thirdly, to the Russell-Townsend Co., and now again to the Canadian Engineering and Contracting Co.

Rescinded Action

The Board rescinded its resolution at a previous meeting, recommending that Russell-Townsend get the contract.

TO OIL 50 YDS. OF OUT-OF-TOWN ROAD

FIVE RESIDENTS NORTH MONAGHAN TO PAY COST OF SAME.

Dr. Rogers (veterinary) for himself and other residents of the Gravel Road asked the Board of Works—that the city oil some fifty yards of the road in front of the five properties of petitioners, who would pay cost of same.

On motion of Ald. Morrison and McIntyre this request was granted.

Mr. Robert Hicks of the Utilities Commission, asked that the road in front of the Utilities pump house be well taken care of by oiling. The Commission wanted 800 feet of roadway treated and they would pay the cost of same. This is one of the dustiest places in the city and on motion of Ald. Crowe and Gainey the request was acceded to.

Ald. Edgar suggested that it is high time oil was applied to the roads in front of the C. G. E. and De Laval Properties and he was assured that early attention would be giving this crying need.

To Sell Horse

On motion of Ald. Morrison and Taylor the Chairman was authorized to dispose of the black horse used by the street department and to purchase another one.

AUTO SMASH UP

At the corner of Aylmer and Hunter streets last night two automobiles had a head-on collision. A car driven by a young lady had come north on Aylmer and was turning west on Hunter street. However, she did not keep to the right hand side, but cut the corner with the result that she ran into another automobile that was approaching along Hunter street. Both cars were badly damaged but no one was injured.

R. SHEEHY GETS PAVING CONTRACT

PRICE $8,364.50 AS AGAINST ENGINEER'S TENDER OF $8,437.97.

At a meeting of the Board of Words last night, the contract for concrete paving King street, from George to Water and up Water to Charlotte, went to R. Sheehy, on the following tender.

For concrete pavement and all adjustments $2.69 square yard; for concrete curb 39c the lineal foot, for concrete apron 29c per square foot. This totals up to $8364.50 as against the City Engineer's estimate of $8,437.97, a difference of $73.40.

Comparison Tenders

The other bids for this work were as follows:

R. H. Parsons, city engineer—pavement and all adjustments, $2.70 the square foot; curb 50c per lineal foot; apron 28c square foot.

J. E. Hayes—pavement, $2.97; curb, 60c; apron 55c.

J. F. Bogue—pavement, $2.75; curb, 35c; apron, 40c. No deposit cheque accompanied this tender.

H. T. Hickey—Pavement, $3.38; curb, 82c; apron, 42c.

H. R. Martin—pavement, $3.20; curb, 60c; apron 40c.

There were present Chairman Ald. Hamilton, the Mayor, Ald Crowe, McIntyre, Morrison, Crowe, Edgar, and Garside.

ASSISTANCE FOR CITY ASSESSOR

RECOMMENDED BY FINANCE COM.—FOR TWO MONTHS ONLY.

At the meeting of the Council's finance committee last evening Assessor W. J. Henry asked for temporary help to get the rolls written, and he also asked an increase in salary.

On motion of Ald Morrison and Edgar, the assessor was authorized to engage temporary help in his office this year for not more than two months, this additional expense not to exceed $100. Also that the collector be authorized to employ temporary assistance for the same time on the same terms.

The clerk was instructed to write for information re bill posters' licenses and assessment of bill boards.

On motion of Ald. Edgar and Phelan, the chairman will examine into a number of accounts, and report on same for payment.

There were present Ald. Taylor (chairman), Phelan, Edgar, Hamilton, McIntyre, Morrison and the Mayor.

Horse Ran Away Thrown From Buggy

MRS. ERNEST HANNA HAD NARROW ESCAPE WHEN DRIVING HOME.

What might have proved a fatal accident, occured yesterday, near Campbellcroft, Mrs Hanna, wife of Mr. Ernest Hanna, of Banks' Garage being the victim. Mrs Hanna had been visiting with her sister, Mrs. John Martin of Campbellcroft and while driving home the horse ran away. She was thrown from the buggy sustaining severe injuries to her thigh. She was removed to the home of her sister, Mrs. John Martin Campbellcroft, where Dr. Turner of Millbrook was called in attendance. Mr. Hanna reports that she is doing very nicely though still suffering considerably from the effects of the accident. Her many friends in the city will be sorry to learn of the accident and all wish her a speedy recovery. The other occupant of the rig, Mr. Roy Martin, escaped with a severe shaking up.

WILL ASK EDITOR NEWSOME TO GIVE SPECIFIC INFORMATION

On Defective Plumbing—Otherwise Council Will Assume That He is not Prepared to Back Up His Statement in the Press.

Editor Newsome of the Plumbing Trade Journal has written the City's Property Committee that he would make another personal visit to Peterboro and point out defective plumbing in this city and draft a new plumbing by-law for $100. He could not, be wrote, give any further information in a report from Toronto, than published in his Journal and in the Peterborough press.

Ald Edgar suggested that Mr. Newsome be written that unless he can give Council more specific information of defective plumbing than published, giving names and property affected, in the press, it will be taken for granted that he is not prepared to back up his statement of some time ago, that Peterborough plumbing does not measure up to the standard.

Ald Edgar and Garside moved in this direction and the motion carried, although Ald. McIntyre was strong for securing an independent report on Peterboroug's plumbing.

The Chairman was authorized to get a screen put on the incinerator smoke stack, and have the same painted, if necessary.

JACK DEMPSEY KNOCKED OUT JESS WILLARD IN 3RD ROUND

Willard not Seriously Damaged, and Will Be About Again in Few Days---No Aspirant to Contest Dempsey's Championship in Sight---The Victor May Turn Victory to Commercia Value.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Jess Willard, the late world's heavyweight boxing champion, suffered a sensational defeat at the hands of his challenger, Jack Dempsey, at Toledo, Ohio, yesterday. Willard was knocked out in the third round, after but nine minutes of terrific fist assault.

To all intents and purposes Dempsey whiped the huge Jess Willard, favorite in the meagre wagering, in one round. Dempsey thought the referee had anounced him winner, and actually left the ring. But he was called back and the butchery continued for two rounds more, when Jess, sitting in his corner with a bewildered look on his swollen countenance, failed to respond to the gong for the fourth round.

"It was no use to continue," said the ex-champion. "My strength went from me in the first round."

He sat there, apparently the most surprised man in the United States at the moment. His right eye was closed and his right cheek swollen and blue with bruises. Blood covered his body and his arms hung so helplessly over the ropes that it seemed as if a child might give him further abuse without arousing his interest. Willard weighed 248 and Dempsey 195.

Material for Argument

Toledo, Ohio, July 5.—Though a new heavyweight champion has been crowned in Jack Dempsey and an exodus of fight fans has depopulated Toledo hotels, controversy still rages over the sensational defeat of Jess Willard, here yesterday, afternoon. So many unusual angles developed during the nine minutes of terrific first bombardment that scarcely two spectators saw the scene from the same angle. The uncertainty regarding the situation at the end of the first round, when Dempsey left the ring, believing that he had won with a knockout, and payment of such wagers as hinged on Willard was stopped, furnished unlimited material for arguments.

Victor Cheered

After the fight Dempsey was soon dressed and much in evidence about the down town section, followed by a wildly enthusiastic and cheering throng of admirers. At the same hour his dethroned opponent was resting in his temporary home in a residential section with his battered head packed in ice bags. He was examined by a boxing commission physician, however soon after his return from the ring. The lattar stated officially, that Willard was not seriously injured and would be able to appear in public shortly. Dempsey has not immediate idea of reentering the ring, for there is no worthy oponent in sight at this time. It is likely that he will endeavor to turn his newly gained ring laurels into commercial value. It is known however that he is ready to defend the championship at any time and it is quite likely that a hunt will be started to find one, suitable and drawing antagonist within a few months.

TO REESTABLISH MONARCHY AGAIN

GERMAN CONSERVATIVE PARTY DECLARES WAR ON THE GOVERNMENT.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, July 5. — The German Conservative party has issued a proclamation signed by Ernest von Helydebrand, the party's leader in the Reichstag, stating that the party "declares war on the government and intends to use its whole strength to re-establish monarchy," according to a Copenhagen despatch.

MERCY FOR GIOVANZZO

Guelph, July 5.—L. W. Goetz, counsel for Jimmie Giovanzzo, the Italian who has been condemned to be hanged at the County jail on August 22, has forwarded a petition to the Minister of Justice at Ottawa, asking for efecutive clemency. The petition contained about 1,000 names.

FIELD MARSHAL IS RESPONSIBLE

FOR WAR ACTS OF GERMANY, DECLARES VON HENDENBURG.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, July 5.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg, former chief of the German general staff, declares that he is responsible for the acts of the German main headquarters since August, 1916, and also for proclamations by former Emperor William concerning the waging of warfare. He asks President Ebert of Germany to inform the Allies to this effect, according to a Copenhagen despatch.

SATURDAY, JULY 5, 1919

ACT OF CLEMENCY.

THERE IS no mistaking the significance of the decision of the Allied Council at Paris to raise the blockade of Germany on the receipt of official information that the proper authorities of that country have ratified the treaty of Versailles, says the Chicago Daily News.

There is no obligation devolving on the allied and associated powers to take this important step. They would be entirely within their rights and within precedents in rigorously maintaining the blockade until after ratification of the peace treaty by all the nations signatory thereto. It is plainly an act of clemency to raise the blockade at the earliest possible opportunity. It is a virtual though tacit, announcement of a settled purpose on the part of the allied and associated governments to be as humane and merciful to the people of Germany as circumstances warrant, so long as substantial justice is assured to the victims of German aggression.

The treaty itself is severe, but some of its terms can and will be softened by the reparations commission and by the League of Nations if the German people and their new leaders follow the sagacious advice of those writers and statesmen of Germany who realize that henceforth good faith, justice and neighborliness must characterize German foreign policy. Dr. Dernburg is candid enough to admit now that the concessions made by the associated powers "are not without value," and that they "open the way to certain alleviations." When this sentence was written Dr. Dernburg had not heard of the decision to raise the blockade without waiting for full ratification of the treaty. "Certain alleviations" have not been slow in coming.

The behavior of the German people rather than the letter of the treaty will determine the future application of the treaty's terms to which progressive opinion everywhere is disposed to take exception. If Germany chastened and repentant, has abjured the hateful doctrines that brought about its unexampled collapse and humiliation it will surely be welcomed into the sisterhood of pacific, industrious, democratic nations.

CAPITAL AND LABOR.

THERE HAS NOT BEEN entire harmony in the convention of the American Federation of Labor at Atlantic City, says the New York Journal of Commerce and it was hardly to be expected, with delegates from all sections of the country representing a great variety of industries. On the whole, the more reasonable and far-seeing representatives have prevailed in actual statement of principles and methods of applying them. One thing has become conspicuous to the onlooker if not to those taking active part in the proceedings. That is the progress that has been made in the acceptance of competition as the effective stimulus to effort for securing the best results for all concerned, if it can be equitably adjusted. The experience of these last three or four years, which has demanded the utmost effort for securing important results on the part both of capital and labor, has been specially effective in causing this progress.

The largest and most beneficial results in all human action come from competitive efforts, if they are intelligently, wisely and justly directed. The greatest difficulty is in securing these qualifications and having them applied. The degree of difference in human beings, in physical health and vigor, in mental capacity and development, and in moral sense and its application, is practically without limit. The difference is due in various degrees to birth, to early surroundings and opportunities, and to circumstances of experience as life advances. It is this range of inequality and difference that makes the problem of working in harmony for the best results so complex and difficult of solution and practical application. Self-interest and the selfish spirit of man is the chief spur to active effort, but it is difficult to control and guide with due regard for rights and the higher welfare.

It is inevitable, as a general rule, that those of more limited intelligence and mental capacity become laborers in the various fields of production. For the most part, in times past, they have been employed by the more capable in intellect and in the power to direct their conducts for the best results. It has occasioned the class distinction between employers and workingmen, with the power in the former to determine what is to be done and what shall be paid for labor. It has worked up from virtual slavery or dependence of workmen to what has become the conflict between the forces of capital and labor, or of employers and employed, for a more equitable division of the result of their joint efforts. While there has been a tendency in capital to get the utmost from labor at the least cost, and to gather wealth without due regard for personal rights or real justice toward labor, on the other hand labor has tended toward seeking the utmost in wages with the least effort for earning them. The policy, if it may be so called, has been a mistake on either side, and has hindered progress and prosperity.

It is natural that there should be a higher mental ability on the side of capital than that of labor, and one result has been the development and application of the principle of competition in production and the distribution of products, which has added greatly to the volume and value of that produced while reducing the cost. This has been the source of growing wealth and prosperity for individuals, communities and nations. To no small extent labor has benefited by it, but workmen have felt that they were not receiving their share of the proceeds and have formed organizations to secure it by an exercise of power to stop work or check its activity where it secures profit of employers alone. But there has been quite generally a fundamental error in their organized efforts. They have been opposed to competition of workmen in their different industries, and have pursued a policy which limits production instead of expanding it, and increases costs and prices instead of lessening them. It would be far better for them, in their various skilled trades and unskilled occupations, to be in competition by having wages adjusted like prices, according to the value of that paid for. It would give them a keener interest in what they are doing and appreciation that it is to their own advantage as well as that of employers to do their utmost for production in amount and quality.

Looked upon from either side, this has an obvious soundness in principle, but there is difficulty in putting it in practice which is not all on one side. There is a normal element, a principle of justice and fairness, which is not always recognized in trade, and is less so in employment. The employer has been apt to regard labor as an inanimate thing, a factor in production to be bought and paid for to the best advantage, regardless of [illegible] family considerations. On the other hand, labor [illegible] claiming consideration for personality and individual rights, has been apt to demand all it can get while limiting that which is to be paid for instead of giving it full value. It has sought to avoid competition in the labor forces for inducing the best results to be paid for. There, too, is an absence of the sense of justice and right, as a controlling influence in directing competitive forces. If both capital and labor would give place for a competition in their own forces for the best results, but strive to apply to it on both sides the moral influence of justice and fair dealing for the general benefit, a long step in progress might be made which would be worth more than its cost for all concerned.

THE TWO MILLION American soldiers returning from France carried eight million dollars of government life insurance, for the continuing of which the government is offering very favorable terms.

SCHOOL MUSIC SUPERVISORS.

A PARTY who has been reading widely on the question of the progress of music in public and high schools and who expresses his sincere interest in everything done to further the cause of school music, asks if there is not some way the colleges and universities of Canada could serve the country in making the practice of and appreciation of music more general. Knowing the place that music should have in all education that fits people for complete living, he asks, are not our colleges and universities peculiarly fitted to assume a place of leadership?

The answer to these questions would seem to be contained in an address recently delivered by Prof J. L. Lawrence Erb, director of music at the University of Illinois, on "The place of the State University in the general scheme of public school music." In the course of his remarks Prof. Erb said:

"The State University should provide ample cultural courses in music. For this purpose the instruction in practical music work should be available to the students who do not mean to be professional musicians or to study music seriously as performers, but who desire enough training that they may be able to make music an active factor in their own lives and to make them intelligent and capable leaders of musical activities in their home communities as amateurs.

"With this end in view, it is quite as important that the music teachers employed by the university be impressed with the necessity of appreciating what the student is trying to get as it is to impress the student with what the music teacher is anxious to give. In other words, most music teaching, in or out of the university, is as yet carried on as though each student were a candidate for professional standing as a performer—almost a vicious misconception of the whole function of education. The State University is in a position to combat this tendency and gradually to educate the musicians and the public alike to the point where they will realize what education is for, whether it be musical education or agricultural, or 'just plain cultural.'

"The State University must make provision for the training of teachers and community leaders of musical activities. This should be done through courses for public school supervisors, courses for intelligent amateurs and for those who would combine semi-professional activities in music with other vocations. There is no use turning up our noses at the combinations of music with something else. It has always existed and always will exist. In fact, I would be so bold as to say that it should exist.

"Much of the best work in community music of the right sort (and I use the term inclusively) is done by those who are not professional musicians. The professional musician is, in the nature of the case, more or less a specialist. He cannot be a musician and spread himself all over creation. It is not only necessary but wise that he depend upon non-professional assistance for the carrying out of much of the musical expression of his community, just as the physician must necessarily depend upon the community in matters of sanitation, hygiene, enforcement of quarantine, and so on, reserving for himself only those matters involving the more expert attention of the specialist. This matter of providing supervisors, teachers and leaders of musical activities is to my mind one of the most important functions, musically, of the State University."

MR. ASQUITH'S RECORD

In an article in the "New Statesman," which deals with Mr. Asquith's reply to Lord French, that paper says:

"But the public importance of the controversy—if controversy so one-sided an affair can be called—between Mr. Asquith and Lord French has nothing whatever to do with the condition in which Lord French's reputation emerges from it. And as for the reputations of other people no cool-headed man, we suppose, has ever doubted what would be the verdict of history, even quite proximate history, upon the part played in the great war and its preliminaries by such men as Mr. Asquith, Lord Grey, Lord Kitchener, and Lord Haldane. The reaction against the campaign of crude calumny which overwhelmed them was always bound to come as soon as public feeling was freed from that mood of tense anxiety and ready suspicion which seems to be so inseparably associated with the 'war spirit.' But it is important, of course, that the reaction—as a symptom of returning health—should come soon, and Mr. Asquith's frank and determined defence of his own record after three years of silence has probably done more to promote it than any other event since the armistice. It seems reasonable now to hope for an early convalescence.

"The Asquith-French controversy, however, stands for much more this. Its real significance lies in the fact that it is symbolical of a far greater struggle, the struggle between the type of man whose predominance in politics poisons public life and the type whose mere presence there enables ordinary men to believe that politics may be an honourable occupation. In that struggle the future of democracy is at stake. For unless democracy can be kept clean it will never fulfil the hopes of democrats . . .

"The chief value of Mr. Asquith's speech, the public service which it rendered, was that it came as a sudden and vivid reminder of days not after all so long past, when personal loyalty and public decency had still a very important place in English political life. It is not a question of political opinions. In that matter it is quite possible in the future that for our own part we shall more often find ourselves supporting Mr. Lloyd George than Mr. Asquith. But even Mr. Asquith's strongest political opponents cannot, and, in fact, do not fail to recognize that, quite apart from his extraordinary intellectual gifts, he is pre-eminently a man who honors the best traditions of British politics, and so exemplifies them in his own person that his appearance from the political arena would leave a sense of more irreparable loss than even that of a Gladstone or a Disraeli. The qualities which he has exhibited during the war, the diplomatic skill with which he handled our relations with our Allies, his utterly unselfish loyalty to his colleagues and devotion to the public service, his stubborn optimism, his almost Quixotic refusal to employ any of the weapons which might have availed him against his traducers, and last, but far from least, the public spirit which after he fell led him, with all the materials for self-defence in his hands, to maintain a silence which was never broken until an old colleague was slandered—these things constitute a record of which not only he, but England, may be proud. He has been called the typical Englishman, and Englishmen who call him so are conscious of honoring themselves as well as him.

"Whether he will ever again lead a British Government we do not know. But this much is certain: that if public opinion permits the continuance of such methods of persecution as have temporarily driven him out of responsible public life, Englishmen of his type will keep clear of politics in future. And the loss will be immeasurable. If political idealism stands high in this country, and Parliamentary institutions are peculiarly strong, it is largely because our politics have, on the whole, been the cleanest in the world. When the one ceases to be true so will the other. If political life is to become a weary round of deals and intrigues wherein scheming counts for more than character, clever allegation for more than truth, and the success of the consummate trickster is a foregone conclusion—if, in a word, politics and chicanery become, what they are in many countries, synonymous terms then the political idealist will seek his remedies outside the Mother of Parliaments. And nothing is more certain than that by one means or another it is to the political idealist that the future belongs."

SAVE THE CHILDREN

Mothers who keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house may feel that the lives of their little ones are reasonably safe during the hot weather. Stomach troubles, cholera infantum and diarrhoea carry off thousands of little ones every summer, in most cases because the mother does not have a safe medicine at hand to give promptly. Baby's Own Tablets relieve these troubles, or if given occasionally to the well child will prevent their coming on. The Tablets are guaranteed by government analyst to be absolutely harmless even to the newborn babe. They are especially good in summer because they regulate the bowels and keep the stomach sweet and pure. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SUMMER COURSE IN AGRICULTURE

NUMBER OF APPLICANTS TO THE SEVERAL COURSES AND PARTS OF COURSES.

It was announced yesterday by Hon. Dr. Cody, Minister of Education, that the summer courses in agriculture, which open on July 8, will be the largest on record. The number of appliants to the different courses and parts of courses are as follows:

Part I., Elementary Course, 303. Of this number, 95 will be accommodated at he Whitby Ladies' College.

Part II., Elementary Course, 172.

Part I., Intermediate (High school teachers) 25.

Part II., Intermediate (High school teachers) 23.

Part I., Intermediate, (inspectors) 53.

Part II., Intermediate (inspectors) 38.

Total number of applicants, 614.

The courses are held at the Ontario Agricultural College, but owing to the large number of applicants for the course for public and separate school teachers, an overflow place has been instituted in connection with the Ontario Ladies' College, Whitby, as the accommodation at Guelph for Part I. of the Elementary Course was limited to about 210.

It is expected that if the numbers of applicants for these courses continue to increase, still other centres may be provided next year.

Nearly 1,400 public and separate schools are now maintaining classes in agriculture, but not nearly half of these are in charge of teachers who have taken the course in agriculture, the chief reason being lack of teachers with agricultural certificates.

FISHING

The Fisherman's club is a most eclectic organization, meeting on one of the city's piers as often as the weather seems promising. Its terms of membership are most liberal, for one may be as ebony hued as Whitey, a charter member, or speak English with the accent of a nation whose name is now anathema, as does the bewhiskered Schmidt; one may be either of these or anything between and still be welcomed as a member. All that is necessary is to be obsessed with the pastime of pursuing with pole and throwline the glorified minnows known as lake perch.

Fishing languished the other sunlit afternoon and the short, fat individual known as "the Greek" raised his voice lazily:

"Where's the judge this afternoon?"

"He is gone to New York," answered Schmidt.

"Fishin'?" queried Whitey, in accents softly southern.

"No, business. But the result is the same."

Whitey chuckled.

"That there man's the hardest luck fisherman I ever see, bar one," he commented. "That one was a frien' o' mine, name o' Slim. Slim couldn't catch fish nohow. He'd go down to Wolf lake when maybe the pickerel was hungry an' come back with a dwg fish. He'd rent a dip net on th' gov'ment pier an' haul up bitsy-witsy minneys. Only once'd I see him catch anythin'.

"He'd been up since 3 in the mawnin', off'n 67th street, an' had six perch on his stringer by aft'noon. An' then, all of a sudden, he commenced haulin' 'em in. Man, I never seed such luck as he had. Double headers—bitin' on all poles at once—haulin' 'em in on his throwlines fast as he put 'em out again. He had nigh on to 200 fish when they quit bitin', sudden as they'd started. Perch is freakish on their feedin' times, anyhow I've always noticed that.

"Slim chuckles an' says, 'F'r once, I've sho' shook my hoodoo.' An' he had some big fellows, too.

"The air was warm an' we leaned back kind o' sleepy. Next thing we both knew we was a' rubbin' our eyes an' wonderin' how long th' sun'd set. Slim started to pack up his poles an' lets out a yell.

"'My fish! Look-a-there.'

"Sho' enough, way out in th' dusk, we could see Slim's string floatin' peaceful-like on the lake. They'd come unhitched an' he couldn't reach 'em nohow."

"The judge doesn't play in quite that hard luck," admitted the Greek. "But I'm going to imitate Slim and pack up my poles. This is too dog-gone dull."

"Guess I might as well, too," said Whitey.—Chicago Daily News.

"You love my daughter?" said the old man.

"Love her," he exclaimed passionately; "why, I would die for her. For one soft glance from those sweet eyes I would hurl myself from yonder cliff and perish—a bruised mass upon the rocks two hundred feet below."

THE MERCHANTS' COLUMN

Edited by
MANSFIELD F. HOUSE
(Copyright.)

(In this column which appears every Monday, Wednesday and Saturday, will appear news and short articles of special interest to merchants, their salespeople and business men and women in general. All phases of store management buying, accounting, advertising and retail salesmanship—will be dealt with not theoretically, but by description of methods actually in use by successful merchants.)

Merchant Gives Full Value for His Profit.

The California Fruit Growers' Exchange, one of the most successful co-operative organizations in America, has set out to preach the gospel of its success.

Here is the message the orange men are spreading from coast to coast:

"Advertise—advertise steadily and sanely, not spasmodically."

The California growers' organization lays its success to advertising advertising backed by a branded product of standard quality.

Paul Findlay, former Madison Wis., retail grocer, now retail merchandiser for the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, is on a tour of the nation, visiting many cities, addressing grocers on the subject of advertising. Already he has covered approximately 10,000 miles.

Space Pays All Along the Line.

Findlay did not make a plea for use of increased advertising space for Sunkist oranges, but urged general advertising, going on the assumption that if the merchant will increase his general sales volume Sunkist will come in for its share of the larger trade.

"The retail merchandiser is the most economical agent of distribution ever discovered," Findlay declared. "That is the reason he survives."

"It is the rapid turnover that counts," according to Findlay, who illustrated his point with the case of a small dealer whose capacity was two boxes of oranges a week.

"With an average investment of $10," he said, "working on the normal margin of 25 per cent on sales, his weekly sales are $13.34, and his gross margin $3.34. His average expense is 16 2-3 per cent., and on this semi-perishable product he must allow 2 1-3 per cent. for shrinkage, a total of 20 per cent. Thus he makes 5 per cent. on every turnover. See how much comes of how little. His net profit is sixty-seven cents a week on a capital investment of $10, or nearly 350 per cent. a year—and he gets his capital back each week.

"The possibilities of these figures are stupendous, as may be seen by raising the amount of the capital to $1000 and applying it to quick turnovers.

"The consumer is the great beneficiary of the rapid turnover of the efficient merchant, for here we see how the merchant who takes $1 from the consumer gives by actual computation ninety-five cents of merchandise and tangible, expensive service in return. He retains five cents for his share and reward for his merchandising experience, business risk and skill. That is why the retail merchant survives. He renders a service so valuable for so modest a reward that no more economical agent of retail distribution has been found or is likely to [illegible]d."

Clerks Write About Ad to Customers.

The Esperhaim Dry Goods Company, of Milwaukee, created an exceptional interest in a recent sale by having their salespeople write a letter in long hand to a selected list of customers. The letter read:

"Dear Madam—Have just heard my firm is planning a very extraordinary sale for next Monday. I cannot go into details, but advise you to read next Sunday's papers. It's really worth while.
Cordially yours,
JANE BROWN.
P. S.—You remember, I am in the glove section.

Spelling by Ear.

In passing a grocery store in Memphis, Tenn., I have a sign above a lot of cantaloupes:

"Roquefort Cantaloupes."

One could read the history of the case. The sign-writer had asked somebody how to spell Rockyford, and the listener had misunderstood. The melons were really not made of cheese at all.

He Makes Drinker Glad Bar Is Gone.

It has been estimated that at least eleven trademarked soft drinks are launched every two weeks—new non-alcoholic beverages to coax the thirst of the man who has inclined to cocktails or beer heretofore. These new drinks have their own coined name, distinctive lettering and advertising campaigns. Large sums of money are being expended on making them popular. Yet at least 50 per cent. fall by the wayside. The public is quite exacting, it seems.

One manufacturer has spent $20,000 trying to perfect a ginger ale with a novel smack, something just a little different. But a southern druggist seems to have met the situation in quite the cleverest manner imaginable.

He dressed a window to represent a shabby, sawdust-on-the-floor bar, bottles, rail and all. It was purposely made disreputable. And a placard read:

HONEST, NOW MEN, AREN'T YOU GLAD IT'S GOING, AFTER ALL?

Come in and have your high ball and your cocktails and your effervescent thirst quenchers just the same. But the kind we serve contains no "Cold Gray Dawn of the Morning After." You won't be afraid to have your boss or your wife smell your breath.

A newspaper campaign emphasized the beverage with a catchy name and it became very popular. The soda fount chief himself invented it, merely a pleasant combination of several things, plus a trick name.

Move Ukuleles by Organizing Clubs.

A few years ago, when the ukulele craze swept across the country, the Levis Company, Rochester, N. Y., stocked up quite heavily with this popular instrument. During the war, however, sales stopped.

To popularize, unload and turn over this stock into money they used a clever means. First, they offered to give away a genuine Hawaiian Kupe-pu doll with every ukulele sold up to and including a certain price. Then they formed a ukulele glee club and offered three lessons by a native teacher. The added effort placed back of the stock on hand was so productive that this firm is continuing the sale of this instrument at the present time and laying plans for the future.

Coast Store Presses Employes' Pants.

The officials of the Bon Marche, a progressive Los Angeles store, believe in having their employes present a spick and span appearance. British Admiralty Flag, Red With Yellow Anchor, Does Not Return Salutes

It has been stated generally in the press that the Admiralty flag flown by Sir Eric Geddes, First Lord of the Admiralty, on visiting the United States, has never previously been flown out of "British home waters."

The accuracy of the statement is questionable. Van der Velde's famous picture of the Naseby bringing Charles I over from Holland shows the Royal Standard at the main, the union at the mizzen, the ensign at the stern, and the Admiralty flag at the fore.

The Admiralty flag of that day was, as now, a red flag with a gold or yellow anchor having a cable twisted like a border all around the anchor, but touching it nowhere except where it passed through the ring, and it was, of course, the flag of the Lord High Admiral, who, however, when the King was not present, during the seventeenth century, usually flew the Royal Standard.

About the beginning of the eighteenth century, certainly by 1725, the design became a "foul anchor," that is, an anchor having the cable twisted around the shank an abomination in the eyes of all good seamen. The type of anchor is still to be seen on naval button and on the seal of the Admiralty.

About the beginning of the nineteenth century we find the cable on either side of the anchor, but touching it at four points alternately above and below the cross-bar and flukes as well as passing through the ring.

The authority for flying the Admiralty flag is to be found in the "King's Regulations and Admiralty Instructions." It reads as follows: "The Lord High Admiral's flag is to be worn in ships in which the Lord High Admiral or the commissioners for executing the office of Lord High Admiral are embarked."

The Admiralty flag does not return salutes from any of his Majesty's ships, whether bearing admirals' flags or the ordinary pennant. When necessary orders are given to "some other ship in company" to return the salute of a foreign man-of-war.

When the sovereign goes on board any ship of war the Royal Standard is hoisted at the main, the flag of the Lord High Admiral (i.e., the Admiralty flag) at the fore, and the union flag at the mizzen, or aboard a vessel of less than three masts they are hoisted "in the most conspicuous parts of her."

All royal yachts have now three masts, and the Medina, which took the King on his visit to India, having only two masts, was fitted with an extra one amidships on which was hoisted the Royal Standard, the Admiralty and union flags respectively at the fore and main. It is worthy of note that the red ensign, originally the senior naval color, was hoisted by all royal yachts from the time of Charles II until 1864, when the white ensign became the distinguishing flag of the navy, the blue of the naval reserve, and, broadly speaking, of Government vessels (not ships of war), and the red of the mercantile marine.

The Admiralty flag of to-day is somewhat similar to that designed at the beginning of the nineteenth century, but the anchor is smaller, and no part of the cable is above it.

Wet Weather

A Detective Story

By COURTNEY RYLEY COOPER

Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

Where the darkness was most dense waited Murphy of the Harrison street station, his hands deep in his pockets, his head shot forward.

He had been waiting a long time, starting now and then at the sound of a step on the quiet old street, slinking farther back into the shadows at the rumbling approach of the straggling cars, waiting and scowling.

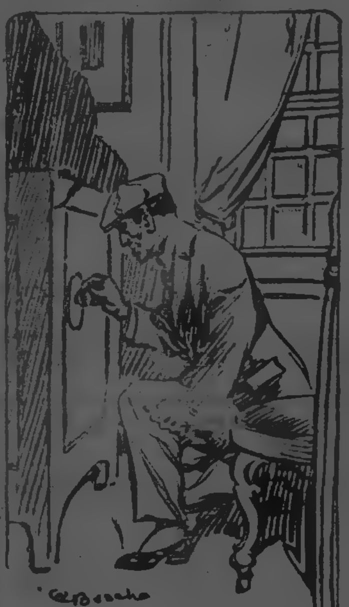
There was something about Murphy which indicated that he was obeying orders against his will and his better judgment. "Tips" come often to police headquarters.

But, just the same, Murphy waited.

Suddenly his position changed. His hands came out of the pockets and swung aimlessly for a second at his sides before they gripped. He leaned forward and listened.

It came again—a whistle, low, yet sharp. Murphy's lips puckered, and, note for note, they answered the signal. A wait. It came again.

Murphy stepped forward, crossed the street, his head lowered, his hand grasping something in one of his pockets. He approached the hazy form before him.



SLOWLY AND SMILINGLY HE WORKED THE COMBINATION.

"Hello!" he said shortly.

The man turned, and Murphy noticed he was young, well dressed and apparently surprised at his voice.

"Hello!" came the reply.

"Waiting for somebody?" Murphy's head still was craned forward the least bit.

He was searching the face which showed dimly before him in a vain attempt to recognize some feature of the "mug room." He walked a step closer.

"Waiting for somebody?" he questioned again. The man laughed.

"Yes. Why?"

"Thought so. You'll find him at headquarters—in the captain's office."

He put forth a hand. The young man drew back just a trifle.

"I—I don't quite understand," he answered.

"You'll understand after awhile, then. Murphy's my name, from headquarters."

"A detective?"

"Yes."

"But what's that got to do with me? I'm not wanted for anything—unless waiting for a friend is something." Murphy noticed there was a boyish something about the face when the man before him smiled. "Clark's my name. I've just been to a party over on Kalamath and was coming home. There were two of us, you know—two couples—and we just decided that when we had taken the girls home we'd meet here and go over to my house for the night. The folks are all away. But"—he laughed the least bit—"I spent a good deal of time saying good night, and I guess he went on to his own home. I"—

The scowl which Murphy had worn deepened a bit.

"You don't look like a crook," he said at last. "Where do you live?"

"1281 Elizabeth."

"Who's there that can identify you?"

There was a bit of an embarrassed laugh.

"Nobody right now. The folks are all away. I'm the only one home, you know. That's why I was going to have Bob stay all night with me. I"—

"Have you got the key to the house?" A listlessness had come into Murphy's voice.

"The key? Why, of course!"

"That's enough. Let's see you work it."

Ten minutes later they stood before the veranda of a wide fronted house five blocks away. Murphy bent as he started to ascend the steps to the veranda and felt the stone of the lower step. He looked up.

"What did you say your name was?" he asked again.

"Bert Clark," came the answer.

Murphy struck a match and peered at the carved name of the lower step.

"That's right," he admitted.

The man had stepped to the door, inserted the key and turned the lock. Murphy grinned.

"Just a mistake, that's all. I'm sorry. A fellow will make mistakes that way, you know. I was looking for a couple of icebox robbers that have been swiping stuff off these apartment porches. Sorry. Hope you don't mind?"

The man on the porch laughed as he swung open the door and prepared to step inside.

"Oh, that's all right," he called cheerily. "Good night!"

The Lynx stood in the hall for just a moment after he had closed the door listening for the fading steps of the plain clothes man without, and, hearing them, smiled to himself. Slowly he felt for the curtains and pulled them. Then he switched on the lights.

"Jane was right," he said to himself as he looked around the hall before him. "It's all as she said. Now, if she hasn't got the wrong dope about them beating it I'm all right." He seemed to draw his coat about him tighter, and there came a little white into his face. "That gink may be waiting outside to see if I'll light the upstairs," he mused. "I've—got to risk it."

Slowly he ascended the stairs and as silently as the animal whose name he bore. Softly he felt along the wall for the switch buttons, then hesitated. The Lynx was not in the habit of traveling under full candle power—in other houses than his own.

Perhaps after all Jane's information had been wrong. Perhaps—a moment more of hesitation, then the click of the switch. With animal swiftness the eyes of the Lynx traveled here, there, through each open door as the light of the hall displayed bedroom after bedroom, quiet and destitute of humanity. The Lynx smiled.

"And that harness bull in plain clothes took my word," he said sarcastically. "But in case he's waiting for me to go to bed"—

He walked noisily into the front room and snapped the switch. There was no need for quiet now. Jane had been right. The family was gone; all was easy, and there was the little wall safe before him.

He pulled the shades one by one and, standing in front of them, took off his coat and his collar. He pulled a chair close to the window and sat in it for a moment that his shadow might show on the shade. He listened.

He heard the steps of some one start from in front of the house and echo more and more faintly up the street. Again the Lynx smiled to himself. He lit a cigarette. He had been right, then, after all. Murphy of the plain clothes squad was assured.

And it was then, as the steps faded, that the Lynx became active. A dart to the opposite wall, a click, and the room was in darkness. He raised the shade that the light of a neighboring street lamp might cast its soft glare on the wall safe before him. Then he began his work.

Quietly, quickly he turned the little knob and listened for the click of the tumblers within. Again, again, again, again, and he noted the numbers as the tumblers fell. Once more—slowly and smilingly he worked the combination, and what he sought lay before him.

Not so much, it is true, but the Lynx was not a seeker of vast wealth. Solitaires are easier to dispose of than necklaces. After all, five hundred a night is not so bad, especially when one has a policeman to aid one.

The Lynx whistled a bit under his breath and tucked the proceeds of his work safely in his hatband. There were some papers. The Lynx passed them by. He knew there would be no money. Slowly he closed the safe and passed to the next room.

For the Lynx needed a revolver. He found it, where he had believed he would find it, under a pillow and passed on. Quite aimlessly he wandered through the house, rifling a drawer now and then by the light of his little searchlight merely for the curiosity of it. He sought the downstairs and looked at the silverware.

It was heavy and solid. Knives and forks he tucked into the aperture in the lining of his clothing, feeling cautiously now and then to be sure that nowhere did there appear a betraying bulge, shaking himself a bit to be certain that silver did not touch silver with its clink, which would cause trouble on the way home.

Ten minutes more of work, and again the Lynx laughed.

"And a fly cop takes me to the house just for the company of it," he smirked. "Jane did a good job, she did. Jane's a good girl. Maybe some of these days if I keep on getting dippy over her we'll hook up—maybe."

He felt himself again. He pocketed the little searchlight and fumbled his way to the door. He opened it and stepped out on the porch—and recoiled at the touch of a human hand.

"All right, kid," came the voice of the man outside; "I thought you'd hang yourself if I gave you enough rope. You see, kid, we wasn't sure that Jane woman would stick to her giveaway, so I just thought I'd be sure of the dope."

"Jane?" The Lynx trembled a bit.

"Yeh," said Murphy of the Harrison street station; "she kicked in tonight. Got conscience or something and coughed it all up about making the impression of the key and all that stuff. Hated to do it at that, but she ain't built for that sort of work, honest. That's a good kid, that Jane. I kinda like her. Raining a bit harder, ain't it?"

But the Lynx did not answer.

ENGLAND'S REVOLUTIONS.

The Experts Say There Will Be No Bolshevism.

The English, habitually make changes in their political, economic and social life slowly. It might almost be said that the British Empire has been built on a policy of industrious conservatism. The war, of course, upset the orderly sequence of events in the lives of Englishmen, and some observers have lately contended that it introduced them to the possibilities of organized violence as a means of accomplishing some much needed reforms. In other words, there was a feeling in some quarters that English soldiers would come home, overthrow the Government, seize the large estates, set up new factory, mine and land laws, and in general do a little bloody execution.

The industrial commission of experts which the United States sent to England a few months ago to find out about how strong the British Government is with the people, has reported that a revolution in England is not only a possibility, but a strong probability, but there is no Bolshevism, nor will there be. The widespread destruction of property merely to satisfy a grudge or emphasize an argument or make a holiday for a lot of born vandals does not, it appears, appeal to English workingmen. Their idea of a revolution is well-behaved seizure of the Government by expression of opinion at the polls. In short, it is nothing more serious than a democratic people deciding by lawful methods how they will get along.

Lloyd George is, himself a firebrand, according to the English idea. He is not committed to the policy that there is a remedy for the fact that in England a great many people have no room to move about while a few have a great deal more room than they can possibly need? The great estates in England are doomed. Hundreds of estates, many of them larger than 20,000 acres, are being sold at auction—or at least being advertised. The wealthy, of course, have put up most of the money for the war, their fortunes being almost confiscated, and perhaps the land cannot be made to yield as it did before the war. Shop properties are also being disposed of, and many manufacturers have either sold out or completely altered their attitude toward labor. These are signs of a great change, and what is a great change but a revolution?

England's labor troubles have produced a few labor leaders who are statesmen. These men are not going to sit by and see British industry paralyzed by Bolshevism, and British foreign trade sacrificed at a time when every nation is trying to get hold of all the foreign trade it can. There is much labor unrest in England, and Lloyd George is worried. He must answer to the people for several campaign promises. He probably wishes he had not gone so far as to intimate that in the end Germany would have to pay Britain's war debt, for that touches on the subject of Germany's foreign trade, which brings in the safety of British foreign trade. Beneath the surface, however, is the world's faith in the common sense of English labor. Something may happen to stampede the unions, but it will not be Bolshevism.

DRINK HOT WATER IF YOU DESIRE A ROSY COMPLEXION

Says we can't help but look better and feel better after an inside bath.

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Men and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples, or pallid complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headaches, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phosphated hot water drinking and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.

This is a Greater Maxwell

There have been many improvements made in the Maxwell since the war ceased. Some of them have made the car look better. Others have made it run better.

You will note a new type radiator, a further advance in body detail, an improved electrical system, a Hot Spot and a Ram's-horn, a superior development in upholstery, and a top more durable.

Any of these is well worth any man's time to look over, the sum of all represent a decided value added to the car

But the fundamentals of the car are unchanged. 300,000 Maxwells on the highways of the world all of the same model—have proved that a policy of never changing the base design is profitable in more ways than one to buyer and maker.

It means extra value at a lower price.
It means perfection in design.
It means perfection in workmanship.
It means you pay for no experiments, no engineering knick-knacks.
It means you pay for no mistakes.
It means a car of everlasting reliability.
It means a car of endless mileage.

You can easily pay $300 more and receive less. This Maxwell is old in antecedents but modern as far as sound engineering dare go.

There is no car of the day selling for so low a price to offer so many attractive inducements.

See this recent Maxwell, and bear in mind that despite the eight great Maxwell plants the supply is already running far short of the demand. $1395 f.o.b. Windsor.

Rains Extinguish Most Bush Fires

MANY SETTLERS BURNED OUT, BUT NO LOSS OF LIFE REPORTED.

Cobalt, July 5—Telephone messages this morning from several sections of the north country, where bush fires have been raging for several days, indicate that heavy rains have fallen in most localities, and further danger for the present is at an end.

Many settlers have been burned out but so far as known, no lives lost.

BRIDE OF 4 DAYS SENTENCED

Pleads Longing for Trousseau as Excuse for Shoplifting.

Chicago, July 4.—The tearful pleas of Mrs. Catherine Goldan, who became a bride Friday, and the entreaties of her husband, John Golden, had no effect on Judge John R. Newcomer of the South Clark street court, who this morning sentenced Mrs. Golden to serve three months in the house of correction for shoplifting.

With the tears gleaming in her eyes, Mrs. Golden told the judge that temptation to add to her trousseau got the better of her in a loop store Saturday.

LAPSED INSURANCE POLICY A CASE OF UNUSUAL INTEREST

Claimant Sues For the Amount of Insurance After Policy Had Lapsed—Important Judicial Decision.

Mr. Justice Greenshields, in the Superior Court, Montreal, recently, decided an important question raised on a life insurance claim, whether the retention of the overdue premium on a lapsed policy constituted a waiver of the company's cancellation. The court decided there was no waiver of the forfeiture of the policy.

The claimant in the instance was Elizabeth Faulkner, widow of Ivor John Lewis, who, on March 6, 1918, took a $1000 policy of life insurance from the Mutual Life and Citizens' Assurance Company, Limited. The first half year's premium amounting to $11.50 was paid at the time of the policy. The next premium for the half became due on Sept. 1, but it was not paid until about the middle of October, after the lapse of the thirty days' grace which are allowed before a policy lapses. Mr. Lewis died on Oct. 22 last from Spanish influenza. On Oct 23 the insurance company sent Mrs Lewis a cheque for $11.25, being the amount of the last premium paid on her husband's policy.

The company pleaded that the premium under the policy was due on Sept. 1, 1918, and by the conditions within a period of thirty days from its due date, the policy lapsed and could only be revived by the assured making proof, to the satisfaction of the company, that he was in good health at the time when he offered the payment of the premium. The premium was received, the company said, on Oct. 19, 1918, but was not accepted as a payment. It was held in suspense until such time as the assured would comply with the terms of the policy, namely, give satisfactory proof as to his health, which he never did. It was said that as a matter of fact, the assured at the time of the payment of the sum of $11.25 to the company, was dangerously ill, and died of influenza in the hospital a few days later. The policy, the company concluded, was not in force and effect, but had lapsed on the date of Lewis' death.

Was It a Waiver?

Plaintiff met this plea by the averment that the receipt of the money and its retention by the defendant from Oct. 19, 1918, to Oct. 23 of the same year, operated as a waiver of any clause of forfeiture.

Mr. Justice Greenshields, in maintaining the plea of the defence and dismissing plaintiff's action, said the facts of the case represented no difficulty. When the half yearly premium became due on Sept 1 last it was no paid and the company heard nothing from the assured until about October 19.

"The exact date," the judge observed, "is not established." A brother of the assured—there is no doubt that the assured himself was then very ill—offered the premium to a Mrs. James, agent of the company. She refused to accept it, knowing of the illness of the assured, she advised the brother to communicate directly with the company. Apparently he did this, although the proof is not clear, but in any event a post office order was purchased by someone for the sum of $11.25, and was sent to the company, and was received on October 19. The post office order was deposited by the defendant in its bank, and the proceeds went to the credit of the company. No receipt or acknowledgment of the amount was issued or delivered by the company defendant to the assured or to any one. The amount of the premium was entered in an account kept by the company known as the "suspense revival account," which, it was stated by the officers of the defendant, means that it was held in suspense, and no receipt issued until the assured had complied with the conditions of the policy, and made proof of his health. The 19th of October was a Saturday. An officer of the company gave to one of the employees a form to be filled out by the assured respecting the state of his health. This employee endeavored to reach the assured, fut found he was in hospital dangerously il with Spanish influenza, which is established to be a dangerous and contagious disease. He never reached the assured. On Tuesday, October 22, the assured lied, and on the 23rd the defendant company returned the money by means of a cheque to the assured, and which the plaintiff in turn set back to the defendant, and refused to accept the same. Defendant now puts the amount in Court with its defence.

No Element of Waiver.

"Upon these facts the plaintiff submits that there was a waiver of the condition of the policy, and that the plaintiff is entitled to recover. It would be difficult, in my opinion, to find the elements that would go to make up a waiver of the defendant's rights in the manner in which it acted, as established by the proof. The company defendant was not desirous of cancelling the policy. It was presumably in the interest of the assured, who had already paid one-half year's premium, that the policy issued be kept alive. The defendant received through the post a premium. It was unaccompanied by any indication as to the health of the assured. As a matter of fact the assured was on the 19th of October suffering from a disease which ultimately caused his death. The defendant held the money in the manner I have stated, and immediately proceeded to endeavor to secure from the assured the fulfilment of the condition in the policy. The defendant was frustrated in its endeavours by the dangerous illness of the assured, and at no time from the 19th of October until the death of the assured could the defendant secure from the assured the policy, and at no time from the 19th of October until the 22nd of October could the assured have furnished the proof required by the condition of the policy.

"I do not wish to be understood as holding that the receipt of the premium after due date may not under certain circumstances constitute a waiver; but I do hold that in the present case the proof does not justify the application of the doctrine of waiver as applied to insurance policies. I am forced, in consequence, to dismiss the plaintiff's ation, with costs."

Help and Hope.

Enlarge your vision and grasp of worldly affairs by silent communion with the immensity of the star-strewn universe. You will find the heartache of life's disappointments, the ephemeral glitter and tinsel that seem so essential to your happiness, are but passing phases of an existence to be dealt with serenely and intelligently, and that cannot be done wisely and well if one eternally grovels in the clay of earth without moments of silent withdrawal to the starry solitudes of thought.

Richest Pearl Fisheries.

Although most of the bays and inlets of the remote island groups of the South Seas have been stripped of their pearl-bearing bivalve mollusks by venturesome world-wayfarers, there continues to be found occasionally small areas of these waters that have been untouched by pearl divers and which often yield wealth to the explorers. The richest pearly waters in the world are those adjacent to the picturesque beach town of Broome.

Custom Had Origin Long Ago.

The almost universal habit of turning aside the head and suppressing the sneeze or cough has an interesting origin. It is derived from human experience. In the middle ages (and probably much earlier), when frequent plagues of various diseases swept away whole populations in Europe, it was suspected and even believed that infection was conveyed by coughing and sneezing. Hence the adoption of the precaution.

Keep Troubles to Yourself.

Life for the vast majority of us is none too carefree. This trouble, or that disappointment, makes our world very cheerless at times; but dwelling upon our problems, elaborating upon our difficulties, or longing to share those unpleasant realities with others, will not aid us one iota. We, each, individually, must stand our own ground, and, if we are wise, refuse to be influenced by any unproductive moods.

MINERAL OIL

For Chronic Constipation

By buying this product from us you can get the highest in quality that can be procured at an ESPECIALLY LOW PRICE. There are many thin oils on the market that are not suitable for internal use; other oils have irritating qualities which render them also unsuitable. The one we are selling is guaranteed thick and entirely pure.

It is recognized that a good grade of Mineral Oil is one of the best remedies for CHRONIC CONSTIPATION that is being used. It acts mechanically and does not irritate the intestinal tract, nor does the dose have to be continually increased, as is the case with ordinary purgatives.

It is much better and cheaper than Castor Oil as a laxative for children, since Castor Oil has two effects, the first of which is purgative, and the second or after effect, which is Constipating.

IS THE HAPPIEST WOMAN IN STATE

THAT IS WHAT MRS. POE SAYS AFTER TANLAC RESTORES HEALTH — GAINS THIRTY POUNDS

"The results I have gotten from Tanlac are so wonderful that I feel compelled to tell everybody about it," said Mrs. John Pae, of 601 South Third Street, Pekin, Illinois, while in the Sutliff & Case Drug Store at Peoria, recently.

"I don't believe," she continues, "anyone could suffer much more than I did before I got Tanlac and my recovery has made me the happiest woman in Illinois. You would hardly believe me when I tell you I have gained more than thirty pounds, but I have and my daughter here with me will tell you the same thing. Why, my stomach was in such a bad fix that everything I ate caused me to suffer agony. Time after time during the past fifteen years the gas would press on my heart so that I would faint. Great drops of perspiration would stand out on me and when I regained consciousness I would be as limp as a rag. Lots of times my neighbors would come in, thinking I was going to die. I didn't dare go any place for fear one of these spells would come on me and I wouldn't get home. I also suffered beyond words to tell with rheumatism in my feet and legs and elbows. I couldn't get my shoes on at times for the swelling in my feet and would have to sit for days with my feet on a pillow in a chair they hurt me so. My elbows were so stiff I could scarcely bend them and the pain was so great that I could hardly use my arms at all. My misery was so awful that I couldn't sleep but little and I have stayed awake many a night suffering and wondering if there was nothing made that could help me.

"I had taken medicine until I was so discouraged and despondent that I didn't care how soon the end came for I felt that it wasn't far off. My husband urged me to get Tanlac and oh, how glad I am that I did, for I began to eat and sleep better in two or three days after I began taking it. My troubles have all disappeared now and my recovery is the gladdest surprise that ever came to me. I can eat just anything I want and lots of it and never suffer a particle from it. In fact, my stomach seems to be in perfect condition, as good as when I was a girl, and I haven't had one of those awful smothering, fainting spells since I began taking Tanlac, and as to the rheumatism, I never feel a sign of it any more. My head used to feel dull and hurt me in the mornings, but that is all gone, too, and I don't reckon anyone ever had more cause to feel thankful than I have. It just feels like I owe my life to Tanlac and I only wish I had known about it long ago."

ETERNAL LIFE A GIFT OF GOD

FORCEFUL SERMON BY EVANGELIST KENNEDY LAST NIGHT.

Mr. Kennedy took for his text in the tent revival services last night Roman vi.:23, "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." In the first part of his address he emphasized the thought of the justice of God. God is perfect in all His attributes. He is perfect love, but He is also perfect justice. God is the God of the sunshine as well as of the tornado. Those who insist upon looking only on the sunshine will have one idea of God. Those who look only upon the tornado will have quite another. God is just as truly God when He is showing forth His justice, as when He is revealing His love. If people break the law of God they must suffer the consequences. God is a God of prohibition. He said to our first parents, "Thou shalt not". When they disobeyed they incurred the penalty of death. What is death? It is to be carnally minded. It is to be out of harmony with God. It is to live as though God is not. Those who live forgetful of Him are earning the wages of sin, which is death. Some say God is too good to send a man to hell. He does not send a man to hell. When God made the world He did not make hell. Men make their own hell. They make it when they choose to work for sin. They should not find fault if the devil insists upon paying the wages. The wages of sin is the death of conscience. It is also the death of the power to resist the devil. The devil is a reality. The man who chooses to work for him must accept the wages which he pays. "The wages of sin is death."

The other side of this text states the blessed truth that eternal life is the gift of God. The only way to be saved is to have somebody else save you. You cannot work for eternal life. God's word clearly affirms that it is a gift, and a gift is something you don't pay for. Life is the thing that people most seek. God is willing to put eternal before that thing which you must seek, and to give it to you for nothing. The reason why He can do this is that Jesus Christ purchased it for you by his own death on the tree. Will you accept of God's gift?

There will be a meeting tonight in the tent as usual. It is expected that a big crowd will be present on Sunday evening, when Mr. Kennedy will speak on "Chickens Come Home to Roost."

SPARKS FROM KENNEDY'S ANVIL

When a man quits doing wrong toward God he begins to see how good God is.

God does not want any man to give up anything but sin, the thing that is harming him.

A mother does not pull her child back from the fire because she does not love the child.

A soul is lost when it is separated from God by sin.

A soul is saved when separated from sin to God through Christ.

Some men go to hell for want of pluck.

You will never reach the right place following the wrong road.

"There is a way that seemeth all right unto a man, but the end thereoff are the ways of death."

Man is a soul and has a body.

There is no true greatness without goodness.

Righteousness is life's elevator.

It takes little things to amuse little people.

When a sinner repents there is always an angel waiting to carry the news to heaven.

No man has to get ready to be saved. "All the fitness he requireth is to feel the need of Him."

When a man is sick he does not wait to get well before sending for the doctor. Christ wants the sinner to come just as he is.

No use God taking everybody to heaven. A lot of people would want out.

No sinner will ever get to heaven until he forsakes his sin and accepts God's pardon through Christ.

There is no promise in the Bible for the man who continues in sin.

God does not forgive the sin you will not quit—the sin you like.

One sin unforgiven will send a man to perdition.

Pay the man you owe and he will be your friend.

AT GEORGE ST. METH. CHURCH.

Tomorrow morning and every Sunday morning during July and August a combination church and Sunday school service will be held in George Street Methodist Church at 11 o'clock. The school, with the exception of the primary department, which will meet in its own room at the same hour, will assemble with the congregation in the church auditorium. After the second hymn the junior and intermediate scholars will go to the school room, where they will take up the study of the lesson. The pastor will then give an exposition of the Sunday school lesson to all who remain in the auditorium. All senior and adult classes will arrange to sit in the congregation as classes in order to record their attendance. The plan was tried last year and was highly successful. The service will be one hour in length. Tomorrow, the lesson will be "The Church," Acts ii:37-47. The pastor's evening subject will be, "One Month in Lebanon and Two Months At Home."

Most people are sorry only after it is too late.

One seldom realizes that he is wrong until he is found out.

The average man is to be seen everywhere—except in the mirror.

On the day a man discovers that he is a fool he begins to acquire wisdom.

EMPLOYMENT SERVICE ONTARIO OF CANADA

EMPLOYERS

THE EMPLOYMENT SERVICE
OF CANADA

The PROFESSIONAL and BUSINESS SECTION has been established to assist professional, business and technical men and women.

Many officers, soldiers, sailors and war workers, who sacrificed their positions during the war, now desire to secure employment in the occupations for which they have been specially trained.

Employers should not wait until increasing business forces them to employ anybody they can obtain, but should look ahead and avail themselves of this unusual opportunity to enlist the services of highly trained workers, ordinarily secured only with difficulty. On application there can be referred to you, for example:—

ENGINEERS
ARCHITECTS
BUSINESS EXECUTIVES
ACCOUNTANTS
SECRETARIES TEACHERS
LAW CLERKS
COMMERCIAL ARTISTS
SALES MANAGERS
TRAVELLING SALESMEN
CHEMISTS
YOUNG COLLEGE GRADUATES

These workers are returning to civil occupations with increased initiative, a broader view of life, and a greater capacity for work.

Even the brunette insists on fair treatment.

Matrimony is a great institution; it makes a man forget his other troubles.

TIRED PEOPLE ARE DEBILITATED

FULL HEALTH AND STRENGTH CAN ONLY BE REGAINED BY ENRICHING THE BLOOD.

People who are tired all the time and never feel rested, even after a long night in bed, people who cannot regain weight and strength, who feel no joy in living, are in a condition described by doctors as general debility. A medical examination might show that every organ in the body is acting normally, but the pallor of the face will usually show that the blood is weak and watery. This is the root of the trouble.

Debility is a loss of vitality, not affecting any one part of the body but the system generally. The blood goes to every part of the body and the use of a blood tonic like Dr. Williams' Pink Pills quickly tones up the whole system. The first sign of returning health is a better appetite, an improved digestion, a quicker step and better color in the cheeks. The rich, red blood, reaching every organ and muscle, carries new health and vigor. The nerves are quieted, sleep becomes more refreshing and with persistent treatment and a good diet the patient is once more enabled to enjoy life. The case of Mr. W. Doxtater, R. R. No. 4, Tilsonburg, Ont., illustrates the great value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of this kind. Mr. Doxtater says:—"I was troubled with pains throughout my whole body was extremely nervous, did not sleep at night, and was further afflicted with rheumatism. In spite of different treatment this condition persisted, indeed I was growing worse, and had fallen away in weight to 120 pounds and was scarcely able to do any work. Then I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after a few weeks there was a noticeable improvement in my condition. I continued taking the pills, constantly gaining until I felt as well as ever I did. While taking the pills my weight increased to 170 pounds, and I can now do as good a day's work as anyone. My advice if you are not feeling well is to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and they will soon put you right."

At the first sign that the blood is out of order take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and note the speedy improvement they make in the appetite, health and spirits. You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

STAGE SEEKS CONSTANCE TALMADGE

REPEATED OFFERS FROM MANAGERS WHO DISAGREE OVER STAR OF "GOOD NIGHT, PAUL."

Since Constance Talmadge's sixth Select Picture, "Good Night, Paul", which will be seen here on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, at the Grand Theatre has been showing on the screens of the country, Miss Talmadge has received a number of communications which have left her both pleased and puzzled. For the communications in question have been from several producing managers of the stage—"the old fashioned talking drama," as the picture people call it—and each one of the four offers received has sought to induce Miss Talmadge to abandon the screen for the stage. The alurement of a fat contract has been held up in each instance.

The queer side of these offers, and the thing which has puzzled Miss Talmadge, is that the learned doctors of the stage seem to disagree as to just what type of artist Miss Talmadge's acting represents. One writes: "I have followed your work in 'Up the Road with Sallie' and 'Good Night, Paul!' with the greatest interest. I have seen each of these productions several times, and judging from your work in these two screen productions, you are a farceuse of high order." An invitation to "come East and talk terms" followed.

Miss Talmadge had just about settled into pleasant contemplation of herself as an immortal exponent of the art of farce when the second offer arrived. This was delivered in person, and among other things the manager told the piquant Select star that he considered her one of the most successful exponents of the old line "high comedy" that the screen had yet produced, and he instanced the comedy work in "Scandal" and "The Shuttle," as well as Miss Talmadge's acting in the other two plays mentioned by the Eastern manager.

Constance Talmadge was now more than ever convinced that she was a comedy actress, pure and simple, when along came the other two producers, who sought the Select star as an exponent of straight drama, and in each case Miss Talmadge's work in "The Shuttle"—which abounds with serious moments—was instanced as evidence of her dramatic ability.

Curiously enough, it is a fact that the Select officials had exactly the same arguments regarding Constance Talmadge's position on the screen when "Scandal," her first Select Picture, was produced, and it was in recognition of Miss Talmadge's ability to do brilliantly both comedy and drama that led to her being announced as appearing in "comedy drama," a term well enough known on the legitimate stage, but so far unknown in the nomenclature of screen productions.

And so Constance Talmadge is considerably puzzled. She has not yet been able to decide whether she is a farceuse, a comedienne or an emotional actress. The fact that all of her Select Pictures thus far produced, from "Scandal" to "Good Night Paul" have enlisted the star in practically all of these capacities, is calculated to keep that lady puzzled for some time to come.

In passing, it may be said that Miss Talmadge, no matter what the longings of her girlish soul, will be able to sign none of the contracts so temptingly dangled before her youthful eyes by the four stage producers in question. For Miss Talmadge is [illegible] for a number of years to the Select Pictures Corporation, which produces her pictures, and to Lewis J. Selznick, who presents her in them.

Discolored Ceilings.

It is frequently found that the ceilings immediately above incandescent mantles become blackened. If whitewashed, it can be cleaned by being rubbed over with a mixture of starch and water of the consistency of cream. A soft flannel cloth should be used. When dry gently rub off the starch. The black stain will come with it.

One-Sided Proposition.

"Well, I declare," exclaimed Aunt Nancy, gazing at the photograph of a Britisher all dressed up in his monocle. "If these English people ain't the savingest fellers! Think of wearin' only one spec' jest to save the other. But then," she added thoughtfully, "mebbe the poor critter is blind in one eye."

It is hard to get what you want when you don't know what it is.

SOCIETY BUTTERFLY GONE.

Lady Beatty, British Admiral's Wife, Tells of War's Changes.

Lady Beatty, our famous admiral's wife, when someone placed her among those ladies who, before the war, devoted their time to the gay social round denied that she was a society woman, says the Gentlewoman of London.

And, indeed, she is not. An American by birth, brought up in that hive of industry, Chicago, indelibly impressed with the stamp of the strong, capable woman of affairs, she has little sympathy with the whirl of dinners and dances which comprised life for many English women of the upper classes before August 1914.

Talking to me on this subject recently she said:

"It was such an utterly different world from the world of to-day. No wonder that many society butterflies almost felt the solid ground knocked from under their feet when the call to arms sounded through the country that summer four and a half years ago. They were like children who had always been kept in a nursery, protected and guarded from any contact with the world. Perhaps they looked out of their high windows and saw other children, less fortunate, playing in the street or working for a livelihood. But they were as so many dreams to the sheltered ones, or like scenes at a theatre, witnessed, but not in any sense lived in. Vaguely they knew of a working, struggling world outside their own, but the thought hardly interested them, and did not really penetrate.

"And then the war! It was as if the nursery door flew open with a chill wind, and blew forth the little inmates into the unfriendly streets. For the first time they brushed shoulders with life as it is lived by millions, and touched the cold hand of reality.

"In some ways it was a terrifying position for these favorites of society. But I shall always be proud of my sex when I remember the way in which they responded to the need of the moment. To-day I suppose there is not a society butterfly of the ugly sort left throughout the length and breadth of England, for one can never apply that name again to a woman who has worked for four years, with heart and soul, nursing the wounded, making munitions in the big factories or driving a car here, there and everywhere on war's business."

May Tax Bachelors.

Income taxpayers, especially bachelors, are watching for the new British budget with a certain amount of anxiety. The need for new sources of revenue to pay the enormous interest bill due to the war loans has prompted the Chancellor of the Exchequer to inquire into the working of the bachelor tax in Italy and the new budget is likely to see the institution of a direct tax on bachelors.

The income tax at present payable differentiates between the married man and the single one inasmuch that married men with small salaries can claim a rebate of $14 annually for a wife, as well as a similar sum for each child under 16 years of age. There are many demands being sent into the Exchequer Department for the raising of these rebates, or the readjustment of the tax on lines that will not press so heavily upon the man with children. The advocates of the discrimination in favor of married men are freely advocating the taxation of bachelors as a means of replacing the lost funds should the rebate be increased in favor of the family.

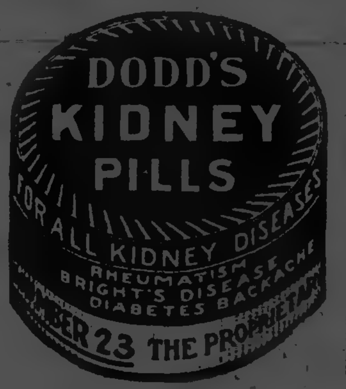
The present methods of collecting the tax are entirely devoid of principle. The state takes for different taxes whichever method happens to give the largest yield. There are so many glaring hardships in the collection of the income tax that a royal commission is to be appointed to inquire into the matters concerning the collection of the tax. Some little idea of the number of questions that will have to be considered by the commission is given from the fact that two years will elapse before the report is expected.

Among other grievances of the income taxpayer is the placing of the onus of collection of a wife's income tax upon the husband. If the wife has a separate income the tax is collected from the husband, and the rebate on small incomes is taken as from one person and not for the two. This means that in the case of a combined income of $2,000 the exchequer gains $67.50.

In the case of smaller incomes this anomaly works badly for the payee. For instance a man and a woman with an income of $645 each pay no income tax unless they marry, and then they have to pay $85 a year. But this rule only holds good if they are legally married. It is in effect a tax on marriage, and by the Government's own admission "an intolerable anomaly."

What is it?

A small girl was visiting her aunt's room for the first time. She walked about and scrutinized everything with interest. Finally she stopped before an attractive picture frame which was standing on the table, but was empty. After a puzzled moment she said: "Auntie Ethel, what is it I don't see?"



Prince of Wales May Visit Us

ONCE more is the report revived that the Prince of Wales is to pay a visit to this continent, and any comment we have observed in the American press is most cordial. In fact, we have little doubt that the prince will be just as warmly welcomed in New York as in our own Canadian cities, for if the Englishman loves a lord, there is no doubt that the American loves a prince, as his slang bears eloquent testimony. The idea is that the young prince, now in his 25th year, is out wife-hunting. He is certain to get married if he lives, for one of the most imperative duties of the heir to the throne of Great Britain is to provide himself with a wife and the nation with heirs-presumptive. The war in some respects has limited the field through which the royal lover can roam in quest of a helpmate; in others it has widened it. For instance, all the eligible German, Austrian, Bulgarian and Turkish princesses are ruled out. There will be no more German princesses in England.

The democratizing influences of the war have been such that if the next Queen of England should happen to be a commoner born, there would be no objection raised in any quarter. The prospect of the Prince of Wales bringing home an American or Canadian bride shocks nobody. The only feeling that is likely to be at all strong in England with regard to Prince Edward Albert's future wife is that she be of the same religion as the prince. If he had chosen the Princess Yolanda of Italy, whom gossip had marked out for him some time ago, it would have been necessary, of course, that she should adopt the state religion of England. But there is a sentiment or prejudice against a Roman Catholic-born being Queen of England. With the justice or unreasonableness of the sentiment we have nothing to do. It exists, and it is not likely to be ignored by the Prince of Wales. The war has created a situation, therefore, in which it will be more natural for the Prince of Wales to marry a British subject or an American than unite the crown of England with any other European monarchy.

Though the Prince of Wales is still a young man, he has lived long enough and participated sufficiently in great events to have inspired a biographer, and from David Williamson we are able to get as intimate a view of the future King of England as is ever permitted of persons so near the throne. He was very strictly brought up, we learn, for Queen Mary has a Spartan strain that makes her an admirable mother of princes. The King himself is also very democratic at heart, and knows the advantages of what seems to us the very best training in the world, namely, the training of the British navy. He sent his son to the same naval school whence he himself had graduated, and until the beginning of the war the chief training of the Prince of Wales was that of a sailor. He is also an Oxford graduate, having matriculated at Magdalen in 1912, although Christ Church has been considered immemorially the college of the scions of the English aristocracy.

We are not aware of the scholastic triumphs of the prince, if there were any, but the fact is to be set down that he never was expelled from college nor indelibly disgraced for failure to make a respectable showing in his examinations. He showed quite a taste for athletics, and although one would gather from his photographs that he is rather a delicate youth, he is in fact very wiry and tough, and was a notable walker, considering a twenty-mile tramp merely a slight appetizer. At Oxford, where, with almost suffocating humor, his fellow-students had nicknamed him "Pragger Wagger" — a first-class Oxford pun for "Prince of Wales"—he interested himself in the Officers' Training Corps, and when war was declared had a far better military training than most of the officers who enlisted with Kitchener's First Hundred Thousand. Both the King and Lord Kitchener, however, reminded him that his training was far from complete, and he set cheerfully to work to learn all that could be taught him in the first few terrible months.

There was considerable reluctance on the part of the Secretary of War to sending the Prince of Wales to the front, for, as he explained to the young man, there was plenty of precedent for a prince going to the front and getting killed, but the danger was that he might be taken prisoner, in which case his capture might make the subsequent peace terms embarrassing to the other Allies. Finally, however, the young man went as a second lieutenant in the Grenadier Guards and in a few months was made first lieutenant. This is the rank he still holds in the army, which is no small tribute to the British authorities. If the prince had been a German, he would have been swiftly created a general and loaded down with all sorts of decorations and titles. His knowledge of French made the prince an admirable liaison officer, and he did his bit without fuss and with a good heart. All with whom he came in contact liked and respected him, and if he continues long as Prince of Wales—which God send—he is likely to become as popular as his grandfather.

Diseases of Sweet Potato.

Ten million to fifteen million bushels of sweet potatoes are lost every year through disease. Much of this loss can be prevented by proper selection of seed and treatment of seed beds. Black rot, foot rot, surface rot, and scurf or soil stain are the principal diseases causing loss.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.

Life Span of Industrial Workers.

At a recent meeting of the Royal Sanitary Institute, reported in the Westminster Gazette, Dr. Edgar L. Collis, Director of Welfare and Health, Ministry of Munitions, said that to-day the average age of death among industrial workers was 50, which compared sadly with that of about 67, the average for underpaid and badly housed agricultural laborers.

Describing the methods adopted by the Ministry of Munitions for improving the conditions in factories, Dr. Collis said the introduction of welfare workers had been a great success. This would always be the case wherever their duties were not strangled by routine and red tape. Four thousand women welfare workers had been appointed to care for women and girls, and four hundred for boys.

An important part of the new industrial development would be the light work depots, which would also be day nurseries and centres of mother-craft for mothers of young children.

Too Easy.

Newlywed (explaining poker)—"Now, if you get a poor hand you want to bluff, and if you get a good hand, you want to make a bluff that you're bluffing. Now there are two ways of bluffing; one is to bluff, the other not to bluff. If you're a regular bluffer, you can often bluff by not bluffing, and—" Mrs. Newlywed—"I see, John, dear, but that game is too ridiculously easy. Let's play checkers."

LAWN BOWLING

The following were the results in the first round of the club doubles played last night:

Moore and Cunningham beat Convery and McCusker 18-13.

Brightman and Fitzgerald beat McLean and Dr. Allen 25-15.

Walton and Read beat Taylor and Sedgwick 18-13.

In the rink game Waddell beat Cairns 18-14.

The draw for the consolation doubles will be posted in the club house on Monday night.

The Cobourg tournament will be held next Wednesday. Any members of the club desiring to go kindly notify a member of the executive.

WRESTLED TO A DRAW LAST NIGHT

SPLENDID EXHIBIT OF MANLY ART AT EXHIBITION GROUNDS.

J. Hertubise and Joe Shimkus wrestled to a draw last night at the exhibition grounds. The local wrestler undertook to stay with Shimkus for 20 minutes for a side bet of $25 and succeeded. Tonight these two wrestlers will have another go, this time to a finish. Another side bet has been made and two falls out of three will have to be made in order to capture the coin. The match will take place at 9.30 tonight.

Scores At Weekly Gun Club Shoot

The Gun Club held their weekly shoot last evening and some pretty fair shooting was handed out by the gunners.

Mr. Mott, of Belleville, and Mr. Ford, of Toronto, were visitors, and, although using strange guns, shot very well.

Charlie Mills won the cigar shoot with a ten straight. He is a great prize getter and will soon be handicapped if he doesn't ease up a little.

Below are the scores:

	Shot At.	Broke.
Dr. McClennan	50	25
J. Patte	50	20
J. Weir	50	18
T. Curran	35	25
C. Mills	35	24

Belleville Defeats Peterboro 6 to 0

By six to three Belleville defeated the Peterborough team at Port Hope yesterday. With the score 6-0 in favor of Belleville the local lads made a rally in the eighth innings, Holyman, Kirn and Cherrett each scoring a run. However, as they failed to repeat in the next innings the game went against them. The Peterborough lineup was: Cherrett, ss; Rose, 2b; Swanston, c; Long, 1b; Clancy, lf; Jackson, rf; Heenan, m; Holyman, 3b; Kirn, p.

The score by innings:

Peterborough ......000000030— 3
Belleville ....010500000— 6

Bactericides.

Most fruit juices, through their acids, were found in Japanese experiments to destroy the bacillus of typhoid and other bacteria; but sugars and starches, even in the strongest solutions, had no antiseptic effect. The strongest bactericide of the vegetable acids proved to be tannic acid, which was followed in order by citric, tartaric and malic. Imitation "lemonades," prepared with various acids, especially with hydrochloric acid, had considerable bactericidal action.

Insects Do Much Good.

Although insects damage the crops, stored products and domestic animals in the United States to the enormous amount of $1,200,000,000 every year, nevertheless this damage is almost compensated by the good they do. Dr. L. O. Howard, chief of the bureau of entomology, at the National Museum told of the value of the useful insects as cross-fertilisers of plants, as affecting the soil, in producing honey, silk, etc.

Many Kinds of "Money."

Anything that is used in trade as a medium of exchange or a measure of value, recognized alike by both parties to a transaction, is money. It may be wampum, skins of animals, shells, metal or paper, but if by government authority or by common consent it is recognized as a medium of exchange or a measure of value it is money. Even live animals have served the purposes and uses of money.

Queer Post Office Names.

Strange names have been given to post offices in the United States according to the list issued by the post office department. In Missouri there is an Ace; in West Virginia, Affinity; a Barefoot in Georgia; a Bigfoot in Texas; in Idaho, a Blowout; in Missouri, a Braggadocio; a Chuckle in North Carolina; a Difficulty in Wyoming; in Texas, a town called Mud.

Calf Was Just Right.

Carolyn was delighted when she received an invitation to spend a week in the country with a friend of the family, and expressed herself to a little friend she was playing with like this: "Yes, they have pigs and chickens and a cow and a little calf. I can't milk the cow, but I can milk the calf—it's just my size."

City of Rubies.

Mogok is a Burmese city which handles daily large fortunes in rubies. Mogok runs heaps of priceless, glittering stones through its fingers, appraises them carelessly and then as carelessly lets them go to some dealer in gems. It almost seems like the play of children with bits of bright-colored glass.

Some Astounding Facts Told About "Brain Trust"

By Archibald Roosevelt

ARCHIBALD ROOSEVELT, captain in the 26th Infantry, American Expeditionary Force, who was wounded in France in August last, is the author of an article in Everybody's Magazine, which should be read by any resident of the United States who feels like joining in the unfounded claim that the soldiers of that country won the war. "Lest We Forget" is the title of the article written by a son of the late Theodore Roosevelt, whose aim is to have the forces of the United States in shape for any future conflict. In its ruthless unveiling of the sins of omission on the part of the authorities of the United States long after that country had entered the war it is reminiscent of the frank language that the writer's father often used when criticising policies or men.

In discussing the unpreparedness of his country at the time it ceased to be a money-making onlooker and became an active belligerent, Roosevelt says: "It is a fact that many went to France believing that only mule wagons could be used in the transport system of an army." He cites case after case in which the military authorities of the United States as well as the Government as a whole failed to grasp the most elementary principles of the warning that the fighting in Europe conveyed, with the result that the training had to commence after the Americans had landed in France and was carried on largely with equipment and materials borrowed from the other belligerents. "The swivel-chair experts" and "the Brain Trust at home" are two of the terms the author uses to deal with the men who until the end of the war devoted their efforts to improve upon the weapons and other materials that the Allies had found so serviceable, with the result that they were still experimenting when the war ended. Gas masks were favorite objects of experiment, with the result, he says, "that when I left France twenty months after we had drifted into the war American gas masks were in the same place as the Liberty airplanes, the Liberty trucks, and the Browning machine guns. All were figments of the imagination."

Capt. Roosevelt is almost ferocious in his criticisms of the rejection of the Lewis machine gun as used by the British and Belgians, and which was standing the test of actual battle, while the Americans were telling of the superiority that was to be found in the Browning gun. But up to August last "no Browning automatic rifles or machine guns had been employed with any of the fighting divisions on the firing line. At the end of hostilities only a very few of very latest arrived units were equipped with these weapons," says Roosevelt. As to hand grenades, the Americans used what they could borrow from the French, while "the Brain Trust" at home experimented to find a "perfectly safe grenade." Capt. Roosevelt says: "They found it. It was safe both for us and the Germans. Only a trained mechanic in a large, quiet field could set one off. So up to the time of my departure from France American troops used only French grenades."

In concluding his article he tells of some United States troops at last reaching the front line and of what they found, adding: "But most important of all, the younger officers—I am not so sure about the older—discovered their absolute ignorance of modern warfare."

It is a pity, in view of the controversy aroused by the extreme claims of some sections of the United States press, that Capt. Roosevelt's article cannot be widely distributed throughout every part of that country, so that it might reach a great mass of people who know nothing of the war beyond what they read in a class of newspapers which pander to national prejudices first and often deliberately distort the truth to carry on their campaigns.

That Sweet Tooth.

A species of ant with an inordinately sweet tooth, whose destructive faculties are almost Hunnish in their backdoor methods of operation, is thus described in the Detroit Sunday News:—

"One of the greatest pests that haunt our orange groves is the Argentine ant, and yet it never goes near the trees. Every bit of the damage it does is done indirectly. It seems that it has a very sweet tooth and is abnormally fond of a honey dew that is secreted by certain mealy bugs and scales that are most injurious, and it will go to any lengths to protect them from being destroyed or harmed in any way.

"In Louisiana they have discovered a way of trapping these ants. They construct nests and when they all congregate there, as they will in rainy weather, they can destroy them.

"In California they kill them with poison syrup. When they are once gone it is easy enough to deal with their friends."

She Was Disappointed.

Booth Tarkington was strolling round an artistic Red Cross fair when two pretty "flappers" of sixteen or so came up and asked him for his autograph. "I haven't got a fountain pen," he said, much flattered. "Will pencil do?" "Yes," said the older flapper, and he took out a pencil and signed his name in the morocco-bound book that she had presented. The flapper studied the signature with a frown. Then she looked up and said: "Aren't you Robert W. Chambers?" "No," he said. "I'm Booth Tarkington." The flapper turned to her friend with a shrug of disgust. "Lend me your rubber, May," she said, according to Mr. Tarkington himself.

His Ultimate End.

The children were discussing a famous soldier, when four-year-old Benny asked: "Who is he, anyway?" "Well," replied wise first-grade Harold, "he's a wonderful brave man now, after awhile he'll be a statue."

You May Not Believe It, but—

If statistics could be compiled showing the number of men who have a sudden and sneaking impulse to set the house on fire when the cleaning season approaches, the world would stand aghast.—Indianapolis Star.

Optimistic Thought.

Heaven does not speak; how, then, can it bestow sovereignty on man?

Chili Peppers.

From data gathered from the various consular districts it is revealed that the growing of chili peppers is confined principally to the states of Vera Cruz, Aguascalientes, San Luis Potosi and Lower California, and the district around San Martin, in the state of Puebla. This latter district is found to be in normal times one of the most important for the cultivation of this product for export, the possibility for the crop being very extensive.

King James Bible.

The most remarkable event of the reign of King James I, who was characterized by the Duc du Sully as "The wisest fool in Europe," was the appointment of a commission to revise the English translation of the Bible, which was completed in 1611. In 1604 this commission was appointed by the crown, and consisted of the most profound scholars of that period, who in seven years completed the so-called King James version.

Try Both Ways.

While it is true that the vast majority of people on this earth spend their nights in sleep, it is also a fact that many more people than one would suppose are awake o' nights and do their sleeping in daytime. Just think of all the night watchmen there are, all the milkmen, and just the natural night prowlers who like night best as a time in which to be awake and live.

Goat Cheese Popular.

The people of Norway have for many years shown a success of the goat as a milk producer and money maker. One of the Norwegian farmers' principal pursuits is goat cheese making, and the popularity of this table delicacy is evidenced by the fact that Americans have been trying hard to "copy" it, with little success.—Exchange.

Matthew Arnold's Praise of Bible.

Matthew Arnold, a great critic, was anything but orthodox. "As well," said he, "imagine a man with a sense for sculpture not cultivating it by the help of the remains of Greek art, and a man with a sense of poetry not cultivating it by the help of Homer and Shakespeare, as a man with a sense for conduct not cultivating it by the help of the Bible.

Beauty.—

Oh, talk as we may of beauty as a thing to be chiseled from marble or wrought out on canvas; speculate as we may upon its colors and outlines, what is it but an intellectual abstraction, after all? The heart feels a beauty of another kind; looking through the outward environment, it discovers a deeper and more real loveliness.—Whittier.

Italy's Votive Candles.

In Italy the distinctively votive candle is made by hand. The material is pure beeswax, which is kneaded and tempered and mixed with a secret ingredient to retard combustion. Special Egyptian cotton is used for the wicks. The cotton, too, is treated with chemicals to keep it from feeding too fast.

The Roaming Bee.

According to a scientist if a bee finds a suitable patch of flowers by following a zigzag course it will seek it again by the same devious route, and not in a straight line from the nest. Certain bees coming to visit a hollyhock always came over the wall 25 yards to one side instead of directly opposite.

Any Excuse, Etc.

Little Edward disliked to attend school, so one morning he thought he would play off sick. "What is the matter with you, Edward?" asked his mother. Not knowing a whole vocabulary of ailments to select from, on the spur of the moment he replied, "Why, my teeth itch."

Y.W.C.A. SWIMMING POOL

Swimming is a live topic at the Young Women's Christian Association today. It is the all-important theme. During this warm spell many avail themselves of the opportunity to enjoy a plunge in the cool water of the pool. Many girls who have never before attempted to swim have acquired the art. The more timid girls and those who have difficulty is mastering the stroke are kept on the water wings. The pool is a rendevous for many ladies who are taking swimming lessons and rapidly learning to swim.

The water in the pool is always fresh. The temperature is controlled by constant circulation from the pool into the boiler and into the pool again. Daily, over a foot of water is drawn off and the pool filled up with fresh water. Weekly, the pool is emptied and thoroughly cleaned, the beautiful tiled lining of the pool making this a very simple operation.

The public are welcome to come and watch the swimmers at any time in the gallery which is intended for spectators.

A PURSE OF GOLD AND ADDRESS FOR REV. BENJAMIN GREATRIX

Presented by Appreciative Congregation—New Pastor, Rev. J. F. Chapman, Introduced.

Rev. Benjamin Greatrix was made the recipient of a purse of gold ($200) and a beautifully illuminated address by the members of St. James Methodist Church last night. The presentation was made by Mr. Alexander Fife, assisted by Mr. Alvah Wilson. Rev. B. Greatrix, in reply, thanked the members very heartily, and after assuring them of his sincere appreciation, he took the opportunity to warn young couples against too hasty plunge into matrimony in these days of high prices. He referred to the work that had resulted in the erection of the beautiful new church in which the presentation took place. The old church on Charlotte street, which was presented to them by the congregation of Trinity Methodist Church was pulled down and carried over to the present site of the St. James' Church, 225 loads being necessary to move it. Now the congregation has a first-class church and school room with a total debt of only $8,000. Rev. Benj. Greatrix expressed the hope that in the near future he would be called back to burn the mortgage.

Rev. J. F. Chapman, B.A., B.D., was then formally introduced to the officials of the church, and the keys were handed over to him by the superannuated minister, Rev. Benj. Greatrix. In a short speech, the new pastor mentioned that his predecessor was the first minister of whom he had any recollection as a boy, and paid tribute to his work as an able minister and an efficient administrator.

Mr. A. E. Prest, the Sunday school superintendent, and Mr. J. O. Fife also gave short addresses. The latter speaker hit the situation off very cleverly when turning to the new pastor, he said: "Good-day, glad to meet you," and then to the former pastor, "Farewell, God bless you." Both speakers emphasized the fact that the success of any pastor depends on the support and co-operation he receives from his congregation.

Musical Program.

Solos were rendered by Miss Florence Emmerson, Miss Nicholls and Mrs. Kitney, and a reading was given by Mrs. Nicholls. At the conclusion of the combined reception and farewell, ice cream and cakes were served by the ladies and a general social half-hour enjoyed.

The Address.

"We, the members of St. James' Methodist Church, on this, the occasion of your retiring from the ministry after 41 years of faithful service, desire in some slight way to show our appreciation of your untiring labors during your stay amongst us.

"We regret the time has come to say farewell, but the years spent in our midst will ever be a blessed memory. You have always been a friend to those in trouble and full of sympathy for those in sorrow or distress and ever ready to rejoice with those who rejoiced.

"As our pastor, you came to us when we were but a small band of workers in the Sunday school room but through your energy and zeal you are leaving as with a church complete in every respect and second to none in this city.

"Your untiring efforts have been crowned with success which has been largely due to the fact that you, by your splendid leadership, example and devotion to duty have been a source of inspiration to us in every enterprise. We, as members of your congregation, fully realise that the great work you undertook of organizing and building the beautiful sacred edifice which we now worship in and do love and are justly proud of, was by your instrumentality brought to a successful completion, and which will ever stand as a monument as never-dying testimony to the love and devotion you have for the cause of Christ and the upbuilding of His Kingdom.

"We ask you to accept the accompanying gift as a slight token of the love and affection we bear for you and Mrs. Greatrix and our fervent hope is that many years of well-earned rest may yet remain to you both and when the "evening shadows" fall may the memories of useful service crown your years with gladness.

"Signed on behalf of the members of the church—Thomas Brown, recording stewart; Arnold E. Prest, superintendent Sunday school; Mrs. A. Wilson, president Ladies' Aid; Miss Myrtle Sergeant, president of the Epworth League."

OBITUARY

MRS. DANIEL WHETUNG.

This morning the death occurred at the Indian village of Mrs. Daniel Whetung, wife of Daniel Whetung, senior. She was a highly esteemed member of the Curve Lake band. The survivors are two sons, Albert and Daniel, at home, one daughter, Daisy, at home, and one granddaughter, Levina, residing in Pittsburg. Her husband also survives.

The funeral will take place tomorrow at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Service will be held in the church on the reserve.

MICHAEL FRAZER

The death occurred yesterday at his home in the township of Smith, of Mr. Michael Frazer, aged 72 years. Deceased was in good health apparently up to the time of his death, which was caused by the excessive heat. He leapes to mourn his loss one sister, Miss Jane Frazer, and three brothers, Henry, of Trout Creek, and John and Benjamin, at home.

The funeral will leave his late home in Smith Township, north of Jackson Park at 2.30 p.m. tomorrow and thence proceed to St. Peter's Church and St. Peter's cemetery for interment.

STOP AND READ

Regarding the address that Mr. Kennedy will give Sunday night on "Chickens Come Home to Roost," The Daily Register of Mount Carmel, Ill., said: "It was as clean, wholesome and uplifting as ever listened to in this city. It was a burning message and produced a profound impression on all present. At the close fully fifty men rose for prayer and came forward and sought the Lord."

ONTARIO DRY FOR ANOTHER YEAR

OTTAWA, July 7 (C.P.)—After a long and eventful session the Canadian Parliament was prorogued today. During the session Sir Robert Borden and Hon. Mr. Meighen referred to the disagreement between the Commons and Senate on the Prohibition Bill and amendments to the Criminal Code regarding sexual offences. By reason of these differences the Government stated neither of these bills would pass this session, and the Order-in-Council respecting provincial transportation of liquor would stand until another session of parliament

WRECKERS WORK ON C. P. R. LINE

DREW SPIKES AND CAUSED TWO DEATHS NEAR NORTH BAY.

North Bay, July 7.—Train No. 3 going east Saturday night ran off the track at Adelard, eighty miles east of North Bay. Full particulars have not been received, except that Ed. Jarvis, one of the eldest engineers on the road, was killed. His fireman, named Van Buskirk, who was badly scalded, was taken to the Pembroke hospital, where he since died.

Official Statement.

Montreal, July 7.—The following is an official statement by the Canadian Pacific Rlaway:

"Passenger train No. 2, eastbound, was derailed at a point about thirty miles west of Chalk River Ont., at 12:35 a.m. this (Sunday) morning.

"The engine and six cars, consisting of mail, express and baggage cars, first and second class coaches, and tourist car, left the track. The five sleeping cars remained on.

"Engineer Jarvis was killed. Fireman Van Buskirk was injured so seriously as to have caused death. The passengers were shaken up and two slightly injured. A doctor was on the train, who rendered every assistance. Passengers are being transferred to proceed to their destination.

Clearly Work of Wreckers.

"The cause of the accident clearly indicates the work of train-wreckers. The rail joint at the west end of the rail on the outside of a curve had been deliberately disconnected and spikes had been drawn with tools which were left on the ground, and did not belong to the section foreman. A full inquiry is under way, and search being made for a suspect."

ITALIANS TO CALL GENERAL STRIKE

AS PROTEST AGAINST ALLIED INTERVENTION IN RUSSIA AND HUNGARY.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Rome, July 7.—Quiet has been restored in Florence and several other cities where disorders have marked the food situation. Demonstrations against the high cost of living and against profiteers. However, have occurred in Milan, Leghorn, Alexandria, and Brescia. Premier Nitti declared to the newspaper men that the sole cause of the recent disorders was economic. He appealed for their support in pacifying the radicals. The Italian socialist organizations have decided upon a general strike for July 20 and 21 as a protest against Allied intervention in Russia and Hungary.

Preparing to Try The Ex-Emperor

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, July 7.—The Allies have not made any official representations to the Dutch Government regarding the extradition of former German Emperor, but the necessary steps are being taken in the matter, Andrew Bonar Law, Government Spokesman, declared in the Commons today.

EX-KAISER'S SONS OFFER TO TAKE PLACE OF THEIR SIRE

Agree to Make Sacrifice in Order to Spare Him Degradation of Trial—American Newspapers Declare Offer is Made Without the Slightest Hope of Acceptance.

Berlin, July 7.—Prince Eitel Frederick of Prussia, second son of the former German Emperor, has sent the following telegram to King George:

"To his Majesty the King of Great Britain and Ireland:

"In fulfilment of the natural duty of son and officer, I, with my four younger brothers, place myself at your Majesty's disposal in place of my Imperial father in the event of his extradition, in order by our sacrifice to spare him such degradation.

"In the name of Princes Aldabert, August William, Oscar and Joachim.

"(Sgd.) Eitel Frederick.'"

American Comment

New York, July 7.—The morning newspapers comment on the offer of the Kaiser's younger sons to take his father's place on demand of the allies.

Th Sun says:—"The offer of the youngest five sons of Wilhelm Hohenzollern to take their father's place, in the event of his extradition, certainly was not made with any hope that it would be accepted. If the Kaiser's Chancellor and Chief Foreign Staff could prove that prior to the beginning of the war they had usurped the prerogative of the Kaiser and his Legislators, can prove that it was impossible for the German Emperor to prevent the crimes that were committed, then they would be good witnesses for Count Hohenzollern.

"Until such testimony is given, and with more particulars than Hindenburg's broad declaration contains, the outer world must assume that these sudden bursts of chivalrous generosity are mere attempts to deceive not to deceive the allies but to deceive the German people.

Lucky for William

The Times says:—"It is lucky for Wm. Hohenzollern that his trial is to take place on English soil not at all because the English will be more sympathetic with him than another nation might be, but because there is a traditional fairness and impartiality about English justice which no other country, not even our own has been able to surpass. The object of the French and Italian courts is to obtain a conviction; the aim of an English court is to administer justice. Our own practice is marred by far too much opportunity for delay, by devices of technicality that cheat justice of her due.

But in England justice is justice. The personality of the accused is fogotten the moment he takes place in the dock. Few technicalities intervene. A change of venue on the ground of local prejudice is of rare occurence, for the reason that the English mind can't conceive of a prejudice overruling the orderly processes of justice. Of course this has not always been the case.

The World says: "If the younger Hohenzollerns or other Germans of eminence feel conscientiously bound to offer themselves for trial, the opprtunity should be denied them. Whether they appear as confessed criminals or impenitent offenders that makes no difference. No entries are barred.

JUVENILE BURGLARS RAID NUMBER OF LOCAL STORES

Robert Fair, R. J. Soden and Hooper's Are Among Victims—Boys in Police Court and Remanded For Week.

Three young lads went on a visiting tour throughout the city last night calling on at least five of the local stores. At the Robt. Fair Co. it was their second visit, they having previously entered the store on Thursday night. The first time they were able to unhook the back door, lite up a bar, smash a small hole through the glass in the second door, insert a hand and turn the key. The second time they found their road thoroughly well barred, so they smashed a hole in a large plate-glass window 60 by 66 inches, worth about $200 and crawled inside. Each time they searched the till and got about $3 altogether in silver, leaving the coppers behind. None of the goods were taken as far as the proprietor could ascertain, but one of the lads admitted having searched for a bathing-suit. Not finding one to his size he decided to look up some other stores.

The stationery store belonging to R. J. Soden was also entered and between $2 and $3 in change stolen. In addition the young lads took several balls, cards and fancy candles. The Hooper confectionery store at 414 George street was also entered and a package of wrappers which was torn open showed that they had carried off some of the delicacies there as well as what they consumed at the time. The Peterborough Floral Co., at 432 Water street reports the loss of three dozen packets of seeds and the J. M. Greene Music Co.'s store on Charlotte street was entered but nothing was lost there.

This morning the trio appeared in the Juvenile Court, and were remanded for a week.

FIRST STOWAWAY BY AERIAL ROUTE

RIGGER STOLE ABOARD DIRIGIBLE AFTER BEING DROPPED BY CREW.

Mineola, July 7.—That the first crossing of a lighter-than-air ship should lack none of the excitement, connected with a sea going voyage, there was a stowaway.

W. W. Ballantines, a rigger, who was once a member of the crew, was told a few days before the dirigible "hopped off" that he would not be taken on the fight. Ballantine, who was a prize-fighter before he enlisted went to the head coxswain, and learned that it was necessary to lighten the crew by three men, and that he was one of the "unlucky ones." The way he changed his luck was told in this way by his stowaway:

On the Bally Blimp

"I'd worked hard, I had, bloody hard, on the bally blimp, but that didn't matter so much. You see, I'd never been to America. Had my heart placed on it, and my mind, too. So I sneaks out a bit before midnight, about two hours before the R-34 left Scotland. I hides in the rigging. No one saw me, and we were off. When the balloon was about 200 feet up, I changes my position to a more comfortable one hid between the gas bags, No. 6 and No. 7, at the stern of the ship.

"I foraged some food and water and intended to remain there until the end of the trip, unobserved, I hoped. But I was out of luck. I took sick. I guess I was the only man aboard who was sick on the trip. I remained stowed away until I was on the point of becoming delirious from fever.

"When we were about sixty miles out Sergt. Watson stumbles over me. The officers could do nothing then, and I saw one of 'em smile so I knew I would see the land where they pay $100,000 for a man to get in the ring for three rounds.

His Home Needs the Money

"I wish you'd tell your newspaper that I'd like to take on someone at 126 pounds. There is a little house in England what could use the winning end of the purse. I'm only going to be here a day or so, but maybe some American could fit it for me."

Balantine lay for twenty hours in the hammock with a fever of 102. After being treated by the doctor, he took his place and worked his way across.

"I certainly did more work than any other two, but that wasn't nothing. I did the trip, and here I am," he continued. "I don't know what they intend to do with me. That's up to Commander Scott, and he has not said a word to me as yet, but it's coming. I know. I am not worrying about the punishment they are flonning out for me now. The big thing is that I made the trip and here I am."

Return Journey To Begin Tomorrow

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, July 7.—Major Scott announced definitely at noon at the R-34 would start on its journey, returning, at five o'clock tomorrow morning, flying over Boston. The R-34 will not circle New York before turning east, he said. Major Scott said an effort would be made to shape the R-34's course so that it would pass over the George Washington which is bringing President Wilson home.

GIANT DIRIGIBLE WAS TORN FROM MOORINGS BY WIND

Balloon That Made Longest Flight on Record Had Narrow Escape From Being Blown Away —Landed Near New York Sunday Morning After 108 Hours in the Air.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Mineola, L. I., July 7.—The R-34 was torn from her mooring rope this morning by a violent gust of wind. The cross girder to which the rope was attached broke under the strain, ripping a hole six feet by three feet in the gas bag. The giant dirigible was saved from being blown away by three hundred men who seized the ropes dangling from her sides and held her down with great difficulty.

Arrived Sunday.

The British dirigible R-34 arrived at Roosevelt Field, Mineola, L. I., at 8:40 a.m. Sunday, circled the field three times to make observations and at 9:21 o'clock the first passenger, Major John Edward Maddock Pritchard, landed upon American soil, after a parachute drop of two thousand feet.

This completed the longest flight in history, the distance covered being 3,200 miles, not counting the mileage forced upon the fliers by adverse wind. The time consumed was a few minutes more than 108 hours. The big airship brought over thirty persons, one of whom was a stowaway, and a tortoise shell cat.

Major G. H. Scott, the commander, announced last night that the R-34 would fly again before daybreak Tuesday morning and would pass over New York City at about daybreak before starting homeward.

Petrol Ran Low.

Great Britain's super dirigible R-34, the first lighter-than-air machine to cross the Atlantic ocean made an aerial voyage of 108 hours and 12 minutes, which covered 3,130 knots, or approximately 3,600 land miles.

When the super Zeppelin arrived here she had left only enough petrol to keep her moving ninety minutes longer. Her crew, almost sleepless for four and a half days, were weary nearly to the point of exhaustion, but happy at the successful completion of their epoch-making trip.

The Arrival.

Scores of mechanics and navy men were nearing Montauk Point when the dirigible first appeared on the horizon off the Long Island coast.

It glided through the air with such smoothness as to give the suggestion that it was motionless and the spectator moving. The manoeuvres for observation took the dirigible three times around the field before she came to a stop. After 9:11 it shut off its motors, and hovered like a fixed object, two thousand feet above the ground.

Wig wag communication was opened between the dirigible and the field and Major Scott was informed that Major Fuller, who was to have been in command of the landing, was not there. Major Pritchard, the second officer on the dirigible, was then directed to land and take charge of the ground work when the dirigible descended.

Major Jumps with Parachute.

At two thousand feet Major Pritchard jumped with a parachute swinging around and around in circles and moving slowly downward. His descent occupied two minutes, and he landed rather heavily at 9:19, slightly injuring his [illegible]. Under his direction six hundred workmen were disposed in eight groups to tie down the great gas envelope which though sure and steady in the air, is inclined to be erratic when chained to an alien element.

After these forces had been depleted in precise order the dirigible began to release gas and descended. It moved down on a level keel as if it were a dead weight being lowered by an invisible crane. It kept precisely over its anchorage with an accuracy of navigation that would have been the despair of any deep-water skipper proud of his skill in docking his ship. She gained a little speed as she sank down the last two thousand feet, and when about three hundred feet up she suddenly released about ten tons of water ballast.

Use Eight Anchors.

As it was making the final descent the main mooring line was tossed to workmen waiting to receive it and thrust it through a massive iron ring with concrete anchorage, which bridles the big machine until it has been securely fixed by eight anchors.

WILL CALL CONFERENCE OF CAPITAL AND LABOR

Important Announcement Made in Speech From Throne—Official Vote of Thanks For Canada's Soldiers.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, July 7.—The speech from the Throne said:

"Having regard to the necessity of avoiding the industrial disturbance and with a view to ensuring more stable relations and a better understanding between employers and employed, my advisers intend to summon in the early future a representative conference for a friendly and intimate discussion of such questions and for the consideration of the report of the Industrial Relations Commission and of the proposals therein set forth."

On motion of Sir Robert Borden, seconded by D. D. McKenzie, leader of the opposition, the House of Commons before adjournment passed a vote of thanks to the Canadian army for its splendid achievements overseas. Both leaders paid tribute to the services and sacrifices of the Canadian corps in France.

The speech from the Throne delivered by the Governor General, when the House was proroguered viewed the extensive legislation enacted, especially on the lines of reconstruction and the rehabilitation of Canada's soldiers.

VAGS ORDERED TO LEAVE THE CITY

FIVE MEN LURED TO LINDSAY BY PROMISE OF WORK.

James Moiles, Archie Walker, Thos. Hale, Ernest Hale and George Toohey were brought up on the charge of vagrancy before Magistrate Dumble and were discharged with a warning to leave the city immediately. They had been arrested at Birdsall's station by Constable Dixon, who stated that they had been begging in the vicinity and when searched had no visible means of support beyond a few pocketfuls of sour apples. They stated that they had come from Montreal on the promise that they would be given work at Lindsay as grass-cutters. However, they found when they got there that the only job awaiting them was one of moving heavy rails. This they claimed they were unable to do.

Chief of Police Thompson examined their hands and agreed with their statement regarding their inability to do heavy work. Crown Attorney Hatton suggested that an example should be made of Employment Agencies that send applicants to places which they know they cannot fill by pretending that the job is easy.

"How do you expect to get back to Montreal?" asked Chief of Police Thompson.

"We were going to Belleville where we thought we could earn enough to take us home," replied Jas Moiles.

"How do you expect to get there?"

"We expect to walk," said Archie Walker, and accordingly they started on the first lap of their journey by walking out of the court room.

FARMER MET DEATH WHILE RAKING HAY

DANIEL McCARTY, NEAR KEENE, KILLED SATURDAY IN RUNAWAY ACCIDENT.

A very sad fatality occurred near Keene on Saturday last, when Mr. Daniel McCarthy, aged 48 years, a well-known farmer of that vicinity met his death, while at work in the field.

Mr. McCarthy, w[illegible]king hay on his farm, while his daughter, a little girl of ten, was playing around in the same field. The little girl noticed the team running across the field without a driver and upon looking for her father, found him lying where he had fallen from the rake, unconscious and with his face badly bruised. Mr. McCarthy was removed to his home where medical attendance was called at once but he lived only one hour.

The late Mr. McCarthy leaves a wife and seven children. One of his sons, Joseph, was with the 35th battery, and made the supreme sacrifice overseas.

Miss Isabel McCarthy of the De Laval staff, Peterborough is a daughter.

The funeral will leave his late home near Keene, Tomorrow at 10 a.m., and thence proceed to St. John's Church, Keene and St. Peter's Cemetery, Peterborough for interment.

THE SNEERS OF A CYNIC.

THE SNEER IS the last weapon of the man who, finding himself identified with a desperate case, lacks argument. Mr. G. N. Gordon, for instance, referring to the leadership of Hartley Dewart, affects to make light of newspapers that stand for reforms. The trouble with Mr. Gordon is that his vision is short. The man whose world is to a large extent limited by the four walls of a court room and who day after day sees criminals trying to escape from the consequences of their offences, and other fellow mortals engaged in disputatious litigation is apt to become cynical in his estimates of humanity. Seeing mankind at its worst tends to make the best of individuals skeptical.

If Mr. Gordon sees anything reassuring in the present situation of his party so far as the Province is concerned, it would be nothing short of cruel to disturb his dream. Two men were slated for the leadership. The policy of one with regard to the leading issue before the people was diametrically opposite to that of the other. The man who landed the job won by a narrow majority. That demonstrates that the party is irrevocably divided into two camps. Mr. Gordon could see this but for the limited court room vision already referred to. In legal contracts a victory is a victory regardless of the margin.

Still, Mr. Gordon is not deficient in a species of bravery. He has at least the courage of his prejudices. It requires courage to accept the situation as he does. It also requires courage for a gentleman of his profession to go to the Ottawa convention next month bearing in his hands that have never known toil the banner of the workingman and wearing no brand of approval except the faint imprint of the members of the calling which he himself follows.

Mr. Gordon, as the self-constituted champion of Labor, suggests nothing so much as a man bestriding a hobby-horse taking part in a steeplechase against tried and seasoned thoroughbred hunters. He will at least introduce an element of comedy into the contest, but so far as he is personally concerned the comedy is likely to develop into tragedy when he reaches the first hurdle.

Labor has been bamboozled by politicians all these years, by politicians who have nothing to offer but sympathy of the Gordon variety. But this sympathy has not brought Labor anything. What the wage-earner is likely to insist upon is a man well mounted, not a figure-head on a hobby-horse.

PROTECTION IN GREAT BRITAIN.

THE PROTECTIONIST movement in Great Britain is reflected in British financial methods. The United States Commissioner in London, in a report to the Department of Trade and Commerce at Washington, says that the present British financial policy as reflected in the maintenance of the embargo on gold exports, removal of restrictions on the issuance of capital for domestic enterprises and removal of the peg in sterling exchange in New York, "indicates a policy of extreme caution, of protecting bank reserves at home, and of providing ample credit for industry as against the former policy of maintaining at all cost British supremacy in world finance by the maintenance of sterling exchange at par, and of maintaining the cheapest commodity market in the world by preventing an expansion of currency, which would raise the price of goods." The Commissioner adds: "We have, in other words, a reflection on the financial side of the protectionist sentiment, which has been developed in the country and which may be necessary at this critical time in British history, but which is none the less a departure from British tradition of free trade, free gold movements, and control of world finance and world trade by the maintenance of world markets through the policy of lowest world prices."

TRAGEDY RATHER THAN JOKE.

(Orillia Packet.)

THE CHOICE of Hartley Dewart as Liberal leader is a practical abandonment by the party of the field of serious politics in the Province of Ontario. If it were not so much of a tragedy it would be very much of a joke.
